(d) No accreditation standard adopted or approved by the division, and no standard included in any certification program of any accreditation agency approved by the division, shall serve to limit the ability of any allied health care practitioner to provide services within his or her full scope of practice. Notwithstanding this or any other provision of law, each outpatient setting may limit the privileges, or determine the privileges, within the appropriate scope of practice, that will be afforded to physicians and allied health care practitioners who practice at the facility, in accordance with credentialing standards established by the outpatient setting in compliance with this chapter. Privileges may not be arbitrarily restricted based on category of licensure."

14. Health and Safety Code section 1248.65 provides, "It shall constitute unprofessional conduct for a physician and surgeon to willfully and knowingly violate this chapter."

15. Board Disciplinary Order No. 09-93-26899 requires, as Condition # 4 of the Conditions of Probation ("Stipulation in Settlement and Decision, p. 7), that respondent "... shall obey all federal, state and local laws governing the practice of medicine in California and remain in full compliance with any court ordered criminal probation, payments and other orders."

FIRST CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE AND REVOCATION OF PROBATION

(Gross Negligence, Incompetence, Repeated Negligent Acts)

16. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 2234, subdivisions (b), (c) and/or (d) and subject to revocation of probation under Disciplinary Order No. 09-93-26899 in that he was grossly negligent and/or incompetent and/or committed repeated negligent acts in his care and treatment of patients A.H. and H.B. The circumstances are as follows:

A. On or about July 18, 2000, A.H., then 70 years of age, had a chemical peel (called "O'Neil's Skin Rejuvenation") of her face performed by respondent. During the peel, A.H. had ventricular arrhythmia, which respondent treated with intravenous Lidocaine. Postoperatively, A.H.'s cardiac instability continued, and respondent treated her with Inapsine.

B. After the surgery, A.H. was discharged and driven to the Embassy Suites Hotel, in Temecula by employees of respondent and placed under the care of nurses from Q.C. Enterprises, Inc., (aka "Cual Care"), a nursing registry effectively controlled by respondent.

C. At about 5:30 p.m. on July 18, 2000, the nurse found that A.H.'s pulse was 124 beats per minute (bpm). She paged respondent for orders.

D. Another nurse came on duty at about 7:00 p.m. She found that A.H.'s blood pressure was still high and that A.H. was restless, anxious and hyperventilating. Shortly thereafter, respondent called, the nurse reported A.H.'s symptoms to him and asked respondent to come to the Embassy Suites Hotel.

D. While respondent was on his way, A.H. complained of chest pain, and the nurse called 911. Respondent arrived at the Embassy Suites about the same time as the paramedics. A.H. was taken to the hospital.

E. H.B. was 72 years of age when she came under respondent's care.

She had a chemical peel of her face and liposuction of her thighs performed by respondent on or about July 26, 2000.

F. H.B. had a preoperative history and physical performed by another physician, D.W.S., M.D. Dr. S noted varicose veins, stasis dermatitis, and trace edema. Dr. S. also noted that H.B. had a history of varicose vein surgery. A preoperative EKG showed PVC's, or premature ventricular contractions.

G. Respondent sedated H.B. for the peel procedure, and performed that procedure. During the procedure, H.B. twice experienced ventricular arrhythmias. Respondent then performed liposuction of H.B.'s knees. H.B. was prematurely discharged from the respondents clinic and driven by respondent's employees to the Embassy Suites Hotel, where she was cared for by nurses from Q C Enterprises, Inc., (aka "Qual Care") a nursing registry effectively controlled by respondent. H.B. was sedated to the extent that she had to be lifted out of her wheel chair and place into bed where upon she immediately went into deep sleep. She remained largely sedentary for two days following the procedures.

H. On or about July 26, 2000 at 9:00 a.m., the nurse attending H.B. found that H.B. was in shock, and contacted respondent at that time. Respondent authorized the nurse to call 911 at about 9:15 that morning. H.B. was taken to the hospital, where she was diagnosed as having venous thrombus and pulmonary embolism.

17. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under Code section 2234, subdivisions (b), (c) and/or (d) in that he was grossly negligent and/or incompetent and/or committed repeated negligent acts in his care and treatment of A.H. and H.B. The circumstances are as follows.

A. Paragraph 16 of the Accusation is incorporated by reference and hereby formally realleged as if set forth here in full.

B. Respondent inappropriately discharged A.H. to the Embassy Suites Hotel despite having treated her for cardiac instability and hypertension during the chemical peel respondent performed on A.H.

C. Respondent failed to respond to the initial page to him, placed by the nurse caring for A.H. postoperatively.

D. When respondent was contacted the second time by the nurse caring for A.H., he apparently failed to recognize signs and symptoms of A.H.'s severe cardiac instability. He also improperly delayed the nurse in calling paramedics to take A.H. to the hospital, instead electing to observe A.H. in the hotel room.

E. Respondent improperly performed lower extremity liposuction on H.B. She was not an appropriate patient for this procedure in light of her lower extremity venous insuffiency (found in her preoperative workup).

F. Respondent excessively sedated H.B.and then prematurely discharged her to Embassy Suites Hotel in the care of Qual Care .

G. Respondent improperly continued the cosmetic surgery on H.B. after she suffered two episodes of ventricular arrhythmia during the chemical peel portion of respondent's surgery.

H. Respondent failed to timely cause H.B. to be transferred to the hospital for treatment when H.B. suffered postoperative complications while staying at the Embassy Suites Hotel.

SECOND CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE AND REVOCATION OF PROBATION

(False or Misleading Advertisement)

18. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 2271 in that he engaged in false and/or misleading advertising. The circumstances are as follows.

A. Respondent used an advertising video which creates the impression that he completed a post-graduate residency and to post-graduate training at the University of California, Davis. Respondent did not complete a residency and did not have post-graduate training other than a one-year internship.

B. Respondent uses videos, brochures, and other advertising media to represent that his practice is safe and has low complication rates. In fact, respondent is on probation for treatment of patients resulting in death and serious complications.

C. Pre-operative patient photographs are taken in different lighting that post-operative photographs. Pre-operative photographs are taken without makeup, while post-operative photos feature patients with makeup. The effect of these photographs is to exaggerate the benefits of respondent's treatments.

D. Respondent has sent a letter to prospective patients falsely claiming that his is the only medical office in southern California that specializes in cosmetic skin rejuvenation.

THIRD CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE AND REVOCATION OF PROBATION

(False and misleading advertisement)

19. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under section 651 of the Code in that he engaged in fraudulent, misleading or deceptive advertising. The circumstances are set forth in paragraph 18 of the Accusation, which is incorporated by reference and hereby formally realleged as if set forth here in full.

FIRST CAUSE FOR PROBATION REVOCATION

(Violation of laws relating to the practice of medicine)

20. Respondent is subject to probation revocation because he violated the provisions of the Board's Decision in Case No. 09-93-26899, In the Matter of the Accusation Against Kelly J. O'Neil, M.D. Paragraph 4 of the Order mandates that respondent obey all federal, state and local laws relating to the practice of medicine. The circumstances are as follows.

A. Paragraphs 10 through 16 and 17 of the Accusation are incorporated by reference and hereby formally realleged as if set forth here in full.

B. On or about August 2, 2000, respondent and /or Qual Care Nursing Services, Inc. were served with two notices of violations by M.S., a Code Enforcement Officer for the City of Temecula. Code Enforcement Officer S. issued notices for violations of Temecula Municipal Code section 17.24, a zoning violation, and ordered the Embassy Suites to immediately cease all operations of medical care in Citation No. 0484. Respondent was ordered to cease renting rooms for medical use, and admonished that failure to comply could result in a citation in Citation No. 486.

C. Paragraphs 8, 9, 18 and 19 of the Accusation are incorporated by reference and hereby formally realleged as if fully set forth herein.

D. Respondent has falsely advertized to potential patients; engaged in improper patient selection and other acts in violation of Business and Professions Code section 2234(b) (c) and (d); used general anesthesia on his patients and has continued his operation of an uncertified out patient setting for the care and treatment of his post-operative patients.

DISCIPLINE CONSIDERATIONS

21. To determine the degree of discipline, if any, to be imposed on Respondent, Complainant alleges that there was a prior disciplinary action against respondent entitled In the Matter of the Accusation Against Kelly James O'Neil, M.D. before the Medical Board of California, Case Number 09-1993-26899. Respondent's license was revoked for repeated negligent acts in the care and treatment of two patients. Respondent admitted in the Stipulation in Settlement and Decision, his negligence in his use of general anesthetics and 50% phenol solution on a patient who died on the operating table of cardiac arrest; operation of an unlicensed health facility he used to house his post-operative chemical face peel patients; and, to falsely advertizing his medical credentials.[Paragraph 4A-I of the Accusation which is incorporated by paragraph 5A (Acts of Repeated Negligence)]. He further admitted to negligent selection of an improper candidate for liposuction procedure [Paragraph 15/13A-N of Supplemental Accusation]; and, delay in recognition of a life threatening infectious disease in a post-operative patient.[Paragraph 13A-N].

Under the Decision, Respondent was revoked and ordered to successfully complete the PACE Program; and upon successful completion of the program the revocation was stayed and respondent was placed on probation for five years on certain terms and conditions. The effective date of that decision was August 14, 1998. That decision is now final and is incorporated by reference as if fully set forth. Respondent's conduct is a continuation of those acts which precipitated his Stipulation for Settlement and Decision and which acts are prohibited by the Decision.

PRAYER

WHEREFORE, Complainant requests that a hearing be held on the matters herein alleged, and that following the hearing, the Division of Medical Quality issue a decision:

1. Revoking or suspending Physician's and Surgeon's Certificate No. A 36888, issued to Kelly James O'Neil, M.D.;

2. Revoking, suspending or denying approval of Kelly James O'Neil, M.D.'s authority to supervise physician's assistants, pursuant to section 3527 of the Code;

3. Ordering Kelly James O'Neil, M.D. to pay the Division of Medical Quality the reasonable costs of the investigation and enforcement of this case, and, if placed on probation, the costs of probation monitoring;

DECISION AFTER NONADOPTION

Administrative Law Judge Joyce A. Wharton, Office of Administrative Hearings, State of California, heard this matter in San Diego, California on October 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 28, 29 and 30, 2002.

T. Douglas MacCartee, Deputy Attorney General, represented the complainant.

Albert J. Garcia, Attorney at Law, represented respondent Kelly James O'Neill, M.D., who was present.

The matter was submitted on October 30, 2002.

The proposed decision of the administrative law judge was submitted to the Division of Medical Quality, Medical Board of California (hereafter "division") on March 13, 2003. After due consideration thereof, the division declined to adopt the proposed decision and thereafter on April 10, 2003 issued a Notice of Non-Adoption and subsequently issued an Order Fixing Date for Submission of Written Argument. On July 3, 2003, the division issued a Notice of Hearing for Oral Argument. Oral argument was heard on August 1, 2003. The time for filing written argument in this matter having expired, written argument having been filed by both parties and such written argument, together with the entire record, including the transcript of said hearing, having been read and considered, pursuant to Government Code Section 11517, Panel B of the division hereby makes the following decision and order:

FACTUAL FINDINGS

1. On January 4, 2002, Ron Joseph (hereinafter "complainant"), acting in his official capacity as the Executive Director of the Medical Board of California (hereinafter "the Board"), filed Accusation No 19-2000-112061 against Kelly James O'Neil, M.D. (hereinafter "respondent"). Complainant charged respondent with unprofessional conduct in connection with his care and treatment of two patients in July 2000. Specifically, complainant alleged gross negligence, repeated acts of negligence and incompetence in violation of Business and Professions Code,[1] section 2234, subdivisions (b), (c) and (d); and false and misleading advertising in violation of sections 651 and 2271. Complainant also alleged that respondent violated a term of probation in case No. 09-93-26899 and, therefore, the order of probation should be revoked. Complainant filed a First Amended Accusation on October 16, 2002.[2]

Respondent filed a timely Notice of Defense.

2. Respondent is 49 years old. In 1975, he graduated U.C. Davis with a Bachelor of Science degree in Physiology. In 1980, he obtained a medical degree from Tulane Medical School. In 1981, he completed a one-year rotating internship at UC Davis but did not perform a residency. On June 24, 1981, the Board issued physician's and surgeon's certificate No. A 36888. The certificate is renewed and current with an expiration date of January 31, 2003.

Respondent moved to Temecula and opened a private family practice in late August 1981. Respondent soon met a physician who specialized in chemical peels and was about to retire. The physician trained respondent in the peel procedure and respondent incorporated it into his practice. Respondent took courses and attended seminars on peel procedures. In 1987, he gave up his family practice to primarily devote time to the skin peel procedure. In about 1994, he began doing tumescent liposurgery as well. Respondent has continued to limit his practice to chemical peels and liposurgery. He conducts his practice at the O'Neil Skin Center located at 40971 Winchester Road in Temecula. Respondent is not board certified in any specialty.

[1] All statutory references are to the California Business and Professions Code unless stated otherwise.

[2] Respondent did not object to the new allegations made shortly before the date of hearing.

3. Complainant filed Accusation No. 09-03-26899 against respondent in November 1996, and a Supplemental Accusation in January 1998. The parties resolved the matter by a Stipulation in Settlement and Decision effective September 14, 1998. The stipulation contained the following pertinent language:

> "7. For the purpose of resolving Accusation and First Supplemental Accusation No. 09-93-26899, respondent admits he committed repeated acts of negligence in the care and treatment of patient J.G. as alleged in paragraph 5 of the Accusation, and repeated acts of negligence in the care and treatment of patient V.F. as alleged in paragraph 15 of the First Supplemental Accusation. . . . . The remaining allegations in the Accusation and First Supplemental Accusation are dismissed."[3] (Emphasis added.)

J.G. was a 72-year-old patient on whom respondent performed a chemical facial peel in March 1993. During the procedure the patient went into respiratory arrest and never regained consciousness. Pursuant to the stipulation, respondent admitted the following: He failed to perform a complete preoperative physical; he failed to order a pre-operative electrocardiogram or chest x-ray which would have determined the extent of the patient's chronic condition; he failed to detect the patient was suffering from chronic congestive heart failure; he failed to record the patient's peripheral edema in his history and physical; he proceeded with the chemical face peel without first obtaining a cardiac clearance from a physician; he failed to properly intubate the patient prior to arrival of paramedics; he failed to establish a properly operating intravenous route; he gave the patient multiple sedatives without a nurse anesthetist or anesthesiologist present.

V.F. was a 37-year-old female, weighing 247 pounds, on whom respondent performed liposuction in September 1996. After surgery the patient developed blisters from the girdle prescribed by respondent. The condition worsened to a life-threatening soft tissue infection. Pursuant to the stipulation, respondent admitted the following: He failed to properly assess the patient for liposuction surgery; the patient was not a proper candidate for the surgery because of her generalized obesity; he administered an excessive amount of tumescent solution; he removed an excessive amount of aspirate from the patient.

The Board revoked respondent's certificate and stayed the order for five years on probationary terms that included: completion of a Physician Assessment and Clinical Evaluation (PACE) program in patient assessment, plastic surgery and anesthesia at UCSD School of Medicine prior to the revocation order being stayed; a practice monitor; practice restrictions that preclude use of general anesthesia and limit the amount of aspirate withdrawn during certain procedures; compliance with all federal, state and local laws and rules governing the practice of medicine in California.

4. In June and July 1998, respondent underwent a comprehensive PACE assessment, which included measurement of medical skills and knowledge, appraisal of physical health and psychological testing. Respondent was found to be in good physical and mental health.

In compliance with terms of his probation, respondent submitted to a psychological assessment on June 1, 1998. William Perry, Ph.D. interviewed respondent and administered numerous tests. He found no cognitive or neurocognitive deficits, nor was there indication of serious psychopathology. In September 1998, respondent attended a weeklong clinical program including Dermatology and Anesthesiology. On September 25, 1998, PACE issued a certificate of completion indicating that respondent successfully completed and met all requirements of the PACE program. The order of revocation was stayed on that date.

Respondent testified that as a result of the disciplinary action, he has instituted changes in his practice. At the initial consultation he applies stricter guidelines to evaluate the patient for the procedure and he refuses more patients at that stage. Patients under 50 must have blood work and patients over 50 must also have an EKG and chest x-ray. All patients must be examined by their primary care physician and provide that physician's authorization for the chemexfiliation and/or liposurgery. It is not uncommon for the procedure to then be cancelled because of abnormal testing, or "more often just delayed." In addition to his initial consultation with the patient, on the morning of the procedure respondent also takes a medical history, performs a physical examination and documents findings in his chart. Respondent adheres to the probationary requirement to limit the amount of aspirate for liposurgery and believes this was a good idea.

As of October 29, 2001, respondent was deemed in compliance with all terms and conditions of his probation. Respondent's practice monitor reported he did not find any problems with respondent's care of patients.

5. At all times relevant to the pending Accusation, respondent conducted his practice at 40971 Winchester Road in Temecula under the name "O'Neil Skin and Lipo Center, Kelly James O'Neil, M.D." Effective October 25, 1999, the facility became accredited by the Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care, Inc. Respondent lost his hospital privileges due to the 1998 disciplinary action. However, he has a standing transfer agreement with the local hospital allowing him to transfer patients to the hospital by means of a 911 call.

As of July 2000, respondent had performed about 6,000 full phenol peels and 2,000 more partial peels. Approximately one-third of his patients were aged 60 or older.

6. Respondent's procedures were performed on an outpatient basis. He gave each patient a written set of instructions titled "O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation After Care Instructions for the First 48 Hours." The instructions advised the patient in pertinent part as follows:

> "1. You must have a driver to take you from Dr. O'Neil's office.
> 2. You must have someone help you so you can rest in bed (only getting up for the restroom) for the next 48 hours.
>
> 3. . . . Diet: Full liquid diet through a straw. If nauseated have clear liquids through a straw.
>
> 4. Sleep with your head elevated at 45 degrees for the first 24 hours and then position as you are comfortable.
>
> 5. Apply ice packs to eyelids for 20 minutes each hour for the first 24 hours. . . .
> 6. Medications: Keep these at your bedside. . .
> . . . Please do not take any xanax, ativan, or restoril past midnight on the second day after your treatment, because the doctor would like you to be more active the day your tape comes off.
> Remove the mask on the morning of the third day and apply the powder that was supplied to you. . . . .
>
> Notify Dr. O'Neil if your:
> Blood pressure is greater than 100 diastolic
> If your blood pressure is greater then [sic]180 systolic
> If your pulse is greater then [sic] 100
> If your tempeture [sic] is greater then [sic] 100 degrees
> If you have any questions"[4]

7. Respondent believed that to achieve optimum cosmetic outcome, the 24 to 40 hour period after the procedure was an important, integral part of the skin rejuvenation process. Some, but not all, of the peel procedures required application of a tape mask that was to remain in place for about two days. The tape mask must stay on with minimal movement around the mouth and eyes in order to achieve the best cosmetic outcome for the patient. Respondent wanted the patients to remain quiet and undisturbed for the first

[4] Additional instructions were included for liposurgery patients.

48 hours so they would not touch their faces or disturb the tape mask and thus risk scarring or a poor result.

Respondent explained that he wanted his patients in a controlled post operative care environment, not necessarily for medical reasons, but for a good result of the facial peel so the patient would be happy and he would not have future complaints about the result.

8. In 2000, as part of the skin rejuvenation package, respondent offered his patients post operative care options that included staying two nights in a nearby hotel where they could be monitored and assisted until they removed the mask. Once the mask was removed, the patients could go home or spend from 1 to 9 days at a private "retreat" where healthful meals, recreational activities and relaxation were provided by an attentive staff. The aftercare options were attractive to the patients, especially those who lived far from the clinic or had no one at home to provide care and assistance. Respondent would not perform the procedure on certain patients who lived far away with no one at home to help them unless they agreed to go to the hotel.

Over the years respondent had used several different post operative care facilities or retreats including the local hospital. When his license was placed on probationary status, respondent lost his hospital privileges at Inland Valley Hospital and sought another provider of post operative care. Respondent wanted a location that was close to his office "for transport and to keep an eye on patients." In about 1999 he learned that QualCare, Inc., a nursing registry, was providing post procedure care for cosmetic surgery patients at an upscale hotel in Riverside. Because that location was too far from his office, he contacted the owner of QualCare to see if the service could be provided in Temecula.

9. QualCare Inc., aka QC Enterprises, was a company owned and operated by Jo-Ann Jordan, R.N. Ms. Jordan and a friend started the business, which operated for an unknown period of time before it was incorporated as a closely held corporation in May 1999. Ms. Jordan described QualCare as a nursing registry that provided care on an as needed basis in various settings. The major part of QualCare's business was to provide care to discharged outpatients in a setting similar to that at home.

Ms. Jordan hired registered nurses who worked for QualCare as independent contractors. She required that the nurses also work in hospitals so they would have the necessary and up-to-date skills. QualCare scheduled and paid the nurses. The nurses wore scrubs and used latex gloves, had a stethoscope and blood pressure measuring equipment, but did not provide oximeters or EKG equipment. The nurses did not give injections or intravenous treatment, nor did they dispense drugs. They assisted with suppositories and the patients' regular oral medications. The patient's physician would send someone to administer any injection that was required. The nurse was expected to use her professional judgment to call 911 if an emergency arose.

Ms. Jordan was familiar with other companies that provided aftercare to cosmetic surgery patients in hotel settings in southern California. Jordan testified that she contacted the appropriate state and local agencies about providing aftercare services in a hotel setting and was not advised of any illegality. She testified that when the city of Temecula served the notice of violation at the Embassy Suites Hotel, Riverside County was "in the process" of approving Qual Care's activities. Before Ms. Jordan met respondent, QualCare had provided aftercare services for a Loma Linda plastic surgeon. QualCare arranged for the patients to stay in rooms at the Mission Inn, a very upscale hotel in Riverside. QualCare provided one nurse to care for three patients. If a patient persisted in trying to remove the bandages, an unlicensed "sitter" would be provided for one-on-one attention to do nothing but watch the patient.

10. In 1999, at least one year after QualCare started doing business, Ms. Jordan learned that respondent was looking for aftercare services for his skin peel patients. She met with respondent and he discussed his expectations for aftercare. Based on her experience at the Mission Inn, she believed QualCare could fashion a program to meet respondent's needs. The patient was to remain quiet and recline at a 45-degree angle; ice was to be applied to the face and the patient must avoid smoking. The setting was to be upscale, with a phone available for personal calls and a microwave for heating broth. Ms. Jordan described the service QualCare was to provide as "a supportive environment in lieu of going home".

Ms. Jordan and her partner used respondent's guidelines and incorporated what they felt was needed for aftercare. Ms. Jordan and respondent agreed that the Embassy Suites Hotel in Temecula would be an appropriate setting. Ms. Jordan approached the Embassy Suites and discussed with the manager the nature of her operation, what the nurses would be doing and the type of rooms needed. Embassy Suites agreed to rent to QualCare a block of adjoining rooms. The hotel also accommodated QualCare by providing unlimited ice, linens and pillows. There was no evidence of any complaints by the management or owner of Embassy Suites nor any indication they were concerned about the legality of QualCare's use of the hotel property for aftercare. The panel found this to be unpersuasive, as a hotel would not likely be familiar with health care facility licensing standards. QualCare entered an arrangement with respondent to provide aftercare to all his facial peel patients. QualCare operated out of Embassy Suites for approximately 18 months.

The patients paid QualCare for its services. As part of the skin rejuvenation "package," the patient wrote a check to respondent for his services and a separate check to QualCare. Both checks were delivered to respondent's office approximately a week before the procedure and QualCare would pick up its checks. Respondent did not receive any portion of the payment made to QualCare.

11. QualCare continued to solicit business from other physicians but was not successful. After 1999, respondent was its only client. There was no arrangement or agreement between respondent and QualCare whereby it would serve only his practice.

12. The evidence did not establish that QualCare, a nursing registry, was "effectively controlled" by respondent as alleged in the First Amended Accusation. Respondent took no part in the formation or incorporation of QualCare and had no ownership or financial interest in it. He had no role in hiring, scheduling or paying the nurses. Respondent provided QualCare nurses the same instructions given to the patients for aftercare and his nurses demonstrated how to remove the tape mask. QualCare nurses called respondent, as the treating physician, if a patient was having a problem and they followed his instructions for aftercare. While the panel concurs with the finding of the administrative law judge that respondent did not control QualCare as an entity, respondent did control his patients receiving post procedure care from QualCare at the Embassy Suites Hotel.

13. In the First Amended Accusation, complainant alleged respondent violated the terms of probation because he failed to obey state and local laws. Complainant's counsel explained the charges were based on complainant's belief that respondent operated, managed, conducted or maintained an "outpatient setting" at the Embassy Suites in violation of Health and Safety Code section 1248.1 and Temecula Municipal Code section 17.24.

The evidence did not establish that use of the hotel for aftercare as provided by QualCare constituted an "outpatient setting." Health and Safety Code section 1248(c) defines outpatient setting for the purpose of section 1248.1 as follows:

> ". . . any facility, . . . center, office or other setting that is not part of a general acute care facility and where anesthesia[5] . . . is used in compliance with the community standard of practice, in doses that, when administered have the probability of placing a patient at risk for loss of the patient's life-preserving protective reflexes.
> "Outpatient setting" does not include, among other settings, any settings where anxiolytics[6] and analgesics[7] are administered . . . in doses that do not have the probability of placing the patient at risk for loss of life preserving reflexes." (Emphasis added.)

---

[6] "Anxiolytic" is defined as ". . . reducing anxiety." Id.

Neither respondent nor the QualCare nurses administered anesthesia to patients during their stay at the hotel.

14. A City of Temecula code enforcement officer testified that the City received a call from the fire department regarding the rescue of two of respondent's patients from a surgery recovery facility being run out of the Embassy Suites Hotel. The fire department requested the City get on this matter quickly, due to concern that respondent would move his recovery facility to another location. The enforcement officer investigated the matter and issued a notice to the Embassy Suites Hotel, Qual Care and respondent to cease all operations of medical care.

15. The parties entered the following stipulation with regard to the Temecula Municipal Code:

> "At all times relevant herein the city of Temecula, California had a zoning general plan and ordinance which precluded the Embassy Suites Hotel from operation of any business use other than its own operation as a hotel. Under the ordinance it is illegal for anyone, who has not applied for and received a conditional use permit, to engage [within the premises of Embassy Suites Hotel] in the operation of a Post Surgical Care Facility or any other health care operation whereby medical patients or the infirm are cared for by a medical professional for a fee."

Upon review of the record, the panel finds that respondent's arranging for his patients to receive post operative care at the Embassy Suites Hotel was in violation of the City of Temecula zoning ordinance (which the enforcement officer testified to be Municipal Code section 17-01-080.) The panel found the testimony of the enforcement officer to be credible, and there was no evidence that respondent or Qual Care questioned the validity of the notice of violation, but rather, they acted in accordance with the cease and desist notice and immediately removed their post operative care facility from the hotel.

16. The First Amended Accusation alleged as a violation of law that respondent "continued his operation of an uncertified outpatient setting."

The evidence did not establish that respondent operated an "uncertified outpatient setting." (The evidence in this case indicates that in arranging for postoperative care in a hotel respondent may have been operating an unlicensed health facility in violation of Health and Safely Code Section 1250. However, this violation was not pled in the First Amended Accusation; and therefore, cannot be found in this decision.)

17. For several years respondent has made available to prospective patients a video. The video at issue in this hearing is Exhibit H. Respondent testified the video was made as an "infomercial" to be shown on television approximately seven years ago. The intent was to promote the chemical peel process that he developed over many years and became his special area of practice. The evidence indicated Exhibit H was made in about 1994.[8]

Respondent testified he felt Exhibit H was too commercialized to give to patients, so he made another similar version to distribute to patients for information. The evidence indicated a video was available to patients at respondent's office and was presented at promotional seminars. The evidence was not conclusive that Exhibit H was the same video presented to individual patients and at seminars.

18. The First Amended Accusation alleged respondent engaged in false or misleading advertising within the meaning of sections 651 and 2271 because he "used an advertising video which creates the impression that he completed a post graduate residency and to [sic] post-graduate training at the University of California, Davis."

In one portion of the Exhibit H video, when describing his background and experience, respondent stated: "I graduated from Tulane Medical School and spent my residency at U.C. Davis in Sacramento." Respondent goes on to say that he then made his specialty in non-surgical rejuvenation of the skin. The panel believes these statements imply respondent completed a residency in his specialty. In fact, respondent completed a one-year rotating internship at U.C. Davis in family practice, and did not do a residency.

Respondent admitted his statement in the video could be construed to mean that he completed a residency program in his specialty, and therefore could be misleading. The panel did not find respondent's testimony regarding his confusion over the terms "intern" and "residency" credible on the issue of whether his representation on the video regarding his residency was misleading.

Respondent testified that his office frequently receives inquiries from prospective patients inquiring about his credentials. The panel believes this fact establishes that representations in the video regarding his training are material.

19. The First Amended Accusation alleged respondent engaged in false or misleading advertising within the meanings of sections 651 and 2271 because he "uses videos, brochures, and other advertising media to represent that his practice is safe and has low complication rates. In fact respondent is on probation for treatment of patients resulting in death and serious complications." The Accusation did not specify statements or language it found objectionable. As evidence of the false statements complainant presented the Exhibit H video, a brochure and an information sheet.

[8] Alice T is one of respondent's chemical peel patients who appeared in the video and stated her age as 72. She testified at the hearing and stated her current age as 80. This suggests the video was made 8 years ago, in about 1994.

Respondent made the following statements on the Exhibit H video regarding his skin rejuvenation procedures:

> [Regarding the aftercare program provided at the retreat facility and the results of the O.S.R.[9] treatment] ". . . I believe it is the reason my complication rate is so low."
>
> "Safety and results are my main concern."
> "There are risks involved as in any procedure but this procedure is inherently safer than cosmetic surgery, dermabrasion or skin peeling. I have performed thousands of these procedures over fourteen years and we provide every possible precaution at the O'Neil Skin Center to insure your success. The reason for our excellent safety record is simple, I provide more aftercare than other doctors, I've also designed a safer system for skin rejuvenation than other doctors, a multilayer system with a moderate strength solution. Some doctors use a harsh solution. I have designed a much gentler formula."

The brochure contained the following statements:

> "Safety
> The O.S.R. program offers the most extensive aftercare program of any cosmetic treatment on the market today. The patients heal and recuperate in privacy and seclusion. This enhances the safety of the procedure and insure [sic] uniform results. Other doctors may try to suggest that their skin peel program is "easier" or "safer" because you are sent directly home after the procedure, but wouldn't it be safer to have experienced professionals monitoring and caring for you at this time?"

The information sheet, titled "O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation Versus Conventional Skin Peels" and dated "3/00," stated in pertinent part:

> "At the O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation Center we specialize in cosmetic treatment of the skin. Various types of skin peels are offered as well as the O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation program. By concentrating on one area of expertise, Dr. O'Neil has elevated skin rejuvenation to a different plane. With over 8500 cases behind him, we feel our skin treatments are second to none in quality, safety and results. . . . "
> "The O'Neil Skin Center stands for quality, comfort, and safety."

[9] O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation.

The panel believes respondent's holding himself out as having an "excellent safety record," and "second to none in quality and safety" is misleading, within the meaning of sections 651 and 2271, when in fact his license to practice medicine is revoked, with the revocation stayed, and placed on probation for a term of five (5) years, along with the requirement of a practice monitor.

20. The First Amended Accusation alleged respondent engaged in false or misleading advertising in violation of sections 651 and 2271 because he took pre-operative photographs in different lighting than post-operative photos, and took pre-operative photos without makeup, but post-operative photos feature patients with makeup.

The only evidence of photos is contained in Exhibits O and P, original brochures containing black and white photos, and Exhibit H, the videotape. Complainant presented no credible evidence about the manner in which respondent took any before and after photos. Complainant's expert witnesses, Mark Krugman, M.D. and David T. Morwood, M.D., offered their opinions but to a great extent they were speculating; they had no expertise in photography nor did they know the actual circumstances in which the photos were taken.

In most, it does not appear the lighting before and after was significantly different. In some, it does not appear that make-up was used at all in the after photo. In some photos, lipstick or eye makeup was used in both before and after photos. In others, it appears that eye make-up or lipstick was applied for the after photo, but it is also obvious that the improvement in facial skin is the result of something other than cosmetics and lighting.

The only evidence about the manner in which the photos were taken established they were taken in respondent's office in ambient lighting. The before photos were taken shortly before the procedure. The after photos were taken when patients returned for post-procedure checkups. Respondent explained that the lighting might appear different because he takes the pictures against a wall at different times of the day. Patients are more likely to wear makeup when they come in for a checkup but the makeup will not cover wrinkles. Respondent testified he never touched up photos or tried to misrepresent results; he did not need to use makeup to exaggerate the benefits of the O.S.R. treatment because the results and the patients speak for themselves.

Five of respondent's skin rejuvenation patients, including A.H. and H.B., testified at the hearing. Direct observation of their skin revealed that the "after" photos very likely did not exaggerate the results of the O.S.R. treatment.

The evidence was not sufficiently clear and convincing to establish that the photographs used in respondent's promotional and informational materials constituted false or misleading advertising.

21. The First Amended Accusation alleged respondent engaged in false or misleading advertising in violation of sections 651 and 2271 because he sent a letter to prospective patients falsely claiming that his was the only medical office in southern California that specialized in cosmetic skin rejuvenation. The letter stated:

> "We are, to our knowledge, the only medical office in Southern California that specializes in cosmetic skin rejuvenation. While other physicians may do laser peels, TCA peels, or phenol peels, few, if any, concentrate their practice exclusively on skin rejuvenation."

It is important that the statement contained the qualifying "to our knowledge." Complainant presented no evidence of any other medical office in Southern California that concentrated its practice exclusively on non surgical cosmetic skin rejuvenation. None of the expert witnesses called by the parties concentrated their practice on cosmetic skin rejuvenation to the same extent as respondent. The evidence was not sufficient to establish that respondent's statement constituted a violation of sections 651 and 2271.

22. The First Amended Accusation charged respondent with gross negligence, incompetence and repeated negligent acts in his treatment of patient A.H. in July 2000.

In 1998, at age 69, patient A.H. first consulted respondent. A.H. was impressed by the beautiful skin of her hairdresser, who had been treated by respondent. A.H. attended a seminar given by respondent in Escondido and watched two videos, one at the seminar and one given to her by a friend. The seminar video may have been identical or similar to Exhibit H. Respondent's statement about his medical school and residency did not impress her. Based on the information obtained from the seminar and video, A.H. felt respondent was highly competent in the skin rejuvenation process.

On the intake sheet, A.H. listed previous surgeries including two face-lifts and back surgery. She noted her only medical problems as osteoporosis and previous morphine addiction related to back pain. The patient did not have a facial procedure at that time. She returned to respondent in 2000 and scheduled an O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation procedure, including aftercare by QualCare and the retreat. She agreed to the post operative care program because she thought it was better than going home and caring for herself or having a friend help her. She felt no pressure to go to the aftercare program. She was not aware she would spend the first two days at the hotel. She thought Qual Care was part of respondent's "operation but under a different arm" for tax purposes. She thought Qual Care would be supervised by respondent. She does not recall being in the hotel room. She was too asleep to remember.

Pursuant to respondent's routine procedure, an EKG and x-ray were done on June 15, and a complete blood count was performed on June 18, 2000. The lab results were normal and the x-ray found no acute cardiopulmonary disease. The EKG noted "Sinus Bradycardia, otherwise normal ECG." Respondent required the patient be examined by her primary care physician and obtain an approval for the procedure. On July 14, 2000, the patient was examined by Jerome Brodkin, M.D., her primary care physician. Dr. Brodkin completed an authorization form that noted the patient's only medical problem as "Back, Lower." The patient's physical examination was normal and there were no abnormal findings on her EKG or chest x-ray. Dr. Brodkin approved the patient for the phenol peel procedure.

23. Patient A.H. arrived at respondent's outpatient center by 7:30 a.m. on July 18, 2000. Upon arrival, the patient signed the QualCare Patient Consent Form, which stated:

> "I do hereby give permission to QualCare nurses and associates to render care as prescribed by the physician during post procedural care in a non-hospital setting. In an emergency situation, I am aware that 911 will be called and I will be transported to the nearest hospital. . . ."

25. The patient was in the operating room at 9:30 a.m.; her blood pressure was noted as 140/70 and her pulse rate about 60. The first anesthesia was administered at 9:45 a.m. At 10:30 the patient became restless and experienced premature ventricular contractions (PVC); her blood pressure was noted as 160/90 with a pulse of about 100. Respondent administered Lidocaine and by 10:37 the patient was in normal sinus rhythm. At 11:35 the patient's blood pressure rose to 182/100 with a pulse of 90. Respondent administered Inapsine. The blood pressure rose over the next ten minutes to 192/100. By 11:00 the blood pressure was decreasing and the last dose of fentanyl was administered. At noon the last dose of Versed was administered and the procedure was finished. The patient's blood pressure was 170/80 and the pulse was about 80.

Postoperatively the patient's vital signs were monitored for an hour and one-half during which the blood pressure ranged from 164/70 to 170/80, with the pulse in the high 80s. From 12:30 to 1:30 the patient's level of consciousness was noted as "awake." The Doctor's Discharge Summary noted the patient was "oriented & ambulates, vital signs stable" at 1:30 p.m. Blood pressure was 172/80, pulse 88 and respiration 20. The patient was experiencing face pain. Respondent gave the patient Ativan for anxiety and authorized her to be discharged from his facility. The patient was discharged wearing the tape mask.

[10] "Bradycardia" is "slowness of the heartbeat, as evidenced by slowing of the pulse rate to less than 60." (Dorland's Illustrated Medical Dictionary, 27th Edition.)

26. Someone from respondent's office drove patient A. H. to the Embassy Suites Hotel. She arrived with the aftercare instruction sheet and her medications. The QualCare nurse on duty noted the patient was awake and alert, her blood pressure was 156/99 and pulse of 107. The nurse's notes described the patient as restless, anxious and taking water. By 3:00 p.m. the patient was either awake or sleeping normally, her blood pressure was 143/80 and pulse was 119. At 5:30 p.m. the nurse noted the patient had a fever, blood pressure was 131/81 and pulse had risen to 124. The nurse paged respondent for orders.

Respondent testified he was in his office performing a procedure when the nurse called. He did not wear a pager while working on a patient and he did not recall staff notifying him of a call.

27. Shortly before 7:00 p.m. Eliane Heller, R.N. came on for the next shift. Nurse Heller testified at the hearing. Based on her attitude, demeanor and the quality of her testimony, she was found to be a candid and credible witness.

The day nurse advised Nurse Heller of the patient's elevated pulse and that respondent had been called. He had not yet returned the page. Nurse Heller took the patient's vital signs and noted the temperature was 98.2, blood pressure 130/100 and pulse 126. The patient was awake and alert and asked the nurse to assist her into the bathroom. While in the bathroom, the nurse noticed the patient disimpacting herself and advised the patient to stop. The nurse washed the patient's hands and performed the disimpaction. The patient said she felt better and walked back to bed.

Between 7:00 - 7:30 p.m. respondent called for the first time after having been paged at 5:30 p.m. Respondent testified he was still in the operating room with a patient when he spoke to the nurse. Nurse Heller testified she told respondent the patient was in bed and resting, and respondent instructed her to keep watching the patient and he would call back in half an hour. Nurse Heller recalled that after respondent's call, the patient sat up, complained of back pain and said it was time for her morphine. The nurse checked the patient's Oramorph bottle and gave the patient the prescribed dose. The medication record indicated this was done at 7:30 p.m. The patient reclined again and felt calmer. Nurse Heller testified that respondent called again, she told him the patient was resting and he said to give Ativan for anxiety. She did not do so because the patient had recently taken Oramorph. There was no evidence to pinpoint the time of this conversation. The QualCare record noted at 8:00 p.m. that the nurse gave the patient MSM and Famiver per bottle instructions and the pulse was 124. No blood pressure was recorded.

Respondent testified the nurse advised him the patient was restless with a rapid heart rate but not complaining of chest pain and not short of breath. Respondent testified he instructed the nurse to give pain medication and wait an hour or so to let him know how she was doing. Respondent explained he did not consider the rapid heart rate to require sending the patient to the hospital because her other vital signs were stable and pain could cause the rising pulse. The evidence did not establish the time of this conversation.

Nurse Heller testified the patient rested awhile and was "OK." She sat up again and became restless, requiring the nurse's full attention. Because there were two other patients in her care, the nurse called Jo-Ann Jordan to come and assist her. Jordan arrived, sat with the patient and talked to her about relaxation methods. There was no evidence of the time Jordan arrived. Nurse Heller returned and took the patient's pulse, which was elevated and too fast to count. Heller testified she looked at Jordan, shook her head to indicate it was not good and, at that point, Jordan said, "Now she is complaining of chest pains." Heller testified she went to the next room and called 911; she then called respondent and told him she had called 911 because the patient had chest pains. Nurse Heller testified repeatedly that respondent arrived either shortly before or at the same time as the paramedics. She testified repeatedly that she did not tell respondent the patient had chest pains until after she had called 911.

Respondent testified that after the second phone conversation with the nurse he decided to see the patient because her blood pressure was a bit high and she was not responding to the pain medication. When he arrived both Jordan and Heller were present. The nurse told him the patient started to complain of chest pain. Respondent listened to her heart and lungs with a stethoscope and asked about the chest pain. A.H. said she had chest pain but did not have it at that moment. Respondent told the nurse to call 911; he did not recall if she said she already had placed the call. The paramedics arrived within a few minutes.

28. Both the QualCare chart notes and respondent's chart notes establish that respondent arrived at the Embassy Suites Hotel to examine patient A. H. at around 8:30 p.m.

Nurse Heller wrote the following note in the QualCare chart:

> "2130 - Guest remains restless. Dr. O'Neil here & Jo Ann RN. C/O chest pain. Skin is cold & clammy. HR 140/min. Pt is transported via ambulance to the hospital."

A QualCare chart entry also noted a time of 8:45 p.m., "Dr. O'Neil with patient." A pulse of 140 and respiration rate of 10 was also noted at about 8:45 p.m.

On July 19, 2000, respondent wrote a note in his chart summarizing the events and noted:

> "Pt noted to have elevated HB [approximately] 120-130 at [approximately] 6:30 p.m. [illegible] 118 after straining at stool. . . . Pt complained of some facial discomfort [secondary] peel and was given her Oramorph pain meds. This failed to reduce HR. She later developed some chest pain (ache, apex x [illegible], came and went several times, radiating to shoulder). I saw her at Embassy Suite hotel [approximately] 8:30 p.m. No ch. Pain at that time . . . but HR 130-140. Paramedics called and pt. transferred. . ."

The paramedic record established the 911 call as having been received at 9:18 p.m. and arrival of the paramedics at 9:21 p.m.

The panel found the chart notes of QualCare and respondent to be credible and dispositive as to when respondent was first called, and when he finally arrived to examine patient A.H. at the hotel recovery facility. There is credible evidence that the QualCare nurse placed a page at 5:30 p.m. to respondent for orders regarding patient A. H.'s fever, high blood pressure and pulse rising to 124. Respondent failed to examine the patient until approximately 8:30 p.m., some three hours later. The panel believes failing to have the patient examined for three hours fell below the standard of care.

29. The patient was taken to the hospital where she was diagnosed as having a"non-Q wave myocardial infarction." Dr. Frederick Wood examined the patient at the hospital and took a medical history. His report contained the following pertinent information:

". . . She has had no previous history of coronary events. . . . Cardiac risk factors are negative for hypertension, diabetes mellitus, hypercholesterolemia, previous coronary events.

REVIEW OF SYSTEMS: CARDIAC: No previous history of angina, myocardial infarction, and not previous chest pressure, tightness or squeezing with exertion. Negative for a history of heart enlargement, history of congestive heart failure, paroxysmal nocturnal dyspnea, orthopnea, dyspnea on exertion or pedal edema. Negative history of abnormal heart rhythm or palpitations. . . ."

The patient made a full recovery and testified at the hearing. She was satisfied with the cosmetic result of the O.S.R. procedure.

30. The First Amended Accusation alleged the following conduct by respondent in his treatment of A. H. constituted gross negligence, incompetence and/or repeated negligent acts:

A. He inappropriately discharged A.H. to the hotel despite having treated her for cardiac instability and hypertension during the chemical peel.

B. He failed to respond to the initial page placed by the nurse.

C. He failed to recognize signs and symptoms of severe cardiac instability at the hotel and improperly delayed the nurse in calling 911.

31. The First Amended Accusation charged respondent with gross negligence, incompetence and repeated negligent acts in his treatment of patient H.B. in July 2000.

Patient H.B. was 72 when she consulted respondent on June 26, 2000 in response to a newspaper advertisement. She was interested in skin rejuvenation, spider vein therapy, and liposuction for her knees. H.B. was 5 feet, 4 ½ inches tall and weighed 135 pounds. She did not list any medical problems on the intake sheet and noted she had a partial face-lift in 1995. H.B. did not immediately decide to have the procedures. Respondent gave her a video. H.B. testified she was uncertain whether the video she watched was Exhibit H.

H.B. decided to have the OSR procedure and liposuction on both knees. She scheduled the surgery and aftercare by QualCare followed by the retreat at Casa Royal. She understood she was going to the hotel first and then the retreat. She understood respondent required her to go to the hotel for QualCare monitoring but she was not required to go to the retreat. She felt she would be watched and cared for and, if anything happened, she would get attention and be close to a hospital. H.B. thought QualCare was affiliated with respondent. She testified it had to have been associated with Dr. O'Neil. It had to be a part of what the ladies are subjected to in order to have the procedure done. She thought the nurses at the hotel worked for respondent. H. B. testified that she did not think she had a choice about whether to go to the hotel after the procedure. She would not have gone straight home after that, and she didn't think anybody else could either.

32. On about July 17, 2000, H.B. was examined by her primary care physician David W. Schwartz, M.D. Dr. Schwartz ordered lab tests and reviewed the patient's EKG taken on May 1, 2000. The EKG noted Sinus Bradycardia. Dr. Schwartz noted H.B.'s current medical problems included osteoarthritis of knees, menopause, varicose veins for which she had previously had surgery, cataracts, hypothyroidism and a family history of heart disease. The patient's physical examination was normal but examination of the extremities revealed varicose veins, stasis dermatitis[11] and trace edema. Dr. Schwartz noted the patient's EKG taken May 1, 2000 was within normal limits and her chest x-ray was pending. The radiology report dated July 17, 2000 noted an impression of "possible COPD"[12] and "no evidence of active cardiopulmonary disease."

On July 17, 2000, Dr. Schwartz signed the O'Neil Clinic Physical Form and cleared the patient for "Chemexfiliation of Face and Neck and/or Liposurgery."

[12] Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease. There was no evidence the patient had COPD.

33. Patient H.B. arrived at respondent's outpatient clinic early in the morning of July 24, 2000. At 7:50 a.m. she signed the patient consent form for post procedure care by QualCare. Respondent performed a physical examination and noted that the extremities were without edema or cyanosis. He noted the patient's medical history as indicated on Dr. Schwartz's authorization form. Respondent testified he did not see significant varicose veins, edema or stasis dermatitis when he examined the patient.

The patient was taken to the surgical room at about 9:30. The Sedation Record form noted the patient had heart disease and fainting/dizziness. The first doses of Versed and Fentanyl were administered at 9:45 a.m. The patient's blood pressure was approximately 100/70. The chemical peel procedure began at 10:15. At 10:45 the patient had premature ventricular contractions and her blood pressure was 150/90. Respondent administered lidocaine for the PVCs. The operative notes stated that by 11:15 "PVC's better." At 11:45 the patient had more PVCs and again respondent administered lidocaine. Respondent completed the chemical peel and continued on to perform the liposuction of the knees. The last dose of Fentanyl was given at 12:15 and the last dose of Versed at 12:30. At 12:45 the face was taped and "supports" were put on. The operative notes showed the patient was monitored until 1:45 p.m.; her blood pressure remained steady at 120-130/70. At 1:30 her level of consciousness was noted as "arousable" and at 1:45 it was "awake." The sedation record indicated the patient was monitored until shortly after 1:45 p.m.

The Doctor's Discharge Summary differs from the operative notes, stating that at 1:30 the patient was "oriented and ambulates," vital signs stable, blood pressure 120/80 and pulse 76. The patient was driven to the Embassy Suites shortly before 2:00 p.m.

34. Patient H.B. was received into the hotel by QualCare at 2:00 p.m. Sonja Forrest, R.N., was the nurse on duty. At the hearing she testified she did not recall the patient's arrival or putting her into bed. She explained that, unless something went wrong, it does not stay in her mind. Nurse Forrest made the following chart entry after the patient arrived:

> "1400 Elderly female admitted from Dr. O'Neil's office vial w/c. very sedated. Max. assist required to bed. Denied need to void. Too sleepy to sip H2O. To sleep immediately. Ice to eyes. VS stable. BP 182/81."

Nurse Forrest testified that had she believed H.B. was not in a condition to be discharged to the QualCare setting she would have informed respondent's office. H.B.'s recollection of the hotel was like in a day dream when awake, "if it can be called awake." She was just really out of it.

The nurse's notes show that at 3:00 p.m. the patient was sleeping and difficult to arouse; vital signs recorded at 4:00 p.m. show blood pressure 149/83, pulse 90 and the patient sleeping and easily aroused; and the nurse took the patient's pulse for one minute and noted "No pvc's felt."

By 7:00 p.m. the patient was still "mildly sedated" but she was drinking water and got up to go to the bathroom with maximum assistance of the nurse. Throughout the night the patient slept, was easily aroused, drank liquids and went to the bathroom with maximum assistance of the nurse. Her blood pressure remained stable at 121-132/69-72.

At 9:00 a.m. on July 25, 2000, the patient was awake and alert, blood pressure was 130/74, she was taking liquid nourishment and going to the bathroom with moderate assistance from the nurse. She became restless and anxious in the afternoon and took 1 mg of Ativan. At 8:00 p.m. she again became restless; her blood pressure was 153/86. She took 1 m.g. of Ativan. The patient slept through the night, waking to drink water or go to the bathroom. At 4:30 a.m. she experienced pain and was given Darvocet.

35. The patient was awake and alert at 5:00 a.m. on July 26, 2000. At 6:00 a.m. the night nurse removed the tape mask from the patient's face and applied the powder. The patient went back to sleep. At about 7:00 a.m. Nurse Forrest came on duty and relieved the night nurse. At 8:45 she awakened the patient to apply a second coat of powder. The patient was able to get out of bed by herself, and drank water and juice. At about 9:05 a.m. she went to the bathroom by herself. At about 9:10 a.m., upon returning from the bathroom, she complained of dizziness, became unsteady and "lethargic acting" and fell into bed assisted by the nurse. Her lips and eyelids were ashen; she was perspiring, skin clammy, and complained of chills. The nurse noted her blood pressure as "70/?" with pulse of "60-weak." The patient denied chest pain or shortness of breath. Her lungs were clear with a stethoscope. The nurse placed the patient in a position to elevate her feet above her head in order to raise the blood pressure. The nurse did not immediately call 911 because she did not believe the condition was life threatening.

At the hearing H.B. testified that what she remembered about the hotel was having trouble breathing. She recalled having trouble breathing when the nurse first offered her juice.

At 9:15 the nurse called respondent and advised him of the patient's condition. Respondent instructed her to continue the position, monitor vital signs and call him again if the patient did not improve. At 9:30 the nurse called respondent and informed him the blood pressure continued to be "60-70/?," the pulse weak in the 70's, color ashen, and the patient now complained of shortness of breath. Respondent and the nurse agreed that 911 should be called. The nurse called 911 at 9:35 p.m. The EMT records show the 911 call was received at 9:38 a.m. and the paramedics arrived at 9:43 a.m. They administered oxygen and took the patient to Rancho Springs Medical Center.

36. Respondent's chart contained the following entry for July 26, 2000:

> "9:30 am Qualcare nurse called. Pt fainted after going to BR and standing. Pt alert and stable in bed. HR 60. BP unobtainable. They [illegible] called back 10 minute later. Pt. Now SOB. HR 60. BP unobtainable. PT in bed with legs elevated, told to call 911 and pt transferred to Rancho Springs ER."

37. On July 26, 2000, patient H.B. was admitted to Rancho Springs Medical Center. The emergency evaluation record noted the patient had difficulty breathing with near syncope but had no chest pain. She denied any history of pulmonary or cardiac problems. The physical examination revealed no rashes, no numbness or weakness in the extremities and no peripheral edema. The EKG showed a single PVC. The initial assessment was a post-surgical complication of pulmonary embolus.

Anoop K. Maheshwari, M.D., examined the patient in the hospital. His history noted the patient took diuretics once a week for pedal edema. His physical examination of the extremities found "no cyanosis, clubbing or edema. No calf pain tenderness is present." A venous Doppler exam of the lower extremities showed slow venus flow and no evidence of deep vein thrombosis.

H.B. was discharged from the hospital on July 28, 2000, much improved and in stable condition. Dr. Schwartz' discharge diagnosis for H.B. was bilateral pulmonary emboli with respiratory distress.

38. The First Amended Accusation alleged the following conduct by respondent in his treatment of H.B. constituted gross negligence, incompetence and/or repeated negligent acts:

A. He improperly performed lower extremity liposuction on the patient because her preoperative workup showed lower extremity venous insufficiency making her an inappropriate patient for the procedure.

B. He excessively sedated the patient and prematurely discharged her from his facility.

C. He improperly continued the cosmetic surgery on the patient after she suffered two episodes of ventricular arrhythmia during the chemical peel procedure.

D. He failed to timely have the patient transferred to the hospital when she suffered postoperative complications at the hotel.

39. The evidence complainant presented was insufficient to establish that respondent used general anesthesia on his patients.

40. Complainant called two expert witnesses to testify at the hearing and presented the written report of a physician consultant. Mark Krugman, M.D. and David T. Morwood, M.D. are both board certified plastic surgeons.

Dr. Krugman obtained his medical degree from the University of Maryland Medical School in 1964. He completed a rotating internship at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York City in 1965. At the same hospital he completed a residency in General Surgery in 1966 and a residency in Otolaryngology in 1969. After two years of service in the Air Force, Dr. Krugman completed a plastic surgery residency at U.C. Irvine in 1976. He became board certified in plastic surgery in 1977. Dr. Krugman's curriculum vitae showed that he is very well qualified as a plastic surgeon. His education and professional experience as a plastic surgeon and otolaryngologist are extensive.

Since 1976, Dr. Krugman has maintained a private practice in southern California, specializing in plastic surgery and otolaryngology. He operates a licensed outpatient clinic. He performs laser resurfacing procedures but does not perform phenol peels of the face. Dr. Krugman has no objection to the skin rejuvenation procedure used by respondent. On his resume, Dr. Krugman listed a Chemical Peel Workshop in 1991, an Update on Skin Peeling in 1992, and attendance at conferences on chemical peels in 1992 and 1993.

Dr. Morwood obtained his medical degree from the College of Medicine, University of Vermont, in 1983. He performed his internship and general surgery residency at Beth Israel Medical Center in New York. In 1987, he completed a plastic surgery residency at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York. In 1993, he was board certified in plastic surgery and received a Certification of Added Qualifications in Surgery of the Hand in 1994.

Dr. Morwood maintains a private practice in plastic surgery, specializing in breast, hand, face and reconstructive surgery for children, face lifts, lasers, peels, fractures and injuries. Dr. Morwood has performed some liposuction and has done 20 phenol peels in his career.

A written report by Jeannette Y. Martello, M.D., J.D. was admitted into evidence by stipulation in which the parties agreed it could be received "as if she had testified to these matters under oath." Dr. Martello obtained her medical degree from UCLA School of Medicine in 1988. In 1989 she completed a surgical internship at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. She then attended two years of law school at Boalt Hall. While in law school she worked as an emergency room physician at Kaiser Santa Theresa in San Jose. From 1991 to 1995 she performed a Plastic Surgery Integrated Residency at University of Kentucky Medical Center. In 1996 she completed one year as Plastic Surgery Chief Resident at the same facility. During this time she moonlighted at various emergency rooms throughout Kentucky. She returned to law school and obtained her J.D. degree in 1997. In June 1998 she completed a one-year hand surgery fellowship at Kleinert & Kutz Institute of Hand Surgery in Lousiville, Kentucky, and in January 1999 completed a six-month term as Hand Transplant Fellow at the same institute. Since March 1999 Dr. Martello has engaged in the private practice of Plastic Surgery and Hand Surgery in Pasadena and has served as Medical Consultant for the Medical Board of California.

She became board certified in plastic surgery in September 2001. Dr. Martello's resume did not indicate that she performs phenol peels or liposuction.

41. On June 1, 2001 Dr. Krugman issued a written report in which he stated his opinions about respondent's treatment of patients A. H. and H. B. He found three instances in which respondent's actions with regard to H. B. constituted a "departure from the standard of care" and one instance of a "departure from the standard of care" with A. H. On about June 8, 2001, the Board's investigator called Dr. Krugman to clarify whether or not he meant simple or extreme departures. Dr. Krugman told the investigator that all of the departures he found were simple departures.

42. With regard to patient A. H., it was Dr. Krugman's opinion that respondent departed from the standard of care when he failed to call 911 in a timely manner. The testimony wherein Dr. Krugman assumed the patient had been complaining of chest pain for 30 to 60 minutes, with respondent present or aware of the complaint, and there was a 50-minute delay before the 911 call, is supported by the record. Respondent's July 19, 2000 chart note establishes that he saw patient A.H. at the Embassy Suites Hotel at 8:30 p.m. and that he was aware patient A.H. had developed some chest pain radiating to shoulder prior to his arrival at the hotel. Nurse Heller's chart note at 8:45 p.m. states respondent is with patient. The paramedic record established the 911 call as being received at 9:18 p.m.

43. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that respondent committed extreme departures from the standard of care in his treatment of patient A. H. The standard of care requires a physician to be familiar with possible side effects and potential complications from a treatment. Any side effects or complications must be treated appropriately in a timely manner to prevent further sequella and complication.

Dr. Morwood believed the patient showed cardiac instability in the form of PVCs during the facial peel and she continued to show cardiac instability after the procedure. In spite of treatment, patient A.H. continued to be hypertensive, shortly after showing cardiac irritability that did respond to Lidocaine. A. H., a patient who showed cardiac arrhythmia, and hypertension which did not respond to treatment, was discharged to a hotel. Upon discharge, the patient required a setting that had the proper monitoring equipment for blood pressure, oxygen saturation and cardiac condition. He felt respondent discharged her in spite of the continuing signs of cardiac instability. After discharge, the QualCare nurse notified respondent of continuing progressive cardiac instability, but he did not see the patient for some hours. Dr. Morwood believed respondent ignored the warning signs and did not take timely action to have the patient transferred to the hospital or have her evaluated by an intensive monitoring team.

Dr. Morwood acknowledged that PVCs are common during a phenol peel and respondent appropriately treated patient A.H.'s episode during the procedure and she responded well. However, he believed that her cardiac instability was not adequately addressed before she was discharged to the hotel where she remained unstable and respondent delayed addressing her condition. It was his opinion that, even without chest pain, respondent should have transferred A.H. to the hospital immediately.

44. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that patient H.B. was not a good candidate for liposuction of the knees because she was in her early seventies with a history of swelling in her legs, varicose vein surgery, hypothyroid and taking female hormones, which made her predisposed to getting blood clots in the deep veins of her legs. Dr. Krugman admitted that hormone replacement and hypothyroidism were minor risk factors, but were "additive" in this situation. He believed that Dr. Schwartz' findings of edema and stasis dermatitis, when added to the patient's age and sedentary position after surgery, created risk factors. He explained that edema and stasis dermatitis in a patient over 70 meant the patient's venous system was not good.

Dr. Krugman believed that coupling the liposuction with the facial peel created competing interests; the peel procedure required the patient to be sedentary but the knee liposuction required the patient to ambulate to avoid an embolism. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that performing knee liposuction on H.B. was a simple departure from the standard of care because of her predisposing risk factors.

45. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that respondent showed poor judgment and departed from the standard of care in going forward with the knee liposuction after patient H.B. experienced two episodes of PVCs during the facial peel. With her risk factors described in Factual Finding 44, the PVC's made her condition more precarious.

Dr. Krugman concluded respondent's conduct represented an extreme departure from the standard of care because of "the multiplicity of cognitive decisions he made that led to the problems with the patient."

46. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that patient H.B. suffered post-surgical complications because respondent performed liposuction on diseased legs. He explained that the standard of care requires the physician to be familiar with the criteria that would designate patients who are appropriate or inappropriate for a particular procedure. Dr. Morwood believed H.B. presented with a history and preoperative physical exam that made her inappropriate for lower extremity liposuction. The patient's varicose veins, stasis dermatitis, age and hormone replacement therapy placed her at high risk for pulmonary embolism. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that it was an extreme departure from the standard of care to perform liposuction on H.B.'s knees because of her high risk history. He believed a clot from the patient's leg traveled to her lungs when she got up after being sedentary.

47. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that combining the facial peel and knee liposuction procedures did not of itself deviate from the standard of care. The standard of care required the patient be mobilized immediately after a surgical procedure on her legs.

Inactivity increased the chance for venous stasis[13] and thrombus[14] in the legs. However, because the patient required rest for the facial procedure, the standard of care required that something be used on her legs while in bed to minimize the chance of venous thrombosis. Risk can be minimized by short walks, foot pumps, heparin therapy or a sequential compression device.[15]

48. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that when a patient is difficult to arouse it is a departure from the standard of care to discharge the patient from an ambulatory facility. He explained that a patient can remain in an outpatient surgical clinic for up to 23 hours. If a sedated patient is difficult to arouse the facility should have equipment such as EKG, oxygen, pulse oximeter, intravenous equipment and defibulator. A patient will still be under some sedation when discharged, but not to the point where she cannot be aroused or get out of bed. A patient who cannot take fluid by mouth and is too sedated to get out of bed should not be discharged home. A patient who remains in that condition should be transferred to a hospital. Transfer of such a patient to a hotel room is a departure from the standard of care.

On cross-examination Dr. Krugman agreed that, based on respondent's chart documentation of patient H.B.'s condition at the time of discharge, she looked appropriate for discharge. However, he felt her heavily sedated condition when she arrived at the hotel required explanation. (Based upon the transcript, it appears Dr. Krugman was reviewing respondent's discharge summary. As is noted in Factual Finding 33, there is a discrepancy between respondent's operative notes and the discharge summary as to patient H. B.'s level of alertness. The operative note says she was "arousable" at 1:30 p.m., whereas the discharge summary says she was "oriented and ambulatory" at 1:30 p.m.). There is no specific post procedure observation time required before discharge; it depends on the individual patient.

In his written report of June 1, 2001, Dr. Krugman did not opine that respondent's discharge of H. B. was a departure from the standard of care. At the hearing he testified that it is his opinion that the discharge of patient H.B. from respondent's clinic was a simple departure from the standard of care because she was over-sedated when she arrived at the hotel. She should have been retained at the clinic with monitoring or transferred to a hospital. Dr. Krugman explained that the issue here is not the amount of sedation during surgery, but the level of sedation at discharge.

[15] Complainant did not allege that respondent failed to use appropriate anti-thrombosis therapy.

49. In his written report issued July 25, 2001, Dr. Morwood did not opine that respondent inappropriately discharged patient H.B. from his clinic before she was ready to leave. At the hearing he testified that if H.B. was very sedated when she arrived at the hotel and required maximum assistance to get into bed, it was below the standard of care to discharge her from the clinic. He believed it is extremely uncommon to have the patient alert and able to ambulate, but 15 minutes later appear as described by the QualCare nurse.

Dr. Morwood explained that the standard of care required the patient to be monitored after surgery for at least an hour before discharge from the outpatient clinic. Before discharge, the patient should be able to respond to questions, breath clearly, take a deep breath on command, urinate, and have stable vital signs. After reviewing H.B.'s chart and her vital signs before discharge on cross-examination, Dr. Morwood did not see any evidence of an inappropriate discharge. (Based upon the transcript, it appears, however, Dr. Morwood was reviewing respondent's discharge summary. As is noted in Factual Finding 33, there is a discrepancy between respondent's operative notes and the discharge summary as to patient H.B.'s level of alertness. The operative note says she was "arousable" at 1:30 p.m., whereas the discharge summary says she was "oriented and ambulatory" at 1:30 p.m.)

50. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that it was a simple departure from the standard of care for respondent to delay calling 911 at 9:00 a.m. on July 26, 2000, because H.B. was "shocky" and her blood pressure was low. Dr. Krugman's June 1, 2001 written report indicated that he erroneously believed the nurse called respondent at 9:00 a.m. and again at 9:15. The evidence is otherwise (Factual Finding 35).

Dr. Morwood offered no opinion about the events of July 26, 2000.

51. Dr. Morwood reviewed all of the available medical records in this case. Based on the records, he could not determine that respondent used Versed in an amount that would induce the patient to a level of general anesthesia.

52. Dr. Morwood offered his opinion that "hotel observation" aftercare such as that provided by QualCare to cosmetic procedure patients is a common practice in California. However, it is his understanding that the nurses have formal monitoring equipment available, such as, a cardiac monitor, automatic blood pressure taking machines, a pulsoximeter, and oxygen saturation monitor.

53. Dr. Morwood offered his opinion that respondent's video advertisement and his brochures seem to be similar to many other infomercials and physician's advertisements in the popular media in California.

54. Complainant presented no evidence in the form of expert testimony to support the charge that respondent was incompetent in his care, treatment or management of the patients A.H. and H.B.

55. Respondent called two expert witnesses to testify at the hearing. Joseph C. Avakoff, M.D. is a board certified surgeon and plastic surgeon. Robert A. Yoho, M.D. is board certified in emergency medicine, dermatologic cosmetic surgery and laser surgery.

Dr. Avakoff obtained his medical degree from the University of California School of Medicine in San Francisco in 1961. After his rotating internship, he completed a residency in General Surgery at Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco in 1966 and later a residency in plastic surgery at University of Texas School of Medicine. In 1985 Dr. Avakoff obtained a J.D. degree from Santa Clara University School of Law and was admitted to the California State Bar in 1987. Dr. Avakoff spent 22 years in the private practice of medicine in Santa Clara County. He retired in 1994. Between 1987 and 1994 Dr. Avakoff performed approximately 100 liposuction procedures but never aspirated more than 1500 cc. He never performed phenol facial peels. Since retirement he has been doing medi-legal consultations for the Medical Board and for the Department of Corporations.

Dr. Yoho received his medical degree from Case Western Reserve University Medical School in 1981. He completed a one-year rotating internship at the University of Cincinnati and a two-year Dermatology Residency at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center in New Hampshire. In 1985 he completed emergency Medicine Residency Training at LAC/USC Medical Center in Los Angeles and Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena. Dr. Yoho did a preceptorship with respondent, and respondent did a preceptorship in Dr. Yoho's office for liposuction.

From 1984 to 1987 Dr. Yoho was employed by the Huntington Memorial Hospital Emergency Medical Group. He then maintained a general medical practice in Pasadena until 1994. From 1992 to the present he has specialized in cosmetic surgery. His practice includes liposuction, hair transplantation, laser resurfacing, face lifts, laser blepharoplasty, breast implantation, vein treatments and fat transplantation. Dr. Yoho has published several articles related to cosmetic surgery procedures in peer reviewed journals.

56. Dr. Avakoff testified that a patient is ready for discharge from an outpatient facility when she can get out of bed and walk, but the patient will not be as ambulatory as someone who has not gone through the procedure. To discharge after outpatient cosmetic surgery, the standard of practice required the vital signs be stable and the patient be easily arousable to the extent she is able to wake up though she may still be sleepy, converse a bit, get out of bed and go to the bathroom. If the patient experienced PVCs or hypertension during the procedure, she must be monitored until she becomes stable. When the patient is stable, she can be released to home where she would not be monitored.

Dr. Yoho explained the standard of practice regarding discharge of a patient is to observe for one to two hours to see that the vital signs are stable. A certain level of alertness is expected; the patient need not be as alert as before the sedation, but should know where she is, be able to ambulate, urinate and take fluids.

Dr. Yoho testified that phenol peel patients are commonly discharged to home. However, if the patient does not do exactly the right things for the face, scarring can result. It meets the highest standard of care to provide a place where the patient is assisted for a week. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that the monitoring provided by QualCare was appropriate and the standard of care did not require the patients to be monitored as if in an acute care setting with equipment such as pulse oximeters. He noted that even when a patient is sent to a nursing home for aftercare, there is only one nurse to attend 20 or 30 patients.

57. Dr. Yoho explained that PVCs are common during a phenol peel because the chemical substance irritates the heart and causes arrhythmia. The phenol substance is irritating to the heart muscle. Although the cardiac rhythm imitates that of a heart attack, PVCs that occur during a phenol peel do not have the same "malignant quality" in which the heart is starved for blood and oxygen. The PVCs are taken seriously but sudden death is not a problem. Appropriate treatment is to wait a few minutes for the arrhythmia to subside or to administer Lidocaine. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent properly managed A.H.'s PVC episode.

Dr. Avakoff reviewed the medical records of patient A.H. It was his opinion that she did not suffer cardiac instability after the facial peel procedure. He explained that PVCs are common during a phenol peel and do not constitute "cardiac instability." Nor did the increased blood pressure necessarily indicate cardiac instability because it can result from pain during the phenol peel. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent properly treated the patient's PVCs during the procedure with Lidocaine and the operative notes show the patient returned to normal sinus rhythm.

58. Dr. Yoho explained that elevated blood pressure is typical during a phenol peel because the peel is painful and pain produces hypertension. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's use of Anapsine on patient A.H. was an "elegant" way to treat the hypertension caused by pain and the nausea that can result from the narcotic used for sedation. If too much hypertension medicine is used during the peel, the blood pressure can become too low after the procedure. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's treatment of A.H.'s high blood pressure was appropriate.

59. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that A.H.'s vital signs were stable during the hour and one-half she was monitored after the procedure and before discharge. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent's discharge of A.H. did not depart from the standard of care. Her vital signs were stable and she was released to monitoring by QualCare.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's chart entries show that patient A.H. was observed for one and one-half hours and her vital signs were entirely stable before discharge. Based on the records she was appropriate for discharge.

60. Dr. Yoho noted that the charts for patients A.H. and H.B. showed blood pressures that were not dangerous. They were blood pressures that people carry for many years at a time. The panel did not find this testimony persuasive with regards to patients A.H. and H.B. who had just undergone sedation, and a surgical procedure during which they experienced PVC's.

61. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent did not depart from the standard of care in his attention to patient A.H. after discharge. He explained that if respondent was told the patient had high blood pressure, was restless, anxious and hyperventilating,[16] but with no chest pain, there could be a number of causes for the symptoms and the situation did not require an immediate 911 call. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent's instruction to monitor the patient was appropriate. Once the patient complained of chest pain, it was mandatory to call 911. If respondent learned of the chest pain before reaching the hotel and did not order a call to 911, it would be a simple departure from the standard of care because chest pain can be caused by something other than a heart attack.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent did not act inappropriately in the transfer of patient A.H. to the hospital. He explained if the nurse advised respondent the patient had high blood pressure, was restless, anxious and hyperventilating, this was a typical post-phenol peel set of symptoms in a patient who continued to feel some pain and claustrophobia in the tape mask. It would have been significant if respondent had been advised of chest pain. The panel did not find this testimony credible, taking into consideration that Dr. Yoho also testified that the elderly population has more problems. "They are fragile and you've got to watch them like a hawk."

62. Dr. Avakoff reviewed the medical records of patient H.B. and concluded there was no evidence of any significant venous insufficiency of the legs. He testified that varicose veins indicate venous insufficiency only in the area of the varicose vein. He believed that the patient had significant varicose vein surgery in the past and had residual varicose veins and stasis dermatitis, which was common and did not indicate deep venous insufficiency. Dr. Avakoff noted that none of the physicians who examined H.B. at the hospital noted any profound venous insufficiency.

[16] Respondent's counsel included these symptoms in his hypothetical question to Dr. Avakoff. The evidence did not establish the patient was hyperventilating or had dangerously high blood pressure. The testimony and chart notes indicated the blood pressure was "up a little bit" and the pulse rate was high. The pulse rate became too fast to count at the same time the patient started to feel chest pain.

Dr. Avakoff considered the hormone replacement therapy to be an added but very minor risk factor and not a contraindication for liposuction. He did not think hypothyroidism caused increased thrombolic phenomenon.

It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that H.B. was an appropriate candidate for the planned knee liposuction because the risk factors were quite minor.

63. Dr. Yoho explained that embolism is a risk for anyone who undergoes surgery. Embolism after hospital surgery is very common, but is quite rare after outpatient procedures. In the 6,000 cases that Dr. Yolo has performed, four patients experienced deep vein thrombosis and none had pulmonary embolism. He discussed the risk factors for pulmonary embolism. The panel did not find this testimony persuasive given Dr. Yoho's testimony that his patient population is younger.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that superficial venous disease and hypothyroidism are not risk factors. The risk factors are general anesthesia for more than half an hour; birth control pills but not estrogen replacement; congestive heart failure; broken extremities; prior history of pulmonary thrombosis/embolism; prior history of deep venous thrombosis; hospital bed rest where the patient does not get up; and cancer.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that varicose veins are not a risk factor and stasis dermatitis can be purely the result of varicose veins. Edema is not diagnostic for deep vein thrombosis. He would never order a post-lipo patient to be kept sedentary for the first 48 hours. He agreed pulmonary embolism is potentially a risk of being sedentary. He believed although patient H.B. was sedentary while in the hotel, she was getting up to go to the bathroom so she was not completely at bed rest. (The testimony of the QualCare nurses was that the patients were to stay in bed and be quiet.)

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that patient H.B. had none of the well known risks for embolism. Any patient over 65 is at increased risk for many things, but he considered H.B. to be a "class 2 anesthetic risk" because she was healthy on medications. Patient A. H. was also a "class 2" risk. Typically a cosmetic surgeon only does a Class 1, or Class 2 that might be on blood pressure medication, controlling the blood pressure. He explained that a class 3 risk is a patient with an active medical problem that is not controlled. H.B.'s medical conditions were controlled with medication so in his opinion she was an appropriate candidate for the procedures.

64. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent properly addressed the two episodes of PVCs during H.B.'s phenol peel and proceeding with the knee liposuction was not a departure from the standard of care because the small amount of aspirate taken indicated it was a minor liposuction procedure.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent did not violate the standard of care by proceeding with the knee liposuction after H.B. experienced PVCs. He opined that for the reasons stated in Factual Finding 63, the PVCs and the manner respondent treated them did not contraindicate the knee liposuction. The amount of aspirate in the knee liposuction indicated a minor procedure that took about ten minutes. He explained that the cardiac irritation effects of the phenol peel are gone in 15 minutes to half an hour after the peel is finished. The panel did not find this explanation credible. Phenol is considered cardiotoxic.

65. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that H.B.'s sedation and operative record showed she was appropriate for discharge at 1:45 p.m. She had been monitored for an hour, her vital signs were stable and she was awake. He offered an explanation for the changed condition of the patient at the hotel. He believed the patient could have been apprehensive at the facility, awake and alert but on reaching the hotel and knowing the procedure is over, "just conks out" to rest. The panel did not find this explanation credible.

Dr. Avakoff acknowledged that it would be a violation of the standard of care if respondent discharged the patient when she was difficult to arouse and required maximum assistance. The patient's condition when she left the facility is the issue. The observations recorded in respondent's chart indicated she was appropriate for discharge even to home. It was quite common to use a wheelchair to discharge a patient with knee liposuction.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that patient H.B. was appropriately discharged from respondent's facility. She was monitored for an hour after the procedure with vital signs taken every 15 minutes. In his opinion, the patient record showed that her vital signs were stable. Use of a wheelchair for a post procedure patient is routine.

Dr. Yoho noted that the patient's level of consciousness on arrival at the hotel was described as "very sedated." He explained that the narcotics used during the procedures cover the pain and are stressful and fatiguing for the patient. After surgery it is not unusual for the patient to have a waxing and waning level of consciousness.

66. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent did not unreasonably delay calling 911 for patient H.B. When respondent was notified of the patient's condition at 9:15 it was reasonable to have the patient watched carefully for a short time. Her symptoms, including blood pressure and respiration, were consistent with a fainting episode and the standard of care did not require an emergency call to 911 when a patient initially appears "woozy." When the patient did not improve and then developed shortness of breath, it was time to call 911.

Dr. Yoho reviewed the sequence of events for patient H.B. on the morning of July 26, 2000. It was his opinion that respondent's response to the patient's condition as relayed to him at 9:15 a.m. was appropriate. Dr. Yoho explained the "medical reasoning" process commonly used by physicians. The physician first thinks of common causes for the patient's symptoms and later considers the rarer causes. The physician could first think that H.B.'s condition was a vaso-vagal episode – a faint brought on by a bowel movement or pain – in which case the patient would recover after a few minutes. Dr. Yoho explained that a vaso-vagal episode typically includes low heart rate and blood pressure goes down. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that an experienced physician would first consider a vaso-vagal episode, especially with a patient who had just risen from bed and gone to the bathroom, and an immediate call to 911 was not required. Observation for a few minutes and rechecking vitals signs was an imminently reasonable way to handle the situation. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's decision to closely monitor the patient and call him again if she did not improve was within the standard of care. Respondent properly ordered the 911 call when the nurse called him at 9:30 a.m. to say the patient had not improved and had begun to complain of shortness of breath. The panel did not find this testimony persuasive because it only refers to a decrease in blood pressure, not the nurse reporting an unobtainable blood pressure as the nurse reported regarding patient H.B. (see Factual Finding 35.)

67. Based on his review of the medical records, Dr. Yoho determined that respondent used monitored anesthesia, which he described as twilight sleep or moderate sedation. It was not general anesthesia. A.H. and H.B. did not need to be ventilated for respiration, nor did they require cardiac support. They were both arousable from the sedation.

68. The testimony of each of the expert witnesses was weighed and evaluated, taking into consideration their qualifications and experience, attitude and demeanor while testifying, the quality of their answers, and the accuracy and reliability of the information on which they based their opinions. Each was qualified to testify and offer an opinion; none had any apparent bias.

Upon review of the record, the panel found Dr. Morwood to be the most credible, persuasive witness in this case. His testimony was the most evaluative of the medical records in the context of the standard of practice for the treatment and care at issue. His testimony provided a medical based rational for his opinions.

Dr. Yoho testified that the patient population of patients A.H. and H.B.'s age "is tougher in general." They have more problems. His cosmetic surgery patient population is younger. The panel found this testimony to discredit the credibility of Dr. Yoho's expert testimony that respondent met the standard of care in treating patient H.B., age 72, and patient A.H., age 69.

69. Dr. Martello issued a "Memorandum" to the Board's investigator on February 22, 2001. The statement and opinions in her written report are given little weight against the testimony of the expert witnesses who appeared and testified under oath. Dr. Martello's pervasive use of exclamation marks in her comments and opinions raised a concern about her detachment and objectivity. Her opinions were based on facts not established by the evidence at hearing.

70. Dr. Krugman's written report indicated he assumed all of the allegations were true in the 1996 Accusation and 1998 Supplemental Accusation. By his testimony and statements in his written report, it was clear Dr. Krugman did not understand that respondent stipulated to only a portion of the allegations and charges in the prior disciplinary action. His interpretation of the facts and violations established by the stipulated decision and order was not accurate. Dr. Krugman also considered information in Dr. Martello's report that was either not admissible or not established by the evidence.

Dr. Krugman did not apply an objective standard. He candidly admitted that, in evaluating respondent's conduct as an "extreme departure from the standard of care," he was influenced by the prior discipline imposed on respondent. This was inappropriate for two reasons: Dr. Krugman's interpretation of the nature and effect of the prior discipline was not accurate and he was unduly influenced by an irrelevant factor. The prior discipline should not be a factor in his professional opinion. The conduct at issue must be evaluated of itself in the context of the situation as it occurred. The conduct is either below an existing standard of care as gross or simple negligence or it is not. Respondent's prior actions and the existence of prior discipline are not relevant to the measure. The prior discipline is relevant only for the purpose of determining the appropriate discipline, if any, to impose in the pending case. Dr. Krugman also erroneously believed that several acts of simple negligence, or repeated negligent acts, equate to an extreme departure from the standard of care.

71. In his written report, Dr. Morwood stated he could not determine respondent used general anesthesia. At the hearing, based on the same documentation he used for his written report, he inexplicably changed his mind and opined that patient H.B. was under general anesthesia. This weakens the reliability of that testimony.

72. With regard to the charges relating to patient A.H. as set forth in Factual Finding 30, the evidence was clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent inappropriately discharged the patient from his facility to the QualCare aftercare, failed to timely respond to the initial page to him placed by the nurse caring for A. H. postoperatively, when he did respond he failed to recognize signs and symptoms of the patient's severe cardiac instability, and failed to timely transfer patient to a facility where she could receive appropriate care.

Patient A. H. experienced cardiac instability during the phenol peel procedure. She did not fully respond to treatment, and continued to experience hypertension during the hour and a half period of monitored post operative recovery at respondent's ambulatory surgery center. She was then discharged, while still experiencing hypertension and a rising pulse, to a hotel without adequate monitoring equipment for her condition.

The panel believes the minimum monitoring equipment required for monitoring patient A. H. would have been a cardiac monitor, frequent blood pressure monitoring by a machine, and an oxygen saturation machine to show the level of oxygen saturation in her blood and her pulse.

When the nurse called at 5:30 p.m. to inform respondent of patient A. H.'s worsening condition and seek orders, he failed to respond to the call for some two hours, and failed to see to it that the patient received appropriate emergency care. Appropriate care would have been an emergency consultation with a cardiologist, evaluation by an intensive monitoring team, or immediate transport to a hospital emergency room.

The testimony of this case established that each of these departures is an extreme departure from the standard of care.

The panel did not find persuasive the testimony of Dr. Yoho and Dr. Avakoff who testified that continued monitoring with specialized equipment such as would be provided in an accredited or licensed healthcare facility, was not required because PVC's and hypertension are common in phenol peel patients.

The evidence was clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent was, grossly negligent or repeatedly negligent in his treatment of patient A.H. The evidence was not clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent was incompetent.

73. With regard to the charges relating to patient H.B. as set forth in Factual Finding 38, the evidence was clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent performed knee liposuction on an inappropriate patient, improperly continued cosmetic surgery after the patient suffered two episodes of ventricular arrhythmia during the chemical peel segment of the surgery, then prematurely discharged her to a hotel without medical monitoring equipment, and failed to timely transfer patient H. B. to a hospital for treatment when H.B. fainted and the nurse at the hotel recovery facility was unable to obtain a blood pressure.

The evidence was not clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent excessively sedated patient H.B.

The evidence established that patient H.B. was at high risk for suffering pulmonary embolism due to her history of venous disease, stasis dermatitis, her age and taking female hormones. The risk was further increased by the sedentary recovery period required for the phenol peel procedure. The standard of care requires a physician to screen out patients that have increased risk factors that would make an elective procedure unsafe for them. The evidence established that it was an extreme departure from the standard of care for respondent to perform liposurgery on patient H.B.'s legs.

The evidence established that given patient H.B.'s increased risk factors, and then experiencing two episodes of PVC's during the first procedure, it was an extreme departure from the standard of care to continue on to do the lipo surgery procedure. The evidence established that patient H. B. was discharged from respondent's surgery center while she was still in a state of sedation that did not meet the standard of practice. She was still too sedated. On this issue, the panel notes the discrepancy in respondent's chart notes regarding patient H.B.'s level of consciousness. The operative notes state that patient was "arousable" at 1:30 p.m., whereas, the discharge summary states that at 1:30 p.m. patient was "oriented and ambulates." The nurses notes state that upon being admitted to the hotel patient was very sedated. Too sleepy to sip water. The panel found the nurse notes to be the more credible evidence as to the patient's state of consciousness upon discharge. Based upon the expert testimony at the hearing regarding the standard of care for discharge from an outpatient surgery center, the panel finds this to be a simple departure.

The evidence established that approximately 20 minutes elapsed before patient H.B. was transferred from the hotel to a hospital when H.B. fainted and the nurse noted she was unable to obtain a blood pressure. Respondent testified that fainting and the nurse being unable to get a blood pressure reading is not an emergency to him because these symptoms are fairly common in his patients. He sees it may be once a month. Given the advanced age of many of respondent's patients, the panel found this explanation disturbing. The panel believes waiting 20 minutes to seek emergency treatment for patient H.B. was a departure from the standard of care. Patient H.B. was 72 years old, with venous disease and had been sedentary following a surgical procedure to her lower extremities which is known to create an increased risk for pulmonary embolism. She had experienced two episodes of PVC's during her surgical procedure. Given this history, the panel believes it was an extreme departure from the standard of care to wait 20 minutes to seek an emergency transfer to a hospital after patient H. B. fainted and the nurse was unable to get a blood pressure reading.

The evidence was not clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent was incompetent in his treatment of patient H.B.

74. Except as set forth in the Factual Findings above, the factual allegations of the First Amended Accusation were not established by evidence that was clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty and are deemed surplusage. Expert opinions elicited at the hearing on matters not alleged in the First Amended Accusation are not relevant and cannot support a finding of unprofessional conduct.

75. Complainant requested costs of investigation and prosecution of the case pursuant to section 125.3. Deputy Attorney Douglas MacCartee presented a written declaration that the Attorney General's charges were $19,740.00. Felix S. Rodriguez, Supervising Investigator for the Medical Board, presented a written declaration that the costs of investigation were $7,363.53 and the costs of expert reviewer services were

$2,285.[17] Respondent did not object to the amount of attorney fees charged. He did object to the hourly rate charged by the investigators as unreasonable and noted the investigator's hourly rate of approximately $110 was higher than the $100 hourly rate of the medical experts. The Deputy Attorney General billed at only $112 per hour.

The Administrative Law Judge did not award costs, and the panel is not authorized under the law to award costs on its own.

LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

1. Business and Professions Code section 2234 provides, in pertinent part, that the Board shall take action against any licensee who is charged with unprofessional conduct.

Under section 2234 "unprofessional conduct" is defined to include repeated negligent acts, gross negligence, and incompetence.

"Repeated negligent acts" constituting unprofessional conduct under Business and Professions Code section 2234(c) consists of two or more negligent acts. See, Zabetian v. Medical Board of California (2000) 80 Cal.App.4th 462.

"Gross negligence" is a professional error or omission that is egregious. It is defined as the want of even scant care, or an extreme deviation from the standard of practice in the medical community. Gore v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 110 Cal.App.3d 184; Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124.

"Incompetence" generally is defined as a lack of knowledge or ability in the discharging of professional obligations. See, James v. Board of Dental Examiners (1985) 172 Cal.App.3d 1096.

2. The standard of proof in a disciplinary action seeking the suspension or revocation of a physician and surgeon's certificate is clear and convincing evidence." Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal.App.3d 583.

"Clear and convincing evidence" means evidence of such convincing force that it demonstrates, in contrast to the opposing evidence, a high probability of the truth of the facts for which it is offered as proof. "Clear and convincing evidence" is a higher standard of proof than proof by a "preponderance of the evidence." See, BAJI 2.62.

[17] Mr. Rodriquez declaration erroneously listed the total expert reviewer services as $525.00. The error and correct amount were obvious on the face of the declaration.

"Clear and convincing evidence" requires a finding of high probability and must be so clear as to leave no substantial doubt and to command the unhesitating assent of every reasonable mind. See, In re Michael G. (1998) 63 Cal.App.4th 700.

As a First Cause for Discipline and Revocation of Probation, complainant alleged gross negligence, repeated negligent acts and incompetence in respondent's care, treatment and management of patients A.H. and H.B. in violation of section 2234, subdivisions (b), (c) and (d). As a Second Cause for Discipline and Revocation of Probation, complainant alleged false or misleading advertising in violation of section 2271. As a Third Cause for Discipline and Revocation of Probation, complainant alleged false or misleading advertising in violation of section 651. As a separate Cause for Revocation of Probation, complainant alleged respondent, (1) operated an outpatient setting using anesthesia in violation of sections 2215 and 2216, and Health and Safety Code sections 1248.1, 1248.15 and 1248.65; (2) violated Temecula Municipal Code; violated sections 651 and 2271 by false and misleading advertising; and (3) violated section 2234 as set forth above.

3. Cause was established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation pursuant to sections 2227 and 2234, subdivision (b), for unprofessional conduct consisting of gross negligence.

Factual Findings 1 through 12 and 22 through 38 inclusive, 40 through 50 inclusive, 52, 68, 72, 73 and Legal Conclusions 1 and 2 support this conclusion.

4. Cause was established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation pursuant to sections 2227 and 2234, subdivision (c), for unprofessional conduct consisting of repeated negligent acts.

Factual Findings 1 through 12 and 22 through 38 inclusive, 40-42, 44-45, 48 and 49, and Legal Conclusions 1 and 2 support this conclusion.

5. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation pursuant to sections 2227 and 2234, subdivision (d), for unprofessional conduct consisting of incompetence.

Factual Findings 1 through 12 and 22 through 75 inclusive, and Legal Conclusions 1 and 2 support this conclusion.

6. Section 2271 provides that any advertising in violation of Section 17500 constitutes unprofessional conduct. Section 17500 defines false advertising and provides in pertinent part:

> "It is unlawful for any person . . . with intent . . . to perform services, professional or otherwise, . . . or to induce the public to enter into any obligation relating thereto, to make or disseminate or cause to be made > or disseminated before the public in this state . . . any statement, concerning . . . those services . . . or concerning any circumstance or matter of fact connected with the proposed performance . . . which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading. . . . Any violation of . . . this section is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment in the county jail and not exceeding six months, or by a fine not exceeding . . . ($2,500) or by both that imprisonment and fine."

Respondent's statement that he spent his residency at U.C. Davis was misleading about the extent of his post-graduate education. Respondent's statement was not "false advertising" within section 17500 and does not warrant the criminal sanctions of that section.

Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation pursuant to section 2271.

Factual Findings 1 through 5 and 17 through 21 inclusive, and Legal Conclusions 1 and 2 support this conclusion.

7. The Third Cause for Discipline alleged false and misleading advertising under section 651, which sets forth truth in advertising requirements for health care professionals. The section contains subsections (a) through (k), each containing its own subparagraphs. The First Amended Accusation referenced subsections (a), (b), (e), (f) and (g). Those subsections contain a total of 11 types of statements considered false or misleading under the statute. Complainant did not specify in the charging allegations the particular subsection(s) that applied to each alleged misleading statement contained in paragraph 18 of the First Amended Accusation. Guidance came from complainant's counsel in his closing argument when he referred to subsections (b)(2), (b)(5) and (b)(8) of section 651. Those subsections define false or misleading advertising as follows:

> "(b) A false . . . misleading, or deceptive statement, claim or image includes a statement or claim that does any of the following:
> (2) Is likely to mislead or deceive because of a failure to disclose material facts.
> (3) . . . (4) . . .

(5) Contains other representations or implications that in reasonable probability will cause an ordinarily prudent person to misunderstand or be deceived.

(6) . . . (7) . . .

(8) Includes any statement, endorsement, or testimonial that is likely to mislead or deceive because of a failure to disclose material facts."

The totality of the evidence established that respondent's statement about his residency was misleading or deceptive under those subsections. Respondent testified that prospective patients frequently call his office to ascertain his credentials and inquire whether he is board certified. This establishes that such information is material to prospective patients, and that had respondent stated he did a one year rotating internship in family practice, rather than saying he did a residency, ordinarily-prudent patients would have been dissuaded from having respondent do their OSR treatment. The context in which the residency statement is made establishes an intent to mislead prospective patients into believing he did a residency which trained him in cosmetic surgery.

Cause was established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation for violation of section 651.

Factual Findings 1 through 5 and 17 through 19 inclusive, and Legal Conclusions 1, 2 and 7 support this conclusion.

8. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation for unprofessional conduct within the meaning of Health and Safety Code section 1248.65 for operation of an "outpatient setting" in violation of Health and Safety Code section 1248.1.

Factual Findings 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 39 and 51, and Legal Conclusions 1 and 2 support this conclusion.

9. Cause was established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation for unprofessional conduct pursuant to section 2234 or the terms of probation, consisting of violation of laws related to the practice of medicine, to wit, the City of Temecula zoning laws.

Factual Findings 1, 2, 3, and 5 through 15 inclusive, and Legal Conclusions 1 and 2 support this conclusion.

10. Except as set forth in the Factual Findings and Legal Conclusions of this Proposed Decision, the allegations and charges of the First Amended Accusation were not proven and are deemed surplusage.

Factual Findings 1 through 75 inclusive, and Legal Conclusions 1 through 9 inclusive support this conclusion.

Respondent has a history of prior discipline. His license to practice medicine is currently revoked, with the revocation stayed, and he has been placed on probation for five years with terms and conditions. The prior discipline is also a result of his failure to meet the standards of practice in performing cosmetic surgery procedures on his patients. The panel finds this to be a significant factor in aggravation.

While respondent has made some improvements, he continues to conduct his cosmetic surgery practice in a manner that puts patients at risk. He has not learned from his mistakes. He has not demonstrated he is willing and able to conform to professional standards of practice in patient selection and discharge from his outpatient surgery center. For these reasons the panel believes a period of suspension is warranted, as well as a restriction on practice, and a practice monitor. An ethics course is also warranted in this case.

WHEREFORE, THE FOLLOWING ORDER is hereby made:

Certificate No. A 36888 issued to Respondent, Kelly James O'Neil, M.D., is revoked. However, the revocation is stayed and Respondent is placed on probation for seven (7) years upon the following terms and conditions.

1. As part of probation, respondent is suspended from the practice of medicine for six (6) months beginning the 16th day after the effective date of this decision.

2. Within 15 days after the effective date of this decision Respondent shall provide the Division, or its designee, proof of service that Respondent has served a true copy of this decision on the Chief of Staff or the Chief Executive Officer at every hospital where privileges or membership are extended to Respondent or at any other facility where Respondent engages in the practice of medicine and on the Chief Executive Officer at every insurance carrier where malpractice insurance coverage is extended to Respondent.

3. Respondent shall obey all federal, state and local laws, all rules governing the practice of medicine in California, and remain in full compliance with any court ordered criminal probation, payments and other orders.

4. Respondent shall submit quarterly declarations under penalty of perjury on forms provided by the Division, stating whether there has been compliance with all the conditions of probation.

5. Respondent shall comply with the Division's probation surveillance program. Respondent shall, at all times, keep the Division informed of his addresses of business and residence which shall both serve as addresses of record. Changes of such addresses shall be immediately communicated in writing to the Division. Under no circumstances shall a post office box serve as an address of record, except as allowed by Business and Professions Code Section 2021(b).

6. Respondent shall, at all times, maintain a current and renewed physician and surgeon license.

7. Respondent shall also immediately inform the Division, in writing, of any travel to any areas outside the jurisdiction of California which lasts, or is contemplated to last, more than thirty (30) days.

8. Respondent shall appear in person for interviews with the Division, its designee or its designated physician(s) upon request at various intervals and with reasonable notice.

9. During probation, respondent is prohibited from practicing surgery, cosmetic procedures or treatments, and administering or ordering the administration of any anesthetic agents. At the earliest opportunity, respondent shall inform applicable patients that respondent is unable to perform a treatment or procedure.

10. At least thirty (30) days before the end of the period of suspension imposed by this Order, respondent shall submit to the Division or its designee for its prior approval a plan of practice in which respondent's practice shall be monitored by another physician in respondent's field of practice, who shall provide periodic reports to the Division or its designee.

11. Within 60 days of the effective date of this decision, respondent shall enroll in a course in Ethics approved in advance by the Division or its designee, and shall successfully complete the course during the first year of probation.

12. In the event Respondent should leave California to reside or to practice outside the State or for any reason should Respondent stop practicing medicine in California, Respondent shall notify the Division or its designee in writing within ten days of the dates of departure and return or the dates of non-practice within California. Non-practice is defined as any period of time exceeding thirty days in which Respondent is not engaging in any activities defined in Sections 2051 and 2052 of the Business and Professions Code. All time spent in an intensive training program approved by the Division or its designee shall be considered as time spent in the practice of medicine. A Board ordered suspension of practice shall not be considered as a period of non-practice. Periods of temporary or permanent residence or practice outside California or of non-practice within California, as defined in this condition, will not apply to the reduction of the probationary order.

13. If Respondent violates probation in any respect, the Division, after giving Respondent notice and the opportunity to be heard, may revoke probation and carry out the disciplinary order that was stayed. If an accusation or petition to revoke probation is filed against Respondent during probation, the Division shall have continuing jurisdiction until the matter is final, and the period of probation shall be extended until the matter is final.

14. Respondent shall pay the costs associated with probation monitoring each and every year of probation. Such costs shall be payable to the Division of Medical Quality and delivered to the designated probation surveillance monitor no later than January 31 of each calendar year. Failure to pay such costs within 30 days of the due date shall be considered a violation of probation.

15. Following the effective date of this decision, if Respondent ceases practicing due to retirement, health reasons or is otherwise unable to satisfy the terms and conditions of probation, Respondent may voluntarily tender his certificate to the Board. The Division reserves the right to evaluate Respondent's request and to exercise its discretion whether to grant the request, or to take any other action deemed appropriate and reasonable under the circumstances. Upon formal acceptance of the tendered license, Respondent will no longer be subject to the terms and conditions of probations.

16. Upon successful completion of probation, Respondent's certificate shall be fully restored.

Respondent's medical record from the PACE evaluation contained in pages AGO 591 through 599 inclusive in Exhibit 23 shall be sealed and not available for public view; however, those pages shall be available for review by the Medical Board, its authorized designees and by any reviewing court. It shall be available to a member of the public upon court order.

This decision shall become effective on at 5:00 p.m. on AUG 28, 2003

IT IS SO ORDERED THIS 28 DAY OF AUGUST, 2003.

PROPOSED DECISION

Administrative Law Judge Joyce A. Wharton, Office of Administrative Hearings, State of California, heard this matter in San Diego, California on October 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 28, 29 and 30, 2002.

T. Douglas MacCartee, Deputy Attorney General, represented the complainant.

Albert J. Garcia, Attorney at Law, represented respondent Kelly James O'Neill, M.D., who was present.

The matter was submitted on October 30, 2002.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

1. On January 4, 2002, Ron Joseph (hereinafter "complainant"), acting in his official capacity as the Executive Director of the Medical Board of California (hereinafter "the Board"), filed Accusation No 19-2000-112061 against Kelly James O'Neil, M.D. (hereinafter "respondent"). Complainant charged respondent with unprofessional conduct in connection with his care and treatment of two patients in July 2000. Specifically, complainant alleged gross negligence, repeated acts of negligence and incompetence in violation of Business and Professions Code,[1] section 2234, subdivisions (b), (c) and (d); and false and misleading advertising in violation of sections 651 and 2271. Complainant also alleged that respondent violated a term of probation in case No. 09-93-26899 and, therefore, the order of probation should be revoked. Complainant filed a First Amended Accusation on October 16, 2002.[2]

Respondent filed a timely Notice of Defense.

2. Respondent is 49 years old. In 1975, he graduated U.C. Davis with a Bachelor of Science degree in Physiology. In 1980, he obtained a medical degree from Tulane Medical School. In 1981, he completed a one-year rotating internship at UC Davis but did not perform a residency. On June 24, 1981, the Board issued physician's and surgeon's certificate No. A 36888. The certificate is renewed and current with an expiration date of January 31, 2003.

Respondent moved to Temecula and opened a private family practice in late August 1981. Respondent soon met a physician who specialized in chemical peels and was about to retire. The physician trained respondent in the peel procedure and respondent incorporated it into his practice. Respondent took courses and attended seminars on peel procedures. In 1987, he gave up his family practice to primarily devote time to the skin peel procedure. In about 1994, he began doing tumescent liposurgery as well. Respondent has continued to limit his practice to chemical peels and liposurgery. He conducts his practice at the O'Neil Skin Center located at 40971 Winchester Road in Temecula. Respondent is not board certified in any specialty.

3. Complainant filed Accusation No. 09-03-26899 against respondent in November 1996, and a Supplemental Accusation in January 1998. The parties resolved the matter by a Stipulation in Settlement and Decision effective September 14, 1998. The stipulation contained the following pertinent language:

> "7. For the purpose of resolving Accusation and First Supplemental Accusation No. 09-93-26899, respondent admits he committed repeated acts of negligence in the care and treatment of patient J.G. as alleged in paragraph 5 of the Accusation, and repeated acts of negligence in the care and treatment of patient V.F. as alleged in paragraph 15 of the First Supplemental Accusation. . . . . The remaining allegations in the Accusation and First Supplemental Accusation are dismissed."[3] (Emphasis added.)

[2] Respondent did not object to the new allegations made shortly before the date of hearing.

[3] Complainant asserted respondent's stipulated admissions included admitting to placing a false advertisement in the Yellow Pages stating he was board certified in general practice, and admitting he operated an unlicensed health facility. A plain reading of the matters admitted does not support this contention. Respondent admitted only "repeated negligent acts" in the care and treatment of specific patients in violation of section 2234(c).

J.G. was a 72-year-old patient on whom respondent performed a chemical facial peel in March 1993. During the procedure the patient went into respiratory arrest and never regained consciousness. Pursuant to the stipulation, respondent admitted the following: He failed to perform a complete preoperative physical; he failed to order a pre-operative electrocardiogram or chest x-ray which would have determined the extent of the patient's chronic condition; he failed to detect the patient was suffering from chronic congestive heart failure; he failed to record the patient's peripheral edema in his history and physical; he proceeded with the chemical face peel without first obtaining a cardiac clearance from a physician; he failed to properly intubate the patient prior to arrival of paramedics; he failed to establish a properly operating intravenous route; he gave the patient multiple sedatives without a nurse anesthetist or anesthesiologist present.

V.F. was a 37-year-old female, weighing 247 pounds, on whom respondent performed liposuction in September 1996. After surgery the patient developed blisters from the girdle prescribed by respondent. The condition worsened to a life-threatening soft tissue infection. Pursuant to the stipulation, respondent admitted the following: He failed to properly assess the patient for liposuction surgery; the patient was not a proper candidate for the surgery because of her generalized obesity; he administered an excessive amount of tumescent solution; he removed an excessive amount of aspirate from the patient.

The Board revoked respondent's certificate and stayed the order for five years on probationary terms that included: completion of a Physician Assessment and Clinical Evaluation (PACE) program in patient assessment, plastic surgery and anesthesia at UCSD School of Medicine prior to the revocation order being stayed; a practice monitor; practice restrictions that preclude use of general anesthesia and limit the amount of aspirate withdrawn during certain procedures; compliance with all federal, state and local laws and rules governing the practice of medicine in California.

4. In June and July 1998, respondent underwent a comprehensive PACE assessment, which included measurement of medical skills and knowledge, appraisal of physical health and psychological testing. Respondent was found to be in good physical and mental health.

In compliance with terms of his probation, respondent submitted to a psychological assessment on June 1, 1998. William Perry, Ph.D. interviewed respondent and administered numerous tests. He found no cognitive or neurocognitive deficits, nor was there indication of serious psychopathology. In September 1998, respondent attended a weeklong clinical program including Dermatology and Anesthesiology. On September 25, 1998, PACE issued a certificate of completion indicating that respondent successfully completed and met all requirements of the PACE program. The order of revocation was stayed on that date.

As a result of the disciplinary action, respondent instituted changes in his practice. At the initial consultation he applies stricter guidelines to evaluate the patient for the procedure and he refuses more patients at that stage. Patients under 50 must have blood work and patients over 50 must also have an EKG and chest x-ray. All patients must be examined by their primary care physician and provide that physician's authorization for the chemexfiliation and/or liposurgery. In addition to his initial consultation with the patient, on the morning of the procedure respondent also takes a medical history, performs a physical examination and documents findings in his chart. Respondent adheres to the probationary requirement to limit the amount of aspirate for liposurgery and believes this was a good idea.

As of October 29, 2001, respondent was deemed in compliance with all terms and conditions of his probation. Respondent's practice monitor reported he did not find any problems with respondent's care of patients.

5. At all times relevant to the pending Accusation, respondent conducted his practice at 40971 Winchester Road in Temecula under the name "O'Neil Skin and Lipo Center, Kelly James O'Neil, M.D." Effective October 25, 1999, the facility became accredited by the Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care, Inc. Respondent lost his hospital privileges due to the 1998 disciplinary action. However, he has a standing transfer agreement with the local hospital allowing him to transfer patients to the hospital by means of a 911 call.

As of July 2000, respondent had performed about 6,000 full phenol peels and 2,000 more partial peels. Approximately one-third of his patients were aged 60 or older.

6. Respondent's procedures were performed on an outpatient basis. He gave each patient a written set of instructions titled "O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation After Care Instructions for the First 48 Hours." The instructions advised the patient in pertinent part as follows:

> "1. You must have a driver to take you from Dr. O'Neil's office.
> 2. You must have someone help you so you can rest in bed (only getting up for the restroom) for the next 48 hours.
> 3. . . . Diet: Full liquid diet through a straw. If nauseated have clear liquids through a straw.
>
> 4. Sleep with your head elevated at 45 degrees for the first 24 hours and then position as you are comfortable.
>
> 5. Apply ice packs to eyelids for 20 minutes each hour for the first 24 hours. . . .
> 6. Medications: Keep these at your bedside. . .
>
> . . . Please do not take any xanax, ativan, or restoril past midnight on the second day after your treatment, because the doctor would like you to be more active the day your tape comes off.
> Remove the mask on the morning of the third day and apply the powder that was supplied to you. . . .

Notify Dr. O'Neil if your:

Blood pressure is greater than 100 diastolic
If your blood pressure is greater then [sic]180 systolic
If your pulse is greater then [sic] 100
If your tempeture [sic] is greater then [sic] 100 degrees
If you have any questions"[4]

7. Respondent believed that to achieve optimum cosmetic outcome, the 24 to 40 hour period after the procedure was an important, integral part of the skin rejuvenation process. Some, but not all, of the peel procedures required application of a tape mask that was to remain in place for about two days. The tape mask must stay on with minimal movement around the mouth and eyes in order to achieve the best cosmetic outcome for the patient. Respondent wanted the patients to remain quiet and undisturbed for the first 48 hours so they would not touch their faces or disturb the tape mask and thus risk scarring or a poor result. The mask could be removed easily in an emergency.

Respondent explained that he wanted his patients in a controlled aftercare environment, not necessarily for medical reasons, but for a good result of the facial peel so the patient would be happy and he would not have future complaints about the result.

8. In 2000, as part of the skin rejuvenation package, respondent offered his patients aftercare options that included staying two nights in a nearby hotel where they could be monitored and assisted until they removed the mask. Once the mask was removed, the patients could go home or spend from 1 to 9 days at a private "retreat" where healthful meals, recreational activities and relaxation were provided by an attentive staff. The aftercare options were attractive to the patients, especially those who lived far from the clinic or had no one at home to provide care and assistance. Respondent would not perform the procedure on certain patients who lived far away with no one at home to help them unless they agreed to go to the immediate aftercare facility.

Over the years respondent had used several different aftercare facilities or retreats including the local hospital. When his license was placed on probationary status, respondent lost his hospital privileges at Inland Valley Hospital and sought another provider of immediate aftercare. Respondent wanted a location that was close to his office "for transport and to keep an eye on patients." In about 1999 he learned that QualCare, Inc., a nursing registry, was providing post procedure care for cosmetic surgery patients at an upscale hotel in Riverside. Because that location was too far from his office, he contacted the owner of QualCare to see if the service could be provided in Temecula.

9. QualCare Inc., aka QC Enterprises, was a company owned and operated by Jo-Ann Jordan, R.N. Ms. Jordan and a friend started the business, which operated for an unknown period of time before it was incorporated as a closely held corporation in May 1999. Ms. Jordan described QualCare as a nursing registry that provided care on an as needed basis in various settings. The major part of QualCare's business was to provide care to discharged outpatients in a setting similar to that at home.

Ms. Jordan hired registered nurses who worked for QualCare as independent contractors. She required that the nurses also work in hospitals so they would have the necessary and up-to-date skills. QualCare scheduled and paid the nurses. The nurses wore scrubs and used latex gloves, had a stethoscope and blood pressure measuring equipment, but did not provide oximeters or EKG equipment. The nurses did not give injections or intravenous treatment, nor did they dispense drugs. They assisted with suppositories and the patients' regular oral medications. The patient's physician would send someone to administer any injection that was required. The nurse was expected to use her professional judgment to call 911 if an emergency arose.

Ms. Jordan was familiar with other companies that provided aftercare to cosmetic surgery patients in hotel settings in southern California. Jordan testified that she contacted the appropriate state and local agencies about providing aftercare services in a hotel setting and was not advised of any illegality. Ms. Jordan testified that, before she met respondent, QualCare had provided aftercare services for a Loma Linda plastic surgeon. QualCare arranged for the patients to stay in rooms at the Mission Inn, a very upscale hotel in Riverside. QualCare provided one nurse to care for three patients. If a patient persisted in trying to remove the bandages, an unlicensed "sitter" would be provided for one-on-one attention to do nothing but watch the patient.

10. In 1999, at least one year after QualCare started doing business, Ms. Jordan learned that respondent was looking for aftercare services for his skin peel patients. She met with respondent and he discussed his expectations for aftercare. Based on her experience at the Mission Inn, she believed QualCare could fashion a program to meet respondent's needs. The patient was to remain quiet and recline at a 45-degree angle; ice was to be applied to the face and the patient must avoid smoking. The setting was to be upscale, with a phone available for personal calls and a microwave for heating broth. Ms. Jordan described the service QualCare was to provide as "a supportive environment in lieu of going home".

Ms. Jordan and her partner used respondent's guidelines and incorporated what they felt was needed for aftercare. Ms. Jordan and respondent agreed that the Embassy Suites Hotel in Temecula would be an appropriate setting. Ms. Jordan approached the Embassy Suites and discussed with the manager the nature of her operation, what the nurses would be doing and the type of rooms needed. Embassy Suites agreed to rent to QualCare a block of adjoining rooms. The hotel also accommodated QualCare by providing unlimited ice, linens and pillows. There was no evidence of any complaints by the management or owner of Embassy Suites nor any indication they were concerned about the legality of QualCare's use of the hotel property for aftercare. QualCare entered an arrangement with respondent to provide aftercare to his facial peel patients. QualCare operated out of Embassy Suites for approximately 18 months.

The patients paid QualCare for its services. As part of the skin rejuvenation "package," the patient wrote a check to respondent for his services and a separate check to QualCare. Both checks were delivered to respondent's office approximately a week before the procedure and QualCare would pick up its checks. Respondent did not receive any portion of the payment made to QualCare.

11. QualCare continued to solicit business from other physicians but was not successful. After 1999, respondent was its only client. There was no arrangement or agreement between respondent and QualCare whereby it would serve only his practice.

12. The evidence did not establish that respondent "effectively controlled" QualCare as alleged in the First Amended Accusation. Respondent took no part in the formation or incorporation of QualCare and had no ownership or financial interest in it. He had no role in hiring, scheduling or paying the nurses. Respondent provided QualCare nurses the same instructions given to the patients for aftercare and his nurses demonstrated how to remove the tape mask. QualCare nurses called respondent, as the treating physician, if a patient was having a problem and they followed his instructions for aftercare. None of this equates to "effective control" over QualCare and its business.

13. In the First Amended Accusation, complainant alleged respondent violated the terms of probation because he failed to obey state and local laws. The pleading itself is ambiguous. Complainant's counsel explained the charges were based on complainant's belief that respondent operated, managed, conducted or maintained an "outpatient setting" at the Embassy Suites in violation of Health and Safety Code section 1248.1 and Temecula Municipal Code section 17.24.

The evidence did not establish that use of the hotel for limited aftercare as provided by QualCare constituted an "outpatient setting." Health and Safety Code section 1248(c) defines outpatient setting for the purpose of section 1248.1 as follows:

> ". . . any facility, . . . center, office or other setting that is not part of a general acute care facility and where anesthesia[5] . . . is used in compliance with the community standard of practice, in doses that, when administered have the probability of placing a patient at risk for loss of the patient's life-preserving protective reflexes.
> "Outpatient setting" does not include, among other settings, any settings where anxiolytics[6] and analgesics[7] are administered . . . in doses that do not have the probability of placing the patient at risk for loss of life preserving reflexes." (Emphasis added.)

---

[5] "Anesthesia" is defined as "loss of feeling or sensation, especially to loss of sensation of pain as it is induced to permit performance of surgery or other painful procedures." (Dorlands Illustrated Medical Dictionary, 27th Ed.)

[6] "Anxiolytic" is defined as ". . . reducing anxiety." Id.

Neither respondent nor the QualCare nurses administered anesthesia to patients during their stay at the hotel.

14. A city of Temecula code enforcement officer issued a "Notice of Violation Correction Notice," described on its face as a "warning," to "Dr. O'Neil Qual Care." The notice cited a violation of Temecula Municipal Code section 17.24, which dealt with parking violations. The notice was not accurate and no citation was ever issued against respondent. Thus, the issuance of the notice did not establish that respondent violated any zoning law.

15. The parties entered the following stipulation with regard to the Temecula Municipal Code:

> "At all times relevant herein the city of Temecula, California had a zoning general plan and ordinance which precluded the Embassy Suites Hotel from operation of any business use other than its own operation as a hotel. Under the ordinance it is illegal for anyone, who has not applied for and received a conditional use permit, to engage [within the premises of Embassy Suites Hotel] in the operation of a Post Surgical Care Facility or any other health care operation whereby medical patients or the infirm are cared for by a medical professional for a fee."

The evidence established there was no violation of Temecula Municipal Code section 17.24 because that section related to parking violations. Rather than present the actual ordinance for the administrative law judge's review, the parties entered the above stipulation. The administrative law judge is not bound by parties' incorrect interpretation of the meaning and effect of an ordinance.

Even if the parties' stipulation is accurate, the evidence did not establish a violation of any Temecula zoning ordinance by respondent. Respondent did not own or control the Embassy Suites property, nor did he own or control QualCare, which was operating its business on the property. The primary responsibility for the proper use of the hotel rooms rested with the management and owners of the hotel, who are bound to know the applicable zoning law as much, if not more than a customer. Assuming, arguendo, and based solely on the parties' stipulation, that patient aftercare violated an ordinance, the party liable for sanctions would be either the hotel or QualCare, the entity operating the business and making the arrangements to use the hotel. Embassy Suites was fully aware of the intended use of its hotel rooms and consented to it. There was no reason for respondent to suspect QualCare or Embassy Suites would operate in contravention of a zoning law.

16. The First Amended Accusation alleged as a violation of law that respondent "continued his operation of an uncertified outpatient setting." Complainant presented no evidence that respondent ever operated an uncertified outpatient setting or that he did so after the stipulated decision in 1998. Complainant argued that the following allegation in the 1996 Accusation was admitted by respondent's stipulation and was proof of his past operation of an uncertified setting:

"On or about May 19, 1993, respondent received a cease and desist order from the San Bernardino District Office of the State Department of Health Services as concerned his operating an unlicensed health facility . . . where he would house post chemical peel patients for further recuperation." (Emphasis added.)

The issuance and receipt of a cease and desist order does not establish that the underlying ground for the order was true or was in fact a violation of law. In light of complainant's erroneous application of Health and Safety Code section 1248.1 in this proceeding, it is not reasonable to assume a correct interpretation of the law was made in the prior Accusation. Further, respondent admitted only "repeated acts of negligence in the care and treatment of patient J.G., as alleged in paragraph 5 of the Accusation." There was nothing in the above-cited allegation or the admission to suggest the above allegation involved the care and treatment of patient J.G. in March 1993.

The evidence did not establish that respondent operated an uncertified outpatient setting in violation of any law.

17. For several years respondent has made available to prospective patients a video. The video at issue in this hearing is Exhibit H. Respondent testified the video was made as an "infomercial" to be shown on television approximately seven years ago. The intent was to promote the chemical peel process that he developed over many years and became his special area of practice. The evidence indicated Exhibit H was made in about 1994.[8] There was no evidence the video was, in fact, broadcast on television.

Respondent testified he felt Exhibit H was too commercialized to give to patients, so he made another similar version to distribute to patients for information. The evidence indicated a video was available to patients at respondent's office and was presented at promotional seminars but that video was not presented as evidence at the hearing. The evidence was not conclusive that Exhibit H was the same video presented to individual patients and at seminars. Respondent testified that Exhibit H was given to the Medical Board during its investigation in the prior disciplinary action and no objection was made at that time to its content.

The Exhibit H video contained approximately 22 before and after photos of patients who underwent the O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation procedure. Approximately 22 patients gave testimonials about their reasons for having the procedure and their satisfaction with the results. The video clearly stated the O'Neil Skin Center was not a dermatology clinic, it was a center specializing in non-surgical skin rejuvenation techniques that removed wrinkles and improved skin complexion. Contrary to complainant's contention at the hearing, none of the statements in the video implied that respondent performed a residency in plastic surgery or any other particular specialty. None of the statements suggested that respondent specialized in plastic surgery. The statements on the video clearly informed the viewer that respondent limited his practice to non-surgical cosmetic treatment of the skin and patients wanting to improve sagging neck or eye areas were referred to Dr. Richard Amonic, a plastic and reconstructive surgeon in Santa Monica.

In one portion of the Exhibit H video, when describing his background and experience, respondent stated: "I graduated from Tulane Medical School and spent my residency at U.C. Davis in Sacramento." This statement implied respondent either completed or performed part of a residency. Respondent completed a one-year rotating internship at U.C. Davis but did not perform a residency.

Respondent admitted his statement in the video could be misleading about his participation in a "residency" program. It was clear from respondent's testimony that he does not make a clear distinction between the terms "residency" and "internship."[9] His current resume listed "rotating internship 1981," yet he testified he did a first year of "residency" in a family practice program. Respondent believed an internship was the first year of a residency program and a first year resident was called an intern. It could not be determined whether respondent's use of the word "residency" in the video was the product of intent or ignorance. Neither party presented expert testimony about the common use and meaning of "residency" in the medical community or whether its meaning in the context of post graduate training has changed in recent years.

Although respondent's statement about his "residency" was not true, in the context of the entire video it was not a material statement or one that would induce a person to undergo the skin rejuvenation process. The evidence did not establish respondent made the Exhibit H video available to the public after September 15, 1998, the effective date of the Stipulated Decision.

19. The First Amended Accusation alleged respondent engaged in false or misleading advertising within the meanings of sections 651 and 2271 because he "uses videos, brochures, and other advertising media to represent that his practice is safe and has low complication rates. In fact respondent is on probation for treatment of patients resulting in death and serious complications." The Accusation did not specify statements or language it found objectionable. As evidence of the false statements complainant presented the Exhibit H video, a brochure and an information sheet.

[9] Dorland's Medical Dictionary defines intern, "a medical graduate serving and residing in a hospital preparatory to being licensed to practice medicine;" a resident is defined as, "a graduate and licensed physician receiving training in a specialty in a hospital."

Respondent made the following statements on the Exhibit H video regarding his skin rejuvenation procedures:

> [Regarding the aftercare program provided at the retreat facility and the results of the O.S.R. [10] treatment] ". . . I believe it is the reason my complication rate is so low."
> "There are risks involved as in any procedure but this procedure is inherently safer than cosmetic surgery, dermabrasion or skin peeling. I have performed thousands of these procedures over fourteen years and we provide every possible precaution at the O'Neil Skin Center to insure your success. The reason for our excellent safety record is simple, I provide more aftercare than other doctors, I've also designed a safer system for skin rejuvenation than other doctors, a multilayer system with a moderate strength solution. Some doctors use a harsh solution. I have designed a much gentler formula."

The brochure contained the following statements:

> "Safety
> The O.S.R. program offers the most extensive aftercare program of any cosmetic treatment on the market today. The patients heal and recuperate in privacy and seclusion. This enhances the safety of the procedure and insure [sic] uniform results. Other doctors may try to suggest that their skin peel program is "easier" or "safer" because you are sent directly home after the procedure, but wouldn't it be safer to have experienced professionals monitoring and caring for you at this time?"

The information sheet, titled "O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation Versus Conventional Skin Peels" and dated "3/00," stated in pertinent part:

> "At the O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation Center we specialize in cosmetic treatment of the skin. Various types of skin peels are offered as well as the O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation program. By concentrating on one area of expertise, Dr. O'Neil has elevated skin rejuvenation to a different plane. With over 8500 cases behind him, we feel our skin treatments are second to none in quality, safety and results. . . .

20. The references to safety in the brochure, information sheet and video were made only in regard to respondent's skin rejuvenation procedure. Over the past 15 years, respondent has performed thousands of face peel procedures. Respondent is on probation for one death that occurred during a chemical peel and one instance of a serious skin infection that developed after liposurgery. In addition, there has been one instance of post-procedure heart attack in a patient with no cardiac history and one instance of post-procedure pulmonary embolism. The evidence in the pending case did not establish that the latter two resulted from respondent's negligence or lack of safety measures.

Neither the brochure or information sheet made any representation about complication rates. Complainant presented no evidence about complication rates for the types of procedures performed by respondent. Respondent testified he keeps a record of the statistics and his complication rates are below the published statistics. Neither party presented evidence of published statistics. Complainant presented no evidence to establish respondent's actual complication rate was higher than the acceptable complication rates within the medical community.

Complainant presented no law or standard of practice that required respondent to disclose prior discipline in his advertising or informational materials. Complainant presented no law or standard of practice that required respondent, absent inquiry, to inform his patients of adverse incidents that occurred during or after procedures. Upon inquiry by patients, respondent tells them he had one patient death in the office in 1993 and one patient had a heart attack. There was no evidence respondent ever misrepresented his probationary status. The fact that respondent's license is on probation does not of itself establish that his current practice is unsafe.

Respondent made the Exhibit H video before the prior disciplinary action was filed and before he treated one of the patients whose treatment was at issue. The evidence did not establish that the statements from the video referenced in Factual Finding 19 constituted false or misleading advertising within the meaning sections 651 or 2271.

The evidence established that after the 1998 Stipulation in Settlement, respondent changed his pre-operative evaluation procedures and he successfully completed the PACE program in Dermatology and Anesthesiology. There was no evidence respondent was not competent to safely perform the limited procedures of his practice since 1998, nor was there evidence that the O'Neil Skin Center outpatient facility lacked any required safety features.

21. The First Amended Accusation alleged respondent engaged in false or misleading advertising in violation of sections 651 and 2271 because he took pre-operative photographs in different lighting than post-operative photos, and took pre-operative photos without makeup, but post-operative photos feature patients with makeup.

The only evidence of photos is contained in Exhibits O and P, original brochures containing black and white photos, and Exhibit H, the videotape. Complainant presented no credible evidence about the manner in which respondent took any before and after photos. Complainant's expert witnesses, Mark Krugman, M.D. and David T. Morwood, M.D., offered their opinions but to a great extent they were speculating; they had no expertise in photography nor did they know the actual circumstances in which the photos were taken.

In most, it does not appear the lighting before and after was significantly different. In some, it does not appear that make-up was used at all in the after photo. In some photos, lipstick or eye makeup was used in both before and after photos. In others, it appears that eye make-up or lipstick was applied for the after photo, but it is also obvious that the improvement in facial skin is the result of something other than cosmetics and lighting.

The only evidence about the manner in which the photos were taken established they were taken in respondent's office in ambient lighting. The before photos were taken shortly before the procedure. The after photos were taken when patients returned for post-procedure checkups. Respondent explained that the lighting might appear different because he takes the pictures against a wall at different times of the day. Patients are more likely to wear makeup when they come in for a checkup but the makeup will not cover wrinkles. Respondent testified he never touched up photos or tried to misrepresent results; he did not need to use makeup to exaggerate the benefits of the O.S.R. treatment because the results and the patients speak for themselves.

Five of respondent's skin rejuvenation patients, including A.H. and H.B., testified at the hearing. Direct observation of their skin revealed that the "after" photos very likely did not exaggerate the results of the O.S.R. treatment.

The evidence was not sufficiently clear and convincing to establish that the photographs used in respondent's promotional and informational materials constituted false or misleading advertising.

22. The First Amended Accusation alleged respondent engaged in false or misleading advertising in violation of sections 651 and 2271 because he sent a letter to prospective patients falsely claiming that his was the only medical office in southern California that specialized in cosmetic skin rejuvenation. The letter stated:

> "We are, to our knowledge, the only medical office in Southern California that specializes in cosmetic skin rejuvenation. While other physicians may do laser peels, TCA peels, or phenol peels, few, if any, concentrate their practice exclusively on skin rejuvenation."

It is important that the statement contained the qualifying "to our knowledge." Complainant presented no evidence of any other medical office in Southern California that concentrated its practice exclusively on non surgical cosmetic skin rejuvenation. It is notable that none of the expert witnesses called by the parties concentrated their practice on cosmetic skin rejuvenation to the same extent as respondent. The evidence was not sufficient to establish that respondent's statement constituted a violation of sections 651 and 2271.

23. The First Amended Accusation charged respondent with gross negligence, incompetence and repeated negligent acts in his treatment of patient A.H. in July 2000.

In 1998, at age 69, patient A.H. first consulted respondent. A.H. was impressed by the beautiful skin of her hairdresser, who had been treated by respondent. A.H. attended a seminar given by respondent in Escondido and watched two videos, one at the seminar and one given to her by a friend. The seminar video may have been identical or similar to Exhibit H. Respondent's statement about his medical school and residency did not impress her. Based on the information obtained from the seminar and video, A.H. felt respondent was highly competent in the skin rejuvenation process.

On the intake sheet, A.H. listed previous surgeries including two face-lifts and back surgery. She noted her only medical problems as osteoporosis and previous morphine addiction related to back pain. The patient did not have a facial procedure at that time. She returned to respondent in 2000 and scheduled an O'Neil Skin Rejuvenation procedure, including aftercare by QualCare and the retreat. She agreed to the aftercare program because she thought it was better than going home and caring for herself or having a friend help her. She felt no pressure to go to the aftercare program. She was not aware she would spend the first two days at the hotel.

Pursuant to respondent's routine procedure, an EKG and x-ray were done on June 15, and a complete blood count was performed on June 18, 2000. The lab results were normal and the x-ray found no acute cardiopulmonary disease. The EKG noted "Sinus Bradycardia, otherwise normal ECG." Respondent required the patient be examined by her primary care physician and obtain an approval for the procedure. On July 14, 2000, the patient was examined by Jerome Brodkin, M.D., her primary care physician. Dr. Brodkin completed an authorization form that noted the patient's only medical problem as "Back, Lower." The patient's physical examination was normal and there were no abnormal findings on her EKG or chest x-ray. Dr. Brodkin approved the patient for the phenol peel procedure.

24. Patient A.H. arrived at respondent's outpatient center by 7:30 a.m. on July 18, 2000. Upon arrival, the patient signed the QualCare Patient Consent Form, which stated:

> "I do hereby give permission to QualCare nurses and associates to render care as prescribed by the physician during post procedural care in a non-hospital setting. In an emergency situation, I am aware that 911 will be called and I will be transported to the nearest hospital. . . ."

25. Shortly before the procedure, respondent took a history and performed a physical exam of A.H. He noted his findings in the patient's chart: there was no history of heart, liver or renal problems; no history of myocardial infarction, congestive heart failure, angina, shortness of breath, cerebral vascular accident or stroke; he found no abnormalities in the physical exam. He noted "EKG – Sinus Bradycardia."[11]

26. The patient was in the operating room at 9:30 a.m.; her blood pressure was noted as 140/70 and her pulse rate about 60. The first anesthesia was administered at 9:45 a.m. At 10:30 the patient became restless and experienced premature ventricular contractions (PVC); her blood pressure was noted as 160/90 with a pulse of about 100.

Respondent administered Lidocaine and by 10:37 the patient was in normal sinus rhythm. At 11:35 the patient's blood pressure rose to 182/100 with a pulse of 90. Respondent administered Inapsine. The blood pressure rose over the next ten minutes to 192/100. By 11:00 the blood pressure was decreasing and the last dose of fentanyl was administered. At noon the last dose of Versed was administered and the procedure was finished. The patient's blood pressure was 170/80 and the pulse was about 80.

Postoperatively the patient's vital signs were monitored for an hour and one-half during which the blood pressure ranged from 164/70 to 170/80, with the pulse in the high 80s. From 12:30 to 1:30 the patient's level of consciousness was noted as "awake." The Doctor's Discharge Summary noted the patient was "oriented & ambulates, vital signs stable" at 1:30 p.m. Blood pressure was 172/80, pulse 88 and respiration 20. The patient was experiencing face pain. Respondent gave the patient Ativan for anxiety and authorized her to be discharged from his facility. The patient was discharged wearing the tape mask.

27. There was no evidence that any of the information in respondent's chart, as noted in Factual Findings 23 through 26, was false or inaccurate.

28. Someone from respondent's office drove patient A. H. to the Embassy Suites Hotel. She arrived with the aftercare instruction sheet and her medications. The QualCare nurse on duty noted the patient was awake and alert, her blood pressure was 156/99 and pulse of 107. The nurse's notes described the patient as restless, anxious and taking water. By 3:00 p.m. the patient was either awake or sleeping normally, her blood pressure was 143/80 and pulse was 119. At 5:30 p.m. the nurse noted the patient had a fever, blood pressure was 131/81 and pulse had risen to 124. The nurse paged respondent for orders.

Respondent testified he was in his office performing a procedure when the nurse called. He did not wear a pager while working on a patient and he did not recall staff notifying him of a call. Complainant presented no evidence to establish the time respondent received the page or was informed of the nurse's call.

29. Shortly before 7:00 p.m. Eliane Heller, R.N. came on for the next shift. Nurse Heller testified at the hearing. Based on her attitude, demeanor and the quality of her testimony, she was found to be a candid and credible witness.

The day nurse advised Nurse Heller of the patient's elevated pulse and that respondent had been called. He had not yet returned the page. Nurse Heller took the patient's vital signs and noted the temperature was 98.2, blood pressure 130/100 and pulse 126. The patient was awake and alert and asked the nurse to assist her into the bathroom. While in the bathroom, the nurse noticed the patient disimpacting herself and advised the patient to stop. The nurse washed the patient's hands and performed the disimpaction. The patient said she felt better and walked back to bed.

Between 7:00 – 7:30 p.m. respondent called for the first time after having been paged at 5:30 p.m. Respondent testified he was still in the operating room with a patient when he spoke to the nurse. Nurse Heller testified she told respondent the patient was in bed and resting, and respondent instructed her to keep watching the patient and he would call back in half an hour. Nurse Heller recalled that after respondent's call, the patient sat up, complained of back pain and said it was time for her morphine. The nurse checked the patient's Oramorph bottle and gave the patient the prescribed dose. The medication record indicated this was done at 7:30 p.m. The patient reclined again and felt calmer. Nurse Heller testified that respondent called again, she told him the patient was resting and he said to give Ativan for anxiety. She did not do so because the patient had recently taken Oramorph. There was no evidence to pinpoint the time of this conversation. The QualCare record noted at 8:00 p.m. that the nurse gave the patient MSM and Famiver per bottle instructions and the pulse was 124. No blood pressure was recorded.

Respondent testified the nurse advised him the patient was restless with a rapid heart rate but not complaining of chest pain and not short of breath. Respondent testified he instructed the nurse to give pain medication and wait an hour or so to let him know how she was doing. Respondent explained he did not consider the rapid heart rate to require sending the patient to the hospital because her other vital signs were stable and pain could cause the rising pulse. The evidence did not establish the time of this conversation.

Nurse Heller testified the patient rested awhile and was "OK." She sat up again and became restless, requiring the nurse's full attention. Because there were two other patients in her care, the nurse called Jo-Ann Jordan to come and assist her. Jordan arrived, sat with the patient and talked to her about relaxation methods. There was no evidence of the time Jordan arrived. Nurse Heller returned and took the patient's pulse, which was elevated and too fast to count. Heller testified she looked at Jordan, shook her head to indicate it was not good and, at that point, Jordan said, "Now she is complaining of chest pains." Heller testified she went to the next room and called 911; she then called respondent and told him she had called 911 because the patient had chest pains. Nurse Heller testified repeatedly that respondent arrived either shortly before or at the same time as the paramedics. She testified repeatedly that she did not tell respondent the patient had chest pains until after she had called 911.

Respondent testified that after the second phone conversation with the nurse he decided to see the patient because her blood pressure was a bit high and she was not responding to the pain medication. When he arrived both Jordan and Heller were present. The nurse told him the patient started to complain of chest pain. Respondent listened to her heart and lungs with a stethoscope and asked about the chest pain. A.H. said she had had chest pain but did not have it at that moment. Respondent told the nurse to call 911; he did not recall if she said she already had placed the call. The paramedics arrived within a few minutes.

30. The totality of the evidence about the events in Factual Finding 29 was inconsistent and confusing; it failed to establish the exact timing of the sequence of events.

The QualCare chart entry showed a pulse of 140 and respiration rate of 10 at about 8:45 p.m. But Nurse Heller wrote the following ambiguous note in the QualCare chart:

"2130 – Guest remains restless. Dr. O'Neil here & Jo Ann RN. C/O chest pain. Skin is cold & clammy. HR 140/min. Pt is transported via ambulance to the hospital."

On July 19, 2000, respondent wrote a note in his chart summarizing the events and noted:

"Pt noted to have elevated HB [approximately] 120-130 at [approximately] 6:30 pm [illegible] 118 after straining at stool. . . . Pt complained of some facial discomfort [secondary] peel and was given her Oramorph pain meds. This failed to reduce HR. She later developed some chest pain (ache, apex x [illegible], came and went several times, radiating to shoulder). I saw her at Embassy Suite hotel [approximately] 8:30 pm. No ch. Pain at that time . . . but HR 130-140. Paramedics called and pt. transferred. . ."

On August 31, 2000, Nurse Heller was interviewed by a Medical Board investigator. In her report dated October 25, 2001, the investigator related the nurse's statement as follows:

"Ms. Heller took Ms. [H"s] blood pressure and it was high, also Ms. [H.] was restless, anxious, and hyperventilating. Very shortly after this, Dr. O'Neil called Ms. Heller and she informed him of Ms. [H's] current status and asked him to come over and see the patient. Dr. O'Neil agreed to come over. While waiting for Dr. O'Neil, Ms. [H.] complained to Ms. Heller of chest pain, so Ms. Heller called 9-1-1. Dr. O'Neil arrived at the same time as the fire Department and within (30) minutes of the request for him to come."

On about September 21, 2000, respondent sent the Medical Board a summary of the A.H. treatment in which he stated, "The nurses called me the next morning. . . . She later began complaining of chest pain and I saw her at about 8:30 p.m. and had her transferred to Inland Valley Medical Center. . ."[12]

On December 12, 2000, respondent was interviewed at his office by a Board investigator. The investigator's report, dated October 25, 2001, contained the following:

"Dr. O'Neill stated that in the case of Ms. [H], he didn't know she was experiencing chest pain until he arrived at the hotel and that as soon as he learned she was having chest pain, he immediately called 911. Dr. O'Neil said that he was performing surgery when he was initially called by the nurses regarding Ms. Huter."

[12] This note indicates respondent is not an accurate or reliable historian. There was no basis for his statement, "the nurses called me the next morning." In light of contradicting evidence, his time estimate of 8:30 p.m. is not reliable.

The First Amended Accusation alleged, "While respondent was on his way, A.H. complained of chest pain and the nurse called 911. Respondent arrived at the Embassy Suites about the same time as the paramedics."

Nurses Heller and Jordan were present during the critical time period before the 911 call. Both testified at the hearing and were available to complainant for a full inquiry about the timing of events. They were credible witnesses with no apparent reason to lie under oath. Neither testified that respondent was actually present and observing the patient before the 911 was made. Both testified convincingly that respondent arrived either shortly before or at the same time as the paramedics. The only piece of uncontradicted evidence was the paramedic record establishing the 911 call received at 9:18 p.m. and arrival of the paramedics at 9:21 p.m. Thus, respondent must have arrived at the hotel about 9:18, not at "approximately 8:30."

31. The patient was taken to the hospital where she was diagnosed as having a "non-Q wave myocardial infarction." Dr. Frederick Wood examined the patient at the hospital and took a medical history. His report contained the following pertinent information:

> ". . . She has had no previous history of coronary events. . . . Cardiac risk factors are negative for hypertension, diabetes mellitus, hypercholesterolemia, previous coronary events.
> REVIEW OF SYSTEMS: CARDIAC: No previous history of angina, myocardial infarction, and not previous chest pressure, tightness or squeezing with exertion. Negative for a history of heart enlargement, history of congestive heart failure, paroxysmal nocturnal dyspnea, orthopnea, dyspnea on exertion or pedal edema. Negative history of abnormal heart rhythm or palpitations. . . ."

The patient made a full recovery and testified at the hearing. She was satisfied with the cosmetic result of the O.S.R. procedure.

32. The First Amended Accusation alleged the following conduct by respondent in his treatment of A. H. constituted gross negligence, incompetence and/or repeated negligent acts:

> A. He inappropriately discharged A.H. to the hotel despite having treated her for cardiac instability and hypertension during the chemical peel.
> B. He failed to respond to the initial page placed by the nurse.
> C. He failed to recognize signs and symptoms of severe cardiac instability at the hotel and improperly delayed the nurse in calling 911.

33. The First Amended Accusation charged respondent with gross negligence, incompetence and repeated negligent acts in his treatment of patient H.B. in July 2000.

Patient H.B. was 72 when she consulted respondent on June 26, 2000 in response to a newspaper advertisement. She was interested in skin rejuvenation, spider vein therapy, and liposuction for her knees. H.B. was 5 feet, 4 ½ inches tall and weighed 135 pounds. She did not list any medical problems on the intake sheet and noted she had a partial face-lift in 1995. H.B. did not immediately decide to have the procedures. Respondent gave her a video. H.B. testified the video she watched was not Exhibit H.

H.B decided to have the OSR procedure and liposuction on both knees. She scheduled the surgery and aftercare by QualCare followed by the retreat at Casa Royal. She understood she was going to the hotel first and then the retreat. She understood respondent required her to go to the hotel for QualCare monitoring but she was not required to go to the retreat. She felt she would be watched and cared for and, if anything happened, she would get attention and be close to a hospital.

34. On about July 17, 2000, H.B. was examined by her primary care physician David W. Schwartz, M.D. Dr. Schwartz ordered lab tests and reviewed the patient's EKG taken on May 1, 2000. The EKG noted Sinus Bradycardia. Dr. Schwartz noted H.B.'s current medical problems included osteoarthritis of knees, menopause, varicose veins for which she had previously had surgery, cataracts, hypothyroidism and a family history of heart disease. The patient's physical examination was normal but examination of the extremities revealed varicose veins, stasis dermatitis[13] and trace edema. Dr. Schwartz noted the patient's EKG taken May 1, 2000 was within normal limits and her chest x-ray was pending. The radiology report dated July 17, 2000 noted an impression of "possible COPD"[14] and "no evidence of active cardiopulmonary disease."

On July 17, 2000, Dr. Schwartz signed the O'Neil Clinic Physical Form and cleared the patient for "Chemexfiliation of Face and Neck and/or Liposurgery."

35. Patient H.B. arrived at respondent's outpatient clinic early in the morning of July 24, 2000. At 7:50 a.m. she signed the patient consent form for aftercare by QualCare. Respondent performed a physical examination and noted that the extremities were without edema or cyanosis. He noted the patient's medical history as indicated on Dr. Schwartz's authorization form. Respondent testified he did not see significant varicose veins, edema or stasis dermatitis when he examined the patient.

The patient was taken to the surgical room at about 9:30. The Sedation Record form noted the patient had heart disease and fainting/dizziness. The first doses of Versed and

[14] Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease. There was no evidence the patient had COPD.

Fentanyl were administered at 9:45 a.m. The patient's blood pressure was approximately 100/70. The chemical peel procedure began at 10:15. At 10:45 the patient had premature ventricular contractions and her blood pressure was 150/90. Respondent administered lidocaine for the PVCs. The operative notes stated that by 11:15 "PVC's better." At 11:45 the patient had more PVCs and again respondent administered lidocaine. Respondent completed the chemical peel and performed the liposuction of the knees. The last dose of Fentanyl was given at 12:15 and the last dose of Versed at 12:30. At 12:45 the face was taped and "supports" were put on. The operative notes showed the patient was monitored until 1:45 p.m.; her blood pressure remained steady at 120-130/70. At 1:30 her level of consciousness was noted as "arousable" and at 1:45 it was "awake." The sedation record indicated the patient was monitored until shortly after 1:45 p.m.

The Doctor's Discharge Summary stated that at 1:30 the patient was "oriented and ambulates," vital signs stable, blood pressure 120/80 and pulse 76. The patient was driven to the Embassy Suites shortly before 2:00 p.m.

36. There was no evidence that any information in respondent's chart, as noted in Factual Findings 33 through 35, was false or inaccurate.

37. Patient H.B. was received into the hotel by QualCare at 2:00 p.m. Sonja Forrest, R.N., was the nurse on duty. At the hearing she testified she did not recall the patient's arrival or putting her into bed. She explained that, unless something went wrong, it does not stay in her mind. Nurse Forrest made the following chart entry after the patient arrived:

> "1400 Elderly female admitted from Dr. Oneil's office vial w/c. very sedated. Max. assist required to bed. Denied need to void. Too sleepy to sip H2O. To sleep immediately. Ice to eyes. VS stable. BP 182/81."

Nurse Forrest testified that had she believed H.B. was not in a condition to be discharged to the QualCare setting she would have informed respondent's office. Respondent testified that QualCare could determine a patient was not ready for hotel care and send them back to respondent's facility for further monitoring. Nurse Forrest felt it was appropriate to discharge H.B. to a setting where a nurse could monitor her vital signs, assist her to the bathroom and assist with medications if the patient requested them.

The nurse's notes show that at 3:00 p.m. the patient was sleeping and difficult to arouse; vital signs recorded at 4:00 p.m. show blood pressure 149/83, pulse 90 and the patient sleeping and easily aroused; and the nurse took the patient's pulse for one minute and noted "No pvc's felt."

By 7:00 p.m. the patient was still "mildly sedated" but she was drinking water and got up to go to the bathroom with maximum assistance[15] of the nurse. Throughout the night the patient slept, was easily aroused, drank liquids and went to the bathroom with maximum assistance of the nurse. Her blood pressure remained stable at 121-132/69-72.

At 9:00 a.m. on July 25, 2000, the patient was awake and alert, blood pressure was 130/74, she was taking liquid nourishment and going to the bathroom with moderate assistance from the nurse. She became restless and anxious in the afternoon and took 1 mg of Ativan. At 8:00 p.m. she again became restless; her blood pressure was 153/86. She took 1 m.g. of Ativan. The patient slept through the night, waking to drink water or go to the bathroom. At 4:30 a.m. she experienced pain and was given Darvocet.

Nurse Forrest testified she did not recall the patient was sleeping a lot. The patient was supposed to stay in bed and be quiet.

38. The patient was awake and alert at 5:00 a.m. on July 26, 2000. At 6:00 a.m. the night nurse removed the tape mask from the patient's face and applied the powder. The patient went back to sleep. At about 7:00 a.m. Nurse Forrest came on duty and relieved the night nurse. At 8:45 she awakened the patient to apply a second coat of powder. The patient was able to get out of bed by herself, and drank water and juice. At about 9:05 a.m. she went to the bathroom by herself. At about 9:10 a.m., upon returning from the bathroom, she complained of dizziness, became unsteady and "lethargic acting" and fell into bed assisted by the nurse. Her lips and eyelids were ashen; she was perspiring, skin clammy, and complained of chills. The nurse noted her blood pressure as "70/?" with pulse of "60-weak." The patient denied chest pain or shortness of breath. Her lungs were clear with a stethoscope. The nurse placed the patient in a position to elevate her feet above her head in order to raise the blood pressure. The nurse did not immediately call 911 because she did not believe the condition was life threatening.

At 9:15 the nurse called respondent and advised him of the patient's condition. Respondent instructed her to continue the position, monitor vital signs and call him again if the patient did not improve. At 9:30 the nurse called respondent and informed him the blood pressure continued to be "60-70/?," the pulse weak in the 70's, color ashen, and the patient now complained of shortness of breath. Respondent and the nurse agreed that 911 should be called. The nurse called 911 at 9:35 p.m. The EMT records show the 911 call was received at 9:38 a.m. and the paramedics arrived at 9:43 a.m. They administered oxygen and took the patient to Rancho Springs Medical Center.

39. Respondent's chart contained the following entry for July 26, 2000:

> "9:30 am Qualcare nurse called. Pt fainted after going to BR and standing. Pt alert and stable in bed. HR 60. BP unobtainable. They [illegible] called back 10 minute later. Pt. Now SOB. HR 60. BP unobtainable. PT in bed with legs elevated, told to call 911 and pt transferred to Rancho Springs ER."

40. On July 26, 2000, patient H.B. was admitted to Rancho Springs Medical Center. The emergency evaluation record noted the patient had difficulty breathing with near syncope but had no chest pain. She denied any history of pulmonary or cardiac problems.

The physical examination revealed no rashes, no numbness or weakness in the extremities and no peripheral edema. The EKG showed a single PVC. The initial assessment was a post-surgical complication of pulmonary embolus.

Anoop K. Maheshwari, M.D., examined the patient in the hospital. His history noted the patient took diuretics once a week for pedal edema. His physical examination of the extremities found "no cyanosis, clubbing or edema. No calf pain tenderness is present." A venous Doppler exam of the lower extremities showed slow venus flow and no evidence of deep vein thrombosis.

H.B. was discharged from the hospital on July 28, 2000, much improved and in stable condition. Dr. Schwartz' discharge diagnosis for H.B. was bilateral pulmonary emboli with respiratory distress.

41. The First Amended Accusation alleged the following conduct by respondent in his treatment of H.B. constituted gross negligence, incompetence and/or repeated negligent acts:

A. He improperly performed lower extremity liposuction on the patient because her preoperative workup showed lower extremity venous insufficiency making her an inappropriate patient for the procedure.

B. He excessively sedated the patient and prematurely discharged her from his facility.

C. He improperly continued the cosmetic surgery on the patient after she suffered two episodes of ventricular arrhythmia during the chemical peel procedure.

D. He failed to timely have the patient transferred to the hospital when she suffered postoperative complications at the hotel.

42. Complainant presented no credible evidence to support the allegation that respondent used general anesthesia on his patients.

43. Complainant called two expert witnesses to testify at the hearing and presented the written report of a physician consultant. Mark Krugman, M.D. and David T. Morwood, M.D. are both board certified plastic surgeons.

Dr. Krugman obtained his medical degree from the University of Maryland Medical School in 1964. He completed a rotating internship at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York City in 1965. At the same hospital he completed a residency in General Surgery in 1966 and a residency in Otolaryngology in 1969. After two years of service in the Air Force, Dr. Krugman completed a plastic surgery residency at U.C. Irvine in 1976. He became board certified in plastic surgery in 1977. Dr. Krugman's curriculum vitae showed that he is very well qualified as a plastic surgeon. His education and professional experience as a plastic surgeon and otolaryngologist are extensive.

Since 1976, Dr. Krugman has maintained a private practice in southern California, specializing in plastic surgery and otolaryngology. He operates a licensed outpatient clinic. He performs laser resurfacing procedures but does not perform phenol peels of the face. Dr. Krugman has no objection to the skin rejuvenation procedure used by respondent. On his resume, Dr. Krugman listed a Chemical Peel Workshop in 1991, an Update on Skin Peeling in 1992, and attendance at conferences on chemical peels in 1992 and 1993.

Dr. Morwood obtained his medical degree from the College of Medicine, University of Vermont, in 1983. He performed his internship and general surgery residency at Beth Israel Medical Center in New York. In 1987, he completed a plastic surgery residency at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York. In 1993, he was board certified in plastic surgery and received a Certification of Added Qualifications in Surgery of the Hand in 1994.

Dr. Morwood maintains a private practice in plastic surgery, specializing in breast, hand, face and reconstructive surgery for children, face lifts, lasers, peels, fractures and injuries. Dr. Morwood has performed some liposuction and has done 20 phenol peels in his career.

A written report by Jeannette Y. Martello, M.D., J.D. was admitted into evidence by stipulation in which the parties agreed it could be received "as if she had testified to these matters under oath." Dr. Martello obtained her medical degree from UCLA School of Medicine in 1988. In 1989 she completed a surgical internship at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. She then attended two years of law school at Boalt Hall. While in law school she worked as an emergency room physician at Kaiser Santa Theresa in San Jose. From 1991 to 1995 she performed a Plastic Surgery Integrated Residency at University of Kentucky Medical Center. In 1996 she completed one year as Plastic Surgery Chief Resident at the same facility. During this time she moonlighted at various emergency rooms throughout Kentucky. She returned to law school and obtained her J.D. degree in 1997. In June 1998 she completed a one-year hand surgery fellowship at Kleinert & Kutz Institute of Hand Surgery in Lousiville, Kentucky, and in January 1999 completed a six-month term as Hand Transplant Fellow at the same institute. Since March 1999 Dr. Martello has engaged in the private practice of Plastic Surgery and Hand Surgery in Pasadena and has served as Medical Consultant for the Medical Board of California. She became board certified in plastic surgery in September 2001. Dr. Martello's resume did not indicate that she performs phenol peels or liposuction.

44. On June 1, 2001 Dr. Krugman issued a written report in which he stated his opinions about respondent's treatment of patients A.H. and H.B. He found three instances in which respondent's actions with regard to H.B. constituted a "departure from the standard of care" and one instance of a "departure from the standard of care" with A.H. On about June 8, 2001 the Board's investigator called Dr. Krugman to clarify whether or not he meant simple or extreme departures. Dr. Krugman told the investigator that all of the departures he found were simple departures.

Dr. Krugman testified that he found repeated "simple departures" from the standard of care but, after speaking with the board's investigator and the Deputy Attorney General, he believed that a number of simple departures aggregate to an "extreme departure" from the standard. Dr. Krugman testified that his opinions, including his conclusion of an extreme departure, were influenced by the fact respondent had been disciplined in the past and was on probation. He believed that while on probation respondent should have been on his best behavior.

45. With regard to patient A. H., it was Dr. Krugman's opinion that respondent departed from the standard of care when he failed to call 911 in a timely manner. Dr. Krugman assumed the patient had been complaining of chest pain for 30 to 60 minutes, with respondent present or aware of the complaint, and there was a 50-minute delay before the 911 call. The evidence did not establish those facts.

Dr. Krugman testified that respondent's delay in calling 911 was the only fault he found in the treatment of patient A.H. He would change his opinion if the 911 call was made while respondent was en route to the hotel and not told of the chest pain until he arrived. Knowledge of the chest pain complaint was the crucial issue and respondent could not be faulted if he was not aware.

46. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that respondent committed extreme departures from the standard of care in his treatment of patient A.H. The standard of care requires a physician to be familiar with possible side effects and potential complications from a treatment. Any side effects or complications must be treated appropriately in a timely manner to prevent further sequela and complication.

Dr. Morwood believed the patient showed cardiac instability in the form of PVCs during the facial peel and she continued to show cardiac instability after the procedure with ongoing PVCs and high blood pressure. The patient required a setting that had the proper monitoring equipment for blood pressure, oxygen saturation and cardiac condition. He felt respondent discharged her in spite of the continuing signs of cardiac instability. After discharge, the QualCare nurse notified respondent of continuing progressive cardiac instability, but he did not see the patient for several hours. Dr. Morwood believed respondent ignored the warning signs and did not take timely action to have the patient transferred to the hospital or have her evaluated by an intensive monitoring team. Dr. Morwood's opinion was based on his belief the patient had a history of cardiac problems; had experienced shortness of breath at the hotel; the nurse could not obtain a blood pressure; and, after being informed of unstable vital signs at 5:30 p.m., respondent delayed calling 911 for several hours. The evidence established none of these facts.

47. On cross-examination, Dr. Morwood admitted it was not unusual for a patient to experience high blood pressure during and after a phenol peel. He also acknowledged the medical records do not show the patient had any PVCs after the procedure.

Dr. Morwood acknowledged that PVCs are common during a phenol peel and respondent appropriately treated patient A.H.'s episode during the procedure and she responded well. However, he believed that her cardiac instability was not adequately addressed before she was discharged to the hotel where she remained unstable and respondent delayed addressing her condition. It was his opinion that, even without chest pain, respondent should have transferred A.H. to the hospital immediately.

Dr. Morwood based his opinion on his mistaken belief that A.H had postoperative PVCs, had a history of cardiac problems, and was experiencing shortness of breath. The evidence did not establish these facts.

48. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that patient H.B. was not a good candidate for liposuction of the knees because she was in her early seventies with a history of swelling in her legs, varicose vein surgery, hypothyroid and taking female hormones, which made her predisposed to getting blood clots in the deep veins of her legs. Dr. Krugman admitted that hormone replacement and hypothyroidism were minor risk factors, but were "additive" in this situation. He believed that Dr. Schwartz' findings of edema and stasis dermatitis, when added to the patient's age and sedentary position after surgery, created risk factors. He explained that edema and stasis dermatitis in a patient over 70 meant the patient's venous system was not good.

Dr. Krugman believed that coupling the liposuction with the facial peel created competing interests; the peel procedure required the patient to be sedentary but the knee liposuction required the patient to ambulate to avoid an embolism. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that performing knee liposuction on H.B. was a simple departure from the standard of care because of her predisposing risk factors.

49. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that respondent showed poor judgment and departed from the standard of care in going forward with the knee liposuction after patient H.B. experienced two episodes of PVCs during the facial peel. With her risk factors described in Factual Finding 48, the PVC's made her condition more precarious. Dr. Krugman explained that PVCs are a normal occurrence during facial peels but the patient was an "old lady" without a good cardiovascular system.

Dr. Krugman concluded respondent's conduct represented an extreme departure from the standard of care because of "the multiplicity of cognitive decisions he made that led to the problems with the patient."

50. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that patient H.B. suffered post-surgical complications because respondent performed liposuction on diseased legs. He explained that the standard of care requires the physician to be familiar with the criteria that would designate patients who are appropriate or inappropriate for a particular procedure. Dr. Morwood believed H.B. presented with a history and preoperative physical exam that made her inappropriate for lower extremity liposuction. The patient's varicose veins, stasis dermatitis, age and hormone replacement therapy placed her at high risk for pulmonary embolism. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that it was an extreme departure from the standard of care to perform liposuction on H.B.'s knees because of her high risk history. He believed a clot from the patient's leg traveled to her lungs when she got up after being sedentary.

On cross-examination, Dr. Morwood acknowledged that varicose veins do not necessarily indicate deep vein insufficiency and edema has many causes.

51. It was Dr. Morwood's opinion that combining the facial peel and knee liposuction procedures did not of itself deviate from the standard of care. The standard of care required the patient be mobilized immediately after a surgical procedure on her legs. Inactivity increased the chance for venous stasis[16] and thrombus[17] in the legs. However, because the patient required rest for the facial procedure, the standard of care required that something be used on her legs while in bed to minimize the chance of venous thrombosis. Risk can be minimized by short walks, foot pumps, heparin therapy or a sequential compression device.[18]

52. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that when a patient is difficult to arouse it is a departure from the standard of care to discharge the patient from an ambulatory facility. He explained that a patient can remain in an outpatient surgical clinic for up to 23 hours. If a sedated patient is difficult to arouse the facility should have equipment such as EKG, oxygen, pulse oximeter, intravenous equipment and defibulator. A patient will still be under some sedation when discharged, but not to the point where she cannot be aroused or get out of bed. A patient who cannot take fluid by mouth and is too sedated to get out of bed should not be discharged home. A patient who remains in that condition should be transferred to a hospital. Transfer of such a patient to a hotel room is a departure from the standard of care.

On cross-examination Dr. Krugman agreed that, based on respondent's chart documentation of patient H.B.'s condition at the time of discharge, she looked appropriate for discharge. However, he felt her heavily sedated condition when she arrived at the hotel required explanation. In his experience, elderly patients may not continue to improve after sedation. They have ups and downs after sedation and may initially look fine but can quickly deteriorate. There is no specific post procedure observation time required before discharge; it depends on the individual patient.

It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that the discharge of patient H.B. from respondent's clinic was a simple departure from the standard of care because she was over-sedated when she arrived at the hotel. She should have been retained at the clinic with monitoring or transferred to a hospital. Dr. Krugman explained that the issue here is not the amount of sedation during surgery, but the level of sedation at discharge. In his written report of June 1, 2001, Dr. Krugman did not opine that respondent's discharge of H.B. was a departure from the standard of care.

18 Complainant did not allege that respondent failed to use appropriate anti-thrombosis therapy.

53. In his written report issued July 25, 2001, Dr. Morwood did not opine that respondent inappropriately discharged patient H.B. from his clinic before she was ready to leave. At the hearing he testified that if H.B. was very sedated when she arrived at the hotel and required maximum assistance to get into bed, it was below the standard of care to discharge her from the clinic. He believed it is extremely uncommon to have the patient alert and able to ambulate, but 15 minutes later appear as described by the QualCare nurse.

Dr. Morwood explained that the standard of care required the patient to be monitored after surgery for at least an hour before discharge from the outpatient clinic. Before discharge, the patient should be able to respond to questions, breath clearly, take a deep breath on command, urinate, and have stable vital signs. After reviewing H.B.'s chart and her vital signs before discharge, Dr. Morwood did not see any evidence of an inappropriate discharge.

54. It was Dr. Krugman's opinion that it was a simple departure from the standard of care for respondent to delay calling 911 at 9:00 a.m. on July 26, 2000, because H.B. was "shocky" and her blood pressure was low. Dr. Krugman's June 1, 2001 written report indicated that he erroneously believed the nurse called respondent at 9:00 a.m. and again at 9:15. The evidence is otherwise (Factual Finding 38).

Dr. Morwood offered no opinion about the events of July 26, 2000.

55. Dr. Morwood reviewed all of the available medical records in this case. Based on the records, he could not determine that respondent used Versed in an amount that would induce the patient to a level of general anesthesia.

56. Dr. Morwood offered his opinion that "hotel observation" aftercare such as that provided by QualCare to cosmetic procedure patients is a common practice in California. However, it is his understanding that the nurses have formal monitoring equipment available.

57. Dr. Morwood offered his opinion that respondent's video advertisement and his brochures seem to be similar to many other infomercials and physician's advertisements in the popular media in California.

58. Complainant presented no evidence in the form of expert testimony to support the charge that respondent was incompetent in his care, treatment or management of the patients A.H. and H.B.

59. Respondent called two expert witnesses to testify at the hearing. Joseph C. Avakoff, M.D. is a board certified surgeon and plastic surgeon. Robert A. Yoho, M.D. is board certified in emergency medicine, dermatologic cosmetic surgery and laser surgery.

Dr. Avakoff obtained his medical degree from the University of California School of Medicine in San Francisco in 1961. After his rotating internship, he completed a residency in General Surgery at Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco in 1966 and later a residency in plastic surgery at University of Texas School of Medicine. In 1985 Dr. Avakoff obtained a J.D. degree from Santa Clara University School of Law and was admitted to the California State Bar in 1987. Dr. Avakoff spent 22 years in the private practice of medicine in Santa Clara County. He retired in 1994. Between 1987 and 1994 Dr. Avakoff performed approximately 100 liposuction procedures but never aspirated more than 1500 cc. He never performed phenol facial peels. Since retirement he has been doing medi-legal consultations for the Medical Board and for the Department of Corporations.

Dr. Yoho received his medical degree from Case Western Reserve University Medical School in 1981. He completed a one-year rotating internship at the University of Cincinnati and a two-year Dermatology Residency at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center in New Hampshire. In 1985 he completed emergency Medicine Residency Training at LAC/USC Medical Center in Los Angeles and Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena.

From 1984 to 1987 Dr. Yoho was employed by the Huntington Memorial Hospital Emergency Medical Group. He then maintained a general medical practice in Pasadena until 1994. From 1992 to the present he has specialized in cosmetic surgery. His practice includes liposuction, hair transplantation, laser resurfacing, face lifts, laser blepharoplasty, breast implantation, vein treatments and fat transplantation. Dr. Yoho has published several articles related to cosmetic surgery procedures in peer reviewed journals.

60. Dr. Avakoff testified that a patient is ready for discharge from an outpatient facility when she can get out of bed and walk, but the patient will not be as ambulatory as someone who has not gone through the procedure. To discharge after outpatient cosmetic surgery, the standard of practice required the vital signs be stable and the patient be easily arousable to the extent she is able to wake up though she may still be sleepy, converse a bit, get out of bed and go to the bathroom. If the patient experienced PVCs or hypertension during the procedure, she must be monitored until she becomes stable. When the patient is stable, she can be released to home where she would not be monitored.

Dr. Yoho explained the standard of practice regarding discharge of a patient is to observe for one to two hours to see that the vital signs are stable. A certain level of alertness is expected; the patient need not be as alert as before the sedation, but should know where she is, be able to ambulate, urinate and take fluids.

Dr. Yoho testified that phenol peel patients are commonly discharged to home. However, if the patient does not do exactly the right things for the face, scarring can result. It meets the highest standard of care to provide a place where the patient is assisted for a week. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that the monitoring provided by QualCare was appropriate and the standard of care did not require the patients to be monitored as if in an acute care setting with equipment such as pulse oximeters. He noted that even when a patient is sent to a nursing home for aftercare, there is only one nurse to attend 20 or 30 patients.

61. Dr. Yoho explained that PVCs are common during a phenol peel because the chemical substance irritates the heart and causes arrhythmia. Although the cardiac rhythm imitates that of a heart attack, PVCs that occur during a phenol peel do not have the same "malignant quality" in which the heart is starved for blood and oxygen. The PVCs are taken seriously but sudden death is not a problem. Appropriate treatment is to wait a few minutes for the arrhythmia to subside or to administer Lidocaine. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent properly managed A.H.'s PVC episode.

Dr. Avakoff reviewed the medical records of patient A.H. It was his opinion that she did not suffer cardiac instability after the facial peel procedure. He explained that PVCs are common during a phenol peel and do not constitute "cardiac instability." Nor did the increased blood pressure necessarily indicate cardiac instability because it can result from pain during the phenol peel. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent properly treated the patient's PVCs during the procedure with Lidocaine and the operative notes show the patient returned to normal sinus rhythm.

62. Dr. Yoho explained that elevated blood pressure is typical during a phenol peel because the peel is painful and pain produces hypertension. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's use of Anapsine on patient A.H. was an "elegant" way to treat the hypertension caused by pain and the nausea that can result from the narcotic used for sedation. If too much hypertension medicine is used during the peel, the blood pressure can become too low after the procedure. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's treatment of A.H.'s high blood pressure was appropriate.

63. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that A.H.'s vital signs were stable during the hour and one-half she was monitored after the procedure and before discharge. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent's discharge of A.H. did not depart from the standard of care. Her vital signs were stable and she was released to monitoring by QualCare.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's chart entries show that patient A.H. was observed for one and one-half hours and her vital signs were entirely stable before discharge. Based on the records she was appropriate for discharge.

64. Dr. Yoho noted that the charts for patients A.H. and H.B. showed blood pressures that were not dangerous. They were blood pressures that people carry for many years at a time.

65. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent did not depart from the standard of care in his attention to patient A.H. after discharge. He explained that if respondent was told the patient had high blood pressure, was restless, anxious and hyperventilating,[19] but with no chest pain, there could be a number of causes for the symptoms and the situation did not require an immediate 911 call. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent's instruction to monitor the patient was appropriate. Once the patient complained of chest pain, it was mandatory to call 911. If respondent learned of the chest pain before reaching the hotel and did not order a call to 911, it would be a simple departure from the standard of care because chest pain can be caused by something other than a heart attack.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent did not act inappropriately in the transfer of patient A.H. to the hospital. He explained if the nurse advised respondent the patient had high blood pressure, was restless, anxious and hyperventilating, this was a typical post-phenol peel set of symptoms in a patient who continued to feel some pain and claustrophobia in the tape mask. It would have been significant if respondent had been advised of chest pain.

66. Dr. Avakoff reviewed the medical records of patient H.B. and concluded there was no evidence of any significant venous insufficiency of the legs. He testified that varicose veins indicate venous insufficiency only in the area of the varicose vein. He believed that the patient had significant varicose vein surgery in the past and had residual varicose veins and stasis dermatitis, which was common and did not indicate deep venous insufficiency. Dr. Avakoff noted that none of the physicians who examined H.B. at the hospital noted any profound venous insufficiency.

Dr. Avakoff considered the hormone replacement therapy to be an added but very minor risk factor and not a contraindication for liposuction. He did not think hypothyroidism caused increased thrombolic phenomenon.

It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that H.B. was an appropriate candidate for the planned knee liposuction because the risk factors were quite minor.

67. Dr. Yoho explained that embolism is a risk for anyone who undergoes surgery. Embolism after hospital surgery is very common, but is quite rare after outpatient procedures. In the 6,000 cases that Dr. Yolo has performed, four patients experienced deep vein thrombosis and none had pulmonary embolism. He discussed the risk factors for pulmonary embolism.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that superficial venous disease and hypothyroidism are not risk factors. The risk factors are general anesthesia for more than half an hour; birth control pills but not estrogen replacement; congestive heart failure; broken extremities; prior history of pulmonary thrombosis/embolism; prior history of deep venous thrombosis; hospital bed rest where the patient does not get up; and cancer.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that varicose veins are not a risk factor and stasis dermatitis can be purely the result of varicose veins. Edema is not diagnostic for deep vein thrombosis. Although patient H.B. was sedentary while in the hotel, she was getting up to go to the bathroom so she was not completely at bed rest.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that patient H.B. had none of the well known risks for embolism. Any patient over 65 is at increased risk for many things, but he considered H.B. to be a "class 2 risk" because she was healthy on medications. He explained that a class 3 risk is a patient with an active medical problem that is not controlled. H.B.'s medical conditions were controlled with medication so she was an appropriate candidate for the procedures.

68. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent properly addressed the two episodes of PVCs during H.B.'s phenol peel and proceeding with the knee liposuction was not a departure from the standard of care because the small amount of aspirate taken indicated it was a minor liposuction procedure.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent did not violate the standard of care by proceeding with the knee liposuction after H.B. experienced PVCs. For the reasons stated in Factual Finding 66, the PVCs and the manner respondent treated them did not contraindicate the knee liposuction. He explained that the cardiac irritation effects of the phenol peel are gone in 15 minutes to half an hour after the peel is finished. The amount of aspirate in the knee liposuction indicated a minor procedure that took about ten minutes.

69. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that H.B.'s sedation and operative record showed she was appropriate for discharge at 1:45 p.m. She had been monitored for an hour, her vital signs were stable and she was awake. He offered an explanation for the changed condition of the patient at the hotel. He believed the patient could have been apprehensive at the facility, awake and alert but on reaching the hotel and knowing the procedure is over, "just conks out" to rest.

Dr. Avakoff acknowledged that it would be a violation of the standard of care if respondent discharged the patient when she was difficult to arouse and required maximum assistance. The patient's condition when she left the facility is the issue. The observations recorded in respondent's chart indicated she was appropriate for discharge even to home. It was quite common to use a wheelchair to discharge a patient with knee liposuction.

It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that patient H.B. was appropriately discharged from respondent's facility. She was monitored for an hour after the procedure with vital signs taken every 15 minutes. The patient record showed that her vital signs were stable. Use of a wheelchair for a post procedure patient is routine.

Dr. Yoho noted that the patient's level of consciousness on arrival at the hotel was described as "very sedated." He explained that the narcotics used during the procedures cover the pain and are stressful and fatiguing for the patient. After surgery it is not unusual for the patient to have a waxing and waning level of consciousness.

70. It was Dr. Avakoff's opinion that respondent did not unreasonably delay calling 911 for patient H.B. When respondent was notified of the patient's condition at 9:15 it was reasonable to have the patient watched carefully for a short time. Her symptoms, including blood pressure and respiration, were consistent with a fainting episode and the standard of care did not require an emergency call to 911 when a patient initially appears "woozy." When the patient did not improve and then developed shortness of breath, it was time to call 911.

Dr. Yoho reviewed the sequence of events for patient H:B. on the morning of July 26, 2000. It was his opinion that respondent's response to the patient's condition as relayed to him at 9:15 a.m. was appropriate. Dr. Yoho explained the "medical reasoning" process commonly used by physicians. The physician first thinks of common causes for the patient's symptoms and later considers the rarer causes. The physician could first think that H.B.'s condition was a vaso-vagal episode – a faint brought on by a bowel movement or pain – in which case the patient would recover after a few minutes. Dr. Yoho explained that a vaso-vagal episode typically includes low heart rate and blood pressure goes down. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that an experienced physician would first consider a vaso-vagal episode, especially with a patient who had just risen from bed and gone to the bathroom, and an immediate call to 911 was not required. Observation for a few minutes and rechecking vitals signs was an imminently reasonable way to handle the situation. It was Dr. Yoho's opinion that respondent's decision to closely monitor the patient and call him again if she did not improve was within the standard of care. Respondent properly ordered the 911 call when the nurse called him at 9:30 a.m. to say the patient had not improved and had begun to complain of shortness of breath.

71. Based on his review of the medical records, Dr. Yoho determined that respondent used monitored anesthesia, which he described as twilight sleep or moderate sedation. It was not general anesthesia. A.H. and H.B. did not need to be ventilated for respiration, nor did they require cardiac support. They were both arousable from the sedation.

72. The testimony of each of the expert witnesses was weighed and evaluated, taking into consideration their qualifications and experience, attitude and demeanor while testifying, the quality of their answers, and the accuracy and reliability of the information on which they based their opinions. Each was qualified to testify and offer an opinion; none had any apparent bias.

Dr. Martello issued a "Memorandum" to the Board's investigator on February 22, 2001. The statement and opinions in her written report are given little weight against the testimony of the expert witnesses who appeared and testified under oath. Dr. Martello's pervasive use of exclamation marks in her comments and opinions raised a concern about her detachment and objectivity. Her opinions were based on facts not established by the evidence at hearing. Dr. Martello's comments and opinions were not deemed conclusive because her final recommendation was to send the A.H. and H.B. cases to an expert plastic surgery reviewer.

Dr. Krugman's written report indicated he assumed all of the allegations were true in the 1996 Accusation and 1998 Supplemental Accusation. By his testimony and statements in his written report, it was clear Dr. Krugman did not understand that respondent stipulated to only a portion of the allegations and charges in the prior disciplinary action. His interpretation of the facts and violations established by the stipulated decision and order was not accurate. Dr. Krugman also considered information in Dr. Martello's report that was either not admissible or not established by the evidence.

Dr. Krugman did not apply an objective standard. He candidly admitted that, in evaluating respondent's conduct as an "extreme departure from the standard of care," he was influenced by the prior discipline imposed on respondent. This was inappropriate for two reasons: Dr. Krugman's interpretation of the nature and effect of the prior discipline was not accurate and he was unduly influenced by an irrelevant factor. The prior discipline should not be a factor in his professional opinion. The conduct at issue must be evaluated of itself in the context of the situation as it occurred. The conduct is either below an existing standard of care as gross or simple negligence or it is not. Respondent's prior actions and the existence of prior discipline are not relevant to the measure. The prior discipline is relevant only for the purpose of determining the appropriate discipline, if any, to impose in the pending case. Dr. Krugman also erroneously believed that several acts of simple negligence, or repeated negligent acts, equate to an extreme departure from the standard of care.

In his written report, Dr. Morwood stated he could not determine respondent used general anesthesia. At the hearing, based on the same documentation he used for his written report, he inexplicably changed his mind and opined that patient H.B. was under general anesthesia. This weakens the reliability of his testimony.

The opinions of Dr. Krugman and Dr. Morwood regarding respondent's treatment of A.H. were not consistent. Dr. Krugman faulted respondent only for a delay in calling 911 and found this to be a simple departure from the standard of care. Dr. Krugman did not opine that A.H. was inappropriately discharged from respondent's facility. Dr. Morwood found the patient's discharge and the purported delay in calling 911 to constitute extreme departures from the standard of care. Both Dr. Krugman and Dr. Morwood based their opinions on assumed crucial facts that were not established by the evidence.

Their opinions regarding respondent's treatment of H.B. were not consistent. Dr. Krugman found it a simple departure to combine the knee liposuction and the facial peel. Dr. Morwood found that combining the procedures did not of itself depart from the standard of care, but he faulted respondent for not taking sufficient steps to minimize the chance of venous thrombosis, even though this was not alleged as a basis for discipline. Dr. Krugman found respondent's discharge of patient H.B. from his outpatient clinic to be a simple departure from the standard of care. In his written report, Dr. Morwood did not criticize the discharge; on direct examination he found it to be an extreme departure from the standard of care; but on cross-examination, after reviewing H.B.'s chart and her vital signs before discharge, testified that he did not see evidence of an inappropriate discharge.

It is complainant's burden to present evidence that is clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty. That standard is not met when the expert witnesses rely on facts not proven and matters not relevant; nor is it met if complainant's own experts reach different conclusions on most of the major charges after reviewing the same material.

The testimony of Dr. Yoho was more persuasive and outweighed the inconsistent opinions presented by complainant. He had substantial experience as both cosmetic surgeon and a physician handling emergency situations; his answers were responsive, clear, candid, logical and comprehensible. His opinions and explanations seemed to be formulated in the context of the real world of practice. The opinions and testimony of Dr. Avakoff and Dr. Yoho were complementary and not inconsistent.

73. With regard to the charges relating to patient A.H. as set forth in Factual Finding 32, the evidence was not clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent inappropriately discharged the patient from his facility to the QualCare aftercare, failed to recognize the sign and symptoms of severe cardiac instability or improperly delayed the nurse in calling 911.

Complainant did not present sufficient evidence to establish that respondent's delay of almost two hours in responding to the nurse's page constituted negligence or an extreme departure from the standard of care. The only evidence on the issue was respondent's testimony that he was performing a procedure on a patient at the time of the page, he was not wearing the pager and did not recall how he was informed of the nurse's call or the time he first returned the call. He was still in the middle of a procedure when he spoke to the QualCare nurse. No expert testimony was presented to establish the response the standard of care required of a physician in such a situation.

The evidence was not clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent was incompetent, grossly negligent or repeatedly negligent in his treatment of patient A.H.

74. With regard to the charges relating to patient H.B. as set forth in Factual Finding 41, the evidence was not clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent performed knee liposuction on an inappropriate patient, excessively sedated H.B., improperly continued the surgery after PVC episodes, or failed to timely call 911 on July 26, 2000.

The evidence raised a question about whether H.B. was discharged from respondent's facility before she was ready. Complainant relied on the nurse's note describing the patient when she arrived at the hotel. However, the nurse did not recall the patient's arrival or that there was a problem with her condition. She did not contact respondent's office to advise that the patient was not ready for the aftercare setting, which she had the authority to do. Neither party contradicted the accuracy of respondent's chart notes documenting the patient's postoperative condition. The nurses in respondent's outpatient clinic who monitored the patient after the procedures were the most relevant witnesses to the patient's actual condition at discharge; however, the Board's investigators did not interview them nor did complainant present them as witnesses at the hearing. The testimony of complainant's experts established that, based on respondent's chart, the patient seemed appropriate for discharge but her arrival condition as described by the QualCare notes required some explanation. It is complainant's burden to establish the necessary facts on which to base an expert opinion; a questionable circumstance is not enough to establish unprofessional conduct by incompetence, gross negligence or negligence.

The evidence was not clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty to establish respondent was incompetent, grossly negligent or repeatedly negligent in his treatment of patient H.B.

75. Except as set forth in the Factual Findings above, the factual allegations of the First Amended Accusation were not established by evidence that was clear and convincing to a reasonable certainty and are deemed surplusage. Expert opinions elicited at the hearing on matters not alleged in the First Amended Accusation are not relevant and cannot support a finding of unprofessional conduct.

76. Complainant requested costs of investigation and prosecution of the case pursuant to section 125.3. Deputy Attorney Douglas MacCartee presented a written declaration that the Attorney General's charges were $19,740.00. Felix S. Rodriguez, Supervising Investigator for the Medical Board, presented a written declaration that the costs of investigation were $7,363.53 and the costs of expert reviewer services were $2,285.[20] Respondent did not object to the amount of attorney fees charged. He did object to the hourly rate charged by the investigators as unreasonable and noted the investigator's hourly rate of approximately $110 was higher than the $100 hourly rate of the medical experts. The Deputy Attorney General billed at only $112 per hour.

Complainant's proof of costs did not constitute prima facie evidence of the reasonable costs within the meaning of section 125.3(c) because the declarations are not "a certified copy of the actual costs" nor do they purport to give an estimate because actual costs are not available.

Pursuant to the Legal Conclusions below, complainant did not establish that respondent violated the Medical Practice Act. There is no cause to award costs pursuant to section 125.3.

77. Zeal to revoke respondent's probation and thereby his license caused a loss of focus on the real issue in this case – whether respondent takes adequate steps to assure patients are in a condition to be discharged from his outpatient facility to home or some other non-acute setting. The quality of the evidence was not sufficient to support any of the numerous charges, at least two of which were frivolous. Nevertheless, the concern for respondent's discharge practices remains viable. Respondent continues subject to the Division's scrutiny while on probation and any ongoing concerns about his practice can be addressed by the probationary terms regarding annual pre-approved educational programs, monitoring of his practice and interviews with the Division.

LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

1. Business and Professions Code section 2234 provides, in pertinent part, that the Board shall take action against any licensee who is charged with unprofessional conduct. Unprofessional conduct is that which breaches the rules or ethical code of the medical profession and which demonstrates an unfitness to practice medicine. Shea v. Board of Medical Examiners, (1978) 81 Cal.App.3d 654.

The standard of proof in an administrative hearing to revoke or suspend a doctor's license is clear and convincing proof to a reasonable certainty and not a mere preponderance of the evidence. Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal.App.3d 853. The burden rests with complainant to offer proof that is clear, explicit and unequivocal — so clear as to leave no substantial doubt and sufficiently strong to command the unhesitating assent of every reasonable mind. In re Marriage of Weaver (1990) 224 Cal.App.3d 478; In re Michael G. (1998) 63 Cal.App.4th 700. The standard is not met if the totality of the evidence serves only to raise concern, conjecture or speculation. The complainant bears the burden of presenting sufficient evidence to, first, establish the relevant standard of care and, second, prove respondent's conduct that fell below that standard. When the complainant fails to meet this initial burden, the respondent need not present evidence to refute the unproven charges.

An error in the exercise of professional medical judgment or an unsuccessful result of treatment does not necessarily constitute negligence. Negligence may be found only if the error in judgment or lack of success is due to a failure to perform any of the duties required of reputable members of the profession practicing in similar circumstances. Norden v. Hartman (1955) 134 Cal.App.2d 333, 337; Black v. Caruso (1960) 187 Cal.App.2d 195. "Repeated negligent acts" within the meaning of section 2234(c) consists of two or more negligent acts. See, Zabetian v. Medical Board of California (2000) 80 Cal.App.4th 462. "Gross negligence" is a professional error or omission that is egregious. It is defined as the want of even scant care, or an extreme deviation from the standard of practice in the medical community. Gore v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 110 Cal.App.3d 184; Franz v. Board of MedicalQuality Assurance(1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124.

"Incompetence" is defined as lack of knowledge or skills in discharging professional obligations. It is distinguished from negligence in that one may be competent or capable of performing a given duty, but negligent in performing that duty. A single act of negligence is not equivalent to incompetence. While a single negligent act under certain circumstances may reveal a general lack of ability to perform licensed duties, thereby supporting a finding of incompetence, a single honest failing in performing those duties, without more, does not constitute incompetence justifying statutory sanctions. See, Kearl v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1986) 189 Cal.App.3d 1040.

3. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation pursuant to sections 2227 and 2234, subdivision (c), for unprofessional conduct consisting of repeated negligent acts.

Factual Findings 1 through 9 and 23 through 75 inclusive, and Legal Conclusion 1 support this conclusion.

4. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation pursuant to sections 2227 and 2234, subdivision (d), for unprofessional conduct consisting of incompetence.

Factual Findings 1 through 9 and 23 through 75 inclusive, and Legal Conclusion 1 support this conclusion.

5. Section 2271 provides that any advertising in violation of Section 17500 constitutes unprofessional conduct. Section 17500 defines false advertising and provides in pertinent part:

> "It is unlawful for any person . . . with intent . . . to perform services, professional or otherwise, . . . or to induce the public to enter into any obligation relating thereto, to make or disseminate or cause to be made or disseminated before the public in this state . . . any statement, concerning . . . those services . . . or concerning any circumstance or matter of fact connected with the proposed performance . . . which is untrue or misleading, and which is known, or which by the exercise of reasonable care should be known, to be untrue or misleading. . . . Any violation of . . . this section is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment in the county jail and not exceeding six months, or by a fine not exceeding . . . ($2,500) or by both that imprisonment and fine."

Respondent's statement that he spent his residency at U.C. Davis was misleading about the extent of his post-graduate education, but the evidence did not establish whether it resulted from intent to mislead or from respondent's ignorance of the difference between an internship and a residency. In any event, it was not a statement concerning the O.S.R procedure or the type of statement that would induce a patient to undergo the advertised services. The evidence indicated respondent's patients gave much thought and consideration to having the procedure and were persuaded by his reputation in the community, his experience with the procedure and results they observed. Respondent's statement was not "false advertising" within section 17500 and certainly does not warrant the criminal sanctions of that section.

Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation pursuant to section 2271.

Factual Findings 1 through 5 and 17 through 21 inclusive, and Legal Conclusion 1 support this conclusion.

6. The Third Cause for Discipline alleged false and misleading advertising under section 651, which sets forth truth in advertising requirements for health care professionals. The section contains subsections (a) through (k), each containing its own subparagraphs. The First Amended Accusation referenced subsections (a), (b), (e), (f) and (g). Those subsections contain a total of 11 types of statements considered false or misleading under the statute. Complainant did not specify in the charging allegations the particular subsection(s) that applied to each alleged misleading statement contained in paragraph 18 of the First Amended Accusation. It is not the role of the administrative law judge to guess complainant's intent or to define the charges after the hearing; this would not allow respondent opportunity to address or defend the specific charges. The only guidance came from complainant's counsel in his closing argument when he referred to subsections (b)(2), (b)(5) and (b)(8) of section 651. Those subsections define false or misleading advertising as follows:

> "(b) A false . . . misleading, or deceptive statement, claim or image includes a statement or claim that does any of the following:
> (2) Is likely to mislead or deceive because of a failure to disclose material facts.
> (3) . . . (4) . . .
> (5) Contains other representations or implications that in reasonable probability will cause an ordinarily prudent person to misunderstand or be deceived.
> (6) . . . (7) . . .

(8) Includes any statement, endorsement, or testimonial that is likely to mislead or deceive because of a failure to disclose material facts."

The totality of the evidence did not establish that respondent's statement about his residency was misleading or deceptive under those subsections. There was no indication that, had respondent stated he did a one year rotating internship rather than a residency, ordinarily prudent patients would have been dissuaded from having the OSR treatment.

Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation for violation of section 651.

Factual Findings 1 through 5 and 17 through 21 inclusive, and Legal Conclusions 1 and 5 support this conclusion.

7. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation for unprofessional conduct within the meaning of Health and Safety Code section 1248.65 for operation of an "outpatient setting" in violation of Health and Safety Code section 1248.1.

Factual Findings 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 42 and 55, and Legal Conclusion 1 support this conclusion.

8. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's license or revoke probation for unprofessional conduct pursuant to section 2234 or the terms of probation, consisting of violation of laws related to the practice of medicine, to wit, the City of Temecula zoning laws.

Factual Findings 1, 2, 5 through 15 inclusive, and Legal Conclusion 1 support this conclusion.

9. Except as set forth in the Factual Findings and Legal Conclusions of this Proposed Decision, the allegations and charges of the First Amended Accusation were not proven and are deemed surplusage.

Factual Findings 1 through 75 inclusive, and Legal Conclusions 1 through 9 inclusive support this conclusion.

10. Cause was not established to award costs to complainant pursuant to section 123.5.

Factual Findings 1 through 76 inclusive and Legal Conclusions 1 through 9 inclusive support this conclusion.

ORDER

The Accusation and First Amended Accusation are dismissed.

Respondent's medical record from the PACE evaluation contained in pages AGO 591 through 599 inclusive in Exhibit 23 shall be sealed and not available for public view; however, those pages shall be available for review by the Medical Board, its authorized designees and by any reviewing court. It shall be available to a member of the public upon court order.

PUBLIC REPRIMAND

In July 2000, you performed cosmetic surgery on two female patients. Pursuant to the authority contained in Business and Professions Code sections 495 and 2227, the Division of Medical Quality of the Medical Board of California issues this Public Reprimand with the expectation that you have addressed the causes for the violation and that the conduct underlying the violation will not be repeated.

DISCIPLINARY ORDER

In consideration of the foregoing admissions and stipulations, the parties agree that the Division may, without further notice or formal proceeding, issue and enter the following Disciplinary Order:

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Physician's and Surgeon's Certificate No. A 36888 issued to Respondent KELLY J. O'NEIL, M.D. (Respondent) is revoked. However, the revocation is stayed and Respondent is placed on probation for 35 months on the following terms and conditions.

1. EDUCATION COURSE Within 60 calendar days of the effective date of this Decision, and on an annual basis thereafter, respondent shall submit to the Division or its designee for its prior approval educational program(s) or course(s) which shall not be less than 40 hours per year, for each year of probation. The educational program(s) or course(s) shall be aimed at correcting any areas of deficient practice or knowledge and shall include Category I certified, limited to classroom, conference or seminar settings. Respondent may, however, meet this educational requirement by successfully completing course work that includes self-study videos, audios or on-line courses. The self-study courses shall not exceed 30 hours toward the satisfaction of the requirements set forth in this paragraph. The educational program(s) or course(s) shall be at respondent's expense and shall be in addition to the Continuing Medical Education (CME) requirements for renewal of licensure. Following the completion of each course, the Division or its designee may administer an examination to test respondent's knowledge of the course. Respondent shall provide proof of attendance for 65 hours of continuing medical education of which 40 hours were in satisfaction of this condition.

2. MEDICAL RECORD KEEPING COURSE Within 60 calendar days of the effective date of this decision, respondent shall enroll in a course in medical record keeping, at respondent's expense, approved in advance by the Division or its designee. Failure to successfully complete the course during the first 6 months of probation is a violation of probation.

A medical record keeping course taken after the acts that gave rise to the charges in the Accusation, but prior to the effective date of the Decision may, in the sole discretion of the Division or its designee, be accepted towards the fulfillment of this condition if the course would have been approved by the Division or its designee had the course been taken after the effective date of this Decision.

Respondent shall submit a certification of successful completion to the Division or its designee not later than 15 calendar days after successfully completing the course, or not later than 15 calendar days after the effective date of the Decision, whichever is later.

3. CLINICAL TRAINING PROGRAM Within 60 calendar days of the effective date of this Decision, respondent shall enroll in a clinical training or educational program equivalent to the Physician Assessment and Clinical Education Program (PACE) offered at the University of California - San Diego School of Medicine ("Program").

The Program shall consist of a Comprehensive Assessment program comprised of a two-day assessment of respondent's physical and mental health; basic clinical and communication skills common to all clinicians; and medical knowledge, skill and judgment pertaining to respondent's specialty or sub-specialty, and at minimum, a 40 hour program of clinical education in the area of practice in which respondent was alleged to be deficient and which takes into account data obtained from the assessment, Decision(s), Accusation(s), and any other information that the Division or its designee deems relevant. Respondent shall pay all expenses associated with the clinical training program.

Based on respondent's performance and test results in the assessment and clinical education, the Program will advise the Division or its designee of its recommendation(s) for the scope and length of any additional educational or clinical training, treatment for any medical condition, treatment for any psychological condition, or anything else affecting respondent's practice of medicine. Respondent shall comply with Program recommendations.

At the completion of any additional educational or clinical training, respondent shall submit to and pass an examination. The Program's determination whether or not respondent passed the examination or successfully completed the Program shall be binding.

Respondent shall complete the Program not later than six months after respondent's initial enrollment unless the Division or its designee agrees in writing to a later time for completion.

Failure to participate in and complete successfully all phases of the clinical training program outlined above is a violation of probation.

If respondent fails to complete the clinical training program within the designated time period, respondent shall cease the practice of medicine within 72 hours after being notified by the Division or its designee that respondent failed to complete the clinical training program.

4. MONITORING - PRACTICE Within 30 calendar days of the effective date of this Decision, respondent shall submit to the Division or its designee for prior approval as a practice monitor, the name and qualifications of one or more licensed physicians and surgeons whose licenses are valid and in good standing, and who are preferably American Board of Medical Specialties (ABMS) certified. A monitor shall have no prior or current business or personal relationship with respondent, or other relationship that could reasonably be expected to compromise the ability of the monitor to render fair and unbiased reports to the Division, including, but not limited to, any form of bartering, shall be in respondent's field of practice, and must agree to serve as respondent's monitor. Respondent shall pay all monitoring costs.

The Division or its designee shall provide the approved monitor with copies of the Decision(s) and Accusation(s), and a proposed monitoring plan. Within 15 calendar days of receipt of the Decision(s), Accusation(s), and proposed monitoring plan, the monitor shall submit a signed statement that the monitor has read the Decision(s) and Accusation(s), fully understands the role of a monitor, and agrees or disagrees with the proposed monitoring plan. If the monitor disagrees with the proposed monitoring plan, the monitor shall submit a revised monitoring plan with the signed statement.

Within 60 calendar days of the effective date of this Decision, and continuing throughout probation, respondent's practice shall be monitored by the approved monitor.

Respondent shall make all records available for immediate inspection and copying on the premises by the monitor at all times during business hours, and shall retain the records for the entire term of probation.

The monitor(s) shall submit a quarterly written report to the Division or its designee which includes an evaluation of respondent's performance, indicating whether respondent's practices are within the standards of practice of medicine or billing, or both, and whether respondent is practicing medicine safely, billing appropriately or both.

It shall be the sole responsibility of respondent to ensure that the monitor submits the quarterly written reports to the Division or its designee within 10 calendar days after the end of the preceding quarter.

If the monitor resigns or is no longer available, respondent shall, within 5 calendar days of such resignation or unavailability, submit to the Division or its designee, for prior approval, the name and qualifications of a replacement monitor who will be assuming that responsibility within 15 calendar days. If respondent fails to obtain approval of a replacement monitor within 60 days of the resignation or unavailability of the monitor, respondent shall be suspended from the practice of medicine until a replacement monitor is approved and prepared to assume immediate monitoring responsibility. Respondent shall cease the practice of medicine within 3 calendar days after being so notified by the Division or designee.

In lieu of a monitor, respondent may participate in a professional enhancement program equivalent to the one offered by the Physician Assessment and Clinical Education Program at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine, that includes, at minimum, quarterly chart review, semi-annual practice assessment, and semi-annual review of professional growth and education. Respondent shall participate in the professional enhancement program at respondent's expense during the term of probation.

Failure to maintain all records, or to make all appropriate records available for immediate inspection and copying on the premises, or to comply with this condition as outlined above is a violation of probation.

5. INFORMATION LETTER Respondent agrees that prior to performing any medical procedure, that requires IV sedation or general anesthesia, he shall obtain written clearance and approval for the procedure from the patient's personal physician or another examining physician. The request for clearance and approval shall include the following:

A. The complete name of the medical procedure to be performed and the known risks, if any, that are unique to the procedure.

B. Any and all medications to be used and the potential side effects of the medications that may occur for the given procedure. This does not include the anesthetic agents.

C. If phenol is to be used in the procedure, the letter must clearly state the potential side effects of said chemical, and in particular that it is cardiotoxic and can cause cardiac arrhythmias.

D. A list of any laboratory tests, radiological studies, EKG tests, respondent believes should be performed to insure the patient's safety. The letter shall also state that the tests must be preformed and evaluated by the examining physician prior to clearing the patient for the procedure.

E. Respondent's contact telephone number will be set forth in bold in the letter with directions that the examining physician call respondent if there are any questions regarding the information requested or the medical procedure (s) to be performed or the potential side effects and risks as described above.

6. NOTIFICATION Prior to engaging in the practice of medicine, the respondent shall provide a true copy of the Decision(s) and Accusation(s) to the Chief of Staff or the Chief Executive Officer at every hospital where privileges or membership are extended to respondent, at any other facility where respondent engages in the practice of medicine, including all physician and locum tenens registries or other similar agencies, and to the Chief Executive Officer at every insurance carrier which extends malpractice insurance coverage to respondent. Respondent shall submit proof of compliance to the Division or its designee within 15 calendar days.

This condition shall apply to any change(s) in hospitals, other facilities or insurance carrier.

7. SUPERVISION OF PHYSICIAN ASSISTANTS During probation, respondent is prohibited from supervising physician assistants.

8. OBEY ALL LAWS Respondent shall obey all federal, state and local laws, all rules governing the practice of medicine in California, and remain in full compliance with any court ordered criminal probation, payments and other orders.

9. QUARTERLY DECLARATIONS Respondent shall submit quarterly declarations under penalty of perjury on forms provided by the Division, stating whether there has been compliance with all the conditions of probation. Respondent shall submit quarterly declarations not later than 10 calendar days after the end of the preceding quarter.

10. PROBATION UNIT COMPLIANCE Respondent shall comply with the Division's probation unit. Respondent shall, at all times, keep the Division informed of respondent's business and residence addresses. Changes of such addresses shall be immediately communicated in writing to the Division or its designee. Under no circumstances shall a post office box serve as an address of record, except as allowed by Business and Professions Code section 2021 subdivision (b).

Respondent shall not engage in the practice of medicine in respondent's place of residence. Respondent shall maintain a current and renewed California physician's and surgeon's license.

Respondent shall immediately inform the Division, or its designee, in writing, of travel to any areas outside the jurisdiction of California which lasts, or is contemplated to last, more than 30 calendar days.

11. INTERVIEW WITH THE DIVISION, OR ITS DESIGNEE Respondent shall be available in person for interviews either at respondent's place of business or at the probation unit office, with the Division or its designee, upon request at various intervals, and either with or without prior notice throughout the term of probation.

12. RESIDING OR PRACTICING OUT-OF-STATE In the event respondent should leave the State of California to reside or to practice, respondent shall notify the Division or its designee in writing 30 calendar days prior to the dates of departure and return. Non-practice is defined as any period of time exceeding 30 calendar days in which respondent is not engaging in any activities defined in Sections 2051 and 2052.

All time spent in an intensive training program outside the State of California which has been approved by the Division or its designee shall be considered as time spent in the practice of medicine within the State. A Board-ordered suspension of practice shall not be considered as a period of non-practice. Periods of temporary or permanent residence or practice outside California will not apply to the reduction of the probationary term. Periods of temporary or permanent residence or practice outside California will relieve respondent of the responsibility to comply with the probationary terms and conditions with the exception of this condition and the following terms and conditions of probation: Obey All Laws; Probation Unit Compliance; and Cost Recovery.

Respondent's license shall be automatically cancelled if respondent's periods of temporary or permanent residence or practice outside California total two years. However, respondent's license shall not be cancelled as long as respondent is residing and practicing medicine in another state of the United States and is on active probation with the medical licensing authority of that state, in which case the two year period shall begin on the date probation is completed or terminated in that state.

13. FAILURE TO PRACTICE MEDICINE - CALIFORNIA RESIDENT

In the event respondent resides in the State of California and for any reason respondent stops practicing medicine in California, respondent shall notify the Division or its designee in writing within 30 calendar days prior to the dates of non-practice and return to practice. Any period of non-practice within California, as defined in this condition, will not apply to the reduction of the probationary term and does not relieve respondent of the responsibility to comply with the terms and conditions of probation. Non-practice is defined as any period of time exceeding 30 calendar days in which respondent is not engaging in any activities defined in sections 2051 and 2052.

All time spent in an intensive training program which has been approved by the Division or its designee shall be considered time spent in the practice of medicine. For purposes of this condition, non-practice due to a Board-ordered suspension or in compliance with any other condition of probation, shall not be considered a period of non-practice.

Respondent's license shall be automatically cancelled if respondent resides in California and for a total of two years, fails to engage in California in any of the activities described in Business and Professions Code sections 2051 and 2052.

14. COMPLETION OF PROBATION Respondent shall comply with all financial obligations (e.g., cost recovery, restitution, probation costs) not later than 120 calendar days prior to the completion of probation. Upon successful completion of probation, respondent's certificate shall be fully restored.

15. VIOLATION OF PROBATION Failure to fully comply with any term or condition of probation is a violation of probation. If respondent violates probation in any respect, the Division, after giving respondent notice and the opportunity to be heard, may revoke probation and carry out the disciplinary order that was stayed. If an Accusation, Petition to Revoke Probation, or an Interim Suspension Order is filed against respondent during probation, the Division shall have continuing jurisdiction until the matter is final, and the period of probation shall be extended until the matter is final.

16. LICENSE SURRENDER Following the effective date of this Decision, if respondent ceases practicing due to retirement, health reasons or is otherwise unable to satisfy the terms and conditions of probation, respondent may request the voluntary surrender of respondent's license. The Division reserves the right to evaluate respondent's request and to exercise its discretion whether or not to grant the request, or to take any other action deemed appropriate and reasonable under the circumstances. Upon formal acceptance of the surrender, respondent shall within 15 calendar days deliver respondent's wallet and wall certificate to the Division or its designee and respondent shall no longer practice medicine. Respondent will no longer be subject to the terms and conditions of probation and the surrender of respondent's license shall be deemed disciplinary action. If respondent re-applies for a medical license, the application shall be treated as a petition for reinstatement of a revoked certificate.

17. PROBATION MONITORING COSTS Respondent shall pay the costs associated with probation monitoring each and every year of probation, as designated by the Division, which may be adjusted on an annual basis. Such costs shall be payable to the Medical Board of California and delivered to the Division or its designee no later than January 31 of each calendar year. Failure to pay costs within 30 calendar days of the due date is a violation of probation.

FIRST CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE

(Gross Negligence)

Patient M.G.

7. Respondent is subject to disciplinary action under Code sections 2220, 2227, and 2234 as defined by 2234 (b) in that he was grossly negligent in connection with his care, treatment and management of patient M.G.

8. On or about, January 13, 2003, MG had a consultation in respondent's medical offices regarding a chemoexfoliation of her face and neck. Her procedure was scheduled to be performed by respondent on February 11, 2003. She paid a deposit of $1,500.00. She was cleared for surgery by her primary physician.

9. On or about February 11, 2003, respondent performed a chemical peel/exfoliation, under sedation, on patient M.G., using a phenol peel and trichloracetic acid solution. According to the respondent the procedure went forward without any apparent complications. Following the chemoexfoliation, M.G. completed her recovery at Glen Oaks Resort, a nearby spa.. Respondent was aware there were no attending medical personnel at the resort to provide medical care to M.G.

10. At the time of the procedure, M.G. was a 71 year old white female. According to the medical records, her medical problems included hypertension, bronchial asthma, COPD, depression and osteoporosis, and she was taking the following medications: Lotensin, verapamil, albuterol, accolade, Flovent, Plavix, Celebrex, Paxal and Protonix. Respondent's physical examination has no vital signs listed but shows the patient's head, eyes, ears, nose, throat, heart and extremities as normal. The examination of her lungs revealed some expiratory wheezes. A pre-operative EKG performed on January 31, 2003, showed a borderline sinus bradycardia, first-degree AV block, and non-specific ST-T wave changes. Other pre-operative laboratory studies showed the following abnormalities: low sodium, chloride and hemoglobin; and high creatinine, calcium and triglycerides.

11. On or about February 14, 2003, respondent received a call from the Glen Oaks Resort stating that M.G. was weak, had low blood pressure and a low or weak pulse.

Respondent did not visit the patient but told the resort personnel to transfer her to an emergency room for evaluation. Respondent later learned M.G. had been transported to Rancho Springs Medical Center.

12. On or about February 15, 2003, M.G. was seen in the emergency room of Rancho Springs Medical Center. Her chief complaints were shortness of breath, wheezing, dyspnea on exertion, indigestion and heartburn. A chest x-ray revealed a small right pleural effusion. The EKG showed sinus bradycardia and a left bundle branch block. She was admitted to the hospital and treated for electrolyte imbalance, adrenal corticoid insufficiency and chemical burn. M.G. initially improved, but on February 16, 2003, she suffered a left middle cerebral artery occlusion (stroke). She developed further complications including aspiration pneumonia and died on February 24, 2003. Respondent, who does not have privileges at any hospital or medical facility, was not involved in treating M.G. after she left his medical office.

13. Respondent is grossly negligent by reason of, but not limited to the following:

A. Respondent did not critically assess the patient's numerous risk factors, including the patient's abnormal laboratory and physical findings, prior to this elective procedure.

B. Respondent's own physical examination failed to confirm and/ or missed entirely the physical findings that were documented with respect to her heart and lungs. This calls into question the thoroughness of his pre-operative physical examination.

C. Respondent failed to explain to M.G.'s personal physician, who cleared her for surgery, the nature of phenol used in a chemical exfoliation procedure to assist in the physician's determination of M.G.'s suitability for the procedure.

D. Respondent failed to understand the risk of using phenol, a cardiotoxic preparation, on an elderly patient with demonstrated heart disease.

E. Respondent knew or should have known of M.G.'s long term use of corticosteroids and that she would likely suffer adrenal suppression and would need supplemental steroids during and after her phenol peel.

F. Respondent failed to see M.G. twenty-four to forty-eight hours after her procedure so that he could evaluate her cardio-pulmonary status and assess her chemical burns, caused by the phenol peel, to determine whether additional treatment or therapy would be required.

G. Respondent's medical records, including his operative report, are neither accurate nor adequate, in that, the operative report fails, among other things, to identify the patient, details of the procedure performed, the findings, and the results of the procedure.

SECOND CAUSE FOR DISCIPLINE

(Repeated Negligent Acts)

14. Respondent is subject to further disciplinary action under code sections 2220, 2227 and 2234 as defined by Code section 2234 (c) in that he engaged in repeated negligent acts in his care, treatment and management of patient M.G. as set forth in paragraphs 7-13 (and sub-parts A through G) above which are incorporated herein by reference as though fully set forth.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

(Incompetence)

15. Respondent is subject to further disciplinary action under code sections 2220, 2227 and 2234 as defined by Code section 2234 (d) in that he was incompetent in his care, treatment and management of patient M.G. as set forth in paragraphs 7-13 (and sub-parts A through G) above which are incorporated herein by reference as though fully set forth.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION

(Failure to Maintain Accurate and Adequate Medical Records)

16. Respondent is subject to further disciplinary action under Code section 2220, 2227 and 2234 as defined by Code section 2266, in that, he failed to maintain adequate and accurate medical records in connection with his care, treatment and management of patient M.G. as set forth in paragraph 13 (G) above which is incorporated herein by reference as though fully set forth.

FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION

(Failure to Maintain Accurate and Adequate Medical Records)

Patient S.E.

17. Respondent is subject to further disciplinary action under Code section 2220, 2227 and 2234 as defined by Code section 2266, in that, he failed to maintain accurate and adequate medical records regarding the care and treatment of patient, S.E. The circumstances are set forth below:

18. On or about July 2, 2002, respondent performed a chemical peel on patient S.E. There were no apparent complications during the procedure. She later developed multiple small areas of hypertrophic scarring that were treated by respondent.

19. On or about June 24, 2004, respondent performed a platysmaplasty/sling operation on patient S.E. There were no apparent complications during the procedure. There are no subsequent post-operative notes until the patient returned on or about July 12, 2004 complaining of "new scars" coming back.

20. Respondent's medical records, when handwritten, are illegible and fail to identify who authored the notes. Respondent's typewritten or preprinted records are not individualized as to specific content (i.e., the operative report of the chemical peel, performed on July 2, 2002, does not adequately describe the procedure performed.)

DISCIPLINE CONSIDERATIONS

21. To determine the degree of discipline, if any, to be imposed on Respondent, Complainant alleges that on or about November 8, 1996, an Accusation was filed against respondent and on or about January 6, 1998, a Supplemental Accusation was filed. On or about September 14, 1998, a Decision became effective which read, in part: Revoked, Stayed, Prior Condition, Five Years Probation with Terms and Conditions.

22. On or about January 4, 2002, another accusation was filed against respondent and on or about October 16, 2002 a First Amended Accusation was filed. On or about September 29, 2003, a Decision became effective which read, in part: Revoked, Stayed, Seven Years Probation with Terms and Conditions; including Six Months of Actual Suspension Beginning the Sixteenth Day After the Effective Date of this Decision. On or about September 25, 2003, a Petition for Writ of Mandate was filed, and on or about February 6, 2004 a Judicial Stay Order on Conditions One and Nine was issued by the Superior Court. On or about April 29, 2004, the Stay Order was vacated. On or about September 10, 2004, a Decision became effective which read, in part: Revoked, Stayed One Year, with Precedent Condition. Upon successful completion of the condition precedent, the stayed revocation shall become permanent and a Public Letter of Reprimand will be issued. The aforementioned decisions are now final and are incorporated by reference as if fully set forth.

PRAYER

WHEREFORE, Complainant requests that a hearing be held on the matters herein alleged, and that following the hearing, the Division of Medical Quality issue a decision:

1. Revoking or suspending Physician's and Surgeon's Certificate No. A 36888, issued to KELLY J. O'NEIL, M.D.;

2. Revoking, suspending or denying approval of KELLY J. O'NEIL, M.D.'s authority to supervise physician's assistants, pursuant to section 3527 of the Code;

3. If placed on probation, KELLY J. O'NEIL be ordered to pay the costs of probation monitoring; and,

Attorneys for the Board

BEFORE THE IDAHO STATE BOARD OF MEDICINE

In the Matter of:
KELLY J. O'NEIL, M.D.,	Case No. 6101
Applicant.	STIPULATION AND ORDER

COMES NOW the Idaho State Board of Medicine, hereinafter referred to as the Board, and Kelly J. O'Neil, M.D., hereinafter referred to as Applicant, and stipulate and agree as follows:

I

Applicant has applied for an Idaho license to practice medicine and surgery to be issued by the Idaho State Board of Medicine, which application was received by the Board on December 21, 2007. Said application is subject to the provisions of Title 54, Chapter 18, Idaho Code, commonly known as the Medical Practice Act.

II

The Board has received information that Applicant has several malpractice cases and the California State Board issued a disciplinary Order against Applicant. In addition, Applicant incorrectly answered various questions on the application.

III

The acts and practices of Applicant, as alleged in Paragraph II above, would provide grounds to deny the application pursuant to Idaho Code §§54-1808, 54-1814 and 54-1811.

IV

The Board believes it has sufficient evidence to deny Applicant's application based upon these allegations, but rather than pursuing a formal investigation and hearing, the parties are voluntarily entering into this Stipulation and Order for the purpose of informally responding to the concerns of the Board and for the purpose of providing an acceptable procedure for dealing with the alleged problems.

V

Applicant knowingly and voluntarily waives any right to a formal hearing, to present evidence, to cross-examine witnesses, to reconsideration and appeal, and to other rights accorded him pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act and the Medical Practice Act which he might otherwise possess with respect to this Stipulation.

VI

In order to respond to these allegations, Applicant hereby stipulates and agrees that:

(a) Within ninety (90) days of the date of this Stipulation and Order, Applicant shall reimburse the Board $100.00 for its investigative costs and attorney's fees incurred herein.

(b) Within ninety (90) days of the date of this Stipulation and Order, Applicant shall pay a $1,000 fine.

(c) Applicant shall be issued a restricted license to practice medicine in the State of Idaho which shall be subject to and conditioned by full compliance with the terms and conditions set forth in this Stipulation and Order. Failure to comply with any of the terms and conditions set forth in this Stipulation and Order shall result in immediate suspension of Applicant's license pending further proceedings.

(d) Applicant shall only perform chemical peels and liposuction in the State of Idaho.

(e) Applicant shall notify the Board prior to any practice in the State of Idaho.

(f) If Applicant changes employment or applies for or obtains privileges at any hospital, Applicant shall provide all employers and partners and the Administrator and Chief of Staff at each future hospital where he applies for or obtains privileges with a copy of this Stipulation and Order at the time of the application for employment or privileges, or within ten (10) days of the application.

Applicant shall provide the Board with written proof of compliance with this paragraph by providing the Board with a carbon copy of the notice or letter when it is provided to any employer or hospital.

(g) Applicant shall obey all federal, state and local laws, and all rules governing the practice of medicine in Idaho.

(h) In the event that Applicant should leave Idaho for three (3) continuous months, or reside or practice outside the State, Applicant must notify the Board in writing of the dates of departure and return. Periods of time spent outside of Idaho will not apply to the reduction of this period under the Stipulation and Order, unless Applicant, during such period of practice outside the State of Idaho, in addition to informing the Idaho Board of Medicine of Applicant's absence from the State and location of work, also makes the Board of Medicine in the State in which he is practicing aware of this Order, and Applicant continues to meet all other terms of this Order during the time spent practicing out of the state.

The above described terms, limitations and conditions may be amended or terminated in writing at any time upon the agreement of both parties. However, this Stipulation and Order shall remain in force for a minimum of five (5) years prior to any request for termination of this Stipulation and Order.

VIII

If Applicant fails to comply with the terms and conditions of the restricted license, Applicant's restricted license shall immediately be suspended pending further proceedings. Any such further enforcement proceedings for noncompliance will be conducted pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, Title 67, Chapter 52, Idaho Code, the Idaho Medical Practice Act and the Rules of Practice and Procedure of the Board.

IX

Applicant agrees to execute the Release, attached hereto as Exhibit A, releasing the Idaho State Board of Medicine, the Committee on Professional Discipline, their members, employees, agents, officers, representatives, attorneys, consultants and witnesses, jointly and severally, from any and all liability arising from their participation or involvement in the Board's investigation of Applicant and in the prosecution of this disciplinary proceeding.

X

This Stipulation and Order shall be considered a public record as that term is used in the Idaho Code. This Stipulation and Order shall become effective upon the last date of signature below.

XI

Applicant further agrees to execute the Release, attached hereto as Exhibit B, authorizing any person or entity having information relevant to Applicant's compliance with the provisions of this Stipulation and Order to release such information to the Board.

DATED This 14 day of April, 2008.

ORDER

Pursuant to Idaho Code §§54-1808, 54-1811 and 54-1814, the Board hereby accepts the terms and conditions of the foregoing Stipulation and it is hereby ordered that Applicant comply with said terms and conditions. Based upon the foregoing, further formal proceedings will be waived.

In the Matter of the Accusation against:
KELLY JAMES O'NEIL, M.D.,	Case No. 16-2008-191964
Physician's and Surgeon's Certificate No. A 36888,	OAH No. 2008120029
Respondent.

PROPOSED DECISION

Administrative Law Judge Greer D. Knopf, State of California, Office of Administrative Hearings, heard this matter in San Diego, California, on February 23, 2009.

Susan Fitzgerald, Deputy Attorney General, represented complainant Barbara Johnston, Executive Director, Medical Board of California, Department of Consumer Affairs.

Albert J. Garcia, Attorney at Law, represented respondent Kelly James O'Neill, M.D. who was present at the hearing.

The record remained open to enable respondent to submit an additional exhibit to be received as part of the procedural history of the case. The record was closed and the matter was submitted on March 6, 2009.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

1. Accusation number 16-2008-191964, dated November 13, 2008, was filed by complainant, Barbara Johnston (complainant), in her official capacity as Executive Director, Medical Board of California, Department of Consumer Affairs, State of California against respondent Kelly James O'Neil, M.D. (respondent). Thereafter, complainant filed the First Amended Accusation dated February 9, 2009. Respondent filed a Notice of Defense dated November 17, 2008 requesting a hearing in this matter. The proceeding herein followed.

2. Respondent holds Physician and Surgeon's Certificate number A 36888 issued by the Medical Board of California (the California Board) initially on June 24, 1981. Respondent's license is due to expire on January 31, 2011, unless renewed. Respondent has a license disciplinary history as follows:

A. In September 1998, respondent was disciplined by the California Board (the 1998 discipline) for repeated acts of negligence in the care of two patients. He was placed on five years probation with standard terms and conditions and also ordered to restrict his practice, take educational courses, and be monitored by a practice monitor for the duration of his probation. At that time, respondent also held a license to practice medicine in the state of Idaho, and in November 1998, the medical board in Idaho (the Idaho Board) took action to impose discipline on respondent in Idaho based on the 1998 California discipline. Eventually, respondent allowed the Idaho medical license he held in 1998 to lapse.

B. In late 2002, the California Board began another disciplinary action against respondent. This disciplinary action filed by the California Board proceeded to hearing and an Administrative Law Judge issued a Proposed Decision. The California Board did not adopt the Proposed Decision and issued a Decision after Non-Adoption effective September 29, 2003 (September 2003 Decision after Non-Adoption). Respondent appealed the September 2003 Decision after Non-Adoption and during the appeal process the parties entered into a Stipulated Settlement and Disciplinary Order dated July 20, 2004, adopted and ordered on August 11, 2004, and made effective on September 10, 2004 (the September 2004 Decision). As a result, the California Board ordered respondent to complete the Physician Assessment and Clinical Education Program (PACE) at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine and issued respondent a letter of reprimand.

C. In 2007, the California Board began its third disciplinary action against respondent. The Board's allegations against respondent included gross negligence (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2234, subd. (b)), repeated acts of negligence (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2234, subd. (c)), incompetence, and failure to maintain adequate medical records (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2266) concerning the care and treatment of two patients. The parties ultimately entered into a Stipulated Settlement and Decision, effective September 2007 (the 2007 Decision), revoking respondent's license, staying the revocation and placing respondent on probation for 35 months. As part of the settlement agreement, the parties agreed that: "Respondent neither admits nor denies he violated Business and Professions Code section 2234 subdivision (c) in his care and treatment of patient M.G. . . . and respondent neither admits nor denies he violated section 2266. . . . All other charges in the accusation not specifically admitted are hereby dismissed." Respondent remains on probation until August 2010.

3. Sometime in late 2006, respondent decided he wanted to apply for licensure to practice medicine in Idaho, Washington, and Indiana. He was considering retiring in one of these states and wanted to pursue licensure so he could continue with some sort of a medical practice after retirement. Respondent was raised in Idaho and his extended family still lives there so he ultimately decided he wanted to focus on moving to Idaho. Respondent asked his office manager to start the application process for him. Respondent's office manager, Valerie Arnaiv (Arnaiv), knew that there would be a great deal of paperwork involved in making these various applications out of state and she researched and found a service named Physician's Licensing Service (PLS) operating in Utah. PLS prepares and submits all the paperwork for busy practitioners to the various jurisdictions for medical licensure across the country. Arnaiv retained PLS on respondent's behalf to prepare and submit respondent's applications to the three medical boards in Idaho, Washington, and Indiana.

4. Ultimately, PLS prepared the Idaho, Washington, and Indiana applications for respondent. In order to prepare the three applications, PLS first had respondent fill out a questionnaire (PLS questionnaire) providing the information needed to initiate the process in each state. The PLS questionnaire asked for a variety of professional background information and specifically asked the following questions, among others: "1. Have you been named in a malpractice case regardless of the outcome? . . . . 3. Have you had any licenses disciplined? . . . ." The PLS questionnaire instructed respondent to answer the questions "yes" or "no" and to provide an explanation for any answer in the affirmative. Respondent answered "yes" to both questions number 1 and number 3. For question number 1, respondent answered that yes he had been named in a malpractice case and then wrote in that he had been named in six such cases. Respondent also answered "yes" to question number 3 indicating that he had licenses disciplined in the past. He did not provide any explanation of that affirmative answer, but assumed that his office manager would attach a copy of the previous disciplinary actions to the PLS questionnaire. There is no evidence that respondent signed any portion of the PLS questionnaire under penalty of perjury or otherwise. Respondent did sign an Authorization and Release so that PLS could obtain any records deemed necessary for "evaluating his professional, ethical and physical qualifications for medical licensure."

5. PLS took the information submitted by respondent and completed each of the three applications to be submitted to Idaho, Washington, and Indiana for licensure. The Idaho application was not available to download online so it could not be filled out on a computer. As a result, the individual on staff at PLS who filled out the Idaho application for respondent did so by hand. Whichever PLS staff member that filled out the Idaho application for respondent made a mistake in answering questions 3 and 5 on that application. Question 3 asked:

> "Have you ever been investigated by any licensing board, agency, or professional association in connection with medical incompetency, practice act violations, unprofessional conduct or unethical conduct?"

Question 5 further asked:

> "Have you ever been subject to informal or formal proceeding by any licensing board, agency or professional association to revoke, suspend, restrict or limit a professional license?"

Both questions were answered "No" on respondent's application. These answers were untrue and were contrary to the information that respondent supplied to PLS during the application process. On December 9, 2006, respondent signed the Idaho application and returned it to PLS for submission to the Idaho State Board of Medicine (the Idaho Board).

6. PLS also completed the applications that respondent was to submit to Washington for medical licensure. The same mistake was made by PLS on the Washington application as the mistake made on the Idaho application in answering questions about prior discipline. The Washington application asked in question 8:

> "Have you ever had any license, certificate, registration or other privilege to practice a health care profession denied, revoked, suspended, or restricted by a state, federal, or foreign authority, or have you ever surrendered such credential to avoid or in connection with action by such authority?"

The Washington application question 11 asked:

> "Have you ever been the subject of any informal or formal disciplinary action related to the practice of medicine?"

Both questions were answered "No" on respondent's Washington application. These answers were untrue and were contrary to information that respondent supplied to PLS during the application process. On December 6, 2006, respondent signed the Washington application and returned it to PLS for submission to the Washington State Department of Health, Medical Quality Assurance Commission (the Washington Commission).

7. PLS also completed the application that respondent was to submit to Indiana for medical licensure. The same mistake was made by PLS on the Indiana application as the mistake made on the Idaho and Washington applications in answering questions about prior discipline. The Indiana application asked in question 1:

> "Has disciplinary action ever been taken regarding any health license, certificate, registration or permit you hold or have held?"

The Indiana application further asked in question 4:

> "Have you ever been the subject of an investigation by a regulatory agency concerning your license?"

Both questions were answered "No" on respondent's Indiana application. These answers were untrue and were contrary to the information that respondent supplied to PLS during the application process. On December 7, 2006, respondent signed the Indiana application and returned it to PLS for submission to the Medical Licensing Board of Indiana (the Indiana Board).

8. On November 20, 2006, PLS sent the completed Idaho and Indiana applications to respondent with two separate cover letters instructing respondent to "review the application for accuracy" and return it with additional items and fees to PLS. On November 28, 2006, PLS sent respondent the completed Washington application with the same cover letter instructing respondent to "review the application for accuracy" and then return it to PLS with the necessary supporting documentation and fees. Respondent therefore had a stack of these applications and the accompanying paperwork to review and sign in early December 2006. He testified that he tried to get to this paperwork whenever he could in between a busy schedule of appointments. Ultimately, respondent behaved carelessly and neglected to read the applications but he went ahead and signed each of the Idaho, Washington, and Indiana applications under penalty of perjury wherein he certified the applications as true and correct. The information in all three applications was, in fact, untrue since they each failed to disclose that respondent had previously been disciplined by the California Board.

9. Respondent's behavior in failing to read and carefully review his applications was careless and arrogant. Respondent's attitude about the applications seems to be that he should not have to be bothered with the unimportant details of this trivial process. Given the fact that respondent has been the subject of three prior disciplinary actions by the California Board and one by the Idaho Board, he should have been all the more alert to any potential problems in his practice. He certainly should have been exercising reasonable care to avoid supplying incorrect information on medical board applications. It is clear from his attitude that respondent does not appreciate the importance of ensuring accuracy on all such documentation. Nevertheless, the evidence presented at the hearing did establish that respondent's failure to report his prior discipline on the medical board applications was a result of carelessness on his part rather than an attempt to be deceptive. Respondent did have the responsibility to accurately disclose all prior discipline on his applications under penalty of perjury, but his actions do not rise to the level of dishonesty. He should learn from this episode to be far more careful with important paperwork, and he certainly should not rely on others when he is the one attesting under oath to the truth of its contents.

10. The Idaho Board acted on respondent's Idaho application by giving respondent a hearing before the entire board wherein the parties appear to have entered into a stipulation allowing respondent to be issued a restricted Idaho medical license. A Stipulation and Order dated April 14, 2008 (the Idaho Order) between respondent and the Idaho Board found that respondent had been previously disciplined by the California Board and that respondent had "incorrectly answered various questions on the application." The Idaho Order further found that the actions of respondent would provide grounds to deny his application for licensure under Idaho law. The Idaho Board ordered respondent to pay investigative costs and attorney fees as well as a fine. The Idaho Board further granted respondent a restricted medical license subject to certain terms and conditions including, among others, that: "Applicant [respondent] shall only perform chemical peels and liposuction in the State of Idaho." The Idaho Order remains in effect for five years and constitutes a disciplinary order of the Idaho Board due to respondent's incorrect answers on his Idaho application. This discipline was not based on the fact that respondent had been disciplined in California, but on the fact that respondent had failed to disclose that prior discipline.

11. Respondent submitted identical letters of explanation dated December 3, 2007 to Idaho, Washington, and Indiana (the December 2007 letter). Respondent sent the December 2007 letter to those state medical licensing authorities to explain his 2007 discipline that had been imposed by the California Board. In the letter, respondent provided his version of the incidents leading to the 2007 California disciplinary action. Respondent's version of events was somewhat self-serving and failed to acknowledge full responsibility for all of the actions for which respondent was charged.

However, the 2007 disciplinary action was imposed on respondent as the result of a settlement stipulation that was left vague when it came to what, if any, admissions respondent was making in this stipulation. The only references to specific charges made in the stipulation are to the charge of repeated acts of negligence (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2234, subd. (c)), and the charge of inadequate medical record keeping (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2266). However, unlike in the prior stipulations, the parties had entered into, this time respondent did not specifically admit these charges. The stipulation states that respondent did not admit or deny that he violated Business and Professions Code section 2234, subdivision (c) concerning the care and treatment of patient M.G. and he did not admit or deny that he violated Business and Professions Code section 2266 concerning the adequacy of medical records. This was the only culpability statement made in the stipulated settlement regarding any of the specific charges and this was the basis for the agreed to disciplinary order. This lack of admission or denial of specific charges may have been deemed sufficient by the parties to support the stipulated discipline, but it is not sufficient to expect respondent to later describe the factual basis of his discipline as the actual charges that were alleged in the accusation. Respondent never actually admitted those charges. Sometimes that is the nature of a settlement. Based on what the parties agreed to in the stipulated settlement, respondent never admitted or denied the charges. He was therefore justified in giving his version of the facts when he reported the episode to the other medical boards. Respondent did not misrepresent the 2007 disciplinary action of the California Board in his December 2007 letter since there is no official version on record of what actually happened.

LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

1. Cause exists to discipline respondent's physician's and surgeon's certificate pursuant to Business and Professions Code section 2305 in that respondent is guilty of unprofessional conduct in that he was disciplined by the Idaho Board when he was issued a restricted medical license in the State of Idaho due to his failure to correctly disclose information on his Idaho application, as set forth in Findings 2-5and 8-10.

2. Cause exists to discipline respondent's physician's and surgeon's certificate pursuant to Business and Professions Code section 141 in that respondent was disciplined by the Idaho Board for acts that are substantially related to the practice of medicine. The Idaho Board disciplined respondent when he was issued a restricted medical license in the State of Idaho due to his failure to correctly disclose information on his Idaho application, as set forth in Findings 2-5 and 8-10.

3. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's physician's and surgeon's certificate pursuant to Business and Professions Code section 2234 in that complainant failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that respondent committed an act of dishonesty when he sent the December 2007 letters of explanation to the Idaho, Washington and Indiana licensing boards, as set forth in Findings 2-11.

4. Cause was not established to discipline respondent's physician's and surgeon's certificate pursuant to Business and Professions Code section 2234 in that complainant failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that respondent committed an act of dishonesty when he submitted applications to the Idaho, Washington, and Indiana licensing boards that carelessly failed to disclose respondent's prior discipline, as set forth in Findings 2-10.

5. Respondent submitted sufficient evidence of mitigating and extenuating circumstances surrounding his failure to accurately disclose his prior discipline in his applications he submitted to Idaho and his discipline in the State of Idaho. Therefore, it would not be against the public interest to allow respondent to continue to practice medicine under strict terms and conditions of probation.

ORDER

Respondent Kelly James O'Neil's physician's and surgeon's certificate number A 36888, issued by the Medical Board of California, that is already revoked with said revocation stayed shall be revoked, with said revocation stayed. Respondent is placed on a separate term of probation, based on the action herein, for three years upon the following terms and conditions:

1. Notification

Prior to engaging in the practice of medicine the respondent shall provide a true copy of the Decision(s) and Accusation(s) to the Chief of Staff or the Chief Executive Officer at every hospital where privileges or membership are extended to respondent, at any other facility where respondent engages in the practice of medicine, including all physician and locum tenens registries or other similar agencies, and to the Chief Executive Officer at every insurance carrier which extends malpractice insurance coverage to respondent. Respondent shall submit proof of compliance to the Board or its designee within 15 calendar days.

This condition shall apply to any change(s) in hospitals, other facilities or insurance carrier.

2. Supervision of Physician Assistants

Respondent shall submit quarterly declarations not later than 10 calendar days after the end of the preceding quarter.

5. Probation Unit Compliance

Under no circumstances shall a post office box serve as an address of record, except as allowed by Business and Professions Code section 2021(b).

Respondent shall not engage in the practice of medicine in respondent's place of residence. Respondent shall maintain a current and renewed California physician's and surgeon's license.

Respondent shall immediately inform the Board or its designee, in writing, of travel to any areas outside the jurisdiction of California which lasts, or is contemplated to last, more than thirty (30) calendar days.

6. Interview with the Board or its Designee

Respondent shall be available in person for interviews either at respondent's place of business or at the probation unit office, with the Board or its designee upon request at various intervals and either with or without prior notice throughout the term of probation.

7. Residing or Practicing Out-of-State

In the event respondent should leave the State of California to reside or to practice respondent shall notify the Board or its designee in writing 30 calendar days prior to the dates of departure and return. Non-practice is defined as any period of time exceeding thirty calendar days in which respondent is not engaging in any activities defined in sections 2051 and 2052 of the Business and Professions Code.

All time spent in an intensive training program outside the State of California which has been approved by the Board or its designee shall be considered as time spent in the practice of medicine within the State. A Board-ordered suspension of practice shall not be considered as a period of non-practice. Periods of temporary or permanent residence or practice outside California will not apply to the reduction of the probationary term. Periods of temporary or permanent residence or practice outside California will relieve respondent of the responsibility to comply with the probationary terms and conditions with the exception of this condition and the following terms and conditions of probation: Obey All Laws; Probation Unit Compliance; and Cost Recovery.

Respondent's license shall be automatically cancelled if respondent's periods of temporary or permanent residence or practice outside California totals two years. However, respondent's license shall not be cancelled as long as respondent is residing and practicing medicine in another state of the United States and is on active probation with the medical licensing authority of that state, in which case the two year period shall begin on the date probation is completed or terminated in that state.

8. Failure to Practice Medicine - California Resident

In the event respondent resides in the State of California and for any reason respondent stops practicing medicine in California, respondent shall notify the Board or its designee in writing within 30 calendar days prior to the dates of non-practice and return to practice. Any period of non-practice within California, as defined in this condition, will not apply to the reduction of the probationary term and does not relieve respondent of the responsibility to comply with the terms and conditions of probation. Non-practice is defined as any period of time exceeding thirty calendar days in which respondent is not engaging in any activities defined in sections 2051 and 2052 of the Business and Professions Code.

All time spent in an intensive training program which has been approved by the Board or its designee shall be considered time spent in the practice of medicine. For purposes of this condition, non-practice due to a Board-ordered suspension or in compliance with any other condition of probation, shall not be considered a period of non-practice.

Respondent's license shall be automatically cancelled if respondent resides in California and for a total of two years, fails to engage in California in any of the activities described in Business and Professions Code sections 2051 and 2052.

9. Completion of Probation

Respondent shall comply with all financial obligations (e.g., cost recovery, restitution, probation costs) not later than 120 calendar days prior to the completion of probation. Upon successful completion of probation, respondent's certificate shall be fully restored.

10. Violation of Probation

Failure to fully comply with any term or condition of probation is a violation of probation. If respondent violates probation in any respect, the Board, after giving respondent notice and the opportunity to be heard, may revoke probation and carry out the disciplinary order that was stayed. If an Accusation, or Petition to Revoke Probation, or an Interim Suspension Order is filed against respondent during probation, the Board shall have continuing jurisdiction until the matter is final, and the period of probation shall be extended until the matter is final.

11. License Surrender

Following the effective date of this Decision, if respondent ceases practicing due to retirement, health reasons or is otherwise unable to satisfy the terms and conditions of probation, respondent may request the voluntary surrender of respondent's license. The Board reserves the right to evaluate respondent's request and to exercise its discretion whether or not to grant the request, or to take any other action deemed appropriate and reasonable under the circumstances. Upon formal acceptance of the surrender, respondent shall within 15 calendar days deliver respondent's wallet and wall certificate to the Board or its designee and respondent shall no longer practice medicine. Respondent will no longer be subject to the terms and conditions of probation and the surrender of respondent's license shall be deemed disciplinary action. If respondent re-applies for a medical license, the application shall be treated as a petition for reinstatement of a revoked certificate.

12. Probation Monitoring Costs

Respondent shall pay the costs associated with probation monitoring each and every year of probation, as designated by the Board, which may be adjusted on an annual basis. Such costs shall be payable to the Medical Board of California and delivered to the Board or its designee no later than January 31 of each calendar year. Failure to pay costs within 30 calendar days of the due date is a violation of probation.

INDICTMENT
18 U.S.C. § 371
26 U.S.C. § 7212(a)
18 U.S.C. § 2
26 U.S.C. § 7203
18 U.S.C. § 1503

The Grand Jury charges:

COUNT 1
EVA MELISSSA SUGAR
(18 U.S.C. § 371 - Conspiracy to Defraud the United States)

THE CONSPIRACY

1. From on or about sometime in 1999, the exact date being unknown to the Grand Jury, and continuing through on or about April 2008, in the State and District of Colorado, defendant SUGAR did unlawfully, voluntarily, intentionally, and knowingly conspire, combine, confederate, and agree together and with J.L., M.D.B., J.D., and other individuals both known and unknown to the Grand Jury to defraud the United States for the purpose of impeding, impairing, obstructing, and defeating the lawful Government functions of the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") of the Treasury Department in the ascertainment, computation, assessment, and collection of the revenue, namely income, employment, and other federal taxes.

THE PERSONS

At various times relevant to this Indictment:

2. J.L. was a resident of Georgia who operated Financial Fortress Associates, or a variation of that name (hereinafter "FFA"), an organization that promoted and advised its clients on schemes to avoid the payment of income and other federal taxes.

3. Defendant EVA MELISSA SUGAR, also known as Melissa Sugar, was a resident of Aurora, Colorado, and was self-employed as an attorney specializing in tax and other legal matters in Denver, Colorado. SUGAR worked with FFA clients to execute the schemes FFA promoted.

4. M.D.B. was a resident of Florida and worked as a promoter for FFA.

5. J.D. was a resident of Georgia and worked with FFA to execute the FFA schemes.

MANNER AND MEANS OF THE CONSPIRACY

6. The conspiracy was carried out using the following manner and means, which created interdependency among the conspirators:

a. J.L. and M.D.B, with others, operated FFA. FFA promoted Pure Trust Organizations ("PTO") and "private banking" using so-called Banking Unincorporated Business Organizations ("BUBO") as vehicles to conceal business and personal income and asset ownership and, thereby, to avoid paying income, employment, and other federal taxes to the IRS. FFA held seminars and workshops around the country to promote its schemes, which individuals paid to attend. SUGAR occasionally attended and spoke at FFA seminars. At those seminars, FFA's promoters explained the schemes and provided referrals to their co-conspirators, including SUGAR, who charged fees to execute the schemes for FFA clients.

b. As part of the FFA schemes, SUGAR or others established one or more Unincorporated Business Organization(s) ("UBO") for each client and applied for an IRS-issued Employee Identification Number ("EIN") for those UBOs. Each UBO was named as a "management" company, i.e. "X Management." For each UBO, SUGAR opened a corresponding bank account for a "BUBO" with the same name as the UBO. The bank account for each BUBO was set up to accept deposits by at least one named fictitious entity, which the co-conspirators generally described as a "trust" or PTO. FFA conspirators, including J.D., set up these trusts for the FFA clients.

c. FFA clients used the fictitious trust entities as companies "doing business as" the management company for which the BUBO bank account was established. The entities, however, existed in name only. Generally, the FFA client either (1) caused receipts from a legitimate business to be paid to one of the fictitious entities, diverting the income to the BUBO bank account and thereby understating the business's gross receipts, or (2) made payments to one of the fictitious entities and deducted the payments as expenses for the FFA client's legitimate business, thereby decreasing the business's income.

d. SUGAR and the FFA client then caused funds from the BUBO account to be (1) paid directly back to the FFA client, (2) used to pay the FFA clients' personal expenses, (3) used for personal purchases, such as for cars or vacation homes, or (4) transferred offshore or to a warehouse bank set up to disguise the ownership and source of the funds.

e. Another variation of FFA's program involved placing assets into the names of the fictitious entities that used the bank account to conceal the proceeds of the sale of those assets. As noted, conspirators frequently established the entities as "trusts," with one of the promoters, such as J.L. or M.D.B., named as trustee. When the FFA client sold the assets, the buyer would issue a check to the trust, which then deposited the check into the BUBO bank account. The FFA client would then use the funds as discussed in subparagraph 6(d) above.

f. SUGAR provided various services to her clients, which as described, included establishing UBOs, applying for EINs for the UBOs, and opening associated BUBO bank accounts that her clients used to conceal assets and income and to avoid paying taxes to the IRS. SUGAR generally was the trustee for the UBOs and had signatory authority for the bank accounts. If her client also wanted signatory authority for the BUBO bank accounts, SUGAR would list the client as an "administrative assistant," "Managing Director," or some other officer or employee of the fictitious trust entity or UBO/BUBO.

g. Often, however, to prevent the client's name from association with the BUBO account, SUGAR and the client would identify a third party, such as a family member, as the administrative assistant or other position for the fictitious trust entity or UBO/BUBO. That person would be given signatory authority for the BUBO bank account. These individuals exercised no authority or control over the UBO/BUBO, the fictitious trust entity, or the assets thereof. So that they could use the BUBO bank account without involvement by the third party, SUGAR and her clients had signature stamps created for these individuals.

h. With the BUBO bank accounts established, SUGAR then conducted transactions for her clients using those accounts, including for example, signing blank checks or authorizing wire transactions for her clients' use as described in subparagraph 6(d), endorsing checks for deposit, and withdrawing cash.

i. SUGAR charged her clients fees for her services, including annual maintenance fees and fees on a per-service basis, such as for signing checks or authorizing a wire transfer.

j. The FFA client and owner of the UBO/BUBO would not file federal tax returns for the UBO/BUBO or the fictitious entities, despite legal filing requirements. Indeed, because the UBOs did not file federal income tax returns and all of the bank accounts established for the BUBOs were non-interest-bearing accounts, the IRS was unaware of the use and operation of the BUBO accounts and entities. Only the request and receipt of the EIN would indicate to the Government that the UBO/BUBO ever existed.

OVERT ACTS IN FURTHERANCE OF THE CONSPIRACY

7. In furtherance of the conspiracy and to effect the objects thereof, the following overt acts were committed in the District of Colorado and elsewhere:

a. On or about November 23, 1999, SUGAR applied to the IRS for EINs in the names of Streamside Management, Northside Management, Maple Leaf Management, Oxford Management, Cascade Management, Management Unlimited, Eastside Management, and Avon Management.

b. On or about on February 9, 2001, SUGAR opened a bank account at Compass Bank, formerly known as FirsTier Bank, in the name of Streamside Management, with SUGAR and ROBERTS'S then minor son as signatories.

c. On or about August 15, 2002, at the request of her client, L.S., SUGAR wrote out and signed a check from a Bank of Denver account for Garnet Management to Bexar Technologies in the amount of $21,000.

d. On or about September 23, 2002, SUGAR sent an e-mail to her client, Gregory Laurence, instructing him that SUGAR alone must sign all endorsements on checks deposited into and all checks written from Laurence's BUBO bank accounts, unless Laurence or his wife were willing to provide their identification and social security numbers to the bank.

e. On or about March 26, 2004, SUGAR transferred the bank account for Triumph Management from Liberty Savings Bank to Compass Bank.

f. On or about between June 16, 2006, and June 23, 2006, SUGAR signed 504 blank checks for Best for Hearing Limited Partnership, an UBO she established for client E.B.

g. On or about May 14, 2007, SUGAR authorized the wire transfer of $213,500 from the Compass Bank account for Aquarius Management for her client J.K.

h. On or about May 25, 2007, SUGAR caused $1,091,348.48 to be wired from Northside Management's Compass Bank account to Surety Title Agency for her client J.S.'s purchase of a vacation home.

i. On or about July 5, 2007, SUGAR transferred $200 from Best for Hearing Limited's Compass Bank account to her own bank account as payment for services rendered in relation to that entity for her client E.B.

j. On or about January 15, 2008, SUGAR deposited or caused to be deposited into her personal account a Postal Money Order for $457 from Reef Management.

k. On or about November 7, 2007, SUGAR wrote and cashed seven checks from the BUBO accounts at Compass Bank for her client Gregory Laurence.

l. On or about April 24, 2008, SUGAR cashed a negotiable instrument for $13,776 from the Compass Bank account for Palm Tree Management.

The foregoing was in violation of Title 18, United State Code, Section 371.

COUNT 2
EVA MELISSA SUGAR AND JERRY ROBERTS
(26 U.S.C. § 7212(a) and 18 U.S.C. § 2 – Corrupt Endeavor to Obstruct or Impede Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws and Aiding and Abetting)

8. The Grand Jury realleges and incorporates paragraph three herein.

9. At all times relevant to the indictment, ROBERTS was a resident of Florida. ROBERTS worked for Roberts Enterprises, a family-owned fundraising business.

10. Beginning on or about November 23,1999, and continuing through on or about April 2008, in the State and District of Colorado and elsewhere, the defendants SUGAR and ROBERTS, aiding and abetting each other, did corruptly endeavor to obstruct and impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws by the following means, among others:

a. ROBERTS paid SUGAR to set up UBOs, associated BUBO bank accounts, and nominee fictitious trust accounts as depositors for the bank accounts. Specifically, SUGAR established Streamside Management, Triumph Management, and Universal Management, each with an associated bank account and several associated fictitious trust entities.

b. SUGAR and ROBERTS identified other individuals, including ROBERTS'S family members, as "managers," "administrative assistants," or other positions for the various management companies and trust entities. These individuals exercised no control over the entities or the assets held in the associated bank accounts. For example, when SUGAR and ROBERTS first opened the BUBO bank accounts, ROBERTS caused his then minor son to be identified as the Administrative Assistant for the fictitious trust entities associated with each management company. ROBERTS'S son also had signatory authority at various times for each of the three management companies. ROBERTS used his son to cash checks drawn from the BUBO bank accounts.

c. SUGAR and ROBERTS caused signature stamps to be created for the third-party signatories on the BUBO bank accounts and authorized facsimile signatures for those individuals.

d. SUGAR also identified herself as the "Managing Director" for the fictitious trust entities with signatory authority for each of the BUBO bank accounts. SUGAR and the third parties were the only individuals with signatory authority for the bank accounts ROBERTS ultimately controlled.

e. ROBERTS used the fictitious trust entities and management companies, along with SUGAR's services, to disguise income paid to him by Roberts Enterprises.

f. ROBERTS used the funds in the BUBO bank accounts to pay for personal expenses, such as credit card payments, mortgage payments, utility and telephone bills, and for cash.

g. During the time period at issue, from November 1999 through April 2008: (i) ROBERTS did not file individual federal income tax returns for calendar years

The foregoing was in violation of Title 26, United State Code, Section 7212(a).

COUNT 3
EVA MELISSA SUGAR
(26 U.S.C. § 7203 – Failure to File Tax Return)

11. During the calendar year 2007, defendant SUGAR, who was a resident of Aurora, Colorado, was self-employed as an attorney in Denver, Colorado. During that year, SUGAR earned income in excess of $8,750, which income required that SUGAR file a federal income tax return on or before April 15, 2008, to any proper officer of the Internal Revenue Service. Defendant SUGAR, well knowing and believing all of the foregoing, knowingly failed to file any return on that income.

The foregoing was in violation of 26, United States Code, Section 7203.

COUNT 4
JERRY ROBERTS
(18 U.S.C. § 1503 – Obstruction of Justice)

12. Beginning on or about May 2, 2008, and continuing thereafter up to and including on or about July 22, 2008, in the State and District of Colorado and elsewhere, ROBERTS corruptly endeavored to influence, obstruct, and impede the due administration of justice, in that, after contact by Internal Revenue Service criminal investigators and the service of Grand Jury subpoenas relating to Streamside Management, Triumph Management, Universal Management, and Roberts Enterprises,

ROBERTS committed the following acts.

a. ROBERTS signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more Special Agents of the IRS a letter that stated "COMPLIANCE HEREWITH IS MANDATORY." The letter enclosed a "Public Service Questionnaire," which demanded the Special Agent's personal information. The questionnaire stated that failure to advise ROBERTS before releasing information regarding him to any person may subject the Special Agents to civil or criminal action.

b. ROBERTS signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more IRS Special Agents a "Notice of Default" claiming the Special Agent had failed to complete the "Public Service Questionnaire" and asserting, among other things, that that failure to respond will result in the Special Agent's agreement to "Commercial Dishonor," that "a Default" be entered against the Special Agent, and to "being a participant in Fraud." The letter also asserted that failure of a foreign agent to mail a certified copy of a "Foreign Agents Registration Statement" with photo identification to ROBERTS "may result in a claim not to exceed One Million Dollars."

c. ROBERTS signed an "Affidavit of Public Notice" and recorded or caused to be recorded with the Polk County Clerk of the Court documents including (i) copies of the "Public Service Questionnaire" and "Notice of Default" mentioned in subparagraphs 12(a) and (b), and (ii) "Disclosure Statements" for IRS Special Agents stating that failure to complete a "Public Servant's Questionnaire" and provide "verified Proof of Claim" would be accepted as the Special Agents' "agreement that a Default be entered against you for Two Hundred Thousands [sic] Dollar and no cent[USD]."

d. ROBERTS mailed or caused to be mailed to one or more IRS Special Agents the recorded documents identified in subparagraph 12(c).

COUNT 5
EVA MELISSA SUGAR AND GREGORY LAURENCE
(26 U.S.C. § 7212(a) and 18 U.S.C. § 2 – Corrupt Endeavor to Obstruct or Impede Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws and Aiding and Abetting)

13. The Grand Jury realleges and incorporates paragraph three herein.

14. At all times relevant to the indictment, Gregory LAURENCE was a resident of Tennessee. LAURENCE was a doctor who operated two businesses, Germantown Aesthetics, LP ("GA") and Germantown Family Care & Obstetrics, LP ("GFCO").

15. Beginning on or about January 4, 2002, and continuing through on or about October 2008, in the State and District of Colorado and elsewhere, the defendants SUGAR and LAURENCE, aiding and abetting each other, did corruptly endeavor to obstruct and impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws by the following means, among others:

a. LAURENCE paid SUGAR to set up UBOs, associated BUBO bank accounts, and nominee fictitious trust accounts as depositors for the bank accounts. Specifically, SUGAR established Jasper Management, Amethyst Management, Capricorn Management, Diamond Management, Emerald Management, Moonstone Management, Pearl Management, Sagittarius Management, and Sapphire Management, each associated with its own fictitious trust entity.

b. LAURENCE caused his wife to be identified as "Assistant Administrator" with signatory authority for the Jasper Management, Emerald Management, Moonstone Management, and Pearl Management bank accounts with authority to use a facsimile signature. SUGAR identified herself as the "Managing Director" for the fictitious trust entities with signatory authority for each of the BUBO bank accounts.

c. SUGAR and LAURENCE'S wife were the only individuals with signatory authority for the bank accounts LAURENCE ultimately controlled. LAURENCE himself was not named in any position for the numerous entities SUGAR and LAURENCE established.

d. SUGAR and LAURENCE caused signature stamps to be created for LAURENCE'S wife and authorized facsimile signatures for the BUBO bank accounts for which she had signatory authority.

e. LAURENCE caused GFCO to issue checks payable to the fictitious trust entities associated with his BUBO bank accounts to make a portion of GFCO's business income appear as legitimate deductions and costs of goods sold, thereby reducing GFCO's taxable income. LAURENCE also caused the GFCO partnership federal income tax returns prepared for calendar years 2002 through 2007 to report those sums as deductions.

f. LAURENCE used the management companies, fictitious trust entities, and SUGAR's services to disguise the existence of GA. LAURENCE did not file federal income tax returns for GA for calendar years 2002 through 2007.

g. LAURENCE used fictitious trust entity Dynamic Health Care Staffing and Jasper Management, along with SUGAR's services, to pay himself and employees of GA and GFCO as "independent contractors" and to avoid paying federal employment taxes. LAURENCE did not issue those employees IRS Forms 1099.

h. Laurence used the funds in the BUBO bank accounts to pay for items including expenses associated with his businesses, school tuition for his children, cars, and credit card payments.

i. During the time period at issue, from January 2002 through April 2008, neither SUGAR nor LAURENCE filed Forms 1065 for the UBO management companies or federal tax returns for any of the fictitious entities.

The foregoing was in violation of Title 26, United State Code, Section 7212(a).

COUNT 6
GREGORY LAURENCE
(18 U.S.C. § 1503 – Obstruction of Justice)

16. Beginning on or about March 5, 2008, and continuing thereafter up to and including on or about January 22, 2009, in the State and District of Colorado and elsewhere, LAURENCE corruptly endeavored to influence, obstruct, and impede the due administration of justice, in that, after contact by Internal Revenue Service criminal investigators and the service of Grand Jury subpoenas relating to GA and GFCO, LAURENCE committed the following acts.

a. LAURENCE signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more

IRS Special Agents, through the United States Attorney's Office, documents including: (1) "Public Servant's Questionnaires" requesting the Special Agents to provide personal information, and (2) "Disclosure Statements" asserting that failure to respond to the questionnaire and failure to answer questions in the statement will result in the Special Agents' agreement to "Commercial Dishonor," that "a Default be entered against you for Two Hundred Thousands [sic] Dollar [USD]," and to "being a participant in Fraud."

b. LAURENCE signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more IRS Special Agents a "Notice of Default and Dishonor of a Lawful Public Servant Questionnaire."

c. LAURENCE failed to comply with Orders to Compel production of the subpoenaed records issued by the United States District Court for the District of Colorado on November 17 and December 8, 2008.

The foregoing was in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1503.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

DEFENDANTS' ANSWERS AND RESPONSES TO PLAINTIFF'S THIRD SET OF DISCOVERY REQUESTS

Defendants hereby submit their Answers and Responses to Plaintiff's Third Set of Discovery Requests as follows:

depend to an extent on what testimony is deemed necessary to refute the testimony of the Plaintiff and his experts consistent with the requirements of Idaho Code §6-1012. Plaintiff has the burden of proof and it is only after that burden has been met can the defense determine what evidence and testimony will be needed to respond. Dr. Kerr has not testified in any matter in the last four years. He is not a retained expert. His curriculum vitae was previously produced and is incorporated by this reference.

Gregory Laurence, M.D.
Germantown Aesthetics
7475 Poplar Pike
Germantown, Tennessee 38138
(901) 624-5605

Subject Matter: Facts of case, applicable standards of health care practice, causation, damages and the care and treatment of Krystal Ballard.

Substance of facts and opinions held: Dr. Laurence is a physician licensed in the state of Tennessee to practice medicine and surgery. Dr. Laurence is board certified in both family practice and laser surgery and has engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery at all times relevant herein. Dr. Laurence will testify as a retained expert witness at the trial. Dr. Laurence will testify that he has actual knowledge of the standard of health care practice applicable to physicians engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery in Boise, Idaho in 2010 and that in his opinion Dr. Kerr met such standard taking into account Dr. Kerr's background, training, experience and field of medical specialization with respect to any and all medical services rendered to the patient.

Dr. Laurence will explain the process he undertook in order to familiarize himself with the standards and practices in Boise and the surrounding area for the types of procedures and treatment performed by Dr. Kerr in this case. Part of the basis for Dr. Laurence's opinions include: his background, training, research, practice and experience in performing cosmetic procedures as a licensed physician, his experiences in the peer review process associated with his hospital staff privileges at Baptist Memorial Hospital and St. Francis Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee, his experience of having performed hundreds of cosmetic surgical procedures, his knowledge of how cosmetic procedures like liposuction and fat transfers were performed in Boise in 2010, his experience in performing a large volume of liposuction and fat transfer procedures, his knowledge of how the Vaser ultrasonic liposuction procedure is performed, how fat transfers/grafting procedures are performed, his knowledge of the types of equipment and instruments needed to perform the nature and types of cosmetic procedures at issue in this case, his knowledge of the scope of practice of cosmetic providers like Dr. Kerr in Boise, Idaho and elsewhere, his knowledge of the types of medical providers who perform cosmetic procedures like the ones at issue in this case and his knowledge of the manner and method by which surgical equipment and surgical procedure facilities are maintained in a sterile fashion. As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence may also explain his training and experience at the University of Tennessee during his residency in family practice in 1992-95 as it relates to sterile operating conditions for the procedures he performed, was taught and observed. He will explain the same matters for his experience in his own aesthetics surgical center which he operates in Germantown, Tennessee from 2003 to the present.

Dr. Laurence will discuss the standard of health care practice employed at his own surgical facility in Tennessee for achieving sterile operating conditions and the disinfection of instruments and equipment and maintaining a sterile operative field and that the similar actions and efforts undertaken by Dr. Kerr as have been described for the procedure on Krystal Ballard in this case were used and exceeded in his opinion. Dr. Laurence will testify that the infection rates described by Dr. Kerr in his deposition and discovery responses are well below average for a cosmetic facility and are essentially zero, with possibly one or two minor cellulitis cases that were easily treated successfully with no adverse consequences. He will comment upon how this is evidence that the sterility procedures employed by the Defendants in this case were appropriate and working properly at the time of the surgery at issue in this case.

Dr. Laurence will testify that during his professional career he has been acquainted with numerous physicians who perform cosmetic procedures that are not plastic surgeons, but rather come from a number of different medical backgrounds including: family practice, anesthesia, general surgery, dermatology and obstetrics and gynecology. He will discuss the training he has been provided in cosmetic surgery by various physicians who are not plastic surgeons. Dr. Laurence has become acquainted with the nature and scope of the practice of these other cosmetic procedure providers and the procedures utilized by them in this specialty, including the procedures utilized for maintaining a sterile field and how to properly clean and maintain the surgical equipment and instruments utilized for cosmetic procedures including the procedures at issue in this case. Dr. Laurence will explain that the standard of health care practice for plastic surgeons is not the standard of health care practice in the same medical specialty as his and Dr. Kerr.

Dr. Laurence will render the opinion that Dr. Kerr had proper training and experience in order to perform the procedures at issue on Krystal Ballard. As part of his testimony, he is expected to refer to the publications, data and documents that have been produced in discovery on this subject and explain the numbers of similar procedures he has performed. Dr. Laurence will explain that there was no requirement, per the standard of health care practice or otherwise, for Dr. Kerr's facility to be certified, inspected or approved by any organization or government agency, which included his autoclave, his clinic and the instruments he used for surgery and that his medical license allowed him to conduct his medical practice and the procedures he performed on Krystal Ballard. He will testify that he was not required to test for spores or mold and that these issues have nothing to do with the case.

During Dr. Laurence's professional career he has received specific training in various lipolysis procedures including traditional, laser assisted and ultrasonic assisted lipolysis. He will testify that he has reviewed the nature and degree of training obtained by Dr. Kerr and that in his opinion Dr. Kerr had adequate training and experience to perform the liposuction and fat transfer procedures on the patient at issue. Dr. Laurence will testify regarding the significant experience he has in performing these types of procedures as part of his cosmetic practice. He will testify that it was appropriate for the procedures at issue to be performed on patients like Krystal Ballard in an office based setting without general anesthesia and that Dr. Kerr had proper facilities, equipment and personnel to do these procedures safely and within the applicable local standard of health care practice. Dr. Laurence will testify that he possesses the professional knowledge and experience that allows him to express the opinion and testimony described in this document.

Dr. Laurence will testify that the fact this patient experienced a post-operative complication like the one alleged in this case which resulted in a patient death does not establish that the standard of practice was violated by Dr. Kerr. He will testify that postoperative infections are not proof of a violation. He will render the opinion that the patient's death was not due to any error or omission on Dr. Kerr's part or the part of anyone associated with his practice. He will discuss his own sterilization techniques, training and experience in this area which will help support his opinion that Dr. Kerr employed the use of proper cleaning and sterilization techniques for his equipment and instruments and that he utilized proper procedures and supplies.

Dr. Laurence will testify regarding the significance of the fact that the procedures Dr. Kerr performed on patients the days following his procedure on Krystal Ballard, starting on July 23, 2010 through July 31, 2010 in which he utilized the same sterile and disinfection procedures he employed in his procedure on Krystal Ballard and there were no infections or infectious conditions with any of the patients. He will discuss how if there had been a failure to adequately sterilize the equipment in question that evidence of that should have shown up not only in all of the operative sites on this patient, but also in all of the operative sites of the subsequent patients which did not occur in this case. Dr. Laurence will similarly discuss the significance of these same matters in regards to the multitude of procedures Dr. Kerr performed before the procedures performed on Krystal Ballard.

As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence will render the opinion that the surgical technique employed by Dr. Kerr during his liposuction and fat transfer procedures did not cause or result in the introduction of any bacteria to the patient. Dr. Laurence actually holds the opinions expressed in this document and will express all opinions stated herein on a more probable than not basis and/or to a reasonable degree of medical certainty.

Dr. Laurence will testify regarding the specific issues set forth in this disclosure, but he will also testify globally that nothing Dr. Kerr elected to do or not do with respect to the medical services provided to Krystal Ballard in Boise in 2010 violated the applicable local standard of health care practice which in turn caused or contributed to any damages or injuries to the patient. Dr. Laurence will testify that the unfortunate death of Krystal Ballard was not and cannot be assumed to be the result of violations of the standard of health care practice.

Dr. Laurence will testify that the standard of health care practice applicable to physicians engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery in Boise in 2010 is established by the local community of physicians engaged in this specialty and the way they typically practice in the community and not by any organization, academic center, publication, foreign physician, or by virtue of any specialty board certification. In this regard, Dr. Laurence will testify regarding his various publications, honors and university appointments as set forth in his curriculum vitae which is hereby incorporated as if set forth in full. He will also discuss his various society memberships which provide him with opportunities to expand his knowledge and networking base in the field of cosmetic surgery including his affiliations with the American Institute of Ultrasound Medicine, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, the American Society of Cosmetic Breast Surgeons, and the National Society of Cosmetic Physicians.

Dr. Laurence will opine that the standard of health care practice is the care typically provided under similar circumstances by Boise physicians engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery in Boise, Idaho in 2010. As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence will express and define the local standard of practice as it existed in Boise in 2010 with respect to the medical issues in this case consistent with this disclosure and any deposition which may subsequently be taken and which is hereby incorporated as if set forth in full. Dr. Laurence holds the opinion and will discuss how compliance with the standard of practice does not guarantee a perfect result and its application and compliance is intended to minimize and hopefully largely reduce undesirable and unintended results. He will explain that the standard of healthcare practice for physicians engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery is not perfect and the records and deposition testimony demonstrate and confirm that no perfect outcome was ever warranted or represented to this patient.

Dr. Laurence will explain how the standard of practice applicable includes, as a major element, aspects of provider judgment as opposed to the application of science which may vary depending on the patient and care circumstances. He will render the opinion that Dr. Kerr provided appropriate post-operative instructions and properly followed the patient and communicated with her and her family. Dr. Laurence will be prepared to testify about his experiences in this regard at trial and why Dr. Kerr's care in this case was consistent with the standards of practice he is held to. As with all operative procedures, the risk of infection is always a possibility and Dr. Laurence will explain that post-operative infection, if it should develop, is an accepted and recognized risk factor that is not due to inappropriate care or violations of the standard of health care practice by the physician and that under the best of circumstances and medical care, infections can and do occur.

Dr. Laurence will render the opinion that Dr. Kerr gave appropriate advice and information to Krystal Ballard in regard to the risk, benefits and options prior to the procedure on July 21, 2010 which is documented in Dr. Kerr's medical records. Dr. Laurence will explain that everything undertaken by Dr. Kerr in his care and treatment of Krystal Ballard is illustrative of, and in compliance with, the standard of health care practice, based on the class of health care provider to which Dr. Kerr belonged and in which capacity he was functioning. Dr. Laurence will explain that the standard of health care practice provides that Dr. Kerr must be judged and evaluated in comparison with similarly trained and qualified physicians of the same class as himself, taking into account his training, experience and field of medical specialization and not by a plastic surgeon which Plaintiff is unfairly trying to do in this case.

As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence will discuss his training and the certifications he obtained in order to become a physician engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery as well as the adequacy and nature of those obtained by Dr. Kerr. He will discuss the care and treatment of the patient as outlined in the patient's medical records and he will discuss the appropriate nature, timing and content of Dr. Kerr's documented conversations and interactions with the patient and her husband.

With respect to the fat injection procedure at issue, Dr. Laurence will discuss and explain to the jury the medical basis upon which a person's own fat may be used to improve the appearance of the body by moving it from an area where it is less needed (usually the thighs or abdomen) to an area that has less tissue volume. He will explain how typically, the transferred fat results in an increase in volume of the body site being treated. He will explain how before the removal procedure begins the areas from where the fat is being removed are injected with a tumescent fluid which helps to minimize bruising and discomfort to the patient. He will explain how and why the adipose tissue or fat is freed and ultimately removed from the body via a cannula placed through a small incision in the patient's skin.

Dr. Laurence will discuss and describe how the adipose tissue is then prepared to be re-injected back into the patient's body and strategically placed into the desired area using either a smaller cannula, or as was done in this case, a needle. He will render the opinion that the manner, method and volume by which Dr. Kerr re-injected the adipose tissue back into the patient was appropriate in all respects. He will explain how some of the fat that is transferred often does not maintain its volume over time, which is often addressed by the physician having to re-inject more adipose tissue into a specific location to achieve the desired end aesthetic result. He will explain how the fat transfer procedure was done using a local anesthetic and that this was consistent with the local standard of practice given the nature and extent of the procedure.

As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence will discuss the entries in Dr. Kerr's records including the first encounter with the patient on July 13, 2010, what treatment she desired, the fact that this was an elective procedure, that it was a purely cosmetic procedure, he will discuss the entries in patient's health history form, the general state of the patient's health and the absence of risk factors for infection preoperatively, the fact that she had previously had a liposuction procedure and desired further treatment of this type. To the extent it is relevant to his opinions, Dr. Laurence will also discuss Dr. Kerr's operative report as well as an explanation of how the procedure was performed, the patient's vital signs and her clinical condition before and after the surgery as well as at the post-operative visit with the patient. He will discuss the adequacy of the Dr. Kerr's post-operative discussions, instructions and directions shared with the patient and then ultimately the discussions he had with patient's husband and aunt. Dr. Laurence will explain that Krystal Ballard appeared to be in good health and without a urinary tract infection before the procedure on July 21, 2010 and there is no evidence that she had a urinary tract infection and that the pre-operative work up of Dr. Kerr was within the standard of health care practice.

Dr. Laurence will discuss the technical aspects of the Vaser liposuction procedure including how the local anesthetic is given, how the tumescent anesthetic is prepared and injected, what it does to the adipose tissue, how the Vaser device operates to liquefy the adipose tissue, how and where the cannulas are placed, the amount of energy applied to the device to effectuate the desired impact on the adipose tissue, and the amount of traction applied to free the adipose tissue. From his unique perspective as a cosmetic surgeon, Dr. Laurence will explain the artistic nature of the liposuction procedure and the laborious aspect of moving the cannula back and forth in order to feather the tissue and achieve the desired aesthetic result which varies depending on the location of the procedure and the body habitus and surgical goals of each patient.

In the process of providing his opinions that the care by Dr. Kerr was appropriate, Dr. Laurence will also explain the manner and method by which the adipose tissue harvested was then drained and prepared for reinjection. He will also discuss how the instruments and equipment are routinely cleaned and sterilized for each procedure, he will discuss these pieces of equipment as well as their various attachments as well as describing the medical equipment which is new versus that which must be re-sterilized for reuse between patients and/or procedures. Dr. Laurence will discuss the pre and post-operative antibiotics administered by Dr. Kerr to the patient and explain why they were appropriate medications to give to the patient as a prophylaxis against infection.

Dr. Laurence will discuss how the patient never appeared infected or septic per the medical records and deposition testimony. He will discuss the expected localized pain patients can expect to experience following a fat transfer procedure. To the extent it becomes relevant to aid in expressing his favorable opinions, Dr. Laurence may also discuss the cardinal signs of infection and how the patient did not have any fever or warmth to the surgical area, there was no oozing of pus or other signs of active drainage from the operative sites, and there was no swelling or signs of a rash or change in condition of the skin surrounding the area or abnormal odor.

Dr. Laurence will discuss the appropriate manner in which Dr. Kerr looked for and then properly documented the absence of signs and symptoms of infection during his postoperative visit on July 23 and in his subsequent discussions with the patient and her family prior to her death. He will testify that he concurs with Dr. Kerr that at no point did the patient present to Dr. Kerr as having an infection, nor did the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr require him to refer the patient, prescribe a different course of medical care or obtain any further diagnostic testing than was done.

Consistent with his background and experience in medicine and surgery, Dr. Laurence will discuss his knowledge of gram negative rods and the fact that such organisms do not exist on or in the skin, nor would they be found on surgical instruments. Instead, they represent a class of bacteria which reside in the urinary tract and bowels of a patient. He will testify that Dr. Kerr had adequate training and experience to perform the surgeries in question, that Dr. Kerr's medical records contain an adequate description of the care rendered and the discussions with the patient, that Dr. Kerr implemented appropriate sterility techniques and conditions for surgery and that he used correct solutions for cleaning and disinfecting instruments and assuring that operative conditions were adequately sterile to guard against the risk of infection. He will testify that postoperative infections can and do occur even under ideal conditions which are not the subject malpractice, but rather as accepted complications which are impossible to prevent.

To the extent the surgical selection is questioned or needs further explanation at trial, Dr. Laurence will be prepared to discuss why the Vaser procedure is an appropriate method of removing unwanted adipose tissue in a patient like Krystal Ballard. As part of his testimony and in order to expand upon his background and experience in cosmetic surgery, Dr. Laurence may offer testimony explaining how the field of laser lipolysis with the use of tumescent anesthesia has developed in recent years. This may include testimony addressing that when considering different types of the body for lipolysis that each area has its own unique geography and involves a degree of physician judgment as to how much material to remove and/or re-inject into each location.

As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence will be prepared to explain the positioning of the patient, incision sites, pre and post-operative photos, patient behavior, choice of instruments, his artistic eye and attention to detail, management of patient expectations, and patient education and counseling from the informed consent phase through the postoperative follow up period. He is expected to utilize at trial various anatomical illustrations as well as various cannulas and related instrumentation for the procedures at issue including those depicted in the discovery photos of instruments and supplies produced to date.

As part of his testimony, he will explain how Vaser Lipo involves a minimally invasive technique to selectively break apart and gently remove unwanted fat. He will explain how the targeted area is injected with a special saline solution known as tumescent fluid which numbs the target area and shrinks local blood vessels. This also temporarily expands the volume of the targeted area, making fat cells easier to remove. With the use of exemplars, he will demonstrate how small-diameter probes are then inserted into the body through small incisions. He will explain how by way of using a resonating high ultrasonic frequency, the probes literally shake loose fat cells — while leaving blood vessels, nerves and connective tissues unharmed. The loose fat cells mix with the tumescent fluid, which is then removed from the body using gentle suction. After the surgery, patients are prescribed a recovery regimen to promote maximum skin retraction, smoother results with minimal recovery time compared to traditional liposuction.

Dr. Laurence may also discuss his knowledge of the history of tumescent technique liposuction which was started by dermatologists, not plastic surgeons. As part of his explanation of the surgery at issue, he will describe how the affected area is expected to drain postoperatively, the types of dressings placed on the affected area, the instructions given to the patient, he will discuss the cardinal signs of an infection and how Dr. Kerr's records and deposition evidence that he specifically and appropriately evaluated and questioned the patient and then documented in his records regarding these issues on each encounter he had with the patient. He will discuss the amount of time it takes to perform the procedures in question and that there was nothing usual or out of character regarding the amount of time it took Dr. Kerr to perform the procedures on July 21, 2010.

As outlined above, Dr. Laurence will discuss his knowledge of the various cosmetic organizations to which he belongs and/or has knowledge of, what they offer their members and the opportunities to associate with colleagues and obtain continuing education in this emerging field. Dr. Laurence will explain the adequacy of the postoperative evaluation Dr. Kerr undertook on July 23, 2010 for evaluating Krystal Ballard and assessing whether there was any clinical evidence of infection of the surgical sites, including absence of any abnormal odor or other evidence or suggestion of infection of any of the surgical sites.

He will discuss his review and comments of the autopsy record and the patient's subsequent treatment records. By way of example, Dr. Laurence is expected to discuss the hospital records from Elmore Medical Center and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, including the laboratory reports showing the patient had 3+ bacteria in her urine. Based on his experience in family practice, he will render the opinion that this laboratory finding is consistent with, and provides strong evidence of, an infectious process located within the patient's bladder. He will explain how the bladder is also an area wherein gram negative rod bacteria are known to populate and exist in the face of an infection.

Dr. Laurence will also comment upon the significance from his perspective regarding how the patient did not present with any fever, but had a WBC count of 14.7. He will discuss causes for an elevated WBC count including surgery, stress and dehydration. He will comment upon the fact that the autopsy failed to address the patient's bladder or urinary tract (aside from the kidneys) or perform any microscopic examination of that organ to address the nature of the bacteria identified in the positive UA performed at Elmore Medical Center on July 25, 2010. He is also expected to discuss the patient's elevated creatinine and how this can be signs of dehydration as well as the evidence that the patient's kidneys were not functioning properly.

Dr. Laurence will address the vague and confusing nature of the autopsy report wherein the pathologist at autopsy referred to an increase in the amount of acute inflammatory cells within tissue from the surgical sites, and how it is not clear which surgical sites he is referring to in his report. He will discuss how it is not clear where the tissue sections where harvested from on the patient. Dr. Laurence will render the opinion, more likely than not, that the gram negative bacterial rods were introduced into the patient's surgical site sometime after Dr. Kerr's surgical procedure rather than being introduced during the procedure.

He will comment upon the significance of the finding by Dr. Kerr that when he saw the patient on July 23, two days post operatively, he did not observe any evidence of cellulitis or redness in the surgical site. He will discuss what it means to him as a physician that the patient repeatedly concealed this procedure from her husband, her employer and that she engaged in noncompliant behavior despite what she had been told both in writing and verbally about how to care for herself and what she agreed to do. He will discuss the challenging position the patient elected to place herself and her health care provider in by erroneously reporting to her husband that she had simply fallen and injured her back and falsely claimed this was the source of her pain rather than admit she had cosmetic surgery performed.

In this regard, he will discuss how the patient admitted she was not taking her medications because she did not want proof of them to show up in any drug screen she might take with the military. He will discuss that when a patient elects to disobey her health care provider that there is only so much the physician can do and that the patient is essentially interfering with and limiting the physician's ability to provide her with care and to make decisions which may have made a difference in her overall outcome. He will discuss concerns regarding whether the patient was properly changing her bandages and caring for herself as instructed and how during any of these times would have been an opportunity for the bacteria in question to be introduced into her system.

Dr. Laurence will testify that Dr. Kerr and his employees followed the appropriate sterile technique in regards to the procedure he performed on Krystal Ballard. He will explain that there are no absolutes with a sterile technique and that one can do everything right and still have situations where unwanted bacteria can become introduced into the surgical site, but that given the gram negative rods claimed to have been identified at autopsy, this is not what occurred in this case. He will discuss the patient's admission that she was not taking the narcotic pain medication Norco and was instead taking the non-narcotic drug Motrin which did not appear to be providing the patient with adequate pain control.

Dr. Laurence will render the opinion that the minimal amount of bruising and edema observed on July 23 was consistent with what he would expect to see at that point postoperatively. He will testify that the standard of practice did not require Dr. Kerr to obtain a complete blood count on the patient on July 23 in order to determine what her white count was at that time. He will discuss his background, training and experience in the use and regular implementation of the sterile technique in his practice in order to lay a foundation for his opinions as to the adequacy of Dr. Kerr's sterile technique. Dr. Laurence will discuss how liposuction and fat transfers are office based procedures which are not required to be performed in a hospital setting, nor are hospital privileges required in order to perform such procedures. Dr. Laurence will render the opinion that Dr. Kerr was not required, nor does the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr, require that his facility be certified or approved by any accreditation facility such as the AAACH or AAAASF or any governmental agency.

As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence will render the opinion that Dr. Kerr's procedure room was properly prepared for surgery and to protect and preserve an appropriate sterile field. He will discuss the autoclave at issue, how it operates and how it helps Dr. Kerr maintain a sterile field for his procedures. He will discuss the areas around the patient which are considered part of the sterile field depending on the nature and type of procedure at issue. He will discuss the operation and use of the Vaser ultrasonic lipolysis machine utilized for the procedure in this case. He will explain how the tumescent lidocaine is mixed, prepared and injected into the patient. He will explain how the Vaser procedure is done with the device in place under the skin without direct visualization. He will discuss how Dr. Kerr documented having harvested 400 cc of fat from the patient's anterior abdomen, 200 cc of fat from her right lateral waist flank and 200 cc of fat from the patient's left lateral waist flank. He will discuss how the Vaser in this case was utilized for less than eleven minutes and that this time was appropriate for the nature of the procedure.

As it relates to rebutting the testimony of the Plaintiff's experts, Dr. Laurence will explain how the fat was injected into the patient using only a needle and syringe and that there were no incisions made into the patient during the injection phase of the procedure. He will testify that it was proper and acceptable technique for the same needles to be used to inject the fat into both the left and right buttocks of the patient. He will discuss the adequacy of the informed consent discussion Dr. Kerr had with the patient including the content of the informed consent document signed by the patient in this case. He will discuss the risk of infection as being a specifically consented risk of the lipolysis and fat injection procedure. He will discuss how the consent form discusses with the patient both pre and post treatment instructions and how it warns the patient that if they fail to comply with these instructions may increase the possibility that the patient will develop complications.

Dr. Laurence will challenge the foundation as well as rebut the opinions of the expert witnesses listed by the Plaintiff. Regarding the issue of consent, he will testify that Dr. Kerr discussed with the patient the nature and the extent of the risks normally attendant to the procedure in question such that the giving of consent by the patient was valid in all respects. As part of his testimony, he may also discuss the adequacy of Dr.

Kerr's preoperative clinical examination including evaluation of the regions to be lipo-contoured including review for hernias, scars, asymmetries, cellulite, stretch marks, the quality of the skin and its elasticity, the presence of stria and dimpling and the location of fat deposits. He will rebut any testimony by Plaintiff's experts that Dr. Kerr improperly performed the lipolysis procedure, the fat injection procedure, that Dr. Kerr improperly sterilized his equipment or that Dr. Kerr did anything to cause the patient's death.

As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence may also address and explain the weight changes of Krystal Ballard. On July 23, 2010 she weighed 135 pounds. On July 25, 2010 at Elmore Medical Center she weighed 130 pounds. At autopsy on July 26, 2010 she weighed 180 pounds. He will explain the medical reasons and significance of these changes in weight. He may also comment upon the entries in the records from Elmore Medical Center for July 25, 2010, wherein the treating physician evaluated the buttocks and abdomen of Krystal Ballard and noted little induration of the skin and no redness, warmth or skin sensitivity and delayed the administration of IV antibiotics until 4 ½ hours after admission. At Elmore, cardiac ejection fraction was only 17% and at Saint Alphonsus on July 25, 2010, central venous pressure was measured at 20 which is very high and proof of fluid overload. To the extent it relates to his opinions on causation, Dr. Laurence will explain these factors and their relative significance in terms of the possible reasons for the death of Krystal Ballard.

Dr. Laurence will testify that the laboratory data of Elmore Medical Center and the clinical findings are indicative of urinary tract infection the developed after his procedure of July 21, 2010 and if gram negative rods were in fact present at autopsy in certain locations, they came from the urinary tract of Krystal Ballard or her intestinal tract and were not introduced during his surgical procedure. As part of his testimony, it is expected that Dr. Laurence will explain pertinent anatomy, infectious processes, pathophysiology of infections, treatment for infections, gram negative rods, types of bacteria, reasons why the blood cultures and urine cultures were negative for growth, antibiotics used for the care and the comments of Krystal Ballard regarding that drugs would show up on drug test by the Air Force.

As part of his testimony, Dr. Laurence will discuss the patient's anatomy including the location of nerves, blood supply, adipose tissue, organs as well as the body's response to surgery, infection, pain medication and antibiotics. This may include extensive testimony by way of demonstrative exhibits depicting general anatomy and/or pictures of the patient and/or of the surgical equipment itself. Dr. Laurence will testify that even in hindsight the patient in this case did not present with any increased risk for infection that would have raised any concern about her undergoing the procedures on July 21, 2010. He will testify that at the time of Dr. Kerr's procedure on July 21, 2010, there was no evidence of a urinary tract infection of Krystal Ballard.

Data and other information considered and summary of qualifications: In forming his opinions, Dr. Laurence has relied upon his own unique training and experience as a licensed physician engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery in Tennessee in treating, diagnosing, managing and caring for patients like Krystal Ballard, his observations of the habits and practices of other cosmetic surgeons and care providers, his knowledge of the Boise, Idaho standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr in 2010 and his knowledge that it is within Dr. Kerr's specialty and capability to perform the procedures in question as part of his practice of medicine, and his membership and participation in various medical associations and organizations as set forth herein. The data upon which his opinions are based include his medical education, training, skill, experience, his experience practicing cosmetic surgery, his review of the care and treatment experiences with similar lipolysis and fat injection cases over the course of his career in medicine.

Dr. Laurence's opinions are also based upon the findings of various other health care providers for the patient, the results and values of various laboratory studies and other testing and observation, treatment plans, consultations, referrals and recommendations for treatment for the patient derived from such medical services and interactions before, during and after the care rendered by Dr. Kerr as described in all medical records, discovery responses and depositions taken. Dr. Laurence's professional background and qualifications are set forth in his attached curriculum vitae which is incorporated herein by reference.

As part of his review of this case, and for purposes of forming his opinions, he has considered and reviewed the depositions taken to date including Dr. Kerr's, employees of Silk Touch, and the Plaintiff's. He has also reviewed and considered Dr. Kerr's medical records, the records of Elmore Medical Center, Elmore Ambulance Service, Life Flight, Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, the Ada County Coroner's Office and the Plaintiff's expert witness disclosure. In the event further depositions or medical records are produced, they will also be considered. The data and information considered by Dr. Laurence in forming his opinions consist of the medical records of Dr. Kerr, Silk Touch Laser, Elmore Medical Center, Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, Ada County Coroner, Autopsy Report of Dr. Groben, documents previously produced for the training, received by Dr. Kerr, including seminars attended, photographs of the equipment used by Dr. Kerr in his operation, photographs of Krystal Ballard taken by Dr. Kerr, autoclave of Dr. Kerr, curriculum vitae of Dr. Kerr, records of Silk Touch regarding procedures that involved no infections, anatomical illustrations, all the documents and material described and noted in this disclosure. The exhibits to be used for support of his opinions included the items and documents described above, his curriculum vitae, and his qualifications are set forth in his curriculum vitae. His publications are listed in his curriculum vitae. His fees for testifying are $500 per hour for deposition and $4,000 per day for trial plus travel expenses. In the last four (4) years, he has testified at trial in the case of Chopra v. Medi-Spa of Memphis, Shelby County, TN.

Dr. Laurence reserves the right to rely as further support for his opinions on medical literature related to any of the subjects set forth in this disclosure as discovery continues. Dr. Laurence reserves the right not to offer all or any of the opinions set forth in this disclosure as it as an attorney prepared document and is intentionally worded broadly in order to comply with rule 26(b)(4). The ultimate testimony to be offered at trial will depend to an extent on what testimony is deemed necessary to refute the testimony of the Plaintiff and his experts consistent with the requirements of Idaho Code §6-1012. Plaintiff has the burden of proof and it is only after that burden has been met can the defense determine what evidence and testimony will be needed to respond.

CERTIFICATION OF DEFENSE COUNSEL PER THE AMENDED NOTICE OF TRIAL SETTING AND ORDER GOVERNING FURTHER PROCEEDINGS DATED SEPTEMBER 9, 2013

Undersigned counsel for the Defendants hereby certifies that the Court ordered exchange of information conference with counsel for the Plaintiff was conducted

October 22, 2013 and that a discussion was held on matters specified by Rules 16(a) and 16(b), I.R.C.P. and the attorneys for the parties engaged in an exchange of information. The subject of settlement or alternate dispute resolution was brought up by Defense counsel and discussed. For the first time in the history of the case, counsel for the Plaintiff said that his client would agree to mediation, even though the trial is scheduled to start November 5, 2013. Defense counsel had to decline the untimely suggestion of mediation due to the date the trial was to start, the impossibility of arranging mediation on such short notice and the fact that the bulk of the trial preparations had been completed and that defense counsel would be completely occupied with continued trial preparations.

MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTIONS IN LIMINE

This Memorandum is submitted in opposition to Plaintiff's fifteen Motions in Limine filed on October 22, 2013. For ease of organization, this Memorandum tracks the order of Motions filed by the Plaintiff.

GA

I. The possibility that the Plaintiff may remarry

Plaintiff contends that the defense should be precluded from offering any argument, testimony or evidence pertaining to the issue of whether he will ever remarry claiming that it is irrelevant and improper speculation. However, to the extent the Plaintiff and his experts seeks damages from the Defendants for increased costs associated with caring for a home, the defense should be entitled to ask questions to both the Plaintiff and his experts how the damages picture would change if the plaintiff remarried.

Plaintiff cites the case of Westfall v. Caterpillar, Inc., 120 Idaho 918, 821 P.2d 973 (1991) in support of his claim that the defense should be precluded from offering any evidence at trial regarding the probability that Charles Ballard may remarry. Westfall dealt with the death of a log skidder operator and a products liability case involving a metal brush guard on a piece of Caterpillar equipment. Of the many issues on appeal, one dealt with whether the district court properly granted the Plaintiff's Motion in Limine precluding the defendant from offering evidence that the plaintiff had remarried since the death of her husband. Id. at 922. The appellate court agreed that the district court did not abuse its discretion in precluding the admission of such evidence at trial.

While the Westfall case can be interpreted to stand for the proposition that it is not proper to argue that the jury should consider the fact that the decedent's surviving spouse had a possibility of remarrying, this is not the purpose for which such testimony or evidence would be offered by the defense. Instead, the defense contends that in a wrongful death action, it is proper to impeach an expert witness who is testifying on the alleged amount of economic damages by reviewing the assumptions that underlie expert's opinion. This would include asking whether the expert was assuming that the surviving spouse would or would not remarry.

The defense should be allowed to cross examine the Plaintiff's damage expert regarding the fact that in his loss of consortium claim he is assuming Charles Ballard does not get remarried. This was the very issue addressed by the Michigan Supreme Court in the case of Schaible v. Myers, 411 Mich. 704, 311 NW2d 297 (Mich. 1981). See Schaible Decision attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motions in Limine as Exhibit A.

Schaible involved a motor vehicle accident where liability was admitted. During the trial, the plaintiff called a damages expert and on cross examination defense counsel questioned the assumptions underlying the expert's opinions and conclusions. Id. at 299. One of the assumptions the expert was asked related to whether or not the plaintiff would remarry or things would stay the way they were until his death. Id. Reversing the decision of the Michigan Court of Appeals, the court stated:

> The jury was not told to take into account the possibility that the plaintiff might remarry. Rather it listened to an exposition of the many assumptions upon which the expert witness relied in making his calculations of the plaintiff's economic loss. Such an exposition is necessary to an intelligent understanding and evaluation of the worth of the expert's opinion.
> Unlike the situation in Wood, this expert's assumption concerning remarriage was of interest to the defendants solely because of its effect on the expert's opinion as to the amount of economic damages. It was proper for defendant to examine fully the assumptions which underlay the expert's opinion. By calling into question the worth of an expert's many assumptions, defense counsel can seek to show that what appears to be the opinion of an expert is no more than conjecture which the jury can then be urged to ignore.

Schaible, 311 N.W.2d at 299-300 (emphasis added).

Because this issue was never before the court in Westfall, Plaintiff cannot fairly interpret that decision so broadly as to preclude the defense from doing precisely what was approved by the court in Schaible. In this case, the Plaintiff's expert Cornelius Hofman, has included predicted losses for financial support and household services based on the assumption that the plaintiff will never remarry. See assessment of economic loss report of the GEC Group attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Exhibit B. Regardless of whether or not the Plaintiff does remarry, the defense should be entitled for purposes of cross examination to address the assumptions Mr. Hofman made to show, just like the court in Schaible discussed as to whether "what appears to be the opinion of an expert is no more than conjecture which the jury can then be urged to ignore." Id. For this reason, to the extent the Plaintiff's Motion in Limine is overbroad and seeks to preclude any such reference regarding the probability of remarriage, it should be denied.

II. Krystal Ballard's purported noncompliance

This entire section of Plaintiff's brief raises complaints related to factual issues which go to the weight the jury should give to the evidence as opposed to the legal question of whether it should be admissible. The defense contends this is not the proper subject of a motion in limine. Plaintiff's brief identifies numerous instances of noncompliance by the decedent as identified in both the medical records and by communications with Dr. Kerr, but then claims that the evidence is not sufficient to allow any of it to be presented to a jury. Instead, Plaintiff takes the position that the defense should be precluded from presenting any evidence whatsoever of patient noncompliance.

The jury is entitled to hear issues which related to the patient care involved in this case which include repeated acts of noncompliance. For example, the evidence in this case will show that the patient failed to present at Dr. Kerr's office with someone to drive her home following the procedure as she had been told, she failed to take her narcotic pain medications, she failed to tell her husband she had the procedure so he could help care for her at home, she did not refrain from physical activities as she was told to do after surgery, she misrepresented to her husband that she had fallen down stairs causing her to be sore rather than telling him the truth about her procedure and why she was in pain, she did not want to take any medications that may show up on a drug test by the military, in part, because she failed to inform anyone at the military as she was required to do that she was going to have the surgery performed to begin with, she failed to return or follow up with Dr. Kerr when her condition worsened, she never told her husband about her prior liposuction procedure and she failed to present to the hospital in Mountain Home until her condition had massively deteriorated. All of these issues the jury should be entitled to hear about when presented properly. It is not each of these events in isolation that makes them nearly as relevant as when they are all combined, at which point they aptly illustrate a pattern of behavior on behalf of the patient to conceal her condition and to prevent others from being able to assist her.

Plaintiff argues the fact the patient was initially prescribed narcotic pain medication by Dr. Kerr to be taken every four hours or as needed for pain, but then asked for a non-narcotic pain medication is wholly irrelevant and therefore inadmissible at trial. Plaintiff seeks to look at this issue standing alone as opposed to taking it in conjunction with all the other issues outlined above. It is not disputed that the patient was within her right to take something for pain other than the prescribed narcotic pain medication. Physicians do not force patients to take any medication, but rather they prescribe them for a condition and expect the patient will comply with the physician orders. The fact that the patient elected to take the nonnarcotic pain medication because she was concerned about a narcotic drug showing up on a drug screen makes it relevant because it is proof that she did not inform her employer that she was having this procedure done. This means that the patient had not told her employer that she would need to be on light duty and not be able to participate in routine physical training exercises which the patient later admitted she had overdone her physical activities contrary to the instructions given to her by Dr. Kerr. All of these actions are not irrelevant as Plaintiff so desperately argues, but rather, taken together they establish this pattern of patient noncompliance by the patient.

The defense does not have the burden of proof and is entitled to present evidence of noncompliance by the patient as a basis for why the standard of practice was not violated in this case. Plaintiff's assertion that the defense "noncompliance theory rests upon irrelevant, highly prejudicial, factually unsupported, speculative and casually disconnected information" is simply not true. The medical records document issues of noncompliance that the jury should be allowed to consider. This is particularly true considering the records themselves will be in evidence and explained to the jury. The jury should be allowed to hear Dr. Kerr and his experts testify that they had never before had a patient following a liposuction procedure ask what medications a patient could take that would not show up on a drug test. The Plaintiff himself admits he did not know the patient was having the procedure done.

Why all of these actions were taken or not taken by the patient and whether she put her vanity and secrecy above her recovery will be up to the jury to conclude. In this regard, Plaintiff's brief on this issue does nothing more than to point out areas of perceived factual weakness that can easily be advanced at trial. Plaintiff's counsel will be free to bring up on cross examination with each witness the very issues raised in his brief as to why the jury should give certain evidence regarding noncompliance and/or concealment little or no weight. Furthermore, where the proper support for some aspect of patient noncompliance is deemed speculative, the court is well capable of ruling upon an appropriate objection at that time. Contrary to the Plaintiff's contention, the defendants are not limited to only being able to advance evidence of patient noncompliance solely for the purpose of establishing a comparative fault defense at trial, nor is such evidence only admissible if it directly caused the patient's death. Plaintiff cites no controlling case authority for such a proposition.

Rather, the jury is entitled to consider this evidence in connection with evaluating whether or not the Defendants violated the standard of health care practice and whether the actions of the patient impacted the medical care she received and the decisions by her health care providers. In this regard, the physicians, as expert witnesses, are entitled to discuss their habit, custom and experience in treating patients following cosmetic surgery and how issues of noncompliance both generally and specifically in this case, impact their practice decisions and compliance with the standard of practice. It would therefore be improper to invoke a wholesale prohibition, at the outset of the trial, as to any evidence of patient noncompliance. As a result, the plaintiff's motion on this issue should be denied.

III. Absence of infections involving other patients of Dr. Kerr Plaintiff seeks an order precluding the defense from being able to advance as proof in this case that the patient did not suffer from an infection caused by a breach in sterility associated with cleaning the reusable surgical equipment since there have been no other such cases in the years of Dr. Kerr's practice. In support of his Motion in Limine, Plaintiff advances two arguments: 1) that opinions involving Dr. Kerr's lack of infections were not timely disclosed by the defense and that should therefore be precluded; and 2) that evidence of Dr. Kerr's infection rates are irrelevant and should therefore be excluded. As outlined below, Plaintiff's motion fails on both counts.

Many of the allegations in Plaintiff's complaint and expert witness disclosures relate to the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilization of reusable medical equipment. See Plaintiff's Complaint and Expert Disclosures attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Exhibits C and D. On this issue, the defense has consistently brought up throughout this litigation that Dr. Kerr has never had any issues with breach of sterility or equipment failures causing post-operative infections regarding any of his liposuction patients. Indeed, Plaintiff's brief at page 13 acknowledges this very issue was addressed during the deposition of Dr. Kerr taken all the way back in January of this year. More to the point, however, this information and the expert opinions related to this issue were timely set forth in the defense expert witness disclosures. For example, the defense expert witness disclosure served on Plaintiff's counsel on June 3, 2013, contained multiple opinions regarding the lack of postoperative infection rates to be addressed by the defense experts.

Dr. Kerr's expert disclosure at page 6 of exhibit O attached to the Affidavit of Plaintiff's Counsel Motion in Limine:

> He will testify that he employed the use of proper cleaning and sterilization techniques for his equipment and instruments and that he utilized proper procedures and supplies. Dr. Kerr will explain the procedures he performed on patients the days following his procedure on Krystal Ballard, starting on July 23, 2010 through July 31, 2010 in which he utilized the same sterile and disinfection procedures he employed in his procedure on Krystal Ballard and there were no infections or infectious conditions with any of the patients. He will explain the same matters in regard to the multitude of procedures her performed before the procedure he performed on Krystal Ballard.

Dr. Kerr's Expert Disclosure at page 14 of exhibit O attached to the Affidavit of Plaintiff's Counsel Motion in Limine:

> Dr. Kerr will render the opinion, more likely than not, that the gram negative bacterial rods, if they existed, were introduced into the patient's surgical site sometime after the procedure rather than being introduced during the procedure. He has never had a patient experience such an infection in all his years. Dr. Kerr will testify that few of his patients who have undergone a lipolysis procedure have ever experienced any kind of post-operative infection and none of those patients died and all of them were diagnosed based on clinical observation. These were limited cellulitis based on clinical suspicion and not based on a culture result. Dr. Kerr will explain that if the opinions of Dr. Dean Sorensen are valid, there should have been other infections of patients before and after the procedure on Krystal Ballard, and there were not.

Dr. Laurence's expert disclosure at page 24 of exhibit O attached to the Affidavit of Plaintiff's Counsel Motion in Limine:

> Dr. Laurence will discuss the standard of health care practice employed at his own surgical facility in Tennessee for achieving sterile operating conditions and the disinfection > of instruments and equipment and maintaining a sterile operative field and that the similar actions and efforts undertaken by Dr. Kerr as have been described for the procedure on Krystal Ballard in this case were used and exceeded in his opinion. Dr. Laurence will testify that the infection rates described by Dr. Kerr in his deposition and discovery responses are well below average for a cosmetic facility and are essentially zero, with possibly one or two minor cellulitis cases that were easily treated successfully with no adverse consequences. He will comment upon how this is evidence that the sterility procedures employed by the Defendants in this case were appropriate and working properly at the time of the surgery at issue in this case.

> [He] will testify regarding the significance of the fact that the procedures Dr. Kerr performed on patients the days following his procedure on Krystal Ballard, starting on July 23, 2010 through July 31, 2010 in which he utilized the same sterile and disinfection procedures he employed in his procedure on Krystal Ballard and there were no infections or infectious conditions with any of the patients. He will discuss how if there had been a failure to adequately sterilize the equipment in question that evidence of that should have shown up not only in all of the operative sites on this patient, but also in all of the operative sites of the subsequent patients which did not occur in this case. [He] will similarly discuss the significance of these same matters in regards to the multitude of procedures Dr. Kerr performed before the procedures performed on Krystal Ballard.

Dr. Lundeby's expert disclosure at page 64 of exhibit O attached to the Affidavit of Plaintiff's Counsel Motion in Limine:

> Dr. Lundeby will testify that the infection rates described by Dr. Kerr in his deposition and discovery responses are well below average for a cosmetic facility and are essentially zero, with possibly one or two minor cellulitis cases that were easily treated successfully with no adverse consequences. He will comment upon how this is evidence that the sterility procedures employed by the Defendants in this case were adequate and working properly at the time of the surgery at issue in this case.

Although he certainly could have asked each of the defense experts about this issue during depositions (since he deposed all of them), the only defense expert that Plaintiff's counsel elected to question regarding infection rates was Dr. Lundeby:

> Q. Okay. It says, "Dr. Lundeby will testify that the infection rates described by Dr. Kerr in his deposition and discovery responses are well below average for a cosmetic facility and are essentially zero" and it talks about some other things. But as far as your knowledge of infection rates, have you been provided -- Well, first of all, do you have an understanding whether or not Dr. Kerr tracks his patient complications in some type of written documentation?
>
> A. I'm thinking back to his deposition, and without reviewing it, I think that he said that they tracked it but not in written form.
>
> Q. Okay. I mean have you been -- I mean I know you brought everything that you've seen. You've not seen Dr. Kerr's patient charts from other patients before or after Krystal Ballard's procedure, correct?
>
> A. No.

See Depo. of Dr. Lundeby, p. 58, ll 1-18 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion in Limine as Ex. O.

The above disclosure and deposition excerpts totally rebut Plaintiff's false claims that this issue was somehow not timely disclosed in discovery in this case. The fact that the defense experts have not reviewed all of the other individual patient charts for Dr. Kerr's other liposuction patients does not impact the admissibility of the infection rates issue before the jury. Instead, as with much of Plaintiff's Motions in Limine, this simply goes to the weight the Plaintiff can argue the jury should assign it. The fact that Plaintiff does not like the trial exhibit which the defense prepared and produced early which merely demonstrates the number of patients and the area of the body where the liposuction was performed, does not change the fact that the defense opinions on this issue were timely disclosed.

This leaves the second argument advanced by Plaintiff regarding whether data relating to the absence of infections is relevant to the issues in this case involving the death of Krystal Ballard. In this regard, the court need look no farther than the testimony of Plaintiff's own expert, Dr. Sorensen. Dr. Sorensen is a plastic surgeon practicing medicine in Boise. During his August 21, 2013 deposition he gave the following testimony:

> Q. Okay. Have you formed an opinion as to what is the best evidence that a doctor utilizes appropriate sterile conditions during surgery, disinfectant procedures with equipment, operating room, and the entire area where the procedure is done, cleansing of instruments -- what's the best proof that that is being done appropriately? What would be the best proof?
>
> A. I think lack of complications would be the best answer.

See Sorensen depo p. 152, ll 6-16. (emphasis added), attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. E.

Per the expert testimony of Dr. Sorensen, he has made it clear that the best evidence of whether a physician is using appropriate sterile technique and engaging in proper cleaning, disinfecting and sterilization of his instruments is by looking at his rate of complications – the very evidence that Plaintiff is arguing is irrelevant. Due in part to the above testimony by Dr. Sorensen, the defense prepared a trial exhibit which simply summarizes records in order to demonstrate the lack of complications by the Defendants for any patients following liposuction and/or fat transfer procedures. This exhibit simply summarizes for the jury the timely disclosed expert opinions of both Dr. Kerr and the defense experts which Dr. Sorensen's own testimony vouches for in terms of its key importance to the standard of practice issues in this case.

The ancillary arguments advanced by Plaintiff's counsel that he has not been provided with the medical records for all of Dr. Kerr's other liposuction patients or that he desires to challenge and/or further depose Dr. Kerr's wife regarding her ability to assist with compiling any prior surgical data does not impact the admissibility of this issue.[1] Again, it goes to the weight the evidence should be given by a jury and the arguments Plaintiff's counsel can advance as to why such evidence should not be credible as he has argued in his brief. Plaintiff should not be allowed to get around the fact that his own expert clearly states that the infection rates by Dr. Kerr are the "best evidence" of whether they are properly cleaning their equipment.

This is precisely how hospitals and clinics review their sterility protocols and whether they are being followed is by looking at infection rates of not one, but large groupings of patients to look for trends and patterns. This is powerful testimony which directly contradicts and belies Plaintiff's argument that other patients' alleged lack of infections is somehow irrelevant for purposes of establishing whether Defendants satisfied the standard of practice as to Krystal Ballard. Indeed, this was discussed by Plaintiff's counsel with the defense infectious disease expert, Dr. Thomas Coffman, during his deposition when he stated:

Q. So to compare infection rates at a hospital that might > have orthopedic procedures, abdominal procedures, bowel procedures and comparing it to a facility like Silk Touch that may do liposuction and fat transfer is kind of like comparing apples and oranges in a sense; correct?

> A. Yeah. We would only -- we don't really try to compare hospital-wide stuff. We look at specific surgery types. So we'd look at joint replacements. We look at spine fusions versus simple laminectomies, mastectomies, breast reconstructions, intra-abdominal cases. And we look at those separately. We don't try and group everything together because the rates are so variable.

See Depo. of Dr. Thomas Coffman, at p. 97, lls 6 to 21 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motions in Limine as Ex. F.

All of the defense experts, as well as the Plaintiff's lone standard of practice expert will testify that if Dr. Kerr and his staff were engaging in improper cleaning, disinfecting and sterilization techniques of medical equipment that they should have a clear history of other patients suffering from post-operative infections related to any alleged breach in sterility. The failure to properly clean and sterilize medical equipment does not present itself as an isolated problem that occurs only one time. This is exactly why one would expect to see a breach of sterility involving at least several procedures right before and/or right after the one at issue.

The fact that there were no other cases of any alleged breach in sterility or post-operative infection is strong evidence that the defendants were acting in compliance with the standard of practice associated with the cleaning, disinfecting and sterility of the medical equipment at issue in this case. Plaintiff provides no case authorities from any jurisdiction wherein infection rates were deemed irrelevant and therefore inadmissible for the purpose advanced in this case.

Also noticeably absent from Plaintiff's argument on this issue is what more he would have asked at a further deposition of Ms. Kerr. Furthermore, when the defense refused to produce Susie Kerr for a second deposition, Plaintiff was informed he was welcome to take this issue before the court, but failed to do so. Now, he complains that the defense is somehow unfairly "ambushing" him when the reality is that he seeks to have the infection rates excluded at trial simply because he does not like the fact that the information identified as the "best evidence" by his own expert substantially hurts his case. Furthermore, Plaintiff's counsel had every opportunity to question Susie Kerr about this issue during her deposition.

> Q. Okay. Yesterday there was a discussion -- Mr. Quane had represented that you had compiled data on the number of liposuctions that had been performed, I think, through July 20 of 2010 as well as the number of fat transfers that had been performed by Dr. Kerr through July 20, 2010. Did you compile that data?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. Okay. Where did those numbers come from? I know one was 199, I think, liposuctions 25 and 33 fat transfers
> . . . . .
>
> Q. Where did that information come from?
>
> A. Just from our database.
> Q. What kind of database do you maintain that would compile that information?
>
> A. The database that we run our transactions through.
>
> Q. Kind of explain that to me. How would you know -- If you've got this database and you're trying to find out how many liposuctions, how do you make a query into your database to identify which procedures were liposuction procedures?
>
> A. So they would be named "liposuction" or "fat transfer." So we would be able to pretty much -- pretty accurately be able to figure out a number of lipos, number of fat transfers.

Q. Do you keep some kind of running total as part of your business operations?

A. No, we don't keep a running total.

Q. Okay. Did you have to look—

A. I would have to go back and look.

Q. Okay. I mean, are these within the data for each patient and you'd have to look at each patient and say, "What did we do for them," or is it a separate database that would only reflect on a given day, like a calendar, what was done?

A. Okay. You'll have to break that one up because that was a little bit too much.

Q. When you look at this database, is it a database that you had to retrieve information like a liposuction procedure by looking at each patient's medical chart?

A. No.

Q. Is it a database where you would look at some type of scheduling calendar that you might have had to see what procedures were scheduled for a given day?

A. No.

Q. Okay. I'm just trying to think of where-- How do you input information into your database such that you can retrieve the number of liposuctions?

A. So there's a category, "lipo." There's a category, "fat transfer." And so when we run a transaction through it, it will keep track of the number of fat transfers and the number of lipos.

Q. Okay. What's the purpose of keeping that data?

A. Well, you'd want to know so that if you needed to go back and figure out what you did that day, then you'd be able to figure that out.

See Depo. of Susie Kerr at p. 144, ll 14 to p. 147, ll 5 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. G.

For the Plaintiff to suggest that evidence of other infections or lack thereof is irrelevant to this case is simply incorrect. Throughout discovery Plaintiff has claimed that the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilization techniques of the defendant facility were improper. He will argue to the jury that the staff at Silk Touch were poorly trained, that the facility was improperly set up, that Dr. Kerr was not properly trained or experienced to perform a surgery of this type in an office based setting, that proper cleaning materials were not used and that proper records of cleaning were not kept. Plaintiff's counsel seeks to broadly comment upon all of these issues at trial, but conversely wants to take the position that the defense cannot raise the obvious fact that if the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilization techniques were so deficient as alleged - then why weren't there rampant or at least multiple problems with postoperative infections involving any other patients. Plaintiff's Disclosures for his experts demonstrate his plan of attack and open the door for the defense to advance the lack of infections as a defense to any claim that the facility did not know what they were doing. Plaintiff's motion in limine on this issue is without merit and should be denied.

IV. Life Insurance and other collateral sources

The defense agrees that life insurance is a collateral source and does not oppose Plaintiff's motion on this issue. The defense will not seek to introduce evidence during the trial that Plaintiff received life insurance benefits following the death of Krystal Ballard. The jury will be free to draw whatever inferences they seek to form their own personal knowledge of what happens following the death of an active duty service person. Health insurance payments for services for Krystal Ballard are not collateral sources for the Plaintiff, but rather Krystal Ballard or her Estate. They were paid or generated by the Air Force for Krystal Ballard and a recovery for then by the Plaintiff could constitute an unjustified windfall, since he did not pay them or incur a debt for them. The Plaintiff has no obligation to repay the Air Force or the insurer.

V. Whether Dr. Garrison's' Fat Embolism Opinions Were Timely Disclosed.

After learning additional opinions from the defense experts during their respective depositions, Plaintiff claims the defense did not timely disclose these opinions and now seeks to exclude them, particularly Dr. Garrison on the issue of fat embolism. In support, Plaintiff directs the court to the defense disclosure served on June 3, 2013, and points out that the opinions of Dr. Garrison in that disclosure did not include that the patient's death was due to fat embolism syndrome. On this basis, Plaintiff argues that such an opinion is untimely and should therefore be excluded at trial.

Plaintiff's argument fails to consider and comply with the requirements of Rule 26(b)(4) and should therefore be denied. This rule states in pertinent part:

> Discovery of facts known and opinions held by experts expected to testify, otherwise discoverable under the provisions of subdivision (b)(1) of this rule and acquired or developed in anticipation of litigation or for trial, may be obtained by interrogatory and/or deposition, including:
> > (A)(i) A complete statement of all opinions to be expressed and the basis and reasons therefore; the data or other information considered by the witness in forming the opinions; any exhibits to be used as a summary of or support for the opinions; any qualifications of the witness, including a list of all publications authored by the witness within > the preceding ten years; the compensation to be paid for the testimony; and a listing of any other cases in which the witness has testified as an expert at trial or by deposition within the preceding four years. See Rule 26(b)(4) (emphasis added).

Despite the fact that Plaintiffs' counsel took not one, but two depositions of Dr. Garrison and despite the fact that he has supplemented all of the Plaintiff expert witness opinions on the issue of fat embolism, he nevertheless seeks to have this court preclude seasonably supplemented expert opinions on the manufactured basis that they were somehow untimely. Plaintiff maintains this position despite the fact that Rule 26(b)(4) specifically states that a party may discover facts and opinions of experts acquired or developed in anticipation of trial by interrogatory or deposition. Here Plaintiff was allowed the opportunity to receive expert witness information from the defense by both means. Plaintiff could have relied wholly on the written interrogatory responses setting forth the opinions for the defense experts, however, he elected to also take the depositions of each and every defense expert. It was counsel for the Plaintiff who caused the opinions of Dr. Garrison on fat embolism to be disclosed and supplemented, not defense counsel. Had Plaintiff's counsel not brought up the subject at the deposition of Dr. Garrison, it would never have been disclosed or discussed.

Plaintiff's counsel concedes that Dr. Garrison only developed the opinions at issue days before his deposition was taken, but yet he perplexingly maintains that the additional disclosures in response to his own questioning about "other" opinions were somehow untimely. Plaintiff cites to no case authority in Idaho or anywhere else standing for the proposition that when you elect to take an expert's deposition and you ask him questions about his opinions that you can simply move the court to have them excluded on such a basis. Counsel for the Defendants elected to depose only one of Plaintiff's experts and will otherwise rely on the written disclosures of Plaintiff's counsel for the substance of their opinions. Because Rule 26(b)(4) allows two options for acquiring the opinions of experts and because the Plaintiff elected to utilize both options, he is not entitled to exclude additional opinions learned at a deposition in direct response to his own questions.

Plaintiff rehashes much of the case authority cited elsewhere in his memo regarding the supplemental opinions of Dr. Garrison. The reality is that defense counsel provided numerous dates for Plaintiff to conduct the deposition of Dr. Garrison throughout the months of August and September, far in advance of the trial. Due solely to the unavailability of Plaintiff's counsel, this deposition was pushed off until late September. As explained by Dr. Garrison, during the preparation for his deposition, he re-reviewed the medical records and tissue slides and it became apparent to him that the cause of death was directly related to the patient having suffered from a fat embolism syndrome which he properly shared in response to questioning by Plaintiff's counsel.

Furthermore, in terms of fat embolism being an issue in the case, Plaintiff's brief does not relay to the Court the multiple direct references to the patient having suffered a fat embolism which were contained directly within the decedent's own medical records. The records from both Elmore Medical Center and St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center which have been in the possession of Plaintiff's counsel for years reflect the fat embolism issue See Records of Betram Stemmler, M.D, attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. H, records of Billy Morgan, M.D.

attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. I, records of Howard Schaff, M.D. attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. J.

Despite the fact that defense counsel provided a substantial over one hundred page long expert witness disclosure setting forth the opinions of the defense experts, during the deposition of Dr. Garrison, Plaintiff's counsel specifically asked him if he had any opinions regarding the issue of fat embolism – a topic not specifically mentioned in his disclosure. This was not a question that Plaintiff's counsel had any reason to explore unless he was looking for new opinions. Dr. Garrison provided him with a response to his own question addressing fat embolism, thereby supplementing his prior disclosure. This was discussed by Dr. Garrison during his deposition as follows:

> Q. First of all, Doctor, do you hold some opinion that Crystal Ballard had a fat embolism?
> A. I do.
>
> Q. Did Dr. Groben refer to a fat embolism in his autopsy?
>
> A. No, sir, he did not.
>
> Q. So you think he's wrong by not including fat embolism as a pathological diagnosis?
>
> A. Retrospectively, perhaps; but at the time, I don't think so.
>
> . . . . .
>
> Q. Yeah. Mr. Quane has filed a disclosure that identifies each of his experts and the subject matter upon which those experts are to testify. Have you seen that document?
>
> A. Yes, sir, I have.
>
> Q. Okay. And maybe I'm missing it, Doctor, does it talk about fat embolism as a diagnosis?
>
> A. No, it does not.

Q. When did you come up with a theory that Miss Ballard experienced a fat embolism?

. . . . .

A. After looking at this case and going over it since the disclosure was made, it was my opinion that there had to be more going on, so I went through the medical record again in detail and reread what all the notes were, reviewed the CT's and the X-rays that were done, both at Elmore and in Saint Al's. And the opinion that I came up with, or the thought that I came up with was based upon the fact that the clinical symptomatology was also clinical symptomatology that was looked at by the physicians of fat embolism syndrome, then I felt it was worth doing another search to look for it; and in doing so, I reviewed all the slides again, which have been reviewed several times by myself, as well as Dr. Groben, and whomever else has reviewed these slides, and I came to the opinion, after having reviewed the slides again, that this lady has fat emboli.

Q. Okay. My question was, Doctor: When did you come to that con -- when did you come to that conclusion?

A. Since this last disclosure was made.

Q. When? When was that, Doctor? You tell me when that last disclosure was made.

A. When was the last disclosure made? I can't give you a date. It's been in the last week or so.

See Depo. of Dr. Garrison at p. 29, lls. 6 to p.31, lls 11 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. K.

Q. (BY MR. QUANE:) Isn't it true that yesterday, the 22nd day of September of this year, is the first time you've brought up to my attention and discussed the situation involving the fat embolism?

A. That's correct.

Q. And isn't it true that my disclosure that I sent to you the second time you approved didn't mention fat embolism, correct?

A. That's correct.

See Depo. of Dr. Garrison at p. 66, lls 3 to 12 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion in Limine as Ex. K.

Unhappy with the answer he received to his questions about fat embolism, Plaintiff's counsel demanded a second opportunity to depose Dr. Garrison regarding his opinions relating to fat embolism. Specifically to resolve Plaintiff's counsel's concerns about getting an adequate opportunity to depose Dr. Garrison on this issue, counsel for the defense allowed a second deposition to occur during which even more information and opinions relating to fat embolism was expressed. After taking two depositions of Dr. Garrison, Plaintiff's counsel then prepared and served supplemental expert opinions for all of his experts specifically rebutting any opinions advanced by Dr. Garrison on the issue of fat embolism syndrome. See Plaintiff's Fifth Supplemental Answers to Defendant's First Set of Interrogatories served on October 18, 2013, attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition at Ex. L. On this basis alone, Plaintiff has had the opportunity to fully explore each of the defense experts and in some instances taking multiple depositions and having the opportunity to submit rebuttal expert disclosures. The defense disputes that the Plaintiff has been placed at any disadvantage for purposes of trial and maintains that the pending motion is without merit and should be denied.

VI. Defense Experts Knowledge of the Local Standard of Practice

Plaintiff contends that Drs. Stiller and Laurence failed to properly familiarize themselves with the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr. Plaintiff's counsel appears to have confused the foundational issues requirements with Rule 56(e), Idaho Code §6-1012 and the case authority interpreting these rules at the summary judgment stage as opposed to the adequacy of an expert disclosure for purposes of trial. It is without question that both Drs. Stiller and Laurence are out of area physicians within the meaning of Idaho Code §6-1012. In order for their testimony to be admissible at trial, they must be able to demonstrate that they have taken appropriate steps to familiarize themselves with the local standard of practice.

It is well settled in Idaho that to avoid summary judgment for the defendant in a medical malpractice context, "the plaintiff must offer expert testimony indicating that the defendant health care provider negligently failed to meet the applicable standard of health care practice." Dulaney v. St. Alphonsus Reg'l Med. Ctr., 137 Idaho 160, 164, 45 P.3d 816, 820 (2002). In order for expert testimony to be admissible in a plaintiff's opposition to summary judgment, "the plaintiff must lay the foundation required by Idaho Code § 6-1013." Dulaney, 137 Idaho at 164, 45 P.3d at 820. The statute requires the expert witness to, among other things, establish that "he or she is familiar with the standard of care for the particular health care professional for the relevant community and time." Ramos v. Dixon, 144 Idaho 32, 37, 156 P.3d 533, 538 (2007). "Statements that are conclusory or speculative do not satisfy either the requirement of admissibility or competency under Rule 56(e)." Id. (quoting Dulaney, 137 Idaho at 164, 45 P.3d at 820. Idaho Code § 6-1012 defines the relevant community as "both site and time specific." Id. (quoting Gubler v. Boe, 120 Idaho 294, 296, 815 P.2d 1034, 1036 (1991)).

The statute "precludes assuming that the standard of care is uniform throughout Idaho." Id. The statute requires actual knowledge of the standard in the community in which the alleged malpractice occurred. Morris v. Thomson, 130 Idaho 138, 146, 937 P.2d 1212, 1220 (1997) (citing Dekker v. Magic Valley Reg'l Med. Ctr., 115 Idaho 332, 766 P.2d 1213 (1988)). According to the Idaho Supreme Court, an out-of-area expert can meet the foundational requirement of personal knowledge by inquiring of a local specialist regarding the standard of care. Id. (citing Perry v. Magic Valley Reg'l Med. Ctr., 134 Idaho 46, 51, 995 P.2d 816, 821 (2000)). Additionally, when consulting with a local specialist, that specialist need not have practiced in the same field as the defendant, so long as the consulting specialist is sufficiently familiar with the defendant's specialty. Newberry v. Martens, 142 Idaho 284, 292, 127 P.3d 187, 195 (2005). The plaintiff's expert can also make inquiries to another out-of-area specialist, so long as that specialist has had sufficient contacts with the area in question to demonstrate personal knowledge of the local standard. Shane v. Blair, 139 Idaho 126, 130, 75 P.3d 180, 184 (2003); see also Suhadolnik v. Pressman. 151 Idaho 110, 254 P.3d 11 (2011).

An expert may also become familiar with the local standard by reviewing the defendant health care provider's deposition, provided the standard is discussed in the deposition. Suhadolnik v. Pressman, 151 Idaho 110, 254 P.3d 11 (2011) citing Rhodehouse v. Stutts, 125 Idaho 208, 212, 868 P.2d 1224, 1228 (1994). "When consulting with a local specialist, that specialist need not have practiced in the same field as the defendant, so long as the consulting specialist is sufficiently familiar with the defendant's specialty." Suhadolnik, 151 Idaho at 116, 254 P.3d at 17. "Health care providers are to be judged in comparison with similarly trained and qualified providers of the same class in the same community." Dekker v. Magic Valley Reg'l Med. Ctr., 115 Idaho 332, 334, 766 P.2d 1213, 1215 (1988).

With this background, most of which relates to the summary judgment stage, all of the defense experts, at the request and direction of defense counsel, have taken affirmative steps to communicate with a cosmetic surgeon, Dr. Kelly O'Neil, who was practicing in Boise at the time in question. As a cosmetic surgeon who performed liposuction in Boise in 2010, Dr. O'Neil has actual knowledge of the local standard of practice for cosmetic surgeons like Dr. Kerr which he conveyed and confirmed with the defense experts. Contrary to the arguments advanced by Plaintiff, there is nothing in the Dulaney, nor any other case in Idaho, which requires an out of area expert to ask each any every question the Plaintiff's counsel may deem relevant from a foundational standpoint. None of the defense experts have submitted any affidavit testimony in regards to any motion for summary judgment.

All that is before the court are the expert disclosures of the defense and excerpts of the deposition testimony reflecting the limited questions posed by Plaintiff's counsel. Based solely upon these documents, Plaintiff contends he should be entitled to preclude Drs. Stiller and Laurence from testifying at trial. Such a contention is wholly inconsistent with the above case authorities and the language of Idaho Code §6-1012 and 1013. As out of area experts, even if Drs. Stiller and Laurence had not discussed this case with anyone thus far, it would still be premature to exclude their testimony from the trial by way of a motion in limine as the perceived foundational defect could still be cured prior to trial.

Regardless, the deposition testimony of each of these experts aptly demonstrates that they have adequately familiarized themselves with the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr in Boise in 2010. To the extent Plaintiff's counsel is dissatisfied with the scope of knowledge or the level of detail discussed between the defense experts and Dr. O'Neil, this again goes to the weight the jury should give their opinions and not their admissibility, particularly considering the limited nature of questions posed during their respective depositions.[2] For example, during Dr. Stiller's deposition he gave the following answers to Plaintiff counsel's questions:

> Q. When you were talking to him [Dr. O'Neil], did you ask him how he was trained, both in - - through medical school, residency and in cosmetic procedures?
>
> A. No, I asked him about the standard of practice in Boise at that point in time.

Deposition of Dr. Stiller at p. 70, lls 17 to 21 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. M.

> Q. All right. What were the general topics, and then we might get into specifics, that you discussed with Dr. O'Neil?
>
> A. We discussed the care of the patient.
>
> Q. Okay. I'll stop you there. Did – did Dr. O'Neil have the medical records of Krystal Ballard, to your knowledge?
>
> A. I believe he said he reviewed them. I don't -- I don't know what in total he had.
>
> Q. Okay. So he had -- at least based on your conversation with him, he had been supplied with medical records?
>
> A. I believe so.
>
> Q. Concerning Krystal Ballard?
>
> A. Correct.
>
> Q. Okay. So when you discussed the care of the patient, tell me what it is you and Dr. O'Neil discussed.
>
> A. The -- the procedure, itself. We discussed the follow-up of the patient.

---

[2] Interestingly, Plaintiff's counsel has known about the role played by Dr. Kelly O'Neil for months and despite the fact he now challenges the basis for his knowledge of the local standard of practice, he never sought to take his deposition. Instead, he waits until the eve of trial to try and sandbag the defense with his meritless foundational challenges.

Q. What else?

A. We also discussed what it was like practicing in Boise at that point in time, how many cosmetic physicians were there. And we discussed the sterilization that was -- the deposition of the sterilization by Dr. Kerr on what his opinions regarding the adequacy of that, of sterilization.

Id. at p. 72, ll 24-25, p. 73,ll 1-25.

Q. Did you ask Dr. O'Neil whether or not he used an alcohol-Hibiclens solution, mixture, to clean medical equipment and supplies?

A. I asked him whether that was an adequate cleaning at that point in time in Boise with Dr. Kerr. And he agreed that he didn't see any issues with that.

Id. at p. 80, ll 25, p. 81, ll 1-5.

Q. Do you know whether or not Dr. O'Neil's cosmetic practice is accredited?

A. I don't believe it was.

Q. Did you ask him, or are you just --

A. I believe it came up in conversation.

Q. Okay. Do you know whether other physicians in Boise, how many of those that practice cosmetic surgery and have their own surgery centers, have accredited versus non-accredited centers?

A. As far as at that time, I don't believe any of the cosmetic physicians had it. And we did discuss that, that being said.

Id. at p. 83 ll 12 to 23. Similarly during the deposition of Dr. Laurence, he was asked the following questions:

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. And Dr. O'Neil is a physician that you were referred to by Mr. Quane to contact in order to avail yourself of what the standard of practice was in Boise in in 2010, correct?

A. Yeah, correct. I did not know him before.

Q. Okay. Basically, counsel for Dr. Kerr told you, "You need to learn what the standard of practice was in 2010, and here's the guy that can tell you what the standard of practice is," and they named Dr. O'Neil, correct?

THE WITNESS: So, yes, I spoke to him after they referred me to him as someone who was reliable.

Deposition of Dr. Laurence at p. 56, ll. 9 to 24 attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition as Ex. N.

Q. And it looks like the letter that was sent from Mr. Quane's office indicates that Dr. O'Neil was actually practicing in California at the time he wanted you to contact him but had practiced in Boise in 2010. Is that your understanding?

A. It's my understanding that he relocated his practice, correct.

Q. Did you do anything independently to determine whether, in fact, Dr. O'Neil practiced cosmetic surgery in 2010 in Boise other than based on the representation of counsel for Dr. Kerr?

A. Correct. I just -- I asked him if that was the time that he practiced, and he said yes, he was practicing at that time.

Id. at p. 60, ll 18 to 25; p. 61, ll 1 to 12.

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. Well, let me ask you this: Tell me everything, and I mean everything, you remember about your conversation with Dr. O'Neil, the longer call.

A. The main thing that was memorable about the conversation -- Again, I regret that I don't have any notes with this. But it was clear after this 30- to 45-minute conversation that I had with Dr. O'Neil that he knew how other physicians in Boise practiced, that there were a combination of physicians with different backgrounds that performed similar procedures, and that the way -- And I don't remember whether he had independent knowledge or if I dis -- if I had to tell him, you know, what Dr. Kerr did in the process of performing liposuction. But I was -- the impression that I had after that 30- to 45-minute conversation is the way that liposuction is performed in Boise is very similar to how it's practiced in my area. That's not true with several other procedures in which I've been involved in. Boise is much different than where I'm from. But in the area of liposuction, my practice mirrors that of Dr. Kerr's substantially.

Q. You said that's the main thing, and I don't want to know just the main thing. I want to know everything that you recall, and then we'll try to put a little more substance behind the things that you mentioned just now. What other things did you and Dr. O'Neil discuss about the standard of practice in Idaho?

A. One issue would be do doctors in this area of Idaho practice in the hospital primarily or in an office-based situation. And as in the area where I practice, there's a really good combination. There's a lot of physicians that take their patients into a non-office base that is an ambulatory or hospital situation, and then there's a portion of physicians of many different specialties who perform these procedures in their office.

Q. Okay. What did he tell you about Boise, Idaho, physicians in 2010 in terms of where they carried out their cosmetic procedures?

A. Well, I would have -- I would have not have been surprised if he had said, you know, there's a lot of reconstruction-trained doctors who have started to do liposuction and some of them are using some of the new techniques and Dr. Kerr is the only non-reconstruction doctor who performs liposuction because there are some areas of the country in which that dynamic is somewhat true. So I was surprised to hear a substantial number -- and I don't remember the number -- and he may have even given me names. But apparently over -- during that time period, there were several physicians of multiple specialties, both in the immediate Boise area and in the state, that perform liposuction procedures.

Q. Okay. I think the question that prompted -- or your statement that prompted my last question was: Did doctors in Boise, Idaho, as you understood it, practice in primarily a hospital setting or ambulatory care center associated with a hospital in carrying out liposuction or did they practice in their private office settings to do that?

A. Dr. O'Neil related to me that both situations were fairly common.

Q. What else did you discuss -- First of all, did he tell you the names of any of the physicians in Boise, Idaho, that practiced cosmetic surgery?

A. He did.

Q. What are the names?

A. I don't recall those names, but he -- he mentioned the names specifically and what their specialty had been.

Q. Okay. Did he tell you what each of those physicians -- in terms of their specialty, their name, whether they practiced in a hospital setting, an ambulatory care setting, or an office-based setting to practice liposuction?

A. He, you know, voluntarily gave me a pretty good description of the landscape, and then I asked him a lot of specific questions about, you know, the -- "That particular doctor that you mentioned, does he continue to be in practice to this day? Does he have a fairly high-volume practice? How does he compare to, you know, the busiest hospital-based physician?" I don't remember all those details, but I do remember I was impressed that it was a little bit more robust community. Boise is a fairly small area, and I guess it just has a draw. But there was a fairly robust spectrum of different specialties that perform liposuction in both hospital and office-based situations.

Q. In terms of fat transfer -- because that's part of what was done on Krystal Ballard, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Did Dr. O'Neil talk to you about -- Well, first of all, does he practice -- Was he, Dr. O'Neil, actually doing liposuction himself in July of 2010?

A. Yes, he was. Are you talking about here? Yes, he was.

Q. I mean other than saying, "I had an office practice that did cosmetic procedures in 2010," did he actually specifically tell you he did liposuction in 2010?

A. I don't -- I don't recall whether he said in any particular month or any year whether his case list had been up or down. But he -- he -- this was a procedure that he performed, and he was in Boise and -- And so I think he meets the criteria for being able to tell me the standard of practice.

See Depo. of Dr. Laurence at p. 64 ll 5 to p. 69 ll 3 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion in Limine as Ex. N.

Q. Okay. In terms of fat transfer, did you talk to Dr. O'Neil at all about fat transfer?

A. I did.

Q. Did Dr. O'Neil tell you that he performed fat transfers in 2010?

A. We talked about fat transfer specifically. Fat transfers are an area of liposuction where some doctors really, really are excited about it, and some do very little fat transfer. And I don't recall whether I asked him if fat transfer was something that he did routinely with every one of his liposuctions or with 10 percent. But he certainly was familiar with that aspect. We talked very specifically about the -- the different options that the physician had with regard to the addition of PRP, the addition of -- whether the fat was spun down or just gravity was5 used to separate out. And so he -- he was clearly knowledgeable about fat transfer, but I don't know how much he did it.

Despite all of this background and detailed data regarding Drs. Stiller and Laurence's conversations with Dr. O'Neil, Plaintiff maintains that these conversations were somehow not adequate. Plaintiff provides the court with limited excerpts about specific questions, but fails to present the court with a fair picture of the majority of the discussion wherein these experts explained that they discussed the types of procedures, various facts of the case, the types of specialists performing the procedures at issue, the Boise area in question and the timeframe in question in order to learn about the local standard of practice. Furthermore, what is contained within the depositions of the defense experts is not the totality of the evidence, but rather only responses to the limited questions asked.

Plaintiff's counsel is free to try and criticize the defense experts at trial by arguing as to the amount of weight the jury should give to their testimony. However, the fact remains that the defense counsel has yet to question its own experts on the stand and lay the proper foundation necessary at trial. Only then will the court be in a position to rule upon any foundational objections. Plaintiff's motion on this issue therefore fails not only because the above deposition testimony establishes an adequate foundation, but his objection is premature and his motion should therefore be denied.

Finally, Plaintiff should be more concerned about the lack of foundation for his own expert, Dr. Sorensen. During his deposition he was asked about what knowledge he has about the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr, who is of a different medical specialty than Dr. Sorensen. He provided the following information:

> Q. Okay. But you didn't learn that by any other··means, other than what you read in the newspaper?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. Okay. Have you ever spoken with any physician in Idaho or in the world about the nature of Dr. Kerr's practice?
>
> A. Not that I can recall. I mean, if it came up in casual conversation with another person, I don't recall it.

See Depo. of Dr. Sorensen at p. 64, ll 15 to 23 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. E.

> Q. Okay. That was the whole question. Do you have any real knowledge of what Dr. Kerr's practice is?
>
> A. Only what I read in the newspaper.
>
> Q. That's your source of information?
>
> A. Well, I don't touch bases with him on a daily basis, so I don't know what he does. I know –

Q. Well, my question is, is that your source of information on his type of practice?

A. Yes.

Q. The newspaper; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Is that the Idaho Statesman?

A. I'm sad to say it is.

Q. Okay. You have never seen him perform a cosmetic procedure; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. You have never talked to anyone who has ever seen him do a cosmetic procedure; correct?

A. Correct.

See Depo. of Dr. Sorensen at p. 78, ll 2-21 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion in Limine as Ex. E.

Q. Okay. Have you ever heard the term the "standard of health care practice" in Idaho means how a particular doctor in a particular specialty typically practices medicine?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you hear that?

A. I have no idea, but it's one of those common knowledge things, I would guess.

Q. Were there any other doctors in Idaho, to your knowledge, in July of 2010 who had practices similar to Dr. Kerr?

A. I would have no idea.

Q. When you talked to Dr. Wigod, did you ever bring up the type of practice of Dr. Kerr with him?

A. No.

Q. When you talked to Dr. McKim back in 2007, did you ever discuss with him the type of practice of Dr. Kerr?

A. No.

See Deposition of Dr. Sorensen at p. 115, ll. 3 to 20, attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition as Ex. E.

These deposition excerpts show that Dr. Sorensen, who is a plastic surgeon and not a cosmetic surgeon, has done absolutely nothing to learn the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr. Thus, it is unclear how Plaintiffs can credibly argue about the foundation of the defense cosmetic surgeons, when the Plaintiff's lone expert, on his deposition testimony alone, would not be capable of rendering an admissible opinion at trial if limited to his deposition testimony.

VII. Admissibility of Dr. Kerr's Communications with Krystal Ballard's Aunt

Plaintiff contends that Dr. Kerr's communications with Angela Neil as well as his records of those communications are inadmissible hearsay. Plaintiff provides no case authorities to support his proposition. During the deposition of Dr. Kerr, Plaintiff's counsel framed many of his questions to suggest that Dr. Kerr and his staff did not respond in a caring manner when Krystal Ballard died. The conversation that Dr. Kerr had with the decedent's relative directly contradicts such a claim and may therefore be relevant for that purpose depending on the question asked and what proof is submitted at the trial. Furthermore, the simple fact that Dr. Kerr called Ms. Neil is not hearsay and would be admissible to show that Dr. Kerr did care about the patient and that he did communicate with the family after her death. As a result, Plaintiff's motion on this issue is not a proper subject for a motion in limine as it cannot be addressed until the specific question can be evaluated during the trial and should therefore be denied.

VIII. Whether Dr. Lundeby can Testify as to Krystal Ballard's Cause of Death

Plaintiff argues that since Dr. Lundeby testified in his deposition that it was difficult to determine the patient's cause of death that he should somehow be precluded from offering any causation opinions at trial. Plaintiff has elected to present the court with an extremely narrow representation of Dr. Lundeby's opinions. The actual exchange in the deposition unfolded as follows:

> Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Let me rephrase the question. They list, "Sepsis with probable toxic shock syndrome" as Cause A, which you understand to mean Cause A for the cause of death?
> A. Well, one of the causes of death, but that's – I guess Cause A means to me their principal cause.
>
> Q. We'll have to ask them. At least that's listed as a cause of death, correct?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. Do you agree with that diagnosis, or do you agree with that cause, meaning "Sepsis with probable toxic shock syndrome"?
>
> A. I reviewed this case and looked at it and -- well, I -- I guess that's a very broad question and I'm trying to figure out the best way to answer it for you. I think the clinical picture that she presented would be consistent with sepsis. The toxic shock syndrome, from my medical recollection and training, is probably not used accurately here in that my understanding of toxic shock syndrome is not a gram negative sepsis, which seems to be the question in the medical record. But when I looked at this entire record, I was very -- it was difficult to figure out exactly why this patient died.
>
> Q. Okay.
>
> A. Like I say, the clinical picture would be most consistent with sepsis. I can see why the coroner's office and the medical examiner put that.

Q. You just haven't -- Let me see if I can rephrase what you said, and if I mess it up, you let me know. At this point in time, you don't know whether or not you have enough information to form an opinion as to the cause of this patient's death; is that fair?

MR. JONES: Object to form.

THE WITNESS: I think forming an opinion as to the exact cause and having -- Yeah, I think -- I think that's fair.

See Deposition of Dr. Lundeby, at p. 82, ll 16 to p. 84, ll 3. (emphasis added) attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition as Ex. O. In addition, the following information was also set forth in Dr. Lundeby's expert witness disclosure timely served upon the Plaintiff on June 3, 2013:

> As part of his testimony, Dr. Lundeby will render the opinion that the surgical technique employed by Dr. Kerr during his liposuction and fat transfer procedures would not have caused or resulted in the introduction of any bacteria to the patient. Dr. Lundeby actually holds the opinions expressed in this document and will express all opinions stated herein on a more probable than not basis and/or to a reasonable degree of medical certainty.

See Dr. Lundeby's expert disclosure at p. 68 attached to the Affidavit of Counsel in Support of Plaintiff's Motions in Limine as Ex. O.

> He will render the opinion that in order for Dr. Kerr to have infected the patient in some manner at the time the surgery was performed on July 21, that there would have to have been evidence of infection at the location of the surgery by the time of the autopsy or at Elmore Medical Center. He will testify that the absence of any evidence of infection at the injection or liposuction sites is proof to Dr. Lundeby that the patient was not infected during the surgery and that her death is due to some other cause.

Id. at p. 76.

> He will discuss the normal wound biology is to see evidence of bacteria on the surface. Dr. Lundeby will render the > opinion, more likely than not, that the gram negative bacterial rods were introduced into the patient's surgical site sometime after Dr. Kerr's surgical procedure rather than being introduced during the procedure. Dr. Lundeby will render the opinion that based on his experience that gram negative rods do not result in the sudden and unexpected patient death such as occurred in this case.

Id. at p. 78.

These disclosed opinions demonstrate that Dr. Lundeby has produced opinions regarding various aspects of causation which he should be entitled to render at trial. There can be more than one cause of death and the fact that Dr. Lundeby stated he could not identify precisely which condition actually caused the patient's death does not preclude him from rendering opinions as to the most likely causes. Plaintiff is free to challenge the weight the jury should give those opinions and he can also try to impeach Dr. Lundeby with the deposition testimony he points out in his brief, but he cannot, based on the limited showing made establish a basis for this court to exclude him from rendering any opinions as to cause of death. For example, at no point during his deposition did Plaintiffs' counsel ever ask Dr. Lundeby whether he rejected any of the above opinions set forth in his expert disclosure. Plaintiff's motion on this issue is premature and addresses only a fraction of the testimony rendered by Dr. Lundeby during his deposition. This is not the proper subject for a motion in limine and it should therefore be denied. Plaintiff's expert, Dr. Sorensen, a plastic surgeon, renders the opinion on the cause of death and he is no more qualified than Dr. Lundeby. If Dr. Sorensen can give his opinion on the cause of death, so can Dr. Lundeby.

IX. Admissibility of Evidence Regarding Third Party Liability

Plaintiff argues that the defense should be precluded from presenting any evidence regarding third party liability simply because the defense did not assert third party liability as an affirmative defense at trial. This is not the test nor does it serve as a basis for precluding such evidence at trial. Plaintiff claims that the record "in this matter is wholly undeveloped as to third party liability." See Plaintiff's Memo at p. 27. Such a position is not supported by the record in this case or the expected evidence to be submitted at trial.

Plaintiff claims the patient died as a result of an infection caused by some act or omission by Dr. Kerr during his surgery. Thus, in order to prove causation, Plaintiff must prove that the gram negative bacteria at issue were introduced during Dr. Kerr's surgery as opposed to the bacteria being introduced somewhere else or by someone else after the surgery. The medical records in this case document the timing of medical care, the observations of the providers and their decisions. The defense is free to have its experts render their disclosed opinions which bear on the care and treatment decisions of third parties without necessarily asserting a third party is liable. The jury is free to draw whatever permissible inferences are allowed in order to arrive at a conclusion as to whether or not the standard of practice was violated – which is the key issue in the case.

The medical decisions, observations and treatment by the other providers have a direct bearing on the patient's outcome and the defense is entitled to advance disclosed expert opinions on these issues at trial. For example, the jury is entitled to know that the patient's subsequent providers waited hours before administering any antibiotics and that none of the subsequent providers ever saw any evidence of an infection. Whether the defense pled third party liability as an affirmative defense and whether or not a jury would deem said evidence sufficient to assign third party liability to such evidence is not the deciding factor as to whether or not such testimony would be admissible.

The trial has not started and no proof has been submitted to the jury. Thus, Plaintiff's second argument on this topic regarding who can be named on the special verdict form is therefore simply premature and cannot be fairly addressed at this juncture. The issue is not whether the Plaintiff was allowed to engage in discovery regarding third party liability, but whether opinions regarding the care and treatment provided by others have been identified in the expert witness disclosures such that opposing counsel was put on notice. The defense does not have to "blame" another party before evidence of the actions or inactions of other healthcare providers can be presented to the jury. Plaintiff's motion is not the proper subject of a motion in limine and should be denied.

X. Testimony From Dr. Kerr Involving Dr. Sorensen's Prior Malpractice Actions

Although not for the various reasons stated, the defense does not oppose this motion and agrees that Dr. Kerr will not be called upon to testify regarding Dr. Sorensen's prior malpractice actions.

XI. Speaking Objections, Testimony of Counsel and References to Motion Practice in Front of the Jury

Plaintiff argues that the defense should be broadly precluded from making all manner of references and statements during the trial. Such an overly broad sought prohibition is unnecessary. Defense counsel have tried cases before this court in the past and were quite capable of staying within the rules of this court. If granted, such a broadly worded motion on such an unknown grouping of topics is sure to do nothing but generate allegations that it is, was or may have been violated in any number of circumstances. Plaintiff's counsel seems to be trying to prevent defense counsel from "sharing" inappropriately with the jury. Plaintiff cites to no case authority to support such a proposition as framed in his motion. Defense counsel is comfortable that this Court is fully capable of determining whether any lines are about to be crossed during the trial before it occurs. For that reason, the defense contends this is not a proper motion in limine and should be denied with the understanding that the court is always aware of these issues and expects the same of counsel.

XII. Ad Hominem comments

Lead counsel for the Plaintiff has requested that the defense be prohibited from commenting upon the fact that he is not an Idaho attorney. The fact that he is not an Idaho attorney will be blatantly obvious to the jury without any comment by defense counsel. The jury will be free to draw any conclusions they choose without defense counsel pointing out the obvious. This too is not a proper motion in limine, is overly broad and should be denied.

XIII. Settlement Negotiations

Counsel for the defense does not oppose this Motion and agrees that evidence relating to settlement negotiations should not be admitted in any form.

XIV. Admissibility of Expert Testimony on the Ultimate Issue

Plaintiff contends that the defense experts should not be allowed to render opinions to the extent they go to an ultimate issue to be decided in the case by the jury. Plaintiff makes this argument despite citing directly to IRE 704 which is on point and states that an expert's testimony is not inadmissible merely because it embraces an ultimate issue to be decided in the case. Plaintiff argues that where expert testimony on an ultimate issue concerns opinions or conclusions which an average juror should be allowed to draw that such testimony should be inadmissible. Plaintiff cites no medical malpractice authorities in Idaho in support of such a proposition, but rather a host of criminal cases which are inapplicable to the case at bar.

Indeed, pursuant to Idaho Code §6-1013, Plaintiff and other lay witnesses are prohibited from testifying in regards to causation, the patient's diagnosis and/or future prognosis. Idaho Code §6-1013 provides:

> Testimony of expert witness on community standard. The applicable standard of practice and such a defendant's failure to meet said standard must be established in such cases by such a plaintiff by testimony of one (1) or more knowledgeable, competent expert witnesses, and such expert testimony may only be admitted in evidence if the foundation therefor is first laid, establishing (a) that such an opinion is actually held by the expert witness, (b) that the said opinion can be testified to with reasonable medical certainty, and (c) that such expert witness possesses professional knowledge and expertise coupled with actual knowledge of the applicable said community standard to which his or her expert opinion testimony is addressed; provided, this section shall not be construed to prohibit or otherwise preclude a competent expert witness who resides elsewhere from adequately familiarizing himself with the standards and practices of (a particular) such area and thereafter giving opinion testimony in such a trial.

This statute makes it clear that in the medical malpractice context the propriety of such testimony lies solely within the realm of expert testimony and may not be presented by any lay witnesses. It is well-settled in Idaho that a lay person is not qualified to give an opinion about the cause of a medical condition or disease. Lay persons, such as the Plaintiff, do not possess the knowledge, training, or experience to render an opinion on such matters. See I.R.E. 701 and 702.

In this regard the Idaho Supreme Court stated that Courts should disregard lay opinion testimony relating to the cause of a medical condition. See, i.e., Bloching v. Albertson's, Inc., 129 Idaho 844, 934 P.2d 17 (1997) (lay person was not qualified to testify that the seizure he suffered immediately after using a blend of pork and beef insulin was caused by the insulin); Evans v. Twin Falls County, 118 Idaho 210, 796 P.2d 87 (1990) (husband was not qualified to testify that conduct by sheriff's deputies on April 15, 1987 in grabbing and shaking his wife was a cause of her cardiac arrest and death over eleven months later); Flowerdew v. Warner, 90 Idaho 164, 409 P.2d 110 (1965) (patient was not qualified to testify that his injury was caused by physician's treatment).

Idaho Rule of Evidence 701 has not altered the requirement that medical causation be proved by expert testimony. In Cook v. Skyline Corp., 135 Idaho 26, 13 P.3d 857 (2000), the Court held that physical manifestations of emotional distress were medical conditions which required expert testimony. The Court stated:

> I.R.E. 701 affords the district court discretion to determine whether a lay witness may testify as to his or her opinion regarding certain matters but testimony offered by a lay person relating to the cause of a medical condition should be disregarded.

Cook, 135 Idaho at 35, 13 P.3d at 866 (emphasis added), citing Evans v. Twin Falls County, 118 Idaho 210, 796 P.2d 87 (1990) (wherein the Court held the plaintiff's opinions as to the cause of his high blood pressure would be inadmissible under I.R.E. 701.) In support of the Court's holding in Evans v. Twin Falls County, the Court quoted from 31A Am.Jur.2d, Expert & Opinion Evidence § 207 as follows:

> Where the subject matter regarding the cause of disease, injury, or death of a person is wholly scientific or so far removed from the usual and ordinary experience of the > average person that expert knowledge is essential to the formation of an intelligent opinion, only an expert can competently give opinion evidence as to the cause of death, disease or physical condition.

Id., 118 Idaho at 214, 796 P.2d at 91 (emphasis added).

This result was re-affirmed by the Idaho Supreme Court in Swallow v. Emergency Medicine of Idaho, P.A., 138 Idaho 589, 67 P.3d 68, 76-77 (2003) . In Swallow, the district court granted a physician's motion for summary judgment on the grounds that the plaintiffs could not or did not produce admissible evidence regarding any correlation between plaintiff David Swallow's heart attack and the ingestion of an overdose of the antibiotic Cipro. Id. at 138 Idaho at 596, 67 P.3d at 75. In granting the motion, the court noted that "without some reliable expert testimony relating Cipro to a myocardial infarction, there is no chain of circumstances from which causation reasonably could be inferred." Id.

The same considerations that disqualified the lay testimony in the above cases apply in the instant action. Neither the Plaintiff nor any of his proposed lay witnesses are competent to testify as to the cause of death or the patient's prognosis at any point in time prior to her death. Such testimony can only come from a properly qualified expert witness. As a result, it is not the defense experts, but rather the Plaintiff and any of his lay witnesses who should be precluded from offering any such improper opinion testimony at trial.

Other Courts have held similarly. For example, the Michigan Court of Appeals has stated:

> A lay witness generally may testify to something he knows and that does not require expert testimony to establish, such as the existence of a physical injury. Where, however, the contested issue involves medical questions beyond the > scope of lay knowledge, such as the existence vel non of an injury, the scope of injury or the causal link between an alleged accident and an injury, testimony by the lay witness may be improper.

See Howard v. Feld, 298 N.W.2d 722, 723 (Mich. App. 1980). Similarly, the Court in Morphew v. Morphew, 419 N.E.2d 770 (Ind. App. 1981), superseded by statute on other grounds, stated:

> These cases illustrate that although a lay witness may testify about his or her illness, lay testimony or opinion must be limited to or based upon facts of which the witness has knowledge. However, "[w]ith regard to diagnosis, causes and effects of disease, and other matters of medical science, skill, and practice, knowledge of which is confined to those trained for the profession, opinions of lay or nonexpert witnesses are not competent. . . .31 Am.Jur.2d Expert and Opinion Evidence § 95 (1967).

Id. at 777. One of the cases referred to by Morphew concerned the inadmissibility of a plaintiff's testimony regarding the permanence of his condition of impairment "because this was a medical question upon which only expert testimony was competent." See Kenwood Erection Co. v. Cowsert, 115 N.E.2d 507 (Ind. App. 1953). See also Hunnicutt v. Hunnicutt, 228 S.E.2d 881 (Ga. 1976) ("The diagnosis and potential continuance of a disease are medical questions to be established by physicians as expert witnesses and not by lay-persons."); Gerland's Food Fair, Inc. v. Hare, 611 S.W.2d 113 (Tex. Civ. App. 1980) (plaintiff held not qualified to state an opinion that she had permanent brain damage).

Whether or not the care and treatment provided by the Defendants caused or contributed to Krystal Ballard's death represents "a matter of science that is far removed from the usual and ordinary experience of the average person." See Swallow v. Emergency Medicine of Idaho, P.A., 138 Idaho 589, 67 P.3d 68, 76-77. Such testimony can therefore only be offered by an appropriately qualified expert witness. Absent such testimony, any findings by the jury regarding such issues would be based upon sheer speculation. Consistent with Idaho Code §6-1013, the jury is required to make their decision based on the opinions of the experts alone. In light of the foregoing, the Court should deny the Plaintiff's motion in limine on this issue as it is clear that Plaintiff is precluded from offering any evidence by way of lay witnesses regarding the diagnosis, prognosis, or causation for damages. Rule of Evidence 704 allows opinion testimony on the ultimate issue of the case.

XV. Issue of Cumulative Expert Testimony

Plaintiff basically rehashes arguments that were advanced and rejected by this court months ago at the hearing on July 10 regarding the number of defense experts. Plaintiff offers no authority for the position that because the defense out-of-area experts spoke with the same physician for purposes of confirming they were familiar with the local standard of practice that it somehow makes the testimony needlessly cumulative per IRE 403. Plaintiff totally misses the purpose of the familiarizing physician.

The purpose of the inquiry between the out of area expert and the familiarizing physician is to confirm that the out of area expert has basic knowledge about the local standard such that he would have a foundational basis for his opinions. The expert's opinions he advances at trial are his own. Again, Plaintiff's arguments go to the weight a jury should give to the evidence as opposed to its admissibility. If Plaintiff wants to try and discredit the testimony of the defense experts based on the fact they all talked to Dr. O'Neil he is welcome to do so, but this does not add to his claim that the presentation of their testimony would be needlessly cumulative.

Plaintiff seeks to unfairly contrast the foundational requirements of admissibility under Rule 56(e) and Idaho Code §6-1012 with the needlessly cumulative standard set forth under IRE 403. These are two totally separate and distinct requirements which each stand alone. The fact that the out-of-town experts for the defense discussed local standard of practice issues with the same physician does not render their testimony to be at any more risk of being needlessly cumulative had they each spoke with different providers. There is no requirement under Idaho Code §6-1012 that a different familiarizing physician be employed by each expert nor has Plaintiff identified any case authority so stating. Indeed, under many circumstances that option would simply not exist due to the limited number of providers in a given community.

The defense contends it is inappropriate for the Plaintiff to even bring such a motion prior to trial which is based solely on a rule of evidence when no evidence has been submitted to the jury. Expert witness disclosures are not evidence, nor are they admissible as evidence, but rather they are a discovery tool utilized to prepare for trial. As argued back in July, the defense contends that Rule 403 has no application whatsoever at this pretrial stage and that this rule of evidence does not provide the Plaintiff with a vehicle or mechanism by which the number of defense experts can be limited in advance of a trial.

In terms of addressing the application of Rule 403 during the trial in this matter, the court is well aware there are multiple Defendants in this case including Dr. Kerr and Silk Touch Laser and Med Spa. The complex medical issues in this case cover a large number of areas including the performance of multiple cosmetic procedures and the equipment involved therein, the proper sterilization of surgical equipment and maintaining a proper sterile surgical field, the identification and treatment of a septic infectious process, the origin of different types of bacteria, the effectiveness of various antibiotics, the cause and effect of multi-system organ failure, the treatment provided by a number of different specialties in medicine and competing theories as to the cause of death for Krystal Ballard.

Due to the number of medical issues in this case, Plaintiff has listed the opinions of not less than three retained experts to address both standard of practice and causation issues including: Dean Sorensen, M.D., George Nichols, M.D. and Keith Armitage, M.D. Plaintiff has disclosed multiple supplemental expert witness disclosures for these witnesses, including his third one last week well after the deadline for discovery had expired. These individuals are disclosed as experts in various areas of medicine including plastic surgery, anatomical, clinical and forensic pathology and infectious disease.

In order to oppose these three experts, the defense has disclosed five retained experts who have all been deposed including: Gregory Laurence, M.D., a cosmetic surgeon from Tennessee with his background and training in family practice medicine in which he is boarded; Charles Garrison, M.D., forensic pathology from Idaho; Thomas Coffman, M.D., infectious disease from Idaho; John Lundeby, M.D., a cosmetic surgeon with his background and training in general surgery in which he is boarded from Idaho; and Geoffrey Stiller, M.D., who completed a fellowship in cosmetic surgery Idaho.

Idaho Rule of Evidence 403 provides:

> Although relevant, evidence may be excluded if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, confusion of the issues, or misleading the jury, or by considerations of undue delay, waste of time, or needless presentation of cumulative evidence.

In terms of interpreting and applying Rule 403, Idaho courts have consistently determined that "the language of I.R.E. 403 tilts in favor of admissibility." State v. McGuire, 135 Idaho 535, 540 20 P.3d 719 (Ct. App. 2001). Only if the probative value of the testimony is "substantially outweighed by danger of needless presentation of cumulative evidence," may a trial court exclude relevant evidence. See State v. Knight, 120 Idaho 862, 865, 920 P.2d 78 (Ct. App. 1996) (emphasis added). In addition, "statements by witnesses which corroborate the facts, to which another has already testified, are not necessarily inadmissible because they are cumulative." State v. Blackstead, 126 Idaho 14, 22, 878 P.2d 188 (Ct. App. 1994). Instead, "Rule of Evidence 403, prohibits the introduction of needlessly cumulative evidence." Id.

Under the clear and unambiguous language of Rule 403, in order for the relevant testimony of any of the defense experts to be limited in any way, the Plaintiff must show that the presentation of such testimony from the Defense experts would amount to the "needless presentation of cumulative evidence." The fact that evidence to be provided by an expert witness may be similar or even cumulative to that of another witness does not, standing alone, meet the threshold test for exclusion under the Rule upon which the Plaintiff's motion is solely based. Rather, the evidence must be "needlessly" cumulative before the Court can even consider whether to limit it. The defense contends that such a determination cannot be made prior to trial before the parties have presented any evidence. For this reason, and the wealth of supporting case authority on this issue submitted back in July, the defense contends the Plaintiff's Motion in Limine regarding perceived cumulative evidence should be denied.

XVI. Conclusion

Based on the forgoing, the defense requests that the court deny Plaintiff's Motion in Limine on all counts except for Motions No. IV and XIII to which the defense does not oppose as stated herein.

EXHIBIT A

411 Mich. 704
Supreme Court of Michigan.

Dennis L. SCHAIBLE, Administrator of the Estate of Kathleen A. Schaible, Plaintiff-Appellee, v.
Kevin J. MYERS and Carleton N. Myers, Defendants-Appellants.

Docket No. 64809. | Nov. 2, 1981.

Jury returned verdict for surviving spouse in wrongful death action arising out of automobile accident. Appeal was taken, and the Court of Appeals, Bashara, P.J., reversed and remanded for new trial. The Supreme Court, held that cross-examination of expert witness, who offered his opinion as to amount of damages suffered by surviving spouse, as to whether he was assuming that surviving spouse would not remarry was not error since jury was not told to take into account possibility that spouse might remarry but listened to exposition of many assumptions upon which expert witness relied, necessary to intelligent understanding and evaluation of worth of expert's opinion.

Court of Appeals reversed; judgment of trial court reinstated.

Moody, J., filed dissenting opinion in which Levin and Kavanagh, JJ., concurred.

[2] Death
Admissibility of Evidence

It is improper to introduce evidence of possibility of remarriage to prove that there had been no loss of consortium to surviving spouse for purpose of wrongful death action damages award.

[3] Evidence
Contradiction and Impeachment

Expert witness, who offers his opinion in wrongful death action as to amount of damages suffered by surviving spouse, may be impeached by reviewing assumptions which underlie expert's opinion and by arguing that expert's opinion is mere conjecture based upon erroneous assumptions.

Opinion

PER CURIAM.

In Wood v. The Detroit Edison Co., 409 Mich. 279, 288, 294 N.W.2d 571 (1980), a majority of this Court agreed that evidence of a plaintiff surviving spouse's remarriage was not to be used to determine damages in a wrongful death action. [1] We now must consider whether error occurred in this case when an expert witness, who offered his opinion as to the amount of damages suffered by the surviving spouse, was asked whether he was assuming that the surviving spouse would not remarry.

I

Plaintiff's decedent died in an automobile accident. Liability was admitted; the parties tried the issue of damages. A jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the amount of $30,000.

The Court of *706 Appeals reversed that judgment and remanded the case for a new trial.[2]

II

To establish the amount of his damages, the plaintiff called to the stand a witness who expressed the opinion that the plaintiff had been damaged by as much as $528,000. On cross-examination, the defendants undertook a detailed and comprehensive examination of the assumptions which underlay this opinion. A portion of this examination is recounted here:

"Q. One of your assumptions, I assume, is that Mrs. Schaible would continue to want to work during all of those years as opposed to being a housewife and mother?

"A. Yes, for the years after she would be age 42.

"Q. And, of course, if for one reason or another she decided she didn't want to work that would affect your calculations, would it not?

"A. That's correct.

"Q. One of your assumptions was that she would, if she continued working, that she would turn over all of her earnings, over and above the cost of her own maintenance, to her husband or at least he would receive the economic benefit of it?

"A. Based on the information I have this is what's been happening in the family.

"Q. That is one of your assumptions?

"A. That's correct.

"Q. It is one of your assumptions that would continue throughout her working life?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Even after they got in their forties and fifties, your assumption was that would still continue?

299 *707 "A. That's correct.

"Q. She wouldn't keep any of her own earnings for herself or whatever purpose, they would all go other than the 30 percent that you subtracted for the cost of her maintenance, one of your assumptions was that all of it would go to Mr. Schaible or at least he would receive the economic benefit of that?

"A. I assumed beyond the 30 percent, right.

"Q. One of your assumptions, I assume, was that the marriage would continue during that period?

"A. Yes. All the indications I had it was a happy marriage.

"Q. But that was one of your assumptions?

"A. Based on the information I have.

"Q. And one of your assumptions, I assume, also, was that Mr. Schaible would not remarry and everything would remain the same up to his own death ?

"A. Yes.

"Q. Another one of your assumptions was that Mrs. Schaible would continue in good health and be able to work?

"A. That's correct.

"Q. Will you agree, Mr. Tansky, there is really no way you can say for sure any of the assumptions you made and upon which your opinions were based are valid with reference to this particular individual other than your opinion?

"A. Could you restate that question?

"Q. Okay, I can try, anyway. Would you agree there's really no way you can say, talking about you, now, for sure, that any or all of the assumptions that you have made and upon which your opinions are based, are valid, or would turn out to be valid with reference to this particular individual?

"A. In my opinion?

"Q. No, I'm not asking for your opinion, I'm asking whether there's any way you can say they will be valid.

"A. No, things might have been better or worse economically.

"Q. So, what we are saying, again, you don't have a crystal ball, you don't know what is going to happen in *708 the future or what would happen with reference to any one specific individual?

"A. That's correct." (Emphasis supplied.)

The defendants had earlier received permission from the trial court to ask the emphasized question. That question and its answer were discussed by defendants during closing argument.

The Court of Appeals described the question and answer as an "erroneous suggestion that the possibility of remarriage could be considered to mitigate damages". The Court reversed, stating:

> "Although the defendants' cross-examination and argument did not explicitly state that the possibility of remarriage should be considered to mitigate damages, the facts actually elicited serve no purpose other than to infer (sic) that the expert's estimate of economic loss was not accurate because it did not reflect a possibility that the plaintiff would remarry."

III

[1] We conclude that the Court of Appeals erred. The jury was not told to take into account the possibility that the plaintiff might remarry. Rather it listened to an exposition of the many assumptions upon which the expert witness relied in making his calculations of the plaintiff's economic loss. Such an exposition is necessary to an intelligent understanding and evaluation of the worth of the expert's opinion.

Unlike the situation in Wood,[3] this expert's assumption concerning remarriage was of interest to *709 the defendants solely because of its effect on the expert's opinion 300 as to the amount of economic damages. It was proper for defendant to examine fully the assumptions which underlay the expert's opinion. By calling into question the worth of an expert's many assumptions, defense counsel can seek to show that what appears to be the opinion of an expert is no more than conjecture which the jury can then be urged to ignore.

[2] [3] It remains improper to introduce evidence of the possibility of remarriage to prove that there has been no loss of consortium. It is proper, though, to impeach an expert witness by reviewing the assumptions which underlie the expert's opinion and by arguing that the expert's opinion is mere conjecture based upon erroneous assumptions.

In lieu of granting leave to appeal, we reverse the judgment of the Court of Appeals and reinstate the judgment of the trial court. GCR 1963, 853.2(4).

Costs to defendants.

COLEMAN, C. J., and WILLIAMS, FITZGERALD and RYAN, JJ., concur.

MOODY, Justice (dissenting).

Less than two years ago, in Wood v. The Detroit Edison Co., 409 Mich. 279, 286-287, 294 N.W.2d 571 (1980), a majority of this Court reaffirmed Michigan's rule that

> " 'evidence of plaintiff's remarriage or the probability of her remarriage is irrelevant and, therefore, was properly excluded, in determining the damages she suffered upon the death of her spouse' ".[1]

*710 Describing the reasons for the rule, the Court noted:

> "(E)vidence of the effects of a subsequent marriage should have no bearing on the amount due a plaintiff following a wrongful death. Compensation received from another source should not affect the responsibility owed to the injured party by the tortfeasor." Wood, 287, 294 N.W.2d 571.

Because the majority decision today not only undercuts the rule so recently restated in Wood, but also conflicts with its underlying rationale, we respectfully dissent.

As stated by the Court of Appeals in the instant case:

> "The defendants argue that the possible remarriage of the plaintiff in this case was not argued as a possible mitigating factor but that it was only mentioned to inform the jury that the plaintiff's expert witness based his calculation of damages upon the assumption that the plaintiff would not remarry. The defendants contend that their right to cross-examine the plaintiff's expert witness to determine the assumptions which he made in calculating damages extends to asking whether or not the expert assumed that the plaintiff would not remarry. Although the defendants' cross-examination and argument did not explicitly state that the possibility of remarriage should be considered to mitigate damages, the facts actually elicited serve no purpose other than to infer (sic) that the expert's estimate of economic loss was not accurate because it did not reflect a possibility that the plaintiff would remarry. The assumption implicit within the expert's conclusion was, however, a proper application of the cases cited above (Bunda v. Hardwick, 376 Mich. 640, 138 N.W.2d 305 (1965); and Bradfield v. Estate of Burgess, 62 Mich.App. 345, 233 N.W.2d 541 (1975), lv. den., 395 Mich. 803 (1975)) to the estimate of damages in this case."

Thus, in effect, defendants were permitted to *711 bring an irrelevant and improper consideration, the possibility of plaintiff's remarriage, to the attention of the jury.[2] 301 Under the rationale stated in Wood, it should make no difference whether the jury is specifically told to take account of the factor of remarriage in assessing damages, as occurred in Wood, or whether that factor is used to evaluate an expert's testimony regarding damages, as occurred in the instant case. In either case, such evidence is irrelevant and should be excluded.

Accordingly, we would affirm the decision of the Court of Appeals and remand the case for a new trial.

LEVIN and KAVANAGH, JJ., concur.

3 In Wood the plaintiff had remarried prior to trial. The trial court permitted testimony concerning the remarriage on the ground that if loss of society and companionship were claimed as damages, all facts pertaining to such loss, including remarriage, should be considered. Wood, 409 Mich. 284, 294 N.W.2d 571.

1 The Wood Court quoted Bunda v. Hardwick, 376 Mich. 640, 656, 138 N.W.2d 305 (1965). In Bunda, as in the instant case, the Court focused upon the issue of economic loss, as opposed to loss of consortium.

2 In the instant case, not only did defendants' attorney raise the question of Mr. Schaible's remarriage during cross-examination of the expert witness, but he also discussed the question and its answer during his closing argument. Such repetition may have served to exaggerate the improper effect upon the jury.

I. BACKGROUND

This report assesses the present value of economic loss resulting from the death of Krystal Melissa Ballard on July 26, 2010. The economic loss calculated in this analysis consists of lost financial support and lost non-financial support.

II. SUMMARY OF ANALYSIS

This analysis calculates lost financial support and lost non-financial support across two scenarios. Scenario 1 projects Ms. Ballard's career across the enlisted ranks of the U.S. Air Force for a total of 20 years of military service and then in accordance with the civilian earnings of the average female with a college degree. Scenario 2 assumes Ms. Ballard would have become a commissioned officer by January 1, 2016 and projects her career from that time forward across the officer ranks O1-O3 of the U.S. Air Force for a total of 20 years of military service and then in accordance with the civilian earnings of the average female with a college degree.

Under each scenario, lost financial support is projected (a) in accordance with a normal worklife expectancy and (b) assuming a full worklife to age 67 (social security full retirement age).

What follows is a summary of the economic loss to be associated with the death of Ms. Ballard.

The total present value of lost financial support ranges from $1,525,392 to $1,812,045 under Scenario 1 and from $1,872,058 to $2,197,079 under Scenario 2 (Table 1).

Assuming that Ms. Ballard typically provided between 23.7 and 24.2 hours of household services per week (i.e., the average for females with Ms. Ballard's socioeconomic characteristics), the present value of lost non-financial support ranges from $572,213 to $584,285 (Table 1).

The total present value of economic loss to be associated with the death of Ms. Ballard ranges from $2,109,677 to $2,384,258 under Scenario 1 and from $2,456,343 to $2,769,292 under Scenario 2 (Table 1).

III. SOCIOECONOMIC DATA

Age

Krystal Melissa Ballard was born on April 19, 1983 and was 27 years old at the time of her death.

Education

Ms. Ballard graduated from Arima Senior Secondary School in 2001. At the time of her death, Ms. Ballard was attending college and was well into the process of obtaining a bachelor's degree; she had accumulated 70 credits and was earning approximately 10 credits per calendar year. This analysis assumes Ms. Ballard would have continued her university studies and that she would have completed her bachelor's degree in 2015. Additionally, Scenario 2 assumes that Ms. Ballard would have completed officer training school by January 2016.

Life Expectancy

In determining Ms. Ballard's life expectancy, this analysis relies on the life tables assembled by the U.S. National Center for Health Statistics [1]. These tables show the normal life expectancy for women who are Ms. Ballard's age.

As of the date of her death, Ms. Ballard was 27.27 years old and had a life expectancy of 54.13 more years (i.e., to age 81 in the year 2064).

Furthermore, according to the mortality and morbidity data of the United States Department of Health and Human Services [2], as of July 26, 2010 at age 27.27, Ms. Ballard had a healthy life expectancy of 48.07 more years.

Household Data

Ms. Ballard was married to Charles K. Ballard. Mr. Ballard was born on September 30, 1982 and as of the date of this report (May 8, 2013), he is 30 years old.

As of the date of this report (May 8, 2013), Mr. Ballard has a life expectancy of 46.38 more years (i.e., to age 76 in the year 2059) [1].

Occupation and Earnings

Ms. Ballard was a staff sergeant (grade E-5) in the United States Air Force at the time of her death. She joined the Air Force as an Airman Basic on April 13, 2004.

In addition to basic pay, enlisted members of the United States Air Force also receive: subsistence allowance (food money), clothing allowance, housing allowance, a station allowance based on location, hardship duty pay, combat zone tax exclusion benefits, travel entitlements (relocation expense coverages), thrift savings benefits (401k-type), comprehensive medical, dental and vision benefits, and retirement pay.

During her career as an Air Force personnel, Ms. Ballard's personal consumption would have been minimized by her different allowances and benefits. This analysis offsets the normal level of personal consumption during Ms. Ballard's military career to account for the expenditure allowances provided to her by the US Air Force.

After her military career (20 years of service), this analysis projects Ms. Ballard's career in line with the earnings of the average female with a college degree. During her civilian career, this analysis estimates benefits to be 10 percent of money earnings to account for additional retirement income (legally required retirement benefits and 401K-type benefits).

Wage Base for Lost Financial Support

This report projects Ms. Ballard's military wages across two scenarios. At the time of her death, Ms. Ballard was a staff sergeant at grade E-5. Scenario 1 assumes Ms. Ballard would have completed her bachelor's degree as she continued to advance at the normal rate of an enlisted member of the U.S. Air Force (Table 2). Scenario 2 assumes that Ms. Ballard would have earned her bachelor's degree, completed officer training school, and been promoted to O-1 rank by January 1, 2016. After obtaining the O-1 rank, this analysis assumes that Ms. Ballard would have continued to progress at the normal pace to rank O-2 and O-3 (Table 3).

Ms. Ballard planned on retiring from the military after 20 years of service and expected to enter the civilian labor force at that time. Scenario 1 and 2 projects Ms. Ballard's civilian wages based on the average money earnings of females with a bachelor's degree who are Ms. Ballard's age (Table 4).

Ms. Ballard's civilan earnings estimates are adjusted each year in line with the earnings life cycle or individual productivity of the average female with a bachelor's degree who is Ms. Ballard's age (Table 5).

Future lost financial support has been reduced to present value according to the methodology described in Section IV.

Wage Growth

Table 6 presents some empirical evidence showing that workers may expect their wages to grow over time in line with the growing economy.

There are three key economic factors that drive wage growth: (1) inflation, (2) macroeconomic productivity, and (3) individual productivity.

If the prices of goods increase while wages remain fixed, the purchasing power of workers decreases (i.e., workers get poorer). Hence if inflation is 3.0 percent, wages must also increase by 3.0 percent in order for workers to remain as well off.

Another reason for wage growth is increased macroeconomic productivity. In other words, when workers have better capital goods to work with (e.g., computers instead of typewriters or bulldozers instead of shovels), productivity and wages increase.

Thus as technology and the efficiency of capital goods increase, the economy grows and wages increase. {[8], [9]}

The third key economic factor that drives wage growth is the productivity of individual workers. Workers with more human capital (e.g., informal and formal training, general and specific work experience, education, etc.) tend to be more productive.

Wage differentials due to differences in individual productivity levels are captured through an analysis of the age-earnings profiles (or earnings life cycles) of different age-education peer groups. {[8], [9], [10], [11]}

The annual earnings estimates in this analysis are adjusted each year in line with the earnings life cycle of the average worker in Ms. Ballard's peer group.

For further discussion regarding wage growth due to individual productivity (level of human capital) vis-à-vis economy-wide productivity (efficiency of capital goods) see Economics [8] or Modern Labor Economics [9].

Retirement and Worklife Expectancy

While the average retirement age is 63.7 for males and 63.6 for females [12], there are periods in the average worker's life during which he/she is not working (e.g., due to illness, job loss, voluntary retirement, etc.).

Given a person's gender, age and education level, worklife expectancy tables calculate the probabilities that periods of labor force separation will exist during the working life of an individual.

The expected working life is an estimate of the number of years, expressed as a function of constant employment, that the average person in a gender and age-education peer group is expected to continue to participate in the labor force.

Chart 1 of this report illustrates the process by which the worklife expectancy tables calculate and express an individual's normal expected working life.

According to the 1986 U.S. Department of Labor worklife tables (which rely on employment data from 1979 to 1980) [13], as of July 26, 2010 at age 27.27, Ms. Ballard had a normal expected working life of 27.01 more years.

To reflect the socioeconomic changes that have occurred over the last several decades, Ciecka, Epstein and Goldman [14], Richards and Abele [15], Skoog and Ciecka [16] and Skoog, Ciecka and Krueger [17] used the U.S. Department of Labor's methodologies to calculate updated worklife estimates using more current employment data.

More specifically, the Ciecka, Epstein and Goldman updates are based on 1994 labor data, the Richards and Abele updates are based on labor data from 1996 to 1998, the Skoog and Ciecka updates are based on labor data from 1997 and 1998, and the Skoog, Ciecka and Krueger updates are based on labor data from 2005 to 2009.

These updated calculations of the U.S. Department of Labor worklife tables indicate that given her gender, her education, and her age as of July 26, 2010, Ms. Ballard had a normal expected working life of 32.58 more years (Ciecka, Epstein and Goldman), 29.68 more years (Richards and Abele), 30.02 more years (Skoog and Ciecka), and 31.42 more years (Skoog, Ciecka and Krueger).

Summary of Worklife Expectancy Calculations
Ciecka, Epstein and Goldman (1994)	Richards and Abele (1996-98)	Skoog and Ciecka (1997-98)	Skoog, Ciecka, Krueger (2005-09)
32.58	29.68	30.02	31.42

This analysis projects lost financial support in accordance with a normal worklife expectancy -- retirement at age 63.6, the average retirement age of all females, and a normal worklife expectancy of 30.93 more years.

Furthermore, in accordance with the Social Security Administration's increasing full retirement age, this analysis also projects lost financial support assuming a full worklife to age 67 (social security normal retirement age for people born in 1960 or later).

Household Services or Non-Financial Support

In the United States, time devoted to work is usually compensated in dollars and cents. A major exception is the household work performed by women, children and men in our society that is not sold in formal markets.

While household services may frequently be performed outside formal labor markets, it is clear these services do have a monetary value. {[8], [9], [20], [21], [22], [23], [24], [25], [26], [27], [28], [29]}

The "Dollar Value of a Day" summarizes the U.S. Department of Labor's American Time Use Survey data reporting the time spent by 124,517 persons across the country.

Using the hourly compensation actually paid to females whose employment involves the same activities that people with Ms. Ballard's socioeconomic characteristics typically provide to their own household, the national average household service replacement cost is $13.46 per hour. [29]

In this analysis, household service time is valued using a market alternative cost or a 2013 base replacement cost of $13.46 per hour.

This analysis calculates the present value of household services on a one hour per week basis.

This analysis values household services using market alternative costs, or the market wage rates actually paid to workers for performing household services in the marketplace.

The premise of this method is that household work should be valued at the rate one would have to pay someone to do that work, and as such, it is an accounting based measure rather than an opportunity cost based measure.

Furthermore, as this is an economic analysis, no attempt has been made to quantify the individualistic value associated with lost household services. In other words, while one person may value doing yard work more than another, while a person may value a spouse's or a parent's cooking more than a stranger's, or while the time a parent spends caring for a child may be priceless, this analysis limits the valuation of household service time to market alternative costs.

Future household services were projected through age 75.34 and reduced to present value according to the methodology described in Section IV.

Personal Consumption and Financial Support Factor

If a realistic estimate of lost financial support is to emerge from this analysis, consideration must be given to the portion of Ms. Ballard's earnings that would have been used for purchases exclusively for her own personal benefit if not for her premature death. The financial support factor necessary to maintain the living standard for surviving family members is a function of the deceased person's personal consumption. [30]

This analysis accounts for Ms. Ballard's personal consumption, and the estimates of economic loss in this analysis have been reduced by the portion of Ms. Ballard's earnings that she would have incurred for her own personal maintenance.

Each year since 1980, the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) has conducted a survey study [31] of consumer expenditures by querying independent samples of thousands of households in areas representative of the total U.S. civilian population.

The BLS survey study (Consumer Expenditure Survey) is designed to obtain details regarding the spending patterns of individuals and households with varying characteristics.

An analysis of the BLS consumption data reveals that the financial support factor is highly correlated with income and household structure (i.e., age and number of members). [31]

This analysis uses data from the U.S. Department of Labor's annual survey studies of consumer expenditures to estimate Ms. Ballard's personal consumption and corresponding financial support factor based on her age, level of income and household size. [31]

For Ms. Ballard, personal consumption as a percentage of earnings ranges from 24 percent to 44 percent. These consumption percentages have been applied to expected earnings.

Based on Ms. Ballard's expected level of pay during her military career, normal personal consumption would be 36 percent of money earnings. However, Ms. Ballard's consumption would have been offset by the following military benefits: subsistence pay ($352/month), clothing allowance ($342/year), and housing allowance for her and her husband less normal rent ($632 x 2 - $890). After accounting for these expenditure benefits, Ms. Ballard's personal consumption during her military career is estimated to be 24 percent.

During her civilian worklife (post military and before final retirement), Ms. Ballard's personal consumption is estimated to be 26-28 percent (Scenario 1) and 25-26 percent (Scenario 2). After final retirement, her personal consumption is estimated to be 44 percent (Scenario 1) and 36 percent (Scenario 2).

Under Scenario 1, the present value of Ms. Ballard's personal consumption of money earnings ranges from $365,487 (normal worklife) to $491,695 (full worklife to age 67). Under Scenario 2, the present value of Ms. Ballard's personal consumption of money earnings ranges from $389,136 (normal worklife) to $505,432 (full worklife to age 67).

IV. PRESENT VALUE ANALYSIS

Present Value of Pecuniary Loss

The easiest and perhaps the best way to estimate the lost future financial support would be to wait and see what the average worker with Ms. Ballard's socio-economic characteristics earns each year in the future. Unfortunately, this cannot be done.

Pecuniary damages must be estimated as of today. This means that the expected future earnings of Ms. Ballard must be estimated in a reasonable way and then expressed in 2013 dollars or present value.

Empirical evidence from the past 57 years indicates that the time value of money and the workers' wage growth rate covary so as to establish a differential (discount rate minus wage growth rate) of zero to one percent.

More specifically, since 1956 the compound annual interest received from investments in U.S. Treasury securities with 1-month, 5-year and 20-year maturities has exceeded the annual increase in wages on a year-by-year basis at a median rate of 0.4, 1.0 and 1.6 percent per year, respectively. {[5], [32]}

Furthermore, since 1956 the average annual growth in total compensation (i.e., wages and benefits) has been approximately one percent higher than the average annual increase in wages alone {[5], [33], [34], [35]}. Since 1956 the compound annual interest received from investments in U.S. Treasury securities with 1-month, 5-year and 20-year maturities has exceeded the annual increase in compensation on a year-by-year basis at a median rate of -0.4, 0.2 and 1.1 percent per year respectively. {[32], [33], [34], [35]}

Further insights regarding future expected wage-interest differentials can be gleaned through an examination of the interest rate and wage rate expectations of some of the largest U.S. companies.

Hewitt Associates, a prominent national actuarial and benefit consulting firm, conducted an annual survey study [36] of the postretirement benefit liabilities of the Fortune 500 and S&P 500 companies. This study analyzes disclosures under the Financial Accounting Standards Board's (FASB) Statement 87 (accounting for pensions) and Statement 106 (accounting for postretirement benefits other than pensions). The key economic assumptions that determine a firm's obligation for pension benefits to its employees are the wage growth rate and the expected long-term rate of return on plan assets. Each year this study includes approximately 400 companies that have reported information on defined benefit pension plans in their financial statements (FAS 87). The historical average wage growth rate used by these companies has been 4.9 percent and the average long-term rate of return on plan assets used has been 9.0 percent.

Watson Wyatt Worldwide, another prominent national actuarial and benefit consulting firm, has conducted an annual survey study of pension plans in the United States covering 1,000 or more active participants. The 2006 survey study [37] looks at the actuarial assumptions of 478 large pension plans covering 1,000 or more active participants. For the 220 pension plans in this study that base retirement benefits on final average pay, the average wage growth rate used was 4.6 percent and the average rate of return on plan assets used was 8.0 percent. From 1990 to 2006, the average wage growth rate used for pension plans that base retirement benefits on final average pay is 5.2 percent and the average long-term rate of return on plan assets for the same plans is 8.2 percent.

In another study [40], Towers Watson analyzes the financial disclosures of 615 companies on the Fortune list of 1,000 companies. The report summarizes the assumptions used by these companies in the calculation of pension expense and obligations. This summary report is the twenty-fourth in a series of annual analyses of pensions. The average wage growth rate used by the companies in the 2011 study is 3.9 percent and the average long-term rate of return on plan assets is 7.9 percent. From 1990 to 2010, the wage growth rate used by companies has averaged 4.6 percent and the long-term rate of return on plan assets for the same period has averaged 8.8 percent.

The expected long-term rate of return on plan assets is the actuarial discount rate used to estimate the amount of money that must be invested to meet the future benefit obligations of a defined benefit pension plan. Thus the 7.9 to 9.0 percent expected rates of return on plan assets noted in the pension plan studies cited above are the discount rates used to reflect the earnings anticipated on the investments made by the fund in order to provide the projected benefit obligations. As such, these rates represent the average expected return on investments in a variety of risky assets. When adjusted for risk, the three-to-four percent differential (used by corporate defined benefit pension plans) which is based on the expected return from investments in risky assets and expected wage growth rates is equivalent to a zero percent differential which is based on the yields of U.S. Treasury securities and expected wage growth rates.

This risk adjusted equivalence can be easily demonstrated in either one of two ways: (1) by plotting the long-term expected rate of return on plan assets against the contemporaneous long-term risk-free rate (i.e., the current yield on 20-year U.S. Treasury bonds adjusted for expected horizon premium); or (2) by calculating the expected risk premium that corporate defined benefit pension plans anticipate from their risky investment portfolio (E[portfolio risk premium] = å [E(return on asseti) - E(risk free rate)] * [portfolio weight of asseti]).

Chart 8 illustrates the first method and suggests that corporate defined benefit plan sponsors would use a differential rate (interest rate minus wage growth rate) of approximately zero if pension assets were restricted to U.S. Treasury securities. Table 7 illustrates the second method and also suggests that corporate defined benefit plan sponsors would use a differential rate (interest rate minus wage growth rate) of approximately zero if pension assets were restricted to U.S. Treasury securities.

The annual report of the board of trustees of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and Disability Insurance Trust Funds [42] reports the financial and actuarial status of the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance (OASI) and Disability Insurance (DI) Trust Funds. The Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance (OASDI) program in the United States provides protection against the loss of earnings due to retirement, death or disability. The total assets of the OASI and DI Trust Funds at the beginning of the calendar year 2012 amounted to $2.68 trillion.

Unlike the investment portfolios of corporate pension plans, by law the investments of the OASI and DI Trust Funds must be made in interest-bearing securities of the U.S. Government or in securities guaranteed by the United States. Because of this, the invested assets of the trust funds are backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government in the same way as other public-debt obligations of the United States. The OASI and DI Trust Funds employ a long-term expected annual return on assets (i.e., a U.S. Treasury bond yield assumption) ranging from 5.2 to 6.2 percent and a long-term annual wage growth assumption ranging from 3.51 to 4.32 percent. The maturity premium implicit in the yield curve of U.S. Treasury bonds has averaged 0.9 percent for intermediate-term bonds and 1.7 percent for long-term bonds during the 1926-2011 period [32]. Therefore, the wage-interest differential used by the OASDI program is equivalent to a net discount rate ranging from 0.0 to 1.9 percent.

Given the initial level of income (earnings base) and the length of the time period (expected working life), all that is necessary in order to estimate the present value of a worker's anticipated future income stream is knowledge of the wage-interest differential. In other words, it is the size of the differential, not the expected levels of wage rates or interest rates, that determines the present value of a future stream of earnings. Table 8 illustrates this point. The data in the table make it clear that regardless of what the actual interest rates and wage growth rates are in the future, the present values for a given differential are identical.

Hence while economists cannot predict what actual interest (discount) rates and actual wage growth rates will be over an extended period in the future, the present value of future economic losses can be bounded with a reasonable degree of economic certainty when a zero to one percent differential (discount rate minus the wage growth rate) is utilized to convert expected future amounts to their present values. This analysis calculates present values using a net discount rate of 0.5 percent.

It should be noted that sometimes the net discount rate is confused with the gross discount rate. This mistake leads to the erroneous conclusion that the net discount rate method assumes a severely limited ability, or no ability at all, to earn interest in the future. For example, with this misunderstanding, it is often argued that a net discount rate of zero percent means that x dollars is required today to cover x dollars of lost wages in the future. Obviously this is not the case. Chart 4 through Chart 7 illustrate the proper interpretation of the net discount rate method.

V. CONCLUSION

The total present value of economic loss to be associated with the death of Ms. Ballard ranges from $2,109,677 to $2,384,258 under Scenario 1 and from $2,456,343 to $2,769,292 under Scenario 2 (see Table 1).

This analysis does not include any allowance for incentive or special pay (family separation allowance, hazardous duty incentive pay, imminent danger pay/hostile fire pay, combat zone tax exclusion, drill pay, travel entitlements, relocation expense coverages, thrift savings benefits) that Ms. Ballard may have received as a member of the U.S. Air Force. Consequently, economic damages in this analysis are biased downward.

This analysis may be updated if additional relevant information becomes available as this litigation progresses.

The 3.9% risk premium of the average corporate pension plan portfolio is just 0.1% less than the average interest-wage differentials used by the pension plans included in the Hewitt Associates study [36] and the Towers Watson studies {[37], [38], [40]}, suggesting that corporate defined benefit pension plans would use a differential (discount rate minus wage growth rate) of zero if pension assets were restricted to U.S. Treasury securities. Details regarding the Hewitt and Towers Watson studies are discussed in the Present Value Analysis section of this report.

The Greenwich Associates survey study [41] is based on the review of 1,022 corporate pension plans and in-person interviews with 610 corporate fund officials between August and October of 2004.

The data in the table make it clear that the present values for a given differential are identical even though the total earnings over the 36 years vary from $360,000 for a zero percent wage growth rate up to $2,186,976 for an eight percent growth rate. If, for example, a 1.0 percent differential (discount rate minus growth rate) were appropriate, it makes no difference whether the actual discount-growth combination is 1.0 percent versus 0.0 percent, or 8.0 percent versus 7.0 percent. Furthermore, it makes no difference whether the differential is created by a constant discount-growth combination through time (e.g., the discount rate is always 3.0 percent and the growth rate is always 2.0 percent), or whether the differential emerges by virtue of a succession of different discount-growth combinations (e.g., the discount rate changes from 3.0 percent to 4.0 percent to 5.0 percent and the wage growth rate changes from 2.0 percent to 3.0 percent to 4.0 percent).

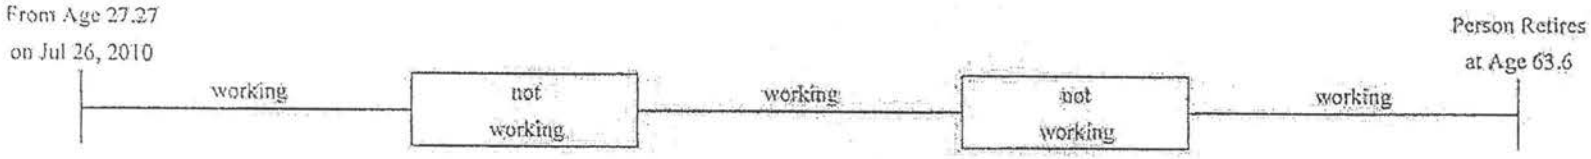
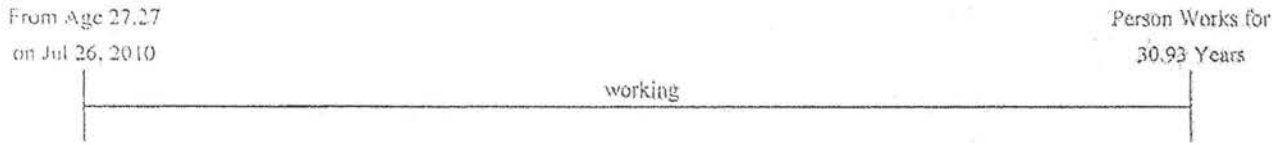
Chart 1: Worklife Expectancy vis-à-vis Retirement

Worklife tables isolate the probabilities that the boxed areas will exist.
The time line below represents a person's age throughout her working life.

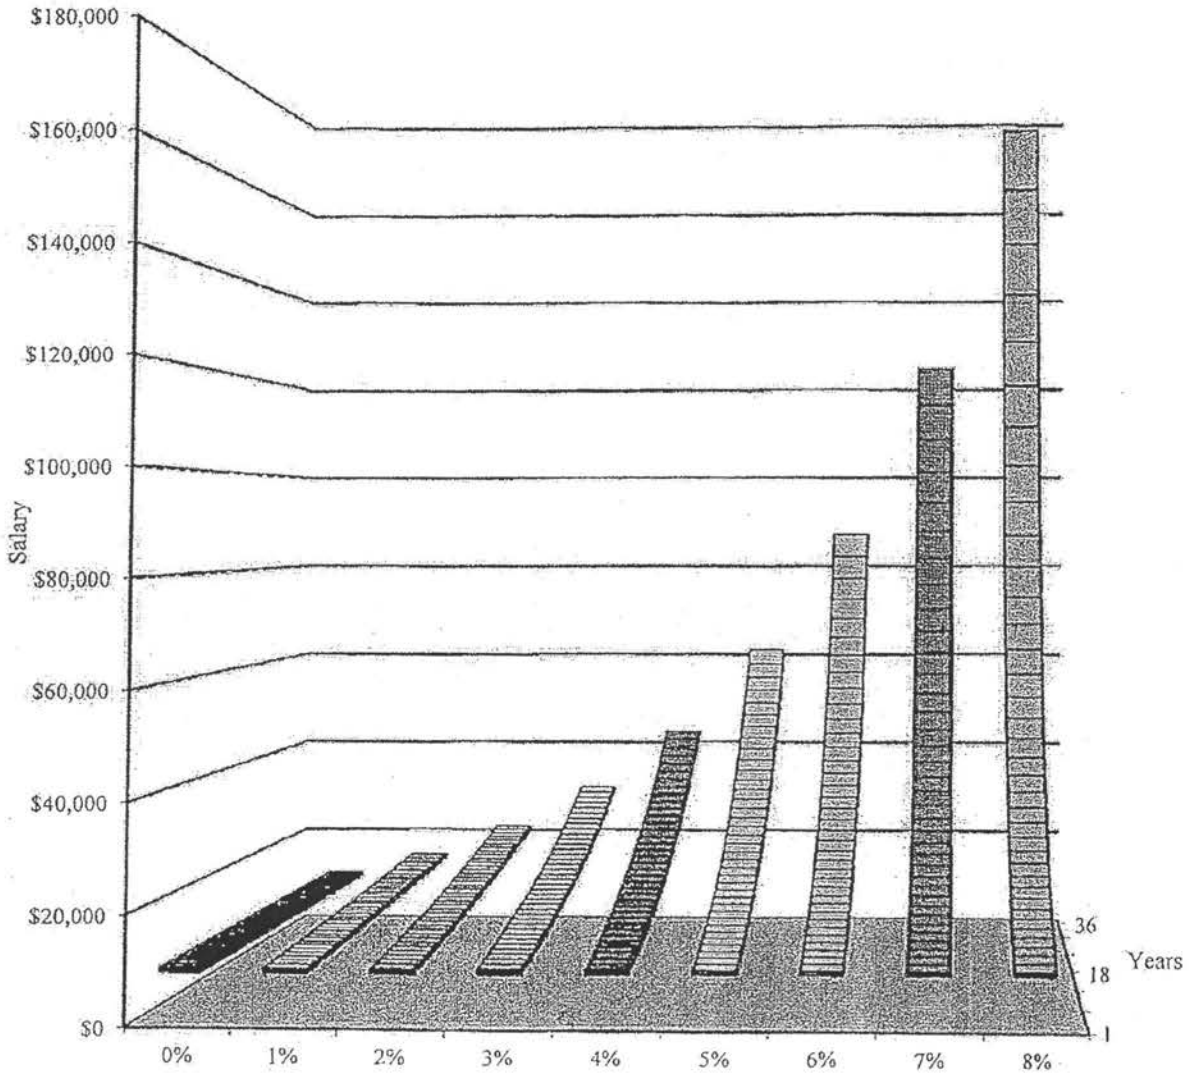


Worklife tables remove the boxed areas and express worklife expectancy as a function of constant employment.
The time line below represents the number of years a person is expected to work without interruption.



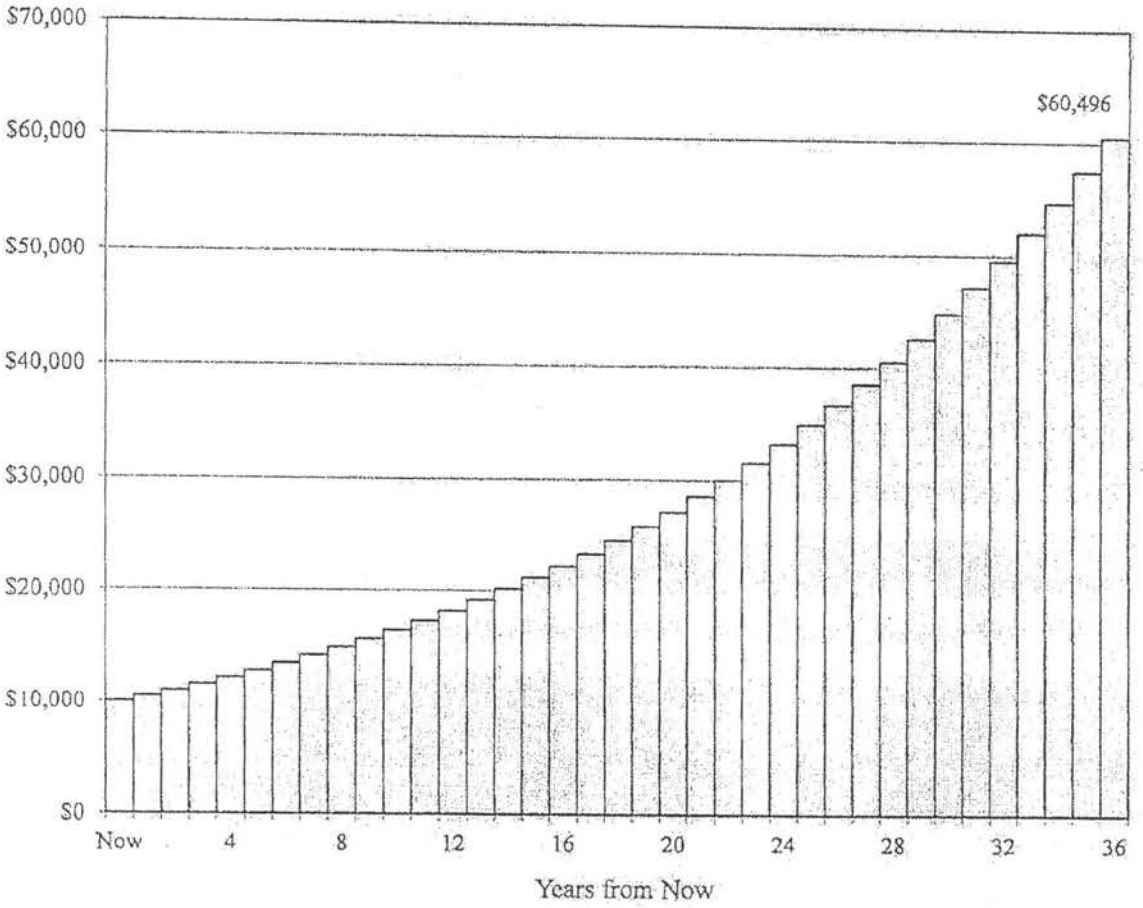
The normal retirement and worklife scenarios of this analysis assume that Ms. Ballard would have retired at age 63.6, the average retirement age of all females [12].
A normal worklife expectancy for someone with Ms. Ballard's socioeconomic characteristics is 30.93 years [14].
The worklife adjustment factor applied to each year of projected earnings is 0.85136.
[(30.93 year worklife expectancy) = (0.85136) x (36.33 year period from Ms. Ballard's age as of July 26, 2010 to age 63.6)]

Chart 2: Future Values of a $10,000 Salary Over 36 Years



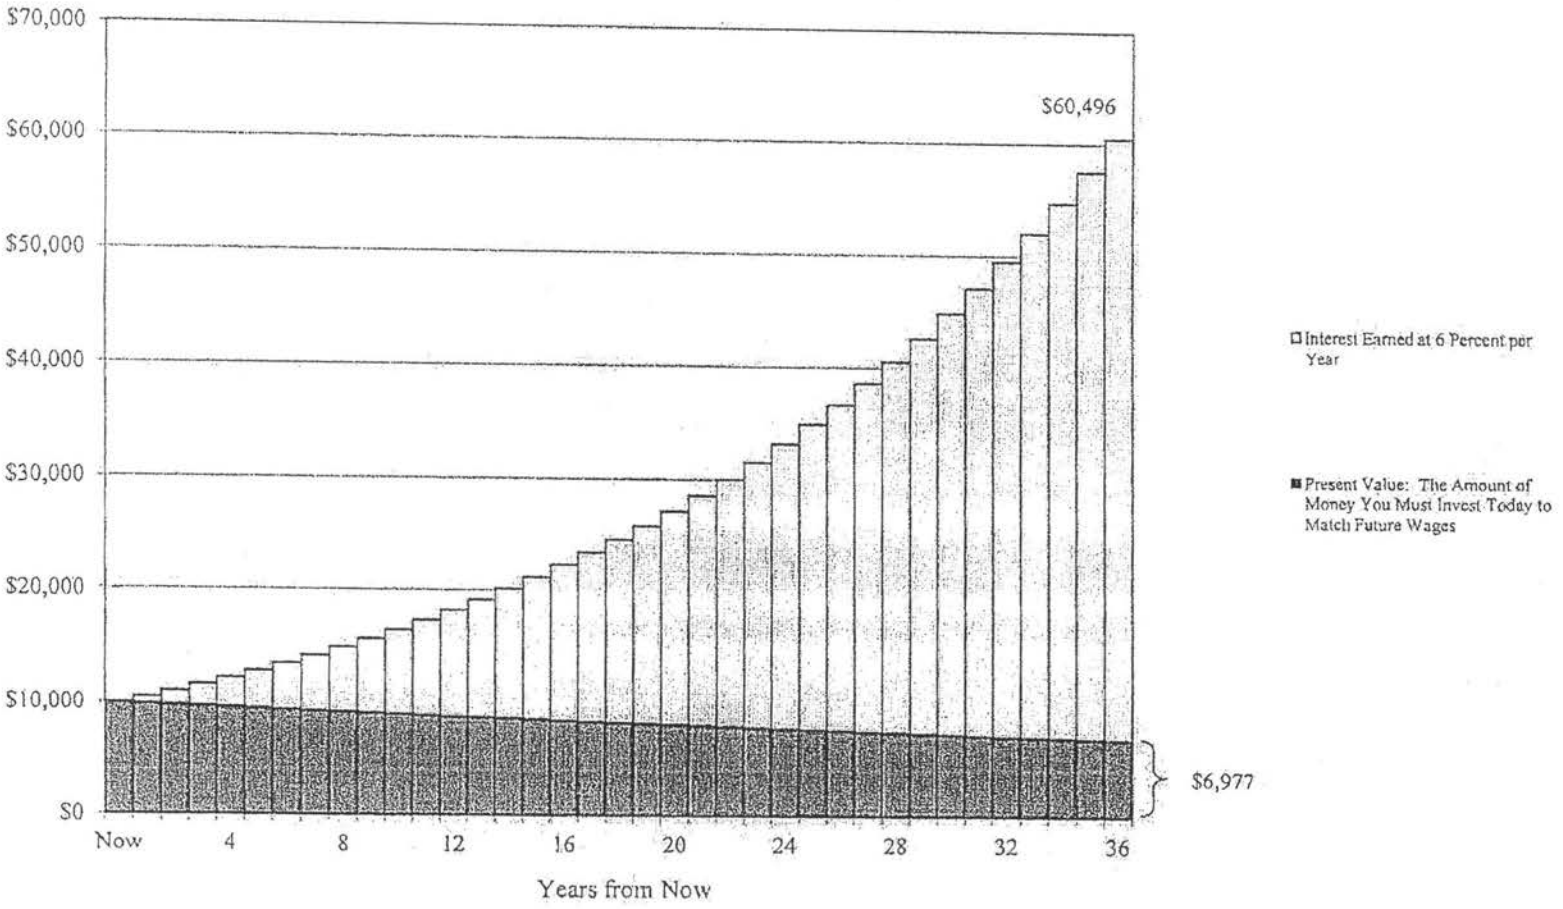
Note: If wages increase 5 percent each year, the annual salary at the end of 36 years is $60,496.

Chart 3: Future Values of a $10,000 Salary Increased 5 Percent Each Year Over 36 Years



Note: If wages increase 5 percent each year, the annual salary at the end of 36 years is $60,496.

Chart 4: A Demonstration of Present Value
Increased for Wage Growth at 5% and Decreased for Interest at 6%



Note: If wages increase 5 percent each year, an annual salary of $10,000 today will be $60,496 in 36 years. However, with 6 percent annual interest, it only takes $6,977 today to exactly cover the $60,496 of annual wages 36 years from now.

Chart 5: Present Value Using the Net Discount Rate Method Decreased for Net Interest at 1%

Note: The present value is the same whether you calculate it in two steps (add growth and subtract interest) or in one step (subtract the net interest).

This analysis uses the ATUS time-diary data to determine the average number of household service hours provided per week and the hourly market value of those services. Data is extracted from 162 tables (Tables 1-24, 36-87, 99-140, 148-165, 173-182, 184-191, and 193-200) to run a multiple linear regression analysis predicting total weekly household service hours based on gender, employement status, marital status, employment status of spouse, age of person, the number of household members, and the number of children in the household, where total weekly household service hours are defined as the sum of weekly household production hours and weekly caring and helping hours provided to the household. Dummy variables are used to indicate gender (female = 0 or 1), employment status (full-time = 0 or 1, part-time = 0 or 1, homemaker = 0 or 1), marital status (married = 0 or 1), and spouse employment status (employed = 0 or 1). Transformations on the other variables in the analysis were performed to make the data more linear.

The regression analysis of the total weekly household service hours was run on gender (Female), employment status (Fulltime, Parttime, Homemaker), marital status (Married), employment status of spouse (SE), the natural log of age (ln-age), the natural log of household member (ln-hhm), square root of the number of children (sr-kids) and the square root of the total weekly household service hours (sr-hhshours).

The resulting regression equation for weekly household service time is sr-hhshours = 2.69 + 0.809 Female - 0.784 Fulltime - 0.369 Parttime + 0.761 Homemaker + 0.951 Married + 0.222 SE + 0.370 ln-age - 0.822 ln-hhm + 1.104 sr-kids, with an R-squared value of 92.2 percent. All predictor coefficients for the independent variables are significant at less than the 1 percent level, and, furthermore, the F-test (a measurement of the overall fit of the regression model or a test of the hypothesis that all regression coefficients, excepting that of the constant, are zero) is also significant at less than the 1 percent level.

The average hourly market value of household services across all 200 tables is $13.41 for males and $12.93 for females.

These surveys are used to calculate the personal consumption associated with lost earnings. Consumption data for households with over $10,000 in annual income was extracted from Tables 25-44, 3600, 3610, 3620, 3630, 3640 and 3650 in each of the thirteen surveys to run a multiple linear regression analysis estimating the personal consumption of an individual's earnings based on age, income and the number of household members. Transformations of the data were performed to make the data more linear. In particular, the regression analysis was run on 2,259 sets of consumption data each including the natural log of household income (lnHHI), the natural log of household members (lnHHM), the square root of age (srAge) and the natural log of personal consumption (lnPC), where personal consumption is defined as (a) + (b), where (a) is defined as the sum of the expenditures allocated to household members 18 and older divided by household members 18 and older and where (b) is defined as the sum of all other household personal consumption expenditures divided by the number of household members.

The expenditures allocated to household members 18 and older under (a) include (alcoholic beverages), (transportation:other vehicle expenses:vehicle insurance), (transportation:other vehicle expenses:vehicle rental, leases, licenses, other charges), (tobacco products and smoking supplies) and (personal insurance and pensions:life and other personal insurance).

The expenditures allocated to all household members under (b) include (food), (housing:shelter:other lodging), (housing:utilities, fuels, and public services), (housing:household operations), (housing:housekeeping supplies), (housing:household furnishings and equipment), (apparel and services), (transportation:vehicle purchases net outlay), (transportation:gasoline and motor oil), (transportation:other vehicle expenses:vehicle finance charges), (transportation:other vehicle expenses:maintenance and repairs), (transportation:public transportation), (health care), (entertainment), (personal care products and services), (reading), (education), (miscellaneous) and (cash contributions).

The income and expenditures in each survey were adjusted to equivalent dollars based on the actual inflation (as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in its CPI-U index) that has ocurred since the upper year of each survey. For example, the 2008-09 survey data was increased to current dollars based upon actual inflation since 2009.

After the data was converted to current dollars and transformed for linearity as noted above, the regression analysis was run. The resulting regression equation is lnPC = 4.63+(0.49*lnHHI)+(-0.72*lnHHM)+(0.0417*srAge), with an R-squared value of 95.3 percent. All predictor coefficients for the independent variables are significant at less than the 1 percent level, and, furthermore, the F-test (a measurement of the overall fit of the regression model or a test of the hypothesis that all regression coefficients, excepting that of the constant, are zero) is also significant at less than the 1 percent level.

SUPPLEMENTAL RESPONSE:

Dean E. Sorensen, M.D.
Sorensen Cosmetic Surgery Center
250 Bobwhite Court, Suite 120
Boise, ID 83706

Dean Sorensen, M.D. is a physician who has practiced cosmetic medicine including plastic surgery in Ada County for over 20 years. He owns and operates the Sorensen Cosmetic Surgery Center of Idaho. Dr. Sorensen's facility serves the Boise and Eagle, Idaho areas. Dr. Sorensen also has staff privileges at St. Luke's Regional Medical Center in Boise. Dr. Sorensen is familiar with the standard of care applicable to defendants at the time Krystal Ballard was treated by Dr. Kerr at his clinic, Silk Touch MedSpa and Laser Center. He is familiar with the standard of care applicable to physicians such as Defendant Brian Kerr, M.D. practicing cosmetic medicine including cosmetic and aesthetic procedures and surgery in Ada County including Boise and Eagle at the time Krystal Ballard was treated by Dr. Kerr at his clinic in July 2010.

Dr. Sorensen's Curriculum Vitae is attached in supplemental response to Defendants' Interrogatory No. 6. By way of background, he received his degree in medicine from Loyola University in Chicago. Upon completion of his medical school training, Dr. Sorensen underwent an internship followed by a residency in general surgery at Highland Hospital in Oakland, California and the U.S. Naval Hospital in Portsmouth, Virginia. Subsequently, he undertook a two-year fellowship in plastic surgery at the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City. Following a facelift fellowship, Dr. Sorensen returned to Boise where his practice includes plastic, aesthetic and reconstructive procedures and services. Dr. Sorensen is board-certified by the American Board of Surgery and the American Board of Plastic Surgery. He is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, a member of the American Society of Plastic Surgeons and the Aesthetic Society. He is a member of the AMA and Idaho Medical Association. He is past President of the Ada County Medical Society. He has served on the Idaho State Board of Medicine and the Idaho State Board of Medical Discipline. Dr. Sorensen is an inspector for AAAASF, which certifies ambulatory surgical facilities similar to that of the defendants for compliance with local and national standards of care, including the sterilization policies, procedures and protocols employed by such facilities. By virtue of his education, training and experience as described above, Dr. Sorensen is familiar with the standard of care for physicians and surgical facilities offering cosmetic and aesthetic services such as those performed by the defendants and which were performed on Krystal Ballard by the defendants, including the appropriate sterilization policies, procedure and protocols required by the standard of care in both the Boise, Eagle, Ada County and surrounding areas. Dr. Sorensen is familiar with the applicable standard of health care practice in the areas served by St. Luke's Regional Medical Center and St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, to include Ada County, Idaho and the cities of Boise and Eagle, which existed at the time and place of the treatment of Krystal Ballard on or about July 21, 2010 in Eagle, Idaho, and which was applicable to the class of health care providers to which the defendants Dr. Kerr and his clinic, Silk Touch Med Spa & Laser Center, belong, and in which he and the clinic were functioning, and which applied to similarly trained and qualified providers of the same class in the same community, taking into account their training, experience, and fields of medical specialization (hereafter "the applicable standard of care").

Dr. Sorensen has reviewed the pertinent medical records of Krystal Ballard, including the report of the post-mortem examination of Krystal Ballard. He has also reviewed the deposition transcripts of Dr. Kerr, Ms. Kerr and Donna Berg as part of his review in this case. As discovery proceeds, Dr. Sorensen will receive additional discovery materials as they become available and, therefore, his anticipated opinions are subject to modification and supplementation. All of Dr. Sorensen's anticipated opinions will be to a reasonable degree of medical certainty.

It is expected that Dr. Sorensen will testify that Krystal Ballard died as a direct and proximate result of conduct of the defendants that was not only negligent, but rose to the level of reckless misconduct, and which grossly violated the applicable standard of care. A review of the depositions reveal that Dr. Kerr and his clinic staff lacked adequate training in appropriate sterilization of a facility, its equipment and instruments. Further, Dr. Kerr and his clinic staff failed to properly avail themselves of information readily available to provide for appropriate sterility in carrying out their cosmetic and aesthetic practice. These standards are readily available from organizations that certify ambulatory and surgical facilities, the Center for Disease Control, the medical literature, and references within the user's manual of the machinery used during Krystal Ballard's surgery and medical treatment.

Specifically, but without limitation, it is expected that Dr. Sorensen will testify as follows:

1. Krystal Ballard died from septic shock as a result of bacteria which entered her body during the surgical procedure performed by Dr. Kerr on July 21, 2010 at the defendants' facility.

2. The infection was introduced into Ms. Ballard's buttocks during the procedure and was determined to be gram negative rods which are commonly found in stool. While a failure to appropriately prepare the patient for the fat transfer could have been the cause of the bacteria being introduced into Krystal Ballard's body, most likely it occurred because the material obtained from the abdomen was contaminated because of the wholly inadequate, negligent, and reckless misconduct of the defendants in failing to sterilize the instruments and equipment used during the procedure.

3. The procedure room used for the liposuction on Ms. Ballard was not a clean environment by any reasonable surgical standards. It was used for other, non-surgical procedures and as a storage area for supplies and contaminated instruments used during procedures.

4. The instruments used in the liposuction and fat transfer procedures on Ms. Ballard were initially put in a basin in the procedure room and "washed" with Hibiclens and alcohol. Alcohol is not approved as a sterilization solution, nor is Hibiclens approved for sterilization of medical instruments, supplies or equipment.

5. The dirty instruments were taken from the procedure room not to an area designated for dirty equipment, but rather to a room where the autoclave was kept for allegedly sterilizing the equipment.

6. The defendants broke almost every rule of safe care of surgical instruments as measured by any reasonable standard in their treatment of Ms. Ballard. There were no protocols or procedures for cleaning of instruments, nor housekeeping and cleaning of the procedure room or the clean room. After the initial gross cleaning in the procedure room the instruments were placed in a Hibiclens/alcohol mixture not an approved proteolytic enzyme solution wash and were then transferred to the room where the autoclave was, which should have been but was not a clean room.

7. The autoclave used depends on the mechanical monitoring of sterilization. Gauges on the autoclave do not ensure sterilization. The defendants admit there was no maintenance and service checks of the autoclave, nor were any logs kept of any inspection of the autoclave.

8. Allegedly chemical indicators were used, but Dr. Kerr and his clinic staff do not wrap the cassettes and there are no records of what the chemical indicators revealed. There should be documentation of internal as well as external use of chemical indicators because chemical indicators cannot be used as means of ensuring sterility. Biological indicators must be used (spore tests) but were not. The failure to use biological indicators and spore counts is egregious.

9. The autoclave used by the defendants in their treatment of Ms. Ballard as an alleged means of sterilizing hollow chambers and cannulas must have both a negative or vacuum pressure as well as a gravity cycle. The former forces steam through the cannula for appropriate sterilization of the instruments.

10. The employees handling the instruments used to treat Ms. Ballard and responsible for cleaning and sterilization do not have an adequate medical background, nor adequate training in the safe handling, cleaning and sterilization of equipment, nor were there any protocols in place to provide that guidance, and Dr. Kerr himself lacks fundamental knowledge of appropriate cleaning and sterilization to provide the training and guidance to other staff.

Dr. Sorensen will testify that defendants including specifically Dr. Kerr violated the applicable standard of care by virtue of the above described treatment of Krystal Ballard. Dr. Kerr and defendants breached the applicable standard of care in the way in which they operated the facility at the time Ms. Ballard was treated, including through the complete neglect and failure to adhere to even the most basic standards required in the Boise, Eagle and Ada County areas, and defendants' conduct was negligent, reckless and demonstrated a willful disregard for patient safety which lead directly to and proximately caused the death of Krystal Ballard.

Dr. Sorensen charges $500.00 per hour in connection with his consultation and services as an expert witness in this matter. He has not authored any publications within the preceding ten years and has not testified as an expert at trial or deposition within the preceding four years.

George Nichols, M.D.
739 Middle Way
Louisville, KY 40206

Dr. Nichols is a medical doctor who specializes in anatomical, clinical, and forensic pathology. A copy of Dr. Nichols' Curriculum Vitae, which outlines his education, training, and experience in his medical specialty is provided as part of Plaintiff's Supplemental Responses to Interrogatory No. 6. Dr. Nichols has reviewed the pertinent medical records of Krystal Ballard, including the autopsy report prepared in conjunction with the post-mortem examination, as well as recuts of the pathology slides from the post-mortem examination. As discovery proceeds, Dr. Nichols will receive additional discovery materials and, therefore, his anticipated opinions are subject to modification and supplementation. All of Dr. Nichols' opinions are expected to be to a reasonable degree of medical certainty.

It is expected that Dr. Nichols will testify that the bacterial infection from which Krystal Ballard died was a direct result of bacteria being introduced into her body during the procedure performed by Dr. Kerr on July 21, 2010, and as a result of a breach in sterility, as gram negative rods are proof to a reasonable degree of certainty that a breach in sterility occurred. As a result of bacteria being introduced into her body, Krystal Ballard was exposed to an exotoxin, which causes an inflammatory response (toxic shock) and blood vessels to dilate. As a result of the sepsis, Krystal Ballard's organs were underperfused, ischemia to the organs ensued, and Krystal

Ballard succumbed to multisystem organ failure. Dr. Nichols will testify that there is no other reason for Krystal Ballard's death other than as a direct result of bacteria introduced intra-operatively during the procedure, most likely as a result of contaminated equipment.

Dr. Nichols charges $400.00 per hour in connection with his consultation and services as an expert witness in this matter, with a minimum charge of $2,500.00, and a flat fee of $4,000.00 where an out-of-state appearance necessitates his missing an entire day's work.

A listing of any other cases in which Dr. Nichols has testified as an expert at trial or by deposition within the preceding four years is attached hereto[1], bates numbered BALLARD000200 – BALLARD000207.

Keith Barclay Armitage, M.D.
12600 Cedar Road
Cleveland Heights, OH 44106

Dr. Armitage is a medical doctor, who specializes in infectious disease. A copy of Dr. Armitage's Curriculum Vitae, which outlines his education, training, and experience in that medical specialty, is provided as part of Plaintiff's Supplemental Response to Defendants' Interrogatory No. 6. Dr. Armitage has reviewed the pertinent medical records of Krystal Ballard, including the autopsy report prepared in conjunction with the post-mortem examination. As discovery proceeds, Dr. Armitage will receive additional discovery materials and, therefore his anticipated opinions are subject to modification and supplementation. All of Dr. Armitage's opinions are expected to be to a reasonable degree of medical certainty.

It is expected that Dr. Armitage will testify that the bacterial infection from which Krystal Ballard died was a direct result of bacteria being introduced into her body during the procedure performed by Defendant Dr. Kerr on July 21, 2010, which occurred as a result of a breach in sterility. The gram negative rod bacteria discovered at autopsy are proof to a reasonable degree of certainty that they resulted from operative sterility issues from instruments used during the procedure and introduced intra-operatively. As a result of the bacteria being introduced into Krystal Ballard's body during the procedure performed by Defendant Dr. Kerr, Krystal Ballard became septic and died.

A listing of all publications authored by Dr. Armitage within the preceding ten years is attached hereto, bates numbered BALLARD000254 – BALLARD000260.

Dr. Armitage, in connection with his consultation and services as an expert witness in this matter, charges $300.00 per hour to review records, discuss the case, and prepare any reports, $400.00 per hour to attend any deposition, and $1,500.00 per half day to testify at trial.

Star, ID 83669

Cornelius A. Hofman is an economist. A copy of Mr. Hofman's Curriculum Vitae, which outlines his qualifications, professional experience, and background is provided as part of Plaintiff's Supplemental Responses to Defendants' Interrogatory No. 6. Mr. Hofman will present testimony on his opinions of net present value of lost financial support and lost non-financial support to Plaintiff, which is attributed to the untimely death of Krystal Ballard. Mr. Hofman has been provided information concerning the educational background, employment history, and wage earning and benefits history of Krystal Ballard, as well as the services Mrs. Ballard provided to her husband. Please refer to the materials attached hereto and bates numbered GEC000001 – GEC000347.

As discovery proceeds, Mr. Hofman will receive additional discovery materials, expected to include, but not be limited to, the tax return information for Mrs. Ballard and Plaintiff, economic and financial literature, college transcripts, and military benefits. Accordingly, his anticipated opinions are subject to modification and supplementation.

Mr. Hofman, in connection with his consultation and services as an expert witness in this matter, charges $3,900.00 for analysis and report preparation and $490.00 per hour to testify at any deposition or trial.

A listing of any other cases in which Mr. Hofman has testified as an expert at trial or by deposition within the preceding four years is attached hereto, bates numbered BALLARD000224 – BALLARD000231.

Case No. CV OC 1204792 PLAINTIFF'S SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWERS TO DEFENDANTS' FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES

COMES NOW the Plaintiff, Charles Ballard ("Plaintiff"), in accordance with Rule 33 of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, and submits the following Second Supplemental Answers to Defendants' First Set of Interrogatories.

General Statements and Objections

A. Representations of fact and law herein arc made in good faith without the benefit of complete discovery. These answers represent Plaintiff's best efforts at this stage of the litigation and are based on currently available, non-privileged, and non-work product information and documents.

B. Plaintiff objects to each and every interrogatory to the extent that it calls for information subject to the attorney-client privilege, the work product privilege, the privilege for critical self-examination, or any other privilege. To thc extent that documents or information arguably subject to such privileges may be provided by Plaintiff, such privileges are not waived beyond the precise extent of the disclosure made, and no waiver of privilege may be implied in that no disclosure of anything which is actually privileged is intended.

C. Plaintiff objects to each and every interrogatory to the extent that it may be vague, ambiguous, confusing, nonsensical, incomprehensible, or involves usage of words other than those commonly and customarily used, or assumes matters contrary to fact.

D. Plaintiff objects to providing information not within its knowledge, custody, possession, or control, or which does not exist.

E. No objection, general or specific, which has been raised herein is waived by the provision of any answer herein unless specifically stated to be waivcd by such answer.

ANSWERS

INTERROGATORY NO. 5: Please state the name and address of each person whom you intend to call as an expert witness at the trial, and for each such person set forth a complete statement of all opinions to be expressed and the basis and reasons therefore, the data or other information considered by the witness in forming the opinions, any exhibits to be used as a summary of or support for the opinions, a list of all publications authored by the witness within the preceding ten years, the compensation to be paid for the testimony and a listing of any other cases in which the witness has testified as an expert at trial or by deposition within the preceding four years.

SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWER:

Plaintiff previously disclosed Cornelius A. Hofman with the GEC Group in response to this interrogatory. Mr. Hofman is an economist. Plaintiff supplements his prior response to this interrogatory concerning Mr. Hofman and produces herewith Mr. Hofman's report dated May 8, 2013, styled "Assessment of Economic Loss" prepared in connection with this case and the death of Krystal Melissa Ballard, bates numbered GEC000351 – GEC000395.

Additionally, we provided Mr. Hofman with Krystal's transcript from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University and her transcript from University of Maryland University College. Those documents are bates numbered GEC000348-GEC000349 and GEC000350, respectively, and are attached hereto.

Plaintiff previously disclosed Keith Armitage, M.D., in response to this interrogatory. Dr. Armitage specializes in infectious disease medicine. In addition to the previously disclosed opinions of Dr. Armitage, which are incorporated by reference herein, it is expected that Dr. Armitage will testify concerning the lack of effect the antibiotic prescribed by Dr. Kerr would have on the gram negative bacteria cultured at autopsy. Dr. Armitage is expected to testify that the antibiotic prescribed by Dr. Kerr in follow up to the procedure he performed on Krystal Ballard would not be effective in treating gram negative bacteria. Further, the prescribing of a Medrol Dosepak by Dr. Kerr would suppress the body's own immune system and have a deleterious effect on a patient with an infection. Further, Dr. Armitage will testify that the time interval between the cosmetic procedure and Krystal Ballard's death is such that the introduction of the fatal bacteria occurred intraoperatively. Had the infection occurred post-operatively, Krystal Ballard would not have exhibited signs of sepsis until much later. Additionally, the bacteria responsible for post-operative infections are gram positive bacteria, usually from skin flora, not gram negative bacteria. As such, the gram negative bacteria is not a typical post-operative infection but rather one coming from peritoneal cavity flora which must have been transferred to the buttocks during the fat transfer.

Further, Plaintiff saith not.

Case No. CV OC 1204792
	DEPOSITION OF DEAN E. SORENSEN, M.D., F.A.C.S.
	AUGUST 21, 2013

REPORTED BY:

BARBARA BURKE, CSR No. 463

Notary Public

Page 110

Q. Anyway, the point is, it's in the Disclosure --
A. Okay.
Q. -- those terms.
A. Okay.
Q. Now, my next question to you is, what does "standard of care" mean to you -- if it means anything?
A. Well, let me paraphrase that by saying that for 40 years I have been operating in an outpatient surgery center; in Hawaii for two years we had our own outpatient surgery center; and I have spent the last eight years inspecting surgery centers around the Northwest which were owned by combinations of OB/GYNs, neurosurgeons, cosmetic surgeons of all types.

So my impression of standard of care is probably greatly influenced by my facility inspection of different facilities around the Northwest -- including Spokane, and Reno, and various sites.

That's where my basis of my standard of care comes from -- what I see other people doing in other places, including Boise.
Q. Well, is that your definition of "standard of care," what others do?
A. My definition of "standard of care" is what would be in the realm of patient safety, as I see it, from my experiences as a facility inspector.

Q. Do you have an opinion as to what "standard of health care practice" means?
A. It means to me, my own personal definition is that it's the standard of practice of what cosmetic surgeons would do in my community -- not so much in other communities.
Q. So that's your definition of "standard of health care practice"?
A. For cosmetic surgeons.
Q. Right. That's what I mean.
A. Um-hmm. (Nodding head.) Yes.
Q. Well, you have told me previously you have never spoken with any of the cosmetic surgeons or plastic surgeons doing surgeries in Boise and Eagle in the year 2010. You have told me that in this deposition already; correct?
MR. HADDAD: Object to form. That was not what you asked him.
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) Go ahead and answer.
A. No, that's not correct.
Q. Well, did you talk to them about what was going on in July of 2007?
A. About standard of care, you mean?
Q. Yes.
A. Oh, absolutely.

Page 112

Q. Who did you talk to in July of 2007 -- who did you talk to who knew what was going on in July of 2010? Name me names.
A. Dr. McKim, Dr. Wigod -- two local people here because I inspected their facilities in that time frame.
Q. Anyone else?
A. Well, there's Dell Smith down in Twin Falls -- who I inspected his facility, so I talked to him about it.
Q. Well, but that's -- I'm talking about knowing what's going on in Boise.
A. Yes. Those are the only two that I can recall.
Q. Okay. When did you talk to them about what was the standard going on in July of 2010 in Boise? When did you talk to them about that.
A. Well, the first time was probably in 2006 and 2007, which you have to realize I have inspected their facilities twice, so the dates are -- I couldn't give you the dates.
Q. Well, did you talk to them subsequent to having reviewed this case about that subject?
A. No.
Q. So your discussion with them about what was going on in Boise with those two doctors related to what was going on in 2007; correct?
MR. HADDAD: Objection; mischaracterizes --

Page 113

Q. (BY MR. QUANE) Isn't that true?
A. And later.
Q. Well, how could it be later? When did you talk to them later?
A. Well, because I inspected, for example, Dr. Wigod's office twice -- probably in 2007 and again in 2011. Every four years is the cycle that they have to be re-inspected, so that's what happens is every four years I go back and see them.
Q. Are you telling me then under oath that you talked to that doctor about what was going on in July of 2007 and the year 2011?
MR. HADDAD: Objection; confusing --
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) Are you telling me that?
MR. HADDAD: I don't think that even makes sense, but you can answer if you understand.
MR. QUANE: Well, just answer my question.
THE WITNESS: There's two doctors. Okay?
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) Okay.
A. Dr. McKim, only once in 2007 or that area in there. Dr. Wigod, twice, 2007 and probably in 2011 or something like that.
Q. Okay. When you talked to Wigod in 2011, did you ask him about what the standard was in July of 2010?
A. I didn't talk about 2010, no.

Page 114

Q. Okay. So those are the only two doctors you talked to?
A. Locally, yes.
Q. And when you talked to -- Wigod? How do you say his name?
A. Wigod, W-i-g-o-d.
Q. Wigod. Is he a plastic surgeon?
A. Yes. I reviewed his office records every six months -- he's required to do that -- random choices of office records every six months.
Q. Who establishes the standard of care or standard health care practice? Who decides what it is?
A. Well, there are different groups.
I happen to work with one, the American Association of Ambulatory Surgery Centers -- the American Association of Accreditation of Ambulatory Surgery Centers, AAAASF.
Q. You say they set these standards?
A. They have their set of standards, yes. I think they're based on -- a lot of it is based on development through the years. I couldn't tell you how they developed their standards.
Q. Well, don't the local doctors set the standards?
A. Not for accrediting organizations, no.
Q. But do they for other types of organizations that are non-accredited?

Page 115

A. I have no idea.
Q. Okay. Have you ever heard the term the "standard of health care practice" in Idaho means how a particular doctor in a particular specialty typically practices medicine?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you hear that?
A. I have no idea, but it's one of those common knowledge things, I would guess.
Q. Were there any other doctors in Idaho, to your knowledge, in July of 2010 who had practices similar to Dr. Kerr?
A. I would have no idea.
Q. When you talked to Dr. Wigod, did you ever bring up the type of practice of Dr. Kerr with him?
A. No.
Q. When you talked to Dr. McKim back in 2007, did you ever discuss with him the type of practice of Dr. Kerr?
A. No.
Q. You mentioned a California organization that asked you to review the case; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. I got a professional statement concerning your fee for this deposition --

Page 116

A. Um-hmm. (Nodding head.) Yes.
Q. -- that directed me to pay them a fee of $750 an hour to pay -- to pay them, not you.
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Is that your fee or is that the fee they decided on?
A. That's the fee they decided on.
Q. It is not your fee?
A. No, no.
Q. Well, how much is your fee?
A. $500 an hour for a deposition.
Q. Okay. Well, do they then take a cut out of the $750 that -- I had to send them $1,500. Do they take a cut out of that?
A. Yes -- a third, apparently.
Q. Okay. But that's not your fee?
A. No.
Q. And yours is $500 an hour for deposition testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. To your knowledge, did Mr. Haddad arrange for that organization to contact you? Did he work with them to get you involved through them?
A. He did not.
Q. Who did?
A. You would have to ask Counsel. I don't know how -- I can give you my assumption, but I don't -- not as a basis of fact, but this is what I think happened:

He contacted them. He didn't know who I was from "Adam." They contacted me. I have no idea why.
Q. Okay. But you don't know for a fact that's how it came about?
A. No.
Q. Okay. In that communication you got from them by telephone initially we've discussed, it is my understanding that they never mentioned to you that Mr. Haddad would be contacting you.
A. In the initial consultation, no, they said nothing about that.
Q. Okay. So out of the blue one day you got a call from Mr. Haddad -- his office?
A. Yes. Not Mr. Haddad, but his office.
Q. Okay. Now, we've discussed the fact that in your liposuction procedures you have never experienced, to your knowledge, a postoperative infection; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Have you ever experienced a postoperative infection in other kinds of surgeries you've performed?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And would that vary from the type of procedure to the type of procedure, the infection rates?

Page 118

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Do you keep tabs on the infection rates?
A. I do.
Q. Okay. Why don't you tell me what you know on the infection rates for various procedures of yours since you became a plastic surgeon.
A. It's very easy because I've only had one infection with breast surgery.
No infections with liposuction.
No infection with facelifts or any facial surgeries.
One minor infection with a tummy tuck, and that's about it.
Q. So, according to your data that you recall, you have had two?
A. Yes.
Q. And one was with the tummy tuck?
A. That was very minor. It was a stitch that was infected that came out.
Q. Well, it was an infection?
A. Sure.
Q. Okay. Then the other one you mentioned with the breast procedure?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Was the tummy tuck thing that you call an "infection" an infection or a cellulitis?

Page 119

A. Well, let me tell you about that. I can remember the case clearly.
It was a patient from Sun Valley who was a diabetic who had drains in. The material in the drains became cloudy, and I cultured it. It cultured out some bacteria, so I put her on antibiotics.
I never really saw redness of the skin, or fever, or anything. I was treating what I thought was turbid looking fluid coming out the drains.
So it wasn't the kind of infection where you saw much, let's put it that way.
Q. Well, would you characterize it as a cellulitis?
A. No. It didn't rise to that.
Q. Okay. While we're on the subject of cellulitis -- what is "cellulitis"?
A. It's usually an inflammatory tissue -- soft tissue event.
Q. Okay. Absent infection?
A. There's got to be some inflammatory reaction to cause the cellulitis.
Q. True, but it's an inflammatory process?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. In your practice do you have patients sign Consent For Procedure documents that specify the potential complications and risks associated with the procedure?

A. Absolutely.
Q. Why do you do that?
A. Because I think patients need to be informed of any adverse effect up to and including death that could occur from any procedure.
Q. Do you use a standard form for that purpose?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Where did you get the form -- or did you invent it yourself?
A. No. I used to. I used to get them from other people, but now I get them from the American Society of Plastic Surgeons. They're much better than the one I had before. They're more detailed.
Q. But during the last ten years, let's say, have you been using that form?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Does that form include infection as a potential complication and risk factor?
A. Yes.
Q. And you have your patients sign that form?
A. It's not just a form. It's pages of material. Yes.
Q. And why do you use that form and have the patient sign it?

Page 121

A. So that they are well aware of the risks, and they're informed about what could happen during the procedure.
Q. Is infection a potential complication, a risk factor associated with all surgery?
A. Yes.
Q. You probably never thought of this before -- but maybe you have -- but let me explain it as a part of my question:
In that form when infection is listed as a possible complication or risk factor associated with the surgery, do you interpret that to mean that that can happen in the absence of malpractice?
A. Yes.
MR. HADDAD: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: Certainly.
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) What? I didn't hear you. He butted in.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you subscribe to the view that if an infection does develop after a surgical procedure, the surgeon or operator must have committed malpractice?
A. No.
Q. Do you subscribe to the view that under the best of circumstances and the highest degree of the is, but answer the question.

THE WITNESS: The question is two-part:
She had an elevated BUN and creatine, which would indicate renal failure -- or, you know, progressing renal failure.
Then she had a gross examination, a microscopic examination of the kidneys themselves which were negative, as I recall.
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) To the extent the exam permitted, that's your conclusion?
A. Yes. I mean, there was no evidence of pyelonephritis or any huge infectious disease in the kidneys, as I understand.
Q. Okay. Do you have an opinion as to why kidney function was substandard or impaired?
A. I think she was in Septic Shock and there was organ failure, and that was the first system to go.
Q. What caused creatine to rise?
A. Well, when the kidneys start to fail, your creatine rises because the blood --
Q. Well, what makes the kidneys fail?
MR. HADDAD: Wait a minute. He's not finished with his answer. You're interrupting him before he's finished.
Please read the last question as posed to him.

Page 147

(Record read by the Reporter.)
THE WITNESS: Well, the BUN and the creatine were both elevated, and they're blood exams that indicate impaired renal function. That's as far as I can say, I guess.
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) Creatine and BUN are the consequences of renal failure.
A. Yes.
Q. I didn't ask that.
I asked you what causes the renal failure in the first place?
A. You know, in Septic Shock it's not well understood.
Q. But you attribute it to the condition known as "Septic Shock"?
A. Absolutely.
Q. Okay. But that's about the extent of what you can tell me as to the cause in her case of the renal failure?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. If a physician experiences no postsurgical infections whatsoever over a four-year period --
A. A patient has no surgical infections, you say? What did you say --
Q. I'll start over again.
If a doctor who performs surgical procedures has no postoperative patient infections over a four-year period, what does that say about his sterile technique, procedures, disinfection procedures, et cetera?

A. I don't think it says anything about any of those things. I think it says --
Q. It doesn't?
A. No, not in my mind.
Q. It doesn't have anything to do with the quality of his sterile procedures?
A. They're not directly related.
Q. In this case you claim that -- in the first paragraph of your Disclosure -- do you still have that with you?
A. My personal or his?
Q. The one I handed you. Didn't I hand you one?
A. Yes, you did.
MR. HADDAD: I don't think that's the one he handed you. (Indicating document.)
THE WITNESS: Maybe I put it in this pile. (Indicating Exhibit 1.)
MR. QUANE: I handed him mine.
MR. HADDAD: I know what he's looking for. I just don't --
MR. QUANE: Did you give it back to me?
THE WITNESS: I might have put it in that pile.
MR. QUANE: I don't have it.

Page 149

MR. HADDAD: I know what you're looking for.
MR. QUANE: It includes all of your experts, not just Dr. Sorensen.
THE WITNESS: I don't have it. I pretty much put everything in that pile.
MR. QUANE: Well, I handed it to you.
MR. HADDAD: But I don't know if it went back or what happened to it, Jerry.
(Discussion held off the record.)
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) Before I read from this Disclosure --
A. Okay.
Q. -- which is the one that Mr. Haddad sent to me --
A. Okay.
Q. -- and that you looked at and approved it.
A. Okay.
Q. It is the court document, is what it is.
Have you had any experience whatsoever in trying to decide the cause of death of patients?
A. No.
Q. Okay. You state here under what is enumerated as "Paragraph 1," "Krystal Ballard died from Septic Shock as a result of bacteria which entered her body during the surgical procedure performed by Dr. Kerr on July 21, 2010, at the Defendant's facility." You say that.

Page 150

A. Yes.
Q. What do you base that on?
A. Two things -- maybe three.
The first is that she was a 27-year-old active duty healthy person. We know that she was healthy when she went to see Dr. Kerr.
The second thing is the only thing that happened between then and the time she died was the intervention with the liposuction and the fat transfer. So it had to be the proximate cause of what happened after that.
The third thing is the reports with my decision about Septic Shock from Elmore, and Saint Al's, and the Autopsy Report. I mean, anybody can read those and make those conclusions.
Q. That's what it's based on, that bacteria got into her body during the procedure?
A. What other cause could it be?
Q. Well, there's lots of them.
A. I don't think so.
Q. Well, that's your opinion, but you're not an expert on causes of death, are you?
THE WITNESS: No.
MR. HADDAD: Object to the form.
Q. (BY MR. QUANE) Who is the best expert, a pathologist?

Page 151

A. Somebody that probably deals with it a lot. A pathologist would certainly be one of them.
Q. Do you know Dr. Groben?
A. No.
Q. You have no idea how many times he does autopsies to determine causes of death?
A. No.
Q. Do you know Dr. Chuck Garrison from Pocatello?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any idea how many times he does autopsies to determine causes of death?
A. No.
Q. So you have told me the basis for your conclusion that I just read to you from your Disclosure -- you have told me what it's based on; right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So you're assuming, aren't you, that bacteria did enter her body during the proceeding?
A. Yes.
Q. What kind of bacteria?
A. Gram-negative rods.
Q. Oh.
A. That's what it looks like.
Q. That's just an assumption on your part, isn't it?
A. It's an assumption based on the findings at autopsy, in part, because that's what they saw.

Q. But it's an assumption, isn't it?
A. Yes.
Q. There's no proof by any means of the fact at the time of the surgery these gram-negative bacteria went into her body, is there?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Have you formed an opinion as to what is the best evidence that a doctor utilizes appropriate sterile conditions during surgery, disinfectant procedures with equipment, operating room, and the entire area where the procedure is done, cleansing of instruments -- what's the best proof that that is being done appropriately? What would be the best proof?
A. I think lack of complications would be the best answer.
Q. Right. Did you ever hold any committee assignments or positions at St. Luke's -- or ever?
A. You know, yes, but it's been so long ago, I can't remember. You know, I did a lot stuff I just don't remember.
Q. Okay. Let's say the last five years. Have you held any --
A. Do you mean chairmanships or just being on a committee?

Page 153

Q. No. Chairmanships.
A. No. I have one coming up, though.
Q. What?
A. I'm Chairman Elect of the Plastic Surgery Department at St. Luke's.
Q. You're on a number of committees, though --
A. Just --
Q. -- surgery?
A. Just the Plastic Surgery Committee.
Q. Okay.
A. And the next -- I'm due to rotate on the Surgical Supervisory Committee next year. I believe that's it.
Q. Do you have to take call?
A. No, I do not --
Q. Okay.
A. -- thank God.
Q. Do you have any knowledge of the antibiotic most effective against gram-negative rods?
A. Well, there's -- yes. Tobramycin, for one; Gentamicin, another; third-generation Cephalosporins which I use like Cephaloridine. Those are the main ones.
Q. Okay. What does "prophylaxis" mean in medicine?
A. Basically, it means if you give something to prevent something, in my view, or you do something to prevent something.

Q. Not knowing what might happen, in other words?
A. To try and prevent an occurrence.
Q. Prevent something?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. It isn't a -- it doesn't mean, "I know this is going on, and this is why I'm doing it"?
A. Correct.
Q. Have you ever treated a patient for a urinary tract infection?
A. I'm sure I have, but I can't remember. It hasn't been in the last 20 years.
Q. Okay. Do you have any reason to -- as you try to recall things -- whether a female who has a backache is compatible with a urinary tract infection?
A. I have no knowledge of that.
Q. Okay. You will admit that Dr. Kerr knew more about Krystal Ballard's condition when he saw her than you do?
A. Absolutely.
MR. QUANE: I know you're going to be disappointed -- (Laughter.) Why are you smiling?
THE WITNESS: Because I think it's going to be good, you know?
MR. QUANE: Let me talk to my folks a second,

Page 155

Greg. I may be done.
MR. HADDAD: Sure.
(Discussion held off the record.)
(Recess taken.)
MR. HADDAD: We can go back on the record if everybody is ready.
Are you finished?
MR. QUANE: Yes.

EXAMINATION
QUESTIONS BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. Just a couple of things -- just really kind of more of a clean-up.
You were asked a lot of questions by Mr. Quane dealing with the issue of what facilities you may have inspected as part of your role as an inspector before or after 2010.
Do you remember those general questions?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Beyond when you might have inspected a particular facility in Ada County, beyond that, were you actually involved in the practice of aesthetic and cosmetic surgery in Ada County in July 2010?
A. Yes.
Q. I think you had mentioned that you had the opportunity at one point -- before he retired -- of Dr. Bass practiced with you?

A. Yes.
Q. You had some kind of loose partnership, I think, is the way you explained it?
A. Yes.
Q. I take it during that time frame of July 2010 was Dr. Bass practicing here in Ada County, as well?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you have opportunity to observe him in terms of how he provided care and treatment to patients in Ada County by virtue of you being in this association with him?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition, Doctor, is it fair to say that while you might not have any formal -- strike that.
Would you oftentimes go to local Ada County Medical Association meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. And I take it that some of those physicians that were part of the Ada County meetings are physicians that practiced aesthetic and cosmetic medicine?
MR. QUANE: Objection; leading.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Well, it is leading, but go ahead.

Page 157

A. Yes.
Q. Would you have discussions with those doctors at these Ada County meetings about the way medicine, and cosmetic surgery, and aesthetic medicine is practiced?
MR. QUANE: Objection; leading.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Doctor, you have been asked questions -- sometimes very general questions, sometimes very specific questions -- on topics related or believed to be related in some fashion to this case by Mr. Quane.
In terms of the Disclosure that's identified in Plaintiff's Supplemental Response to Defendants' First Set of Interrogatories, this is the document that identifies your education, training, and experience as well as the opinions that are set forth and attributed to you about this case; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there anything that has been asked today that changes those opinions?
A. No.
MR. HADDAD: That's all I have.
MR. QUANE: You're going to be disappointed, Dr. Sorensen, when I tell you I don't have anymore questions.

say.
MR. QUANE: Tisha may not have been there either.
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry?
MR. QUANE: When that document -- she's a transient.
MR. HADDAD: I don't know where she is know, Colorado or something.
MR. QUANE: She's in Colorado now.
THE WITNESS: Is she?
MR. QUANE: But she's locum tenens. She moves around.
THE WITNESS: Yeah.
Q. BY MR. HADDAD: In the cellulitis, do you necessarily see pockets of pus?
A. Well, there's separative cellulitis where there is pockets of pus, and then there's non-suppurative or nonpurulent I guess is the phrase for it. And most cases are nonpurulent, and they're usually due to beta-hemolytic strep. And you won't find pockets of pus. And then cellulitis is caused by other organisms, usually staph. There usually are pockets of pus.
Q. Okay.
A. And so that's due to purulent/nonpurulent.

Q. And non-suppurative is s-u-p-p?
A. Yes.
Q. I mean, when we touched upon this in terms of Dr. Nichols' opinions that you reference as disagreeing with, what specifically do you disagree with in terms of Dr. Nichols' opinions?
A. Well, let's look at them again.
MR. QUANE: Here's that. That's their disclosure, Nichols.
THE WITNESS: Well, I guess I'm not certain how he knows there was a breach in sterility that Gram-negative rods were introduced into the wound.
Again, they mention toxic shock, but it's septic shock. But it's a fine point.
So I guess that's the main -- it's a fairly brief thing, so.
Q. BY MR. HADDAD: I just wanted to make sure based on what you were given what you might disagree with.
There's a reference in the disclosure that the autopsy failed to identify specific organisms. And while there's -- because no cultures were done?
A. Well, the cultures were done but nothing grew.

Q. On autopsy?
A. Yeah.
Q. It's not unusual given the circumstances, the antibiotics that were given?
A. The antibiotics I think probably contributed, yes.
Q. I mean, that's not a criticism in the way the autopsy was performed?
A. No.
Q. This was a rather broad statement in disclosure. I don't know how to get through it but to ask it. There was a section of the disclosure that said you may testify as to how different bacteria are susceptible to different cleaning techniques. Help me out. What are you going to testify to on other than different bacteria are susceptible to different cleaning techniques? I mean, are you going to get any more specific as to what bacteria may be susceptible to these type of products that are used in the cleaning and disinfecting of reusable medical equipment? And I'm just trying to figure out how far you're going to go so I can figure out if I need to follow up on it.

A. I guess what question -- I'm not sure what questions will be asked regarding that. But you know, some bacteria are susceptible to different kinds of agents, and some aren't. Bacitracin, for instance, kills lots of bacteria. It doesn't kill staph, so.
Q. I guess that's -- again, it's in the disclosure, so I didn't know what you were anticipated to say about Gram-negative rods, for instance, since that was obviously something that was found at the time of autopsy, how Gram-negative rods, their susceptibility to different cleaning techniques.
A. Usually very broad. There typically is not a lot of resistance in Gram negatives to topical cleansing agents.
Q. Like what topical cleansing agents?
A. Name one. Ivory soap. I mean, they're very sensitive to all kinds of cleaning agents.
Q. I mean, does -- is there -- for instance, the CDC has guidelines on sterilization and cleaning of equipment. Have you seen those before?
A. For sterilization of equipment? Yeah. For autoclaving, um-hmm.

Q. And what solutions are appropriate or approved, that kind of thing?
A. Um-hmm.
Q. Is that a yes?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Is that something you familiarized yourself with because of your being an infectious disease specialist and that being at least an authority you go to to try to figure out how to appropriately manage infection control within a hospital?
A. Yeah. Primarily it comes from the different divisions of the hospital, either housekeeping that goes to clean hospital rooms in the OR, things like that, the different products they can use. It's kind of an alphabet soup of different products that we have available. There are a lot of different manufacturers. And they have to do with, you know, the time of how long you leave the material on the surface to sterilize it. Is it caustic to the people using it? You know, we can't use too high of a concentration of bleach, for instance, because the chlorine irritates everyone, and also it's hard on the equipment. So there are a whole different bunch of parameters that we follow depending on what piece of equipment we're trying to clean or disinfect.

So we review those products usually twice a year. And there's a laundry list of things that they use at both hospitals.
Q. When you review them, I mean, are you able to tell me what they were using in 2010 for various --
A. No, not that long ago.
Q. When you did review them, I take it you would have confirmed that the solutions that they used in the cleaning and disinfecting process were solutions that were approved by the CDC?
A. Well, by the FDA, yeah.
Q. What -- I mean, there's a reference to the fact that -- and I've written it down, so I'm hoping it's actually in your disclosure, and since you've looked at it this morning, you might have a better memory of it -- that you may testify as to the differing infection rates at the hospitals that you've had privileges.
A. Okay.
Q. I mean, is that something you anticipate testifying on?

A. I don't know. If I get asked it, I can.
Q. I mean, it's obviously infection rates are going to be dependent on exactly what is going on in the hospital. For instance, what kind of surgeries they may carry out.
A. Mostly what kind of surgery.
Q. Okay. I mean, obviously if you're doing open heart surgeries, you're going to have higher infection rates than if you're doing just minor procedures; correct?
A. Actually, our open heart cases are incredibly good now.
Q. How about orthopedic cases?
A. Orthopedic cases are not quite so good.
Q. You know, this has nothing to do with this case, but they're one of the worst infection rates; aren't they?
A. Yeah.
MR. QUANE: Well, dirty surgeries are like --
MR. HADDAD: Bowel and all that kind of stuff.
THE WITNESS: Yeah. I mean, bowel surgeries, that's all over the place. But you know, you can talk to Dean Sorensen about it. We used to have -- Dean and I used to see a lot of patients together back in the day for serotomy infections. And we go years and years and years now without any. It's amazing.

Q. So to compare infection rates at a hospital that might have orthopedic procedures, abdominal procedures, bowel procedures and comparing it to a facility like Silk Touch that may do liposuction and fat transfer is kind of like comparing apples and oranges in a sense; correct?
A. Yeah. We would only -- we don't really try to compare hospital-wide stuff. We look at specific surgery types. So we'd look at joint replacements. We look at spine fusions versus simple laminectomies, mastectomies, breast reconstructions, intra-abdominal cases. And we look at those separately. We don't try and group everything together because the rates are so variable.
Q. Have you -- do you have some memory or do you have a -- about infection rates at any of the facilities where liposuction or fat transfer may have been done?

A. Well, again, I don't know that they do it at either hospital I'm at. I wouldn't be surprised if they do, but I don't know about it for sure. I've not seen any infections related to it. But that doesn't mean that it's because they don't do them or do do them. I just don't know.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me. I need to change tape right now. Okay. We are off the record.

(Recess.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: So the camera is rolling, and we are back on the record.

MR. HADDAD: I think we just want to clarify something as to what exhibits we have. Dr. Coffman's file materials -- which would include correspondence, e-mails, medical records -- are going to be cumulatively marked as Exhibit No. 1.

MR. QUANE: Okay.

MR. HADDAD: The notes, the one-page notes that he made that we've referenced is going to be Exhibit No. 2.

We are going to mark the pages of the disclosure that Dr. Coffman made corrections to, just those pages as Exhibit No. 3.

And then the one page from Saint Alphonsus which was labeled as, quote, "Abstract" as Exhibit No. 4.

Q. BY MR. HADDAD: Doctor, would you -- you ready to go?

A. I am.

Q. Okay. I just didn't want to put you to sleep during the housecleaning part of this process.

Would you agree that based upon looking at the autopsy report, that where the Gram-negative rods were found in Krystal Ballard was where the fat had been injected into her buttocks?

A. On the right side, correct.

Q. Do you know how deep into the tissue that those Gram-negative rods were?

A. No.

Q. You'd agree with me it wasn't a superficial injection of fat; it was a deep injection of fat?

A. Well, I'm not sure. Deep would imply below the muscle. I don't think they go below the muscle for this.

Q. When you say superficial, when you talk about superficial skin procedures, you're not saying that this liposuction and fat transfer procedure were superficial skin procedures; correct?

A. Well, essentially they are. They're in the skin and subcutaneous tissue, so I guess skin dash subcutaneous because they don't go down below the fascia.

Q. Okay. Would you consider this to be superficial?

A. Yeah. They're not going into an organ space.

Q. Okay. Have you seen where this type of procedure or a liposuction procedure and a fat transfer is described as superficial or is that just your --

A. It's my perspective.

Q. -- perspective?

A. It's my perspective.

Q. If -- I mean, how deep -- if you're talking about a three-and-a-half-inch needle, which is what that 18-gauge was, is that your understanding that's the needle that was used to inject the fat into Krystal Ballard's buttocks?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Is three and a half inches below the -- from the surface of the skin into the tissue into the muscle?

A. It would -- well, I don't know how big a woman she was. It would probably be through the muscle. But I don't think it is inserted perpendicular to the skin. It's done in a tangential fashion. Because I do this in HIV patients.

Q. You do what?

A. I do injections in HIV patients like this with a product known as -- it's polylactic acid. The patients with HIV have this terrible problem of lipodystrophy where they lose their buccal fat pads and look like they just came out of a concentration camp. They won't go in public. And so we inject their faces with this product, and you numb up the skin laterally, and then you go in like spokes of a bicycle tire, back and forth like this (indicating) and this and this and this and this and fill their face back up with tissue.

And so I use a two-inch needle, but I don't go two inches like this (indicating). I go two inches like this (indicating) just under the skin, which is what he describes as a -- he

30(b)(6) DEPOSITION OF SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP

Boise, Idaho

Reported by:
Andrea J. Wecker, CSR #716, RMR, CRR, CBC

the one doctor that wanted to start this business. Initially, I wasn't going to be that involved in it but got more involved in it down the road. Really enjoyed it, loved --

I love learning, and so started to go to all the CME courses with my husband, gained more education through that, a lot of reading on my own, my own interest in cosmetic stuff. I was getting older, so I was interested in it as well.

And then just over time, just going to those courses, just being in the room with Dr. Kerr and hearing and reading all the materials that he had, so --

Q. Okay. So really from '99 to the present --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- your employment has surrounded Silk Touch in some respect?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. No employment outside of Silk Touch from '99 to the present?

A. No, I had a --

Well, let's see. Did I? I had a swim school that I created for -- in the summers for, like, '97, '98, and I think I did it a little bit in '99. Because our business was so small at the beginning, so I was able to do both.

But then I stopped doing that, I think, after three or four years. So that's about it.

Q. Do you have any type of certification or licensure in any health-related field?

A. No.

Q. Do you personally perform any type of procedures at Silk Touch?

A. Now?

Q. From the inception of Silk Touch in '99 to July of 2010.

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Okay. What procedures do you perform?

A. I did perform. I don't now.

I did perform laser hair removal. I was certified in that. Microdermabrasion, IPLs, which is intense pulsed light lasers. So all the lasers that were non-ablative, I was certified and was able to do; under Dr. Kerr's direction, I can do those.

Peels, chemical peels. That's probably -- that's --

Those are the basics of what I knew how to do, yeah.

Q. Okay. The certifications for the procedures you performed, is there any -- do you have to be licensed in any particular -- or get licensure from the State to do any of those procedures?

A. No.

Q. Between yourself --

Are you a co-owner of Silk Touch?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there a --

What's the percentage? Is it a 50/50, or is it spelled out?

A. It's 50/50.

Q. Okay. Do you handle primarily the back-office functions?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I'm going to go through -- we're going to continue on here in a minute. But I've got my notes, and I'll lose them.

Just kind of going through those areas that I think during Dr. Kerr's deposition today, he thought you might have some information about and then some areas that he didn't say that, but I thought maybe you did.

First of all, he mentioned some aseptic wipes that he uses to clean off the handpiece to the Vaser, and he couldn't remember either the brand or the main active ingredient of that aseptic wipe.

Do you know what either the brand name is or what the primary active ingredient in that aseptic wipe is?

A. No.

Q. Where do you order your materials from? Or at least in 2010, where did you order your --

If you had to order aseptic wipes, where did you get them?

A. I don't remember the exact -- it's been a number of companies over the years, so I wouldn't know for sure right offhand.

I know what I order from now today, but I don't recall.

Q. Okay. And within the documents that were produced --

And first of all, we got 700-plus pages of documents that were produced already. There appears to be some order forms from a company called OBGYN Direct.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Did you help compile those documents that were produced to us as part of this discovery?

A. No, I did not compile them.
Q. Okay. Do you know who it was that pulled those order forms concerning various medical equipment and supplies?
A. Those, I believe, came from the Keller instruction that we got. They were in a binder that we got from him as a suggestion of a company you could use.
I don't remember -- I think we did order from them initially and found other companies that were better, that we found were better over time. So I'm not sure we ordered from them very long.
Q. Okay. Yesterday there was a discussion -- Mr. Quane had represented that you had compiled data on the number of liposuctions that had been performed, I think, through July 20 of 2010 as well as the number of fat transfers that had been performed by Dr. Kerr through July 20, 2010.
Did you compile that data?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Where did those numbers come from? I know one was 199, I think, liposuctions and 33 fat transfers --

[Page 144]

A. Yes.
Q. -- if my memory serves.
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Where did that information come from?
A. Just from our database.
Q. What kind of database do you maintain that would compile that information?
A. The database that we run our transactions through.
Q. Kind of explain that to me. How would you know --
If you've got this database and you're trying to find out how many liposuctions, how do you make a query into your database to identify which procedures were liposuction procedures?
A. So they would be named "liposuction" or "fat transfer." So we would be able to pretty much -- pretty accurately be able to figure out a number of lipos, number of fat transfers.
Q. Do you keep some kind of running total as part of your business operations?
A. No, we don't keep a running total.
Q. Okay. Did you have to look --
A. I would have to go back and look.
Q. Okay. I mean, are these within the data for each patient and you'd have to look at each patient and say, "What did we do for them," or is it a separate database that would only reflect on a given day, like a calendar, what was done?

A. Okay. You'll have to break that one up because that was a little bit too much.
Q. When you look at this database, is it a database that you had to retrieve information like a liposuction procedure by looking at each patient's medical chart?
A. No.
Q. Is it a database where you would look at some type of scheduling calendar that you might have had to see what procedures were scheduled for a given day?
A. No.
Q. Okay. I'm just trying to think of where --
How do you input information into your database such that you can retrieve the number of liposuctions?
A. So there's a category, "lipo." There's a category, "fat transfer." And so when we run a transaction through it, it will keep track of the number of fat transfers and the number of lipos.

Q. Okay. What's the purpose of keeping that data?
A. Well, you'd want to know so that if you needed to go back and figure out what you did that day, then you'd be able to figure that out.
Q. Do you do any type of advertising such that you want to demonstrate the number of procedures Dr. Kerr has performed?
A. I don't know that we've ever put a number out there of number of procedures, like an exact number. I don't recall ever doing that. In fact, I don't think we've ever done that.
Q. Okay.
A. Because I -- yeah.
Q. Within the documents that have been produced, there were a number of certificates that would indicate your attendance at certain seminars.
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Have you seen those?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. Are all the seminars that you personally would have attended --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. -- contained within Exhibit No. 1?
A. Is this --

Q. Meaning would it identify not only Dr. Kerr went, but it might also identify when you went to the seminar as opposed to simply accompanying him to the location?
A. Which one is --
Is this Exhibit No. 1?
Q. I'm sorry. Yes, that is Exhibit No. 1 that we used for Dr. Kerr's deposition today.
A. Okay. This one does not have --
I -- I broke mine out separate than his because he did some that were different than mine.
Q. Okay. Do you have a separate document that reflects your seminars that you've attended?
A. Yes, I do. I think it --
MR. HADDAD: Do you have that, Mr. Quane?
THE WITNESS: And it would be exactly the same as this other than I wouldn't have done ACLS. I wouldn't have done --
MR. HADDAD: Well, we're going to make it simple because I think he has it, and then you won't have to --
MR. QUANE: Hand that to him.
THE WITNESS: There you go.
MR. QUANE: That's the only one I have, but you can use it.

[Page 148]

Are you going to mark it as an exhibit?
MR. HADDAD: I am.
MR. QUANE: Okay.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Mrs. Kerr, Mr. Quane has handed me a four-page document that appears to be in the same tabular format as Exhibit No. 1, which identified seminars and training that Dr. Kerr had, except it's got your name at the top.
A. Correct.
Q. Did you prepare this document?
A. I did, yeah.
Q. Why don't we go ahead, and since this is somewhat of a continuation of a 30(b)(6) deposition, we'll mark that as 2 as a continuation.
(Deposition Exhibit No. 2 was marked.)
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Is there any of the seminars that you attended that are reflected --
First of all, is this a reflection of all seminars you've attended current back to 1999?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Is that a "yes"?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there any of the seminars that are reflected in Exhibit No. 2 which is the seminars you attended where the scope of those seminars dealt with infection control in healthcare facilities such as Silk Touch?

A. In a general way, yes.
Q. Okay. Without saying, "This is the one that might have touched upon it," I understand you may be talking about laser hair removal and there may be some aspect of making sure -- how to make sure you don't cause injury or cause an infection.
But is there anything specific that you remember about infection control that may have been involved in any of the seminars you attended?
A. Not under that category.
Q. Okay. How about --
And "not under that category," I appreciate that distinction.
Let me ask you this: At any of the seminars you've personally attended, has a topic discussed been how to, for instance, clean, disinfect, and sterilize reusable medical instruments?
A. No. That's not my -- my area that I would --
No, not that I recall.
Q. All right. There was some discussion about accreditation, and I think Dr. Kerr earlier today said that he does not believe that there was any efforts to become accredited prior to July of 2010.

Do you have any knowledge that you or anybody else on behalf of Silk Touch made any efforts to get accreditation for Silk Touch at any point prior to July 20, 2010?
A. I did not try to get it. I looked into getting it.
Q. All right. You obviously --
Am I correct that Silk Touch was not an accredited center as of July 20, 2010?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. When you looked into it, was there a reason why you elected not to pursue accreditation?
A. Yes.
Q. What was it?
A. Our limits of our physical facility. You can't --
You have to be able to adapt your facility a certain way to accreditation, so we couldn't do it in the location that we were at.
Q. Okay. Explain that to me.
A. So with accreditation, they require you

CONSULTATION

SURGICAL CONSULT

CONSULTING FOR:
Dr. Fujii, critical care.

CHIEF COMPLAINT:
Sepsis, ARDS, hypotension, status post liposuction and transplant of fat to the buttocks.

HISTORY OF PRESENT ILLNESS:
This is a 27-year-old black female who apparently underwent liposuction with transplantation of the fat from the anterior abdominal wall to the buttocks on both sides. This apparently occurred on 07/21/2010. She apparently had it done at a MediSpa somewhere. Apparently they contacted a physician several times and subsequently she became increasingly ill on Friday, complaining of increasing pain in the transplantation site on her buttocks. She had no drainage from any of the wounds. She did not have a fever, no chills and apparently yesterday apparently passed out and early this morning was taken to the Elmore Emergency Room where she was seen and evaluated and subsequently transferred here. She arrived here at approximately 7:20 this morning and after a vigorous resuscitation she barely had a blood pressure, had significant findings on her chest x-ray and her CT is consistent with significant RDS in both lower lobes posteriorly. The patient had marked hypoxemia with a pO2 in the 40s and was admitted to the Coronary Care Unit by Dr. Fujii and she asked me if I would evaluate the patient. CT also showed that she has some stranding in the anterior abdominal wall anterior to the fascia consistent with her liposuction. She also has some subcutaneous air in the left posterior buttocks area in the soft tissues, but not in the muscle itself and not associated with the fascia according to my review of films.

LABORATORY VALUES:
In Elmore, showed a WBC of 14.7. Her hemoglobin was 10.3 and her hematocrit was 32.0. She had 189,000 platelets. She had 92 segs, 5 lymphs and 3 monos. Her CK-MB was 3.2. Her myoglobin was 277 and her T and I was 0.079 and her CK was 51. Again inconsistent with a necrotizing fasciitis. Her sodium is 142, potassium is 3.4, chloride is 102, her CO2 was 13, glucose was 93, BUN was 31, creatinine was 3.2. Her albumin was low at 2.4, total bilirubin was 1. Her total protein is 6.2 and her globulin was 3.8. Her alk phos was 73, AST was 19, ALT was 24. Her blood gas from the Elmore Emergency Room showed a pH of 6.99. Her pCO2 was 36. Her pO2 was 21 and her base excess was -22 and her bicarbonate was 8.7. Her O2 saturation, and her O2 saturation was minimal. She was seen in the Intensive Care Unit.

Patient: BALLARD, KRYSTAL
EMPI: 4828667

CONSULTATION

Chest x-ray from Elmore County shows bronchitis and bibasilar subsegmental atelectasis or scarring, minimal superimposed pneumonitis, aspiration of bronchiolitis not excluded and findings possibly a similar fat emboli syndrome. The patient is on a ventilator in the Intensive Care Unit.

OBJECTIVE:
VITAL SIGNS: Blood pressure at the time of my arrival is 105/60, heart rate in the 120s. Her O2 sat is not reading. CVP is 18. She does have a left femoral arterial line in.
HEENT: Shows that her pupils are sluggish and equal. She has bilateral mild proptosis and her sclerae are unremarkable. I see no petechial hemorrhages in and around the area of the sclerae or the upper and lower lids.
NECK: Supple, nontender, no step-offs or deformities. She has no jugular venous distension.
LUNGS: Clear to auscultation and percussion. Breath sounds are bilateral and equal in the upper lobes and marked rales in both bases. The cardiac exam shows a rapid rate and rhythm without murmurs or gallops.
CARDIAC: Echocardiogram done at the time of my evaluation shows that she has markedly hypokinetic segments in the apex and in both ventricles with an ejection fraction estimated by the tache at around 17-20%.
ABDOMEN: She has 4 Steri-Strips wounds in the anterior abdomen, 2 on each side with no subcutaneous emphysema or crepitance or redness or any sign of infection.
EXTREMITIES: Her extremities show 1+ edema times all four extremities.
BUTTOCKS: The patient's buttocks show 2 wounds 1 on the posterior superior iliac crest on each side with no crepitance to the subcutaneous tissue. No evidence of redness or inflammation and no drainage from the insertion sites for the fat transplants. The patient's current blood gas shows a pH of 6.84. Her pCO2 is 42. Her pCO2 is 38 and she has a bicarbonate of 7.2. Her calcium is 0.77 in ionized performed. Her O2 sat is 30%. The patient's EKGs are essentially show slight ST elevation in all leads.

IMPRESSION:
This most likely represents an unfortunate young black female who underwent liposuction with subsequent transplant of the fat into the buttocks on both sides 4 days ago. She now has what appears to be a probable fat emboli syndrome with significant ARDS, massive hypoxemia, unresponsive to ventilator modes from a surgical standpoint, I feel in light of the ejection fraction of 17% and a marked hypoxemia and a marginal cardiac output that she would not tolerate a trip to the Operating Room. I doubt very seriously that this represents necrotizing fasciitis in light of the CT scan, which only shows a small amount of air and no fluid anterior and/or posterior to the fascia in the buttocks. I have discussed these findings with Dr. Fujii, and will be available to continue to follow the patient and should there be any surgical needs.

A. The most common -- the most common that one would expect under those circumstances would be escherichia coli, but that's based on commonality.
Q. Why do you think she had SIRS?
A. I think she had SIRS because she fits the classification of SIRS. When I -- when I look at the whole case --
Q. Why do you think she fits the classification of SIRS?
A. If you look at fat embolism syndrome and you look at SIRS, they -- there's a gray crossover between the two. And if you look at symptomatology that she had in terms of Systemic Inflammatory Response Syndrome, the criteria that are set out for that with tachypnea, with the heart rate, the CO2, the -- probably ought to get my notes out and look at some of those.
But the primary things would be the CO2, the heart rate, the respiratory rate, the white count, and the platelet counts, and things of that sort.
Q. Can sepsis cause SIRS?
A. Sepsis was originally associated with SIRS through basically --
Q. My question is: Can sepsis cause

Page 50

SIRS?
A. I just said that it did, that it was originally associated with that.
Q. Okay. Do you have an opinion as to where the bacteria found in her buttocks came from?
A. The only opinion I can give is that it was secondarily placed there either through bacteriuria, because we know she had bacteria in her urine, then developing a bacteriemia and subsequent sepsis, and the sepsis was the cause of the bacteria in the buttocks.
Q. The bacteria in her urine, Doctor, have you done any research regarding the validity of the urinalysis done at Elmore?
A. On the validity of the urinalysis, no, sir, I have not looked at research in that regard.
Q. You agree, don't you, Doctor, that the presence of epithelial cells on urinalysis would reflect a contaminated specimen?
A. Potentially, yes.
Q. You would agree that if E. coli is the most primary cause of gram negative bacteria, gram negative rods most prevalent, that is a nitrite-producing bacteria?

Page 51

A. That's correct.
Q. And we know that her urinalysis at Elmore's was nitrite negative?
A. That's correct.
Q. And we know she had a negative leukocyte esterase test at the urinalysis at Elmore?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you know what the significance of a negative nitrite and a negative leukocyte esterase test is with respect to ruling out a urinary tract infection?
A. It would imply that there is no urinary tract infection.
Q. Okay. If you have a negative nitrite and a negative leukocyte esterase test and a fifteen to twenty epithelial cells on urinalysis, would you agree with me that more likely than not, a patient does not have a urinary tract infection?
A. I would.
Q. Doctor, do you have available to you E-mails by and between yourself and Mr. Quane regarding this matter?
A. The E-mails that I have primarily are just regarding the appointments and whether I want -- when I can give a deposition.

Page 52

Q. Did you E-mail him substantively about your opinions in this case?
A. No, sir, I did not.
Q. Did you E-mail him concerning your belief that Miss Ballard had a fat emboli?
A. I did not. I confine those things to confron -- personal discussions rather than E-mail.
Q. And when is it, Doctor, that you told mister -- Mr. Quane that you thought she had a fat embolism?
A. It was yesterday when I saw him that I told him that I thought she had a fat -- not that I thought, that I know she had a fat embolism.
Q. The article that Mr. Quane had printed out with him, is that an article you E-mailed him or handed to him in a hard copy today?
A. Yesterday.
Q. Do you agree that sepsis was a contributing factor to Miss Ballard's death?
A. I think sepsis probably contributed. I certainly cannot exclude it.
Q. Now, you had asked Dr. Groben a question about whether or not he saw anything relevant to an infection, and I think you said during what part of the autopsy?

A. The question that I had revolved around the wound itself. Did it look infected, or was there infection grossly evident when the wound was opened?
Q. What wound are you talking about?
A. Either one, right or left, for the abdomen.
Q. Right or left what? Flank?
A. Buttocks.
Q. Were you aware that Ms. Ballard had been prescribed a corticosteroid by Dr. Kerr?
A. Medrol dose pack, yes, sir.
Q. Okay. And Medrol dose pack will not fight an infection, you'll agree with that?
A. That's correct.
Q. But it would limit the body's inflammatory response to an infection; would you agree?
A. Potentially, yes.
Q. And it will immunosuppress a patient, won't it?
A. Potentially, yes.
Q. And when we talk about immunosuppression, that means they have an infection, their body's ability to fight that infection will be diminished, correct?

A. As potential, yes.
Q. Have you spoken to any other expert in this case?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you know Dr. Thomas Kaufman, who's an infectious disease expert?
A. No, sir, I do not.
Q. Have you been told what he testified to with respect to his review of this case?
A. Say that one more time, please.
Q. Have you been told what Dr. Kaufman testified to?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Well, what general discussions have you had?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. What general discussions have you had concerning Dr. Kaufman's testimony?
A. None.
Q. And the reason I ask that, when I asked what were you told you said nothing specific, so I didn't know if there were general discussions you might have had about his testimony?

Page 55

A. No, sir.
Q. Have you told Mr. Quane that any of the disclosure of opinions that reflect opinions you were supposedly going to give was inaccurate?
A. Repeat that one more time, please.
Q. You have reviewed at least two disclosures that Mr. Quane made reflecting what your opinions are, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you ever tell or E-mail Mr. Quane that any representation he made in that disclosure was inaccurate?
A. I did on the first one.
Q. What did you tell him?
A. Without looking it up, the things that I underlined were that I had not seen a circumstance wherein a gram negative rod resulted in sepsis followed by death of the patient. Certainly I have. I've seen that. That was incorrect.
He will discuss the autopsy report including the fact the tissue samples do not identify with any degree of specificity where they were taken from, which further compounds the relevance findings of gram negative rods. That sentence was removed.

Let's see, comments that I made was relative to things about bacteria, where they reside, things of that sort, but as far as I know, they were left in there. I just felt --
Q. Doctor, I apologize, but you talked about where -- were all the changes that you made reflected on the sheets of paper that you have in front of you?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the last thing you referenced, what change do you think was left in that you told him was inaccurate or needed to be corrected?
A. There were -- I don't -- without looking at my original E-mail, I would have to go back and review that, if I could.
Q. Certainly. Let's go off the record, and you can do that.
A. Okay.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now off the record.
(Discussion off the record.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now on the record. We're now on the record.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD:) I want to make sure I'm clear as to what you advised Mr. Quane may be inaccurate in the disclosure that was made.

A. The two sentences that --
Q. The first thing dealt with the fact that you had seen a gram negative rod causing sepsis death, correct?
A. That's correct, I have.
Q. Now, what else did you advise Mr. Quane may need to be changed either in an E-mail or verbally?
A. That I won't -- that discussing the autopsy report, including the fact that tissue samples do not identify with any degree of specificity et cetera, et cetera.
Q. Is there anything else that you looked at in that disclosure that you thought needed to be changed or corrected?
A. Not to the best of my knowledge, no, sir.
Q. And just so I'm clear, Doctor, the presence of a negative nitrite, negative leukocyte esterase, and the presence of the fifteen to twenty epithelial cells, in your experience, would make the -- would make a urinary tract infection nonexistent to a reasonable degree of medical probability?

Page 58

A. It would not likely be there.
Q. Okay. So you said that much better than I did.
In terms of the computer that you have at home, Doctor, does it have additional articles on it that you have not referenced here today?
A. I believe there are on Systemic Inflammatory Response Syndrome.
Q. Did you -- in terms of journals from which those articles came from, do you have a recollection of where those articles came from?
A. Not right offhand. The one major article is the one in which SIRS was originally defined because I went to the original article and I went from there. So I do have that original article. I can't tell you which journal it was in.
Q. And the original article -- okay.
And that SIRS, the original article regarding SIRS, did that relate to SIRS to a septic etiology?
A. SIRS was originally defined with sepsis, but subsequently defined without sepsis as well.
MR. HADDAD: Mr. Quane, do you have any problems of doctor -- Dr. Garrison, producing those articles that he has on his home computer to us?

MR. QUANE: No, if he can find them.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD:) Doctor, where -- Doctor, if you would, as soon as you can, get those articles to Mr. Quane.
And, Mr. Quane, I believe that if he can't find them, just simply let him know, he can't find them, and he doesn't intend on relying on anything other than the ones he referenced.
A. I will make every effort to find them.
Q. Have you been given any materials by Mr. Quane that you have not reviewed?
A. No, sir, not to the best of my knowledge.
Q. Give me a second, Doctor. I'm just looking at my notes to make sure I don't miss anything.
Doctor, did you bring with you that summary or compilation of cases that you were provided by Mr. Quane regarding the surgeries performed at Silk Touch?
A. I did -- Well, it would be on my computer in my E-mail.
Is it in here?
MR. QUANE: Yeah.

Page 60

THE WITNESS: I don't know where it is. If I have it here, I'm not sure where it is.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD:) Is there anything else you're leafing through that is not medical records in this case?
A. No, sir. Everything is just a stack that was given to me.
Now, the only things that I have here from Dr. Kerr's office are the records on Crystal Ballard. I don't have those others with me.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD:) Okay. Is there any investigation that you've done concerning this case that you have not testified about?
A. Other than the reviewing of the slides looking for fat emboli, I think I mentioned that not specifically, but I did.
MR. HADDAD: Let's take a short break. I might be done.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now off the record.
(Discussion off the record.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now on the record. We're now on the record.

Attorneys for Plaintiff

IN THE DISTRICT COURT FOR THE FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF ADA

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D.; SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, d/b/a SILK TOUCH MED SPA, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER, and LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.	Case No. CV OC 1204792 PLAINTIFF'S FIFTH SUPPLEMENTAL ANSWERS TO DEFENDANTS' FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES

COMES NOW the Plaintiff, Charles Ballard ("Plaintiff"), in accordance with Rule 33 of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, and submits the following Second Supplemental Answers to Defendants' First Set of Interrogatories.

General Statements and Objections

A. Representations of fact and law herein are made in good faith without the benefit of complete discovery. These answers represent Plaintiff's best efforts at this stage of the litigation and are based on currently available, non-privileged, and non-work product information and documents.

B. Plaintiff objects to each and every interrogatory to the extent that it calls for information subject to the attorney-client privilege, the work product privilege, the privilege for critical self-examination, or any other privilege. To the extent that documents or information arguably subject to such privileges may be provided by Plaintiff, such privileges are not waived beyond the precise extent of the disclosure made, and no waiver of privilege may be implied in that no disclosure of anything which is actually privileged is intended.

C. Plaintiff objects to each and every interrogatory to the extent that it may be vague, ambiguous, confusing, nonsensical, incomprehensible, or involves usage of words other than those commonly and customarily used, or assumes matters contrary to fact.

D. Plaintiff objects to providing information not within its knowledge, custody, possession, or control, or which does not exist.

E. No objection, general or specific, which has been raised herein is waived by the provision of any answer herein unless specifically stated to be waived by such answer.

ANSWERS

INTERROGATORY NO. 5: Please state the name and address of each person whom you intend to call as an expert witness at the trial, and for each such person set forth a complete statement of all opinions to be expressed and the basis and reasons therefore, the data or other information considered by the witness in forming the opinions, any exhibits to be used as a summary of or support for the opinions, a list of all publications authored by the witness within the preceding ten years, the compensation to be paid for the testimony and a listing of any other cases in which the witness has testified as an expert at trial or by deposition within the preceding four years.

Supplemental Answer: Without waiving the objections to the late disclosure of opinions of Dr. Garrison regarding fat embolism syndrome, the plaintiff supplements his expert witness disclosures to meet this untimely disclosed opinion to the extent that the Court permits that opinion to be rendered at the trial of this action.

Dean Sorensen, M.D. Dr. Sorensen will testify that the patient clinically did not have fat embolism syndrome. Further, all of the signs, symptoms and other diagnostic tests, including the autopsy, support that Krystal Ballard did not die as a direct or indirect consequence of fat embolism syndrome. To the contrary, Dr. Sorensen will testify that the patient had the signs and symptoms of sepsis, which was confirmed pathologically by Dr. Groben at autopsy. Dr. Sorensen will testify that the only bacterial source causing the sepsis was from the fat injected into her buttocks, which bacteria entered her body because of the breach in the standard of care by Dr. Kerr at Silk Touch as outlined in his original disclosure of opinions. Further, to the extent that there were fat emboli found on the pathology slides as testified to by Dr. Garrison, these are incidental findings at the time of autopsy and are not the cause or a contributing factor to Krystal Ballard's death. Fat emboli from lipolysis are an extraordinarily rare occurrence and typically only manifests when the liposuction is combined with another procedure, such as an abdominoplasty. To the extent that there are small fat emboli that entered the circulatory system through lipolysis, they do not clinically create any issues for the patient. Further, to the extent that the defendants plan on asserting that fat emboli caused or contributed to Krystal Ballard's death, Dr. Kerr did not discuss this risk with Krystal Ballard as evidenced by the documents of Silk Touch regarding the informed consent. Dr. Sorensen will challenge and rebut any opinions rendered by any of the defendants' experts to the extent that they were not set forth in their written answers to interrogatories or supplements thereto outlining their opinions.

Dr. Keith Armitage will testify, consistent with his initial disclosure, that the patient died from sepsis as a result of bacteria which was introduced into her body during the liposuction procedure. Dr. Armitage will testify that the signs and symptoms that the patient, Krystal Ballard, presented with are all consistent with sepsis from a bacterial source. There were no other bacterial sources for the infection identified clinically or pathologically other than the gram negative rods found at the time of autopsy at the fat injection sites in the buttocks. Dr. Armitage will rebut any opinions from any other expert, to the extent that those opinions are within his expertise as an infectious disease specialist.

Dr. George Nichols will testify concerning Dr. Garrison's opinions about fat embolism syndrome. Dr. Nichols has reviewed the pathology slides of Krystal Ballard and will testify that the patient did not have fat embolism syndrome at the time of autopsy. As a board-certified forensic pathologist, Dr. Nichols examines the clinical record as part of his overall review in determining cause of death. Dr. Nichols will testify that the patient did not clinically present with fat embolism syndrome, but to the contrary, the signs and symptoms and diagnostic tests performed support that the patient had sepsis from a bacterial source. Dr. Nichols will testify that the only bacterial source was from the bacteria introduced into her body during the fat transfer and ultimately found at the injection site of the fat and nowhere else. Dr. Nichols will also testify, consistent with his education, training, experience and research into the issue of fat emboli as identified in his curriculum vitae, that the patient did not have fat embolism syndrome. However, fat emboli do manifest themselves as part of the resuscitation efforts on patients. Krystal Ballard was resuscitated numerous times and, therefore, to the extent that there are arguably fat emboli found on certain tissue samples taken at the time of the autopsy, these are a consequence of the resuscitation efforts at or near the time of her death and not present earlier. In patients that are resuscitated, there is a high likelihood of fat emboli found at the time of autopsy as a result of the resuscitation efforts, which do not clinically cause the patient's death, but rather are incidental to the resuscitation efforts. Dr. Nichols will rebut the opinions of any of the defendants' experts to the extent that they are contrary to his theories as expressed in his original disclosure and any supplemental thereto.

DEPOSITION OF GEOFFREY STILLER, M.D.
TAKEN ON BEHALF OF THE PLAINTIFF
AT MOSCOW, IDAHO
JULY 19, 2013, AT 9:09 A.M.

Reported by Nancy K. Towler, CSR, Notary Public

Q. Well, let's go -- has it changed since you've started Linea?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
A. It has not changed, to answer that question. As far as the machine, I don't know what the machine name is. I think it's a -- I believe it is -- I'm blanking. I apologize. The liposuction machine, I don't know what its name is.
Q. Okay. What type of machine? I mean, how does it -- I know there's different types. There's an ultrasound.
A. Well, that's not -- they're not liposuction machines. They're just an energy source to do an aspect of liposuction.
Q. Okay. What kind of -- what liposuction procedures do you perform?
A. I do laser-assisted liposuction and traditional or Tumescent liposuction.
Q. Okay. And what type of procedure did Dr. Kerr perform on Krystal Ballard?
A. From what I understand, he used ultrasound or the vaser, and then did a liposuction, and then did a fat grafting.
Q. Okay. Do you use ultrasound?

A. I do not use the vaser. I have tried the vaser, but I do not use the vaser.
Q. Okay. Where have you tried it?
A. I believe it was in Charlotte, in North Carolina. We had them come in. The rep brought it in, and we tried it, but I don't use it.
Q. Okay. So your only experience is a rep tried to sell the machine, he came in to do a presentation. You --
A. My only experience of hands-on use, correct.
Q. Okay. Did you ever actually use it on a patient?
A. We did.
Q. Okay. Did you ever read the manual?
A. I don't remember. Probably did.
Q. Now, explain the difference. I mean, when you're talking about ultrasound, that's to break up the fat, correct?
A. Loosen the fat off the stroma or the surrounding tissue.
Q. The liposuction part is actually the --
A. Harvesting.
Q. -- aspirating of fat or harvesting it from -- taking it out of the body into some type of collection tube?
A. Correct.

Q. In terms of the machine that you all have used since March of 2012, you don't know who the manufacturer is?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. Do you know what the manufacturer recommends in terms of how to clean and disinfect and sterilize that equipment?
A. The equipment, itself, is just an engine to pull tissue. It doesn't have any contaminants to it.
Q. Okay.
A. So everything going to it is disposable.
Q. What about the hand piece?
A. The hand piece is my liposuction cannulas.
Q. Okay. Okay. The hand piece, as you understand it, that Dr. Kerr used was because he used ultrasound?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Have you been provided the manual from the manufacturer of the machine Dr. -- the vaser machine Dr. Kerr used on Krystal Ballard?
A. I have not.
Q. Okay. Now, at some point in time, Doctor, during the -- when you were asked to -- to review this case, I know there was some correspondence from Mr. Jones' office about contacting Dr. O'Neil so that you could talk to him, Dr. O'Neil, about the standard of practice as it exists in Boise, correct?

A. At the time of this incident, correct.
Q. Okay. Because you had not practiced in Boise or the sounding area, correct?
A. I had practiced in Boise and the surrounding area up until 2005.
Q. As a general surgeon?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. But they wanted you, as I understand it, to talk to Dr. O'Neil about the standard of practice during the time that Krystal Ballard had her procedure for cosmetic procedures?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Do you know when you spoke to Dr. O'Neil?
A. End of May, beginning of June.
Q. I mean, do you have any -- first of all, do you have any notes that you've made in your review of any materials?
A. I do not.
Q. Do you have anything that you've kept in any type of electronic format concerning notes about your case review?
A. I have not.
Q. What type of -- what type of practice does

Dr. O'Neil have?
A. A cosmetic physician, I believe.
THE REPORTER: I'm sorry?
THE WITNESS: A cosmetic physician, I believe.
BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. What type of background does he have?
A. I don't know offhand.
Q. Okay. Do you know whether he had any kind of surgical residency?
A. I do not know offhand.
Q. Okay. I mean, when you say you don't know offhand, did you ever -- before you spoke to him, did you ever try to find out what type of background Dr. O'Neil had in terms of his practice?
A. No.
Q. When you were talking to him, did you ask him how he was trained, both in -- through medical school, residency and in cosmetic procedures?
A. No. I asked him about the standard of practice in Boise at that point in time.
Q. Okay. We'll get to that. Did you ask Dr. O'Neil what type of machine he used at his office? For instance, do you know whether he used the vaser?
A. I did not ask him, and I do not know.

Q. Do you know if Dr. O'Neil's practice is such that he has -- strike that. Do you know whether Dr. O'Neil personally performs the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing of equipment and supplies that are reusable at his office?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know what type of cleaners Dr. O'Neil uses?
A. I do not know.
Q. Do you know what type of disinfectants Dr. O'Neil uses?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if Dr. O'Neil uses an autoclave?
A. No.
Q. Do you know whether Dr. O'Neil takes spore counts?
A. I do not.
Q. Did you ever ask him any of those questions?
A. I did not.
Q. I mean, how long was your conversation with Dr. O'Neil that you utilized to gain an understanding as to the standard of practice for a cosmetic physician at the time Krystal Ballard had her procedure? How long was your call?
A. About 20 to 40 minutes.

Q. (Indicating).
A. Twenty to 40 minutes.
Q. Twenty to 40 minutes. All right. I want you to recount for me everything you discussed with Dr. O'Neil.
A. That will be a very -- a 20-minute to 40-minute conversation to discuss that. Do you want me to go through every aspect of it?
Q. Well, let me break it down. Then I'll ask you kind of a catchall question. And if it takes time, it takes time.
A. Sounds good.
Q. Do you know whether Dr. O'Neil does cosmetic procedures in his own office?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Do you know whether Dr. O'Neil has specifically dedicated staff who do the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know whether Dr. O'Neil has written policies and procedures in his office dealing with cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing equipment?
A. I do not. I did not ask.
Q. All right. What were the general topics, and then we might get into specifics, that you discussed with Dr. O'Neil?

A. We discussed the care of the patient.
Q. Okay. I'll stop you there. Did -- did Dr. O'Neil have the medical records of Krystal Ballard, to your knowledge?
A. I believe he said he reviewed them. I don't -- I don't know what in total he had.
Q. Okay. So he had -- at least based on your conversation with him, he had been supplied with medical records?
A. I believe so.
Q. Concerning Krystal Ballard?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. So when you discussed the care of the patient, tell me what it is you and Dr. O'Neil discussed.
A. The -- the procedure, itself. We discussed the follow-up of the patient.
Q. What else?
A. We also discussed what it was like practicing in Boise at that point in time, how many cosmetic physicians were there. And we discussed the sterilization that was -- the deposition of the sterilization by Dr. Kerr on what his opinions regarding the adequacy of that, of sterilization.

Q. Okay. How many -- I mean, what was it like practicing in Boise, was that just kind of a general conversation, or what --
A. Absolutely.
Q. Then what was the point of -- I mean --
A. How many physicians there were --
Q. -- it may not have any relevance, but I just want to know, does asking him, gee, what was it like practicing? How many cosmetic physicians in Boise? How did that lead you to have an understanding as to the standard of practice in Boise?
A. As far as the standard of practice in Boise, which physicians, what kind of physicians perform -- were performing and where they were performing their procedures.
Q. Okay. What type of physicians in Boise were performing cosmetic procedures?
A. As -- Dr. Kerr was doing it, as well as Dr. O'Neil was doing it. And I think he said there was an -- not an ophthalmologist, but an ER doc. Again, these were all non-plastics people and who was doing it. And there was five in total. There might have been an OB that was doing it as well, as far as I remember.
Q. Okay. To your recollection, there were only five physicians in Boise doing cosmetic procedures?

A. No. There were five cosmetic physicians doing procedures.
Q. Okay. To your knowledge, all five were nonsurgical trained?
A. I don't know if they were surgical trained.
Q. Now, when you say you discussed the sterilization and the adequacy of the sterilization as described, are you talking about as Dr. Kerr described in his deposition?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Tell me specifically what it was you and Dr. O'Neil talked about in terms of the adequacy of the sterilization as described in Dr. Kerr's deposition.
A. Sure. We talked about his cleaning of the instruments. We talked about the sterilization of his instruments.
Q. Okay. Is that it? I mean, can you be any more specific? When you say you talked about the cleaning, what did you all talk about in terms of cleaning the instruments?
A. We discussed what Dr. Kerr had said he did.
Q. Okay. What did Dr. Kerr say he did?
A. Well, he mentioned, at some point in time, that he did both the Hibiclens and the alcohol, as well as he also talked about using a chemical, which he didn't know the name of.

Q. Okay. Now, how is -- okay. I'm sorry, I interrupted you --
A. No worries.
Q. -- and I shouldn't do that.
A. No worries.
Q. You said alcohol, Hibiclens --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. -- and some unknown chemical Dr. Kerr couldn't remember the name of?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Anything else dealing with the cleaning of instruments that you all talked about, other than the types of solutions Dr. Kerr described he used?
A. Not that I can tell you right now, no.
Q. Okay. Do you know in your practice whether you use alcohol to clean instruments?
A. Do we use alcohol to clean instruments? I will use alcohol to clean instruments on the field if I need to, yes.
Q. When you say "on the field," what does that mean?
A. My surgical field.
Q. Okay. But as far as once they go back with Ms. Blake, do you know what she uses?
A. She uses a -- a -- a hospital-grade cleaner, as well as the -- the disinfectant.

Q. Okay. I mean, saying a hospital-grade cleaner, what's --
A. There's -- well --
Q. -- what's the active ingredient?
A. An acetylene, something, something something. I don't know.
Q. All right. Okay. Let me ask you this. You talked about alcohol, Hibiclens; and, obviously, you couldn't have much discussion about the appropriateness of some unknown cleaner, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right.
A. Well, we also talked about his autoclave, the steam autoclave, and the fact that he did use a chemical marker.
Q. All right. That's more the sterilization side.
A. Correct.
Q. I look at it differently, but --
A. Well, the sterilization side is important.
Q. Okay. It is. We were going to get to that, but I was breaking them down. But we can deal with them all together --
A. No worries.
Q. -- if it's easier for you. Do you know whether or not alcohol has been proven to be an appropriate solution, 70 percent isopropyl, because that's what Dr. Kerr used, right?

A. Mixed with Hibiclens.
Q. Okay. Do you know whether or not isopropyl alcohol is an appropriate solution to use in the cleaning and disinfecting and sterilization of medical equipment and supplies?
MR. JONES: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: You -- again, you're masking -- or you're putting all three together. And Hibiclens isn't a sterilization. It's not a disinfectant. It's a cleaner.
BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. Okay.
A. And so is alcohol.
Q. All right. Do you know whether or not it's approved, whether alcohol is -- first of all, do you know -- when I say the Centers for Disease Control, are you familiar with that organization?
A. I am familiar with that organization.
Q. Have you ever read any of their publications dealing with the appropriate cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing of medical equipment and supplies?
A. At some time -- at some point in my training, I'm sure I have.

Q. Do you know what they said about alcohol being used, 70 percent isopropyl alcohol being used to clean or disinfect medical equipment and supplies?
A. Again, it's not a disinfectant. It's a cleaner.
Q. Do you know what they say about it being used as a cleaner?
MR. JONES: Object to form. Assumes facts. And lack of foundation. You haven't established that the CDC sets any standards in Boise, Idaho.
BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. Go ahead.
A. Again, going back, it's not just using alcohol. It's using alcohol and Hibiclens, is what he used. So it's not just selecting one.
Q. Do you know whether Hibiclens is approved by the FDA to clean or disinfect, one or the other, medical equipment and supplies?
A. I don't know if the FDA actually approves anything for cleaning. The FDA doesn't have to do with that. It's the CDC. And the CDC, again, as we said, doesn't have the -- doesn't -- or doesn't tell us what the standard of practice is.
Q. Okay. Do you know whether or not the CDC has published information for physicians to use that says whether Hibiclens is an appropriate solution to use?

A. I have not researched it.
Q. What concentration -- I mean, what is the active ingredient --
THE WITNESS: Just a moment.
MR. HADDAD: Sure.
THE WITNESS: Sorry.
MR. HADDAD: We're still good?
THE WITNESS: Yeah.
MR. HADDAD: All right.
BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. What is the active ingredient of Hibiclens?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know what -- now, did Dr. O'Neil tell you he uses alcohol?
A. As far as him using alcohol?
Q. To clean medical equipment or supplies.
A. To clean medical equipment, again, it's not the mixture -- it's not alcohol. It's the mixture of alcohol and Hibiclens. And alcohol and Hibiclens is what I use to cleanse patients as far as a cleaner and disinfectant. That being said, again, it's not a disinfectant. It's to sterilize the -- it's used to clean the tissue. So...
Q. Did you ask Dr. O'Neil whether or not he used a alcohol-Hibiclens solution, mixture, to clean medical equipment and supplies?

A. I asked him whether that was an adequate cleaning at that point in time in Boise with Dr. Kerr. And he agreed that he didn't see any issues with that.
Q. Did he say he did it? He used -- that Dr. O'Neil specifically said, I used alcohol and Hibiclens in a mixture to clean medical equipment and supplies? Did you ask him that?
A. I did -- I don't remember.
Q. Did you ask Dr. O'Neil whether or not he took spore counts?
A. I did not ask him.
Q. Did Dr. O'Neil tell you that other physicians in Boise that do cosmetic procedures did or did not do spore counts? Or did that not come up?
A. It did not come up.
Q. Again --
THE WITNESS: No. Just my wife.
MR. HADDAD: Sometimes that can be more important than any other call you get.
BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. The various places that you practice -- or have practiced -- I'm going to back up so I can kind of get them here. And we'll go in most recent. In March, 2012 to the present, do you have a -- is there a dedicated clean room where instruments are taken to be sterilized?

A. It's a clean-dirty room.
Q. When you say "clean-dirty room," what do you mean?
A. There's a wall -- there's a wall on the counter separating the clean supplies from the dirty supplies, but it's in the same room.
Q. How is it separated?
A. There's a wall.
Q. I mean, other than a wall. I mean --
A. That's it.
Q. Okay. When you say "there's a wall," is it --
A. It's a partition, I should say, rather than a wall. A partition.
Q. And this is the ambulatory surgical --
A. No. This is my office.
Q. Okay. So your office uses a clean-dirty room?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you put -- are the instruments, the dirty instruments, left in a sink adjacent to where the autoclave is located?
A. It's a couple feet away, but yes.
Q. Have you ever had -- first of all, is your -- is Linea, as a separate entity, accredited?

A. No.
Q. Is the ambulatory surgical center accredited?
A. It is.
Q. Who accredits that?
A. AAAHC.
Q. At Shape, was it accredited?
A. Initially, no, but it became accredited.
Q. Uplift, was it accredited?
A. It was not.
Q. Genesis?
A. It was.
Q. Do you know whether or not Dr. O'Neil's cosmetic practice is accredited?
A. I don't believe it was.
Q. Did you ask him, or are you just --
A. I believe it came up in conversation.
Q. Okay. Do you know whether other physicians in Boise, how many of those that practice cosmetic surgery and have their own surgery centers, have accredited versus non-accredited centers?
A. As far as at that time, I don't believe any of the cosmetic physicians had it. And we did discuss that, that being said.
Q. And you're talking the five --
A. Correct.

Q. -- physicians that he mentioned that did cosmetic procedures in Boise?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. You said one was an ER doctor?
A. I believe it was.
Q. One was an OB?
A. I believe so.
Q. What were the others?
A. I think it was Dr. O'Neil and Dr. Kerr. And I don't remember what the last one was. Again, but they were all outside of the main surgical specialties.
MR. JONES: Dermatology was one.
THE WITNESS: Dermatology. There you go.
BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. All right. Just so that I'm clear, is it your understanding, in speaking with Dr. O'Neil, that during the time in July of 2010 that Krystal Ballard had her procedure --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. -- there were a total of five physicians in Boise, Idaho, doing cosmetic procedures?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
A. Not what I said.
Q. What did you say?

A. I said there were four -- five -- there were five cosmetic physicians that were doing cosmetic procedures, not including the surgical subspecialties.
Q. Okay. Now, do you know how many surgical specialists were doing cosmetic procedures?
A. As far as the plastic surgeons versus the ENTs versus the ophthalmologists that all do cosmetics, I do not know.
Q. Okay. Did Dr. O'Neil discuss with you what the nonsurgical-trained cosmetic physicians -- strike that. Did Dr. O'Neil discuss with you what the surgically trained cosmetic physicians did or did not do with respect to cleaning, disinfecting, sterilizing equipment?
A. No.
Q. Before you go in to do a procedure in your -- inhouse, your own office, the liposuction, do you do fat transfers in your own office?
A. I do.
Q. Okay. How do you go about cleaning your hands? What do you use?
A. Avagard.
Q. Avagard? What is the active ingredient?
A. I don't know what it is. It's what I use in the hospitals.

Q. Okay. Did you ask Dr. O'Neil whether or not using alcohol to clean your hands before a procedure was or was not something that other Boise nonsurgically trained physicians did?
A. I did not.
Q. Do you do regular maintenance, or have somebody do regular maintenance, on your autoclave?
A. I do.
Q. Okay. How often do they come and check the autoclave to make sure it was working appropriately?
A. I think it's once a year they come by.
Q. The other facilities that you worked in, or were involved with, do you have an understanding that they, likewise, had routine maintenance and upkeep of their autoclaves?
A. I don't know.
MR. JONES: Object to form. Vague.
BY MR. HADDAD:
Q. I mean, do you know if at any other place, when you were at Palouse back in '05 to '08, do you know whether the -- somebody came and checked the autoclave to make sure it was functioning properly?
A. They were the hospital's, so I did not check.
Q. All right. Were you trained at Southeast -- or Southcenter Cosmetic Center and Hair Restoration, did they have an autoclave?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if somebody did routine servicing and maintenance of the autoclave?
A. I don't know.
Q. At Genesis, do you know whether they had somebody to come in and do routine servicing and maintenance?
A. I don't know.
Q. At Uplift, that's yours, did you have somebody come in and do routine servicing?
A. I did not.
Q. Of course, you weren't there for a year, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. At Shape, do you know if they had somebody come in to do routine maintenance and servicing of the autoclave?
A. I know the autoclave broke twice while I was there, so it was fixed from that standpoint. Whether they did any other servicing, I don't know.
Q. Fair. And at your place, every year somebody -- at Linea, somebody comes in every year and makes sure it's operating -- the autoclave's operating appropriately?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you know what they do when they come and check it out? Have you --

A. They put a sticker on it. That's all I know.
Q. They come and say, I've inspected it?
A. Exactly.
Q. All right. When instruments are taken from the procedure room that you use at Linea, and then you go in and you put them in a basin to soak; is that correct? Do you do that process?
A. I don't do that process.
Q. Okay. Do you know how it's done?
A. I know they're put in a basin to soak.
Q. Do you know what kind of solution is used?
A. Again, it's a cleaning solution.
Q. Okay. When you were talking to Dr. O'Neil, did you ask him whether or not instruments taken from the procedure room are put in -- in a basin to soak?
A. I did not ask him that, no.
Q. Okay. Did you ask him -- we'll leave it at that. In looking at the medical records, is it -- do you have the general opinion that Krystal Ballard died as a result of sepsis?
A. Krystal Ballard died as a result of shock. I don't know if it was sepsis.
Q. Okay. If you were to give a differential diagnosis as to what caused the shock in Krystal Ballard, would sepsis be on the differential?

A. It would be low.
Q. What would be on the differential?
A. What would be on the differential? Completely?
Q. Well, I'm -- I'm -- you're -- well, first of all, are you going to render the opinion as to the cause of Krystal Ballard's shock?
A. Am I going to render an opinion regarding the -- if I'm asked for an opinion, I guess I can give an opinion. That being said, (indicating).
Q. I don't know what that means.
A. If -- if I'm asked an opinion, I can render an opinion regarding what I think happened. And with that, sepsis is low on that opinion.
Q. Okay. Have you looked at the areas that you were anticipated to give expert testimony on?
A. That list, yes.
Q. Okay. Is it going to be -- have you formed an opinion in your mind, as you sit here today, that you believe you can testify to a reasonable degree of medical probability as to why Krystal Ballard went into shock?
A. Is there -- again, ask your question. I apologize.
Q. Sure. Have you formed an opinion, to a of those days.

I don't remember if liposuction was involved, but I believe that during that procedure, she was with my administrative staff just talking about administrative issues.
Q. Okay. Did Ms. Kerr, to your knowledge, ask or inquire or observe the manner in which your practice cleaned, disinfected, or sterilized any of the medical equipment and supplies?
A. I don't remember --
Can you ask that question again?
Q. Yeah. I didn't know whether you are aware whether or not Ms. Kerr, when she was at your facility, you know, observed or asked about any aspect of the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing of reusable medical equipment and supplies.
MR. JONES: I'm going to object to form to the extent it lacks foundation. You haven't established he was with her during that time.
THE WITNESS: Yeah, I was just going to say I wasn't with her the majority of the time.
She certainly could have observed my staff were using our disinfecting, sterilizing, you know, procedures every day practically. So she could have observed that.

I don't recall if she asked me any particulars about how we did what we did.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. So your not being personally involved, you don't know one way or the other whether or not Ms. Kerr asked or obtained any information concerning how your offices go about cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing medical equipment and supplies.
Is that fair?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right. Now, when Dr. Kerr approached you at this national society of cosmetic physicians meeting, what did he tell you about the lawsuit?
A. I don't recall how much detail he gave me. I -- I would have just told you after that meeting that I knew he was involved in a lawsuit that pertained to liposuction and a patient death, but that's all that I can remember that we talked about.
Q. Did Dr. Kerr ask you at that time when you were at this meeting whether or not you would review the case and render an opinion on his behalf?

Page 52

A. No, he did not. I think I would have remembered that.
Q. All right. In terms of the practices that you have --
And I'm going to, I guess, focus on Germantown Aesthetics because that's the only practice that does liposuction as part of the services provided, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, the Vaser was used by Dr. Kerr in the procedure done on Krystal Ballard.
Are you aware of that?
A. I am.
Q. Do you use the type of equipment that Dr. Kerr used in your practice?
A. I've used Vaser before, but I've never purchased Vaser. And so it's not something that I use regularly. I'm familiar with its use.
Q. Okay. When you said you've used it before, in what circumstance have you used a Vaser machine?
A. In rotating with other physicians -- spending time, I guess I should say, in other physicians' offices that use Vaser.
Q. Okay. So you've never used a Vaser machine in your practice, correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. There may be occasions where you may have visited other physicians that practice cosmetic surgery that use a Vaser and you've seen that machine in use, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Do you know how many occasions you have observed in this part of visiting these other physicians a Vaser liposuction machine?
A. Yes. Three physicians' practices.
Q. First of all, are any of those physician practices in Boise?
A. No, they're not.
Q. Okay. Any of those physician practices in Idaho?
A. No.
Q. When you observed these three offices use the Vaser liposuction, did you actually use it yourself meaning place the handpiece in your hand and do any type of contouring of any patient at these offices?
A. I wouldn't say to the extent that I did contouring, but I did have the instrument in my hand to do several passes to get a feel for what it felt like. I was considering purchasing the -- the unit.

Q. Okay. In terms of fat transfers, is that a procedure that you perform?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. When did you start doing fat transfers?
A. I'd say about two and a half years ago.
Q. I'm trying to do the math. So it's sometime after 2011?
A. Yeah, yeah around 2011 or --
Yes.
Q. All right. When you do liposuction in your office --
And maybe we established approximately when that was. I think it might have been '04/'05.
Does that sound about right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. What type of machinery do you use to perform the liposuction in your office?
A. Well, I've used just about every popular modality on the market that's used with tumescent liposuction.
So in terms of what that equipment is, you know, the idea is you apply some kind of vibration or energy or heat to the tissue to help process the fat or help with the contouring before you actually do the removal of the fat.

I've used just about everything that's out there.
Q. Okay. In terms of a cosmetic practice, have you spoken to any physicians that practiced in Boise, Idaho, in 2010 which is the time period that Krystal Ballard had a procedure about the standard of practice in Boise in 2010?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Who did you speak with?
A. Dr. Kelly O'Neil who practiced in this area around that time.
Q. And I think within the materials that are either part of Exhibit 1 or Exhibit 2, whichever is the stack of your file --
A. Yeah, it's 2.
Q. -- there's reference to Dr. O'Neil.
And you remember speaking with him?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right. Is your discussions with Dr. O'Neil --
Well, first of all, did you rely upon Dr. O'Neil exclusively in order to understand what the standard of practice was in Boise, Idaho, in 2010 in performing similar procedures and services to patients in --

Page 56

MR. JONES: Object to form; vague.
THE WITNESS: There were no other physicians that I spoke to who practiced in Boise, Idaho, around that time to whom I spoke or communicated in any way.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. And Dr. O'Neil is a physician that you were referred to by Mr. Quane to contact in order to avail yourself of what the standard of practice was in Boise in in 2010, correct?
A. Yeah, correct. I did not know him before.
Q. Okay. Basically, counsel for Dr. Kerr told you, "You need to learn what the standard of practice was in 2010, and here's the guy that can tell you what the standard of practice is," and they named Dr. O'Neil, correct?
MR. JONES: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: So, yes, I spoke to him after they referred me to him as someone who was reliable.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. Did you know

Page 57

Dr. O'Neil from any other circumstance other than the fact that counsel for Dr. Kerr told you to contact him about understanding the standard of practice?
A. I'd never run into him at a meeting or anything like that, correct.
MR. JONES: Counsel, we don't have the benefit of coffee or water or anything in this room like you do, so I'd like to take a break when you get to a point --
MR. HADDAD: Okay. It will be just --
Well, let's do it now. Let's go off the record.
(Break taken from 10:11 a.m. to 10:21 a.m.)
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Doctor, in terms of your conversations --
First of all, have you had more than one conversation with --
A. I'm sorry. The video skipped.
Q. I'm sorry. I was looking down, so that probably had something to do with it.
Dr. Kelly O'Neil, have you spoken to him on more than one occasion?
A. Two occasions.
Q. All right. What I see, Doctor, within the stack of materials that comprise your file is an e-mail from SuperDocG to Corina Ferris and a cc to Terry Jones.

I'm taking it SuperDocG is your e-mail address?

A. It is.

Q. And this e-mail is dated July 11th, 2013, that says, "I wanted to make sure everyone was aware that I have discussed standard of practice with Dr. Kelly O'Brian."

A. That's correct.

Q. First of all, is it Kelly O'Brian or Kelly O'Neil that you spoke with?

A. Oh, O'Neil.

Q. Your e-mail says O'Brian, and I wanted to make sure that wasn't somebody else I wasn't aware of.

A. No, that's correct.

MR. JONES: There's a lot of Irish people running around we like to talk to up here.

MR. HADDAD: Haven't met any of them, but --

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) This e-mail was sent July 11th, 2013.

First of all, do you have any notes concerning your conversation with Dr. O'Neil?

Page 59

A. I -- I do take a lot of notes, and as you know, I handed over my notes that I took. And I --

I did take notes when I spoke with him, but at some point I misplaced them, either physically or electronically. I have not been able to find those notes, but I do recall the conversation.

Q. Okay. This e-mail dated July 11th, 2013, would that have been at or near the time that you spoke with Dr. O'Neil?

A. I -- I don't remember if I recalled a week later or so that I needed to -- to tell Mr. Quane that I had -- had spoken with the doctor.

But it may have been a day after; could have been a week or more after. I'm not sure.

Q. July 11, 2013, because that's the date of the e-mail that you were advising Mr. Jones and the people at his office you spoke with Dr. O'Neil, is it fair to say that you would have spoken with Dr. O'Neil within a week of that e-mail being sent to let them know that?

A. It's -- it could -- it could have been two weeks. I don't know.

Q. Okay. Well, what --

First of all, you said you spoke with him on two occasions. Would you have taken notes concerning your conversations with Dr. O'Neil on each of those two occasions?

A. Well, with the shorter call, he was pressed for time. I remember just having an abbreviated conversation, and we made an agreement to try to get back in touch with each other in some form at whatever phone number he was going to be available.

I remember that it ended up being several days to a couple weeks before that follow-up finally occurred.

And then the second conversation was the longer of the conversations, and that's the one that I know I took notes on but which I could not put my hand on those notes.

Q. And it looks like the letter that was sent from Mr. Quane's office indicates that Dr. O'Neil was actually practicing in California at the time he wanted you to contact him but had practiced in Boise in 2010.

Is that your understanding?

A. It's my understanding that he relocated his practice, correct.

Page 61

Q. Did you do anything independently to determine whether, in fact, Dr. O'Neil practiced cosmetic surgery in 2010 in Boise other than based on the representation of counsel for Dr. Kerr?

A. Correct. I just -- I asked him if that was the time that he practiced, and he said yes, he was practicing at that time.

Q. Okay. And you said that there was a shorter call, that Dr. O'Neil might have been pressed for time.

Is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you have any recollection of what you and he discussed during that initial call?

A. I do not remember. It was mostly the case very superficially and just who he was and what his background was and how he came to, you know, transition from his surgical background to performing cosmetic procedures.

Q. Okay. I want you to tell me everything you can remember about this initial call with Dr. O'Neil, what you asked him, familiarize yourself with the standard of practice or what he told you in terms of his practice and how it evolved.

A. You know, I'll be able to give you a lot more details about the longer conversation on that one.

It really was a fairly abbreviated telephone conversation. It was just enough for me to conclude that this was a guy that liked what he was doing, and I understood it made sense to me why they asked me to touch bases with him. He was obviously somebody that was familiar with these procedures.

But that's all that I can tell you with any detail.

Q. Okay. During the conversation -- the first or the subsequent conversation with Dr. O'Neil where you discussed this case, did Dr. O'Neil tell you that he had the medical records from Silk Touch?

A. He did not. I don't recall whether he told me he had actually reviewed medical records or not.

I had reviewed records at the time that I had talked with Dr. O'Neil.

Q. Okay. Was there anything Dr. O'Neil said during your conversation that led you to believe that he had reviewed any of Krystal

Ballard's medical records?

A. Again, I don't know whether he had reviewed them or not, and I -- and I don't recall if there was anything in particular that he said that would have, by inference, made me be able to say that he had or had not.

Q. Okay. Is it fair to say that it was -- the longer telephone call is the one that you used as the basis by which you came to learn what the standard of practice was in Idaho in 2010?

MR. JONES: Object to form.

THE WITNESS: I think that a combination of the review of all the records and in combination with the conversation with him was what I relied upon to be able to say that Dr. Kerr was within the standard of practice for the area.

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. Well, we'll get to that.

I understand you reviewed the medical records, but in terms of familiarizing yourself with the standard of practice in Idaho, is it fair to say that familiarizing yourself with what the standard of practice was in Boise, Idaho, in 2010 was really based upon the longer call with Dr. O'Neil?

MR. JONES: Object to form; misstates his testimony, counsel. He said he relied on both his conversations and his review of the records in the case.

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. Well, let me ask you this: Tell me everything, and I mean everything, you remember about your conversation with Dr. O'Neil, the longer call.

A. The main thing that was memorable about the conversation --

Again, I regret that I don't have any notes with this.

But it was clear after this 30- to 45-minute conversation that I had with Dr. O'Neil that he knew how other physicians in Boise practiced, that there were a combination of physicians with different backgrounds that performed similar procedures, and that the way --

And I don't remember whether he had independent knowledge or if I dis -- if I had to tell him, you know, what Dr. Kerr did in the process of performing liposuction.

But I was -- the impression that I had after that 30- to 45-minute conversation is the way that liposuction is performed in Boise is very similar to how it's practiced in my area. That's not true with several other procedures in which I've been involved in. Boise is much different than where I'm from.

But in the area of liposuction, my practice mirrors that of Dr. Kerr's substantially.

Q. You said that's the main thing, and I don't want to know just the main thing. I want to know everything that you recall, and then we'll try to put a little more substance behind the things that you mentioned just now.

What other things did you and Dr. O'Neil discuss about the standard of practice in Idaho?

A. One issue would be do doctors in this area of Idaho practice in the hospital primarily or in an office-based situation.

And as in the area where I practice, there's a really good combination. There's a lot of physicians that take their patients into a non-office base that is an ambulatory or hospital situation, and then there's a portion of physicians of many different specialties who perform these procedures in their office.

Q. Okay. What did he tell you about Boise, Idaho, physicians in 2010 in terms of where they carried out their cosmetic procedures?

A. Well, I would have -- I would have not have been surprised if he had said, you know, there's a lot of reconstruction-trained doctors who have started to do liposuction and some of them are using some of the new techniques and Dr. Kerr is the only non-reconstruction doctor who performs liposuction because there are some areas of the country in which that dynamic is somewhat true.
So I was surprised to hear a substantial number -- and I don't remember the number -- and he may have even given me names.
But apparently over -- during that time period, there were several physicians of multiple specialties, both in the immediate Boise area and in the state, that perform liposuction procedures.
Q. Okay. I think the question that prompted -- or your statement that prompted my last question was: Did doctors in Boise, Idaho, as you understood it, practice in primarily a hospital setting or ambulatory care center associated with a hospital in carrying out liposuction or did they practice in their private office settings to do that?
A. Dr. O'Neil related to me that both situations were fairly common.

Q. What else did you discuss --
First of all, did he tell you the names of any of the physicians in Boise, Idaho, that practiced cosmetic surgery?
A. He did.
Q. What are the names?
A. I don't recall those names, but he -- he mentioned the names specifically and what their specialty had been.
Q. Okay. Did he tell you what each of those physicians -- in terms of their specialty, their name, whether they practiced in a hospital setting, an ambulatory care setting, or an office-based setting to practice liposuction?
A. He, you know, voluntarily gave me a pretty good description of the landscape, and then I asked him a lot of specific questions about, you know, the -- "That particular doctor that you mentioned, does he continue to be in practice to this day? Does he have a fairly high-volume practice? How does he compare to, you know, the busiest hospital-based physician?"
I don't remember all those details, but I do remember I was impressed that it was a little bit more robust community. Boise is a fairly small area, and I guess it just has a draw.

But there was a fairly robust spectrum of different specialties that perform liposuction in both hospital and office-based situations.
Q. In terms of fat transfer -- because that's part of what was done on Krystal Ballard, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Did Dr. O'Neil talk to you about --
Well, first of all, does he practice --
Was he, Dr. O'Neil, actually doing liposuction himself in July of 2010?
A. Yes, he was.
Are you talking about here? Yes, he was.
Q. I mean other than saying, "I had an office practice that did cosmetic procedures in 2010," did he actually specifically tell you he did liposuction in 2010?
A. I don't -- I don't recall whether he said in any particular month or any year whether his case list had been up or down. But he -- he -- this was a procedure that he performed, and he was in Boise and --

And so I think he meets the criteria for being able to tell me the standard of practice.
Q. Okay. You're presuming but you don't know whether or not Dr. O'Neil was actually performing liposuction in 2010.
A. I have --
Q. Fair?
A. I have some months and some years in which, you know, there's a bump of me doing five or ten procedures in a month and then the next month I do zero. And there's bumps in years, too.
So I didn't get an idea with Dr. O'Neil whether he was passionate about his liposuction; it was the key part of his practice or not. He was just somebody who was competent to relate to me what he related about the standard of practice.
Q. Again, going back to my question -- and I know you sort of answered it and maybe you completely answered it -- but as you sit here today, you don't know one way or the other whether or not Dr. O'Neil, in the calendar year 2010, actually performed any liposuction, correct?
MR. JONES: Object to form; misstates his testimony.

Page 70

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) I mean, I think you presumed it, but you didn't specifically ask him, "During the calendar year 2010, did you do liposuction?"
A. I did not ask the number of cases he had done in any particular month or year, correct.
Q. Okay. In terms of fat transfer, did you talk to Dr. O'Neil at all about fat transfer?
A. I did.
Q. Did Dr. O'Neil tell you that he performed fat transfers in 2010?
A. We talked about fat transfer specifically.
Fat transfers are an area of liposuction where some doctors really, really are excited about it, and some do very little fat transfer. And I don't recall whether I asked him if fat transfer was something that he did routinely with every one of his liposuctions or with 10 percent. But he certainly was familiar with that aspect.
We talked very specifically about the -- the different options that the physician had with regard to the addition of PRP, the addition of -- whether the fat was spun down or just gravity was used to separate out.

And so he -- he was clearly knowledgeable about fat transfer, but I don't know how much he did it.
Q. Based upon your discussions with Dr. O'Neil, was it your understanding that during the calendar year 2010, he had done any fat transfer procedures?
A. Would you ask that question again?
Q. Yes.
A. It sounded -- I'm sorry. It sounds like something that you had already asked, but maybe it's a little bit different.
Q. Maybe a little bit different.
Do you know one way or the other whether or not, during the calendar year 2010, Dr. O'Neil had performed any fat transfer procedures based upon your discussions with him?
A. Okay. So you're asking the same question about fat transfer that you were about liposuction. I understand.
The same answer. I'm not -- I did not ask him specifically what his caseload looked like.
Q. Okay. When Dr. O'Neil was talking about other physicians in Boise, did he tell you -- did you have a discussion about what other physicians did in their office practice as it relates to the fat transfer procedure?

A. Yes, we did.
Q. Did Dr. O'Neil tell you how he came to learn how other physicians in Boise might either do liposuction or fat transfer?
A. You know, no, he did not tell me how he knew other physicians did one thing or another.
Q. Okay. In your discussions with Dr. O'Neil, did he tell you that his facility was an accredited facility in 2010?
A. You're talking about Dr. O'Neil --
Q. Yes.
A. -- and whether his facility was or was not accredited?
We certainly did talk about the accreditation issue, and he related to me that -- that there were a variety of practice situations in Boise where these type of procedures were performed in both accredited and facilities that were not accredited. He did not --
He could have told me whether his facility currently or in Boise was or was not, but I don't recall.
Q. Did Dr. O'Neil tell you how he came to learn whether other facilities were accredited or non-accredited that did these type of procedures in an outpatient setting?

A. He did not.
Q. Doctor, just so I don't forget, I wanted to revisit one issue, so we're going to kind of digress into something that we plowed through a little bit earlier.
In terms of your associations, do you have -- what is your relationship or association with Financial Fortress Associates?
A. They were financial advisers to me at one point.
Q. Are you still associated or acquainted with them?
A. I'm not.
Q. Okay. When did that end?
A. Just guessing, somewhere around two to three years ago; maybe four years ago.
Q. Okay. Are you a member of the Patriot Movement?
A. I'm not.
Q. Any militia groups?
A. No.
Q. Any sovereign citizens groups or similar organizations?

A. No, I'm not.
Q. Tea Party?
A. No.
Q. Do you have a constitutionally based opposition to the income tax laws of the U.S. or the IRS?
A. I do not.
Q. In your practice, Doctor, when you are practicing at Germantown Aesthetics --
And that would be exclusively where you do liposuctions, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. What type of machinery -- what kind of liposuction machine do you use in your office?
A. We touched on this earlier.
I told you that I was acquainted with -- had either used in somebody else's office or demoed in my office just about everything that was out there.
I use a very -- I have a laser in which I can do laser lipolysis; in other words, laser followed by the suctioning. And I do that very rarely, even though I have the equipment.
I mostly rely upon a -- a tumescent saline assisted -- I shouldn't say saline assisted. I should say tumescent liposuction.

Q. Okay. First of all, do you have, in your practice -- and let's go to -- use 2010.
Did you have other staff in your office at Germantown Aesthetics?
A. Did I have other staff in my office?
Q. Yes.
MR. JONES: You mean people that worked with him or other people that did liposuction?
MR. HADDAD: Good point.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Did you have other people that worked with you in your office in 2010 at Germantown Aesthetics?
A. What I would call my administrative and surgical team, yeah, both.
Q. Okay. Were there any --
And I may have asked you this.
Were there any physicians other than yourself working at Germantown Aesthetics in 2010?
A. Yes. Again, on a part-time basis, we had mentioned Dr. Joe Hernandez earlier, and he has been in my office at least on a part-time basis for about five years.
Q. Does he do liposuctions in your office?

Page 76

A. He does.
Q. Okay. In terms of the administrative staff, what functions do they carry out that you would characterize them as administrative?
A. You know, I would say everything from taking care of payroll issues, scheduling, strategic planning. You know, we don't advertise with any kind of traditional advertising, but, of course, we do promotions and have a website presence.
So I think handling all of those type of issues.
Q. Okay. So the surgical people that worked with you in 2010, what type of surgical team did you have with you in 2010?
A. Well, unlike Dr. Kerr, consistent with what our rules are in our state, we utilize the services of a physician or -- or a nurse anesthetist or a nurse to provide conscious sedation to our patients during the liposuction procedure, which is actually somewhat rare.
Most practices tend to go more of a general anesthesia hospital route or a -- sort of a completely-awake, office-based route, and we're sort of a hybrid.

So my staff has to include anesthesia personnel, always a circulator, and unlike other procedures that we do, I generally do not need a first assist during the liposuction procedure; however, about 50 percent of the time, I only perform about half of the liposuction because it's physically demanding.
Q. Okay. As far as the circulating nurse, when you would do a liposuction procedure in 2010, did you utilize a circulating nurse to assist you in some way?
A. Well, you said "circulating nurse." Generally, we think of the circulator as being a technical person, not a nurse.
I probably had some occasions in which I had a -- a nurse or a physician providing the anesthesia, and then the circulator was a nurse. But in general terms, our circulator would be somebody who knew how to set up the equipment, knew how to go get something if we needed to, you know, do -- do something a little bit different in the procedure; change the -- the cannula or something like that.
So the circulating person would generally not be a nurse.

VIDEOTAPED DEPOSITION OF JOHN P. LUNDEBY, MD

Deposition upon oral examination of John P. Lundeby, MD, taken at the request of the Plaintiff, before Danelle Bungen, CSR, and Notary Public, at the law offices of Ramsden & Lyons, 700 Northwest Boulevard, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, commencing at 8:30 a.m. on July 26, 2013, pursuant to the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure.

Page 54

A. No.
Q. A Gregory Laurence, L-A-U-R-E-N-C-E I think. He's out of Germantown, Tennessee, I believe. Do you know Dr. Laurence?
A. No.
Q. As part of your practice, do you do any preoperative testing of patients?
MR. JONES: Object to form. Vague.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) If you were doing a liposuction procedure on a patient, do you do preoperative testing? Specifically, do you do a preoperative CBC?
A. We do on some patients but not every patient.
Q. How about a preoperative urinalysis?
A. I do not do urinalysis on patients unless they have complaints or symptoms or if they've had a recent course of treatment. So not a routine test, but one rather in response to a condition or a history.
Q. Okay. That's fair. What patients of yours -- you said some patients you might do a preoperative CBC that are going to undergo liposuction -- what's -- how do you -- what criteria do you use to decide whether or not you're going to do a CBC on a patient?
A. For the most part, an entirely healthy patient under the age of 30 with no history of anemia or other concomitant medical problems who was going to have a relatively small volume procedure, I probably would not do a CBC on that person.

Q. What do you characterize as a small volume procedure?
A. Less than two liters of suction removed.
Q. And a urinalysis, you said you wouldn't do it unless there was some specific reason, in terms of their history, that you might get that; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Doctor, in terms of some of the opinions that were identified as areas you may cover in your testimony, one of the things -- well, first of all, it says, "Dr. Lundeby will explain the process he undertook in order to familiarize himself with the standards and practices in Boise and the surrounding area for the types of procedures and treatments performed by Dr. Kerr in this case."
Have we covered that by discussing your conversation with Dr. O'Neil?
A. If, by that question, you mean is that what I did to familiarize myself, then yes.
Q. You rephrased my question a lot simpler than I asked it the first time; but, you're right, that's what I was asking for.
A. Okay.
Q. It also talks about "experiences in the peer review process associated with his hospital staff privileges at Kootenai Medical Center and Northwest Specialty Hospital, both in Idaho."

I mean what experience do you have in the peer review process associated with staff privileges at Kootenai Medical Center other than your own personally applying for and then reapplying for staff privileges?
A. Well, that during the course of one's hospital privileges, and I think it -- well, it's been true at each hospital that I've been an attending at -- you're required, as part of your medical staff membership, to review your associates and peers and their conduct of the practice of medicine to be sure that it meets your local standards of practice.
Q. For instance, if there was a quality assurance indicator concerning a patient, i.e., post-operative infection that came about, part of the peer review process would be a peer would look at your chart and determine whether or not this was related to some breach in the standard of practice; correct?
MR. JONES: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) All right. I mean do you undertake that type of peer review process, or does Shape have that type of peer review process?

A. Yes.
Q. How does it go about doing a peer review in circumstances where there might be a complication concerning patient care?
A. That peer review process has been different over the course of Shape. When there was two physicians present, the other physician would review that, there would be a discussion during a minuted meeting and we would talk about that.
Now that there is one physician, we contract with a firm that provides outside peer review; so those cases are sent out to be reviewed by a physician and then we receive input back.
Q. Did you ask Dr. O'Neil whether or not physicians practicing cosmetic surgery in Boise undertook a peer review process of patient complications?
A. I did not ask him that.
Q. It also indicates you will discuss your "experience in performing a large volume of liposuction and fat transfer procedures, his knowledge of how the Vaser ultrasonic liposuction procedure is performed."
First of all, you don't do Vaser ultrasound -- ultrasonic liposuction, correct.
A. I do not.

Q. Okay. It says, "Dr. Lundeby will testify that the infection rates described by Dr. Kerr in his deposition and discovery responses are well below average for a cosmetic facility and are essentially zero" and it talks about some other things.
But as far as your knowledge of infection rates, have you been provided -- Well, first of all, do you have an understanding whether or not Dr. Kerr tracks his patient complications in some type of written documentation?
A. I'm thinking back to his deposition, and without reviewing it, I think that he said that they tracked it but not in written form.
Q. Okay. I mean have you been -- I mean I know you brought everything that you've seen. You've not seen Dr. Kerr's patient charts from other patients before or after Krystal Ballard's procedure, correct?
A. No.
Q. Have you been provided any written information on patient outcomes for Dr. Kerr before and after Krystal Ballard's procedure?
MR. JONES: Other than the depositions.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Other than the testimony, have you seen anything written that is maintained by Silk Touch concerning patients undergoing procedures at

Page 59

Dr. Kerr -- by Dr. Kerr before and after Krystal Ballard?
A. No.
Q. There's a comment, "Dr. Lundeby will explain that the standard of health care practice for plastic surgeons is not the standard of health care practice in the same medical specialty as his and Dr. Kerr."
First of all, do you have an understanding that -- First of all, as it pertains to the standard of practice in Boise, in speaking with Dr. O'Neil, do you have an understanding that -- how one goes about cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing reusable medical equipment and supplies is different based upon your medical background?
MR. JONES: Object to form.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Meaning do you have an understanding speaking to Dr. O'Neil that general surgeons and plastic surgeons have a different standard of practice in cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing medical equipment and instruments?
MR. JONES: Object to form. Lack of foundation.
THE WITNESS: I -- from talking with Dr. O'Neil, the practice that he utilized in Boise in 2010 is different from my practice now; and other than that, I don't feel like I'm really -- The standard of practice issue is a legal construct that I'm not sure I fully understand. But it seems like they may be different based on, like I say, what I do versus what Dr. O'Neil represented that he did.

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. I mean you have a -- First of all, what kind of -- What's his first name? I forgot. Do you know -- do you remember what his first name was?
MR. JONES: Who are we talking about, counsel?
MR. HADDAD: Dr. O'Neil. I'm sorry. Dr. O'Neil. Do you remember his first name?
MR. JONES: Kelly.
THE WITNESS: Kelly. Yes, Kelly.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Dr. O'Neil, Dr. Kelly O'Neil, is that -- do you have an understanding of what his medical background is?
A. I talked to him about that, and his residence, his formal residency training, was in family practice.
Q. Okay. Now, going back to it, did -- while Dr. O'Neill's practice in 2010, standard of practice, may have differed from yours in certain respects, do you have an understanding, as it pertains specifically to cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing reusable medical equipment and instruments, that non-residency-trained physicians do things differently than surgical residency-trained physicians?

MR. JONES: Object to form. Vague.
THE WITNESS: I believe that's true.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) You believe what's true? They do it different?
A. That they do it differently.
Q. Okay. I mean tell me about how non-surgically-trained physicians -- what the standard of practice might be in Boise for cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing medical equipment.
MR. JONES: Object to form. Overbroad.
THE WITNESS: I guess I -- I guess --
MR. HADDAD: Okay. That's fair. That's actually a fair objection.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Let me -- let me try to refocus it. What's your understanding as to the differences that surgically-trained cosmetic physicians have in cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing reusable medical equipment and supplies from that of non-surgically-trained cosmetic physicians in Boise in 2010?
A. I guess I'm still a bit confused. I would like to answer your question, but I'm not sure what your -- I mean I'm not sure what answer you want. I guess -- I guess I've told you what I learned from Dr. O'Neil, I've told you what I do, and I read your plaintiff's disclosure for your expert Dr. Sorenson; and it looked to me, from those perspectives, that Dr. O'Neil's standard of practice and Dr. Sorenson's standard of practice were different.

Q. Okay. Fair. Let me ask you this, and I might focus in on that little bit more: Is the basis upon which you have to believe there is a difference in the standard of health care practice for a plastic surgeon versus a non-surgeon cosmetic physician, in the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing of medical equipment and instruments, based on the differences that you perceive between the plaintiff's disclosure of experts and your discussions with Dr. O'Neil?

A. For this case in question, yes.

Q. Okay. It says you will testify that you have "performed cosmetic surgery with Dr. Kerr and witnessed his habits and customs in this regard in a surgical setting."

Is that based on the occasion, at least the one occasion, that you remember Dr. Kerr came to your facility to learn or observe your technique as it pertains to a particular type of cosmetic procedure?

Page 63

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you have Dr. -- First of all, what type of procedure or procedures did Dr. Kerr actually participate in at your facility?

A. We did liposuction. I don't remember of exactly what areas. And the only thing I remember is thinking that he was competent.

Q. I mean he -- when you had Dr. Kerr, as part of his paid training, or education on your technique, how many patients did that involve?

A. I can't remember with utter certainty, but I think probably -- a typical training would see two and sometimes three cases done during that course of time.

Q. Do you basically hand him -- or allow him to do the entire procedure, as it pertains to liposuction, on a given number of patients? I mean does he do the entire thing start to finish?

A. No.

Q. Okay. How does that -- how did your training go, either by specific recollection or your practice and procedure, when somebody comes to your office to train?

A. The usual practice for that, and it varies on depending on the person's surgical kind of skill and experience with liposuction and what they may have done before, but the usual procedure for that would be we would do the procedure together. The regulations for training people specified, of course, that I had to be scrubbed, in the room, and immediately attentive to the needs of my patient, and then the person would basically be my assistant, do portions of the procedure, and learn in a hands-on fashion.

Q. Okay. Do you have -- I'm going to ask you, do you have a specific memory of the exact type of procedure done when Dr. Kerr was here?

A. No.

Q. Okay. When -- So I'm going to ask you you your general practice and procedure. You say you both participate in the procedure?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Kind of explain to me -- I mean I guess you do certain -- you might do certain contouring on a patient -- First of all, what kind of equipment do you use?

A. We do Smart Lipo, which is a laser-assisted liposuction, and I use a tumescent technique with sedation.

Q. So you would do part of the contouring using the Smart Lipo, and then you would hand the instrument over to Dr. Kerr who would do part of it and you would just watch him.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. How long does it normally take for you to do a liposuction procedure? For instance, we saw how much fat was removed from Krystal Ballard based upon the medical records at Silk Touch, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the amount of fat removed a factor in determining how long it's going to take to complete the procedure?

MR. JONES: Object to form. Incomplete hypothetical.

Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Let me ask you just generally, looking at Krystal Ballard's record, and recognizing that she had liposuction and fat transfer, how long does that typically take you to perform in a patient with the same amount of fat removed as Krystal Ballard and the same amount of fat injected into her buttocks?

A. For the -- I guess for the hypothetical you presented, if I were going to book that case in my facility, I would -- I would probably allow an hour and a half for the liposuction and 45 minutes for the fat transfer.

Q. Okay.

A. And -- but that presumes that the patient would have sedation. It takes longer if the patient does not have IV sedation. You have to be more gentle in your negative nitrite test and a negative leukocyte esterase test, what the negative predictive value is for that patient having a urinary tract infection?

A. I do not know a number for that.
Q. Do you see underneath you had referenced kind of the dipstick part separated from the microscopic by the line "Urine auto with micro," correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So underneath the microscopic portion, it indicates "Epi" and then a space "cell." Do you understand that to be in reference to epithelial cells?
A. Yes.
Q. And it indicates that the result is 12 to 20 in this particular microscopic analysis of Krystal Ballard's urine, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what the significance of a -- the presence of 12 to 20 epithelial cells is with respect to whether or not bacteria found in urinalysis is actually because of a urinary tract infection versus a contaminated specimen obtained from the patient?
A. Epithelial cells make you wonder about the purity of the specimen, whether or not there were some cells obtained from outside the patient as opposed to true urine from only inside.

Q. Do you have an understanding as to, in Krystal Ballard's case with a negative nitrite test, a negative leukocyte esterase test, and the presence of 12 to 20 epithelial cells on microscopic examination, what the likelihood is of whether or not bacteria found on microscopic examination of her urine is or is not a urinary tract infection?
A. So if -- to clarify, to understand your question, you're asking me if I think that this urinalysis represents evidence that she has a urinary tract infection.
Q. Versus just bacteria -- the bacteria being related to a contaminated specimen.
A. Right. I am not sure. And one of the reasons that I'm not sure is I'm not sure how this was obtained. Do you know how it was obtained?
Q. I can only tell you what the records might reflect. Do the records reflect how this was obtained?
A. I don't see how it was obtained or collected, so I don't know. If it was -- if it was a catch specimen, so a cup applied to the outside of the patient's perineum, with or without her assistance, I think that would be difficult. If it was a -- if it was a catheter urine, I would be much more -- I guess much more sure that the results suggested a urinary tract infection and not --

Q. Okay.
A. So I would like to know how it was obtained.
Q. Fair. Is there anything in the Elmore Medical Center records that indicate whether or not Krystal Ballard was catheterized during that hospitalization?
A. Can I take a second?
Q. Sure.
A. (Reading.)
Q. While you're doing that --
MR. HADDAD: -- how much time we have? Ten minutes?
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) You know, why don't you look for that, and let's go ahead and take our break now to change tapes.
VIDEOGRAPHER: This will conclude Tape No. 2. The time is 10:28 A.M.
(Recess taken.)
VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the continued videotaped deposition of Dr. Lundeby in Tape No. 3. The date is Friday, July 26, 2013. The time is 10:34 A.M.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Doctor, we took a break just so we wouldn't burn tape while you tried to see if there was an answer to my question based on the records. Were you able to determine whether or not it was a catch of the urine versus a specimen obtained through a catheter?

A. Yes. It says on the sheet that the source was from a void.
Q. Okay. Let me ask you: Are -- First of all, you've looked at the autopsy report, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you can certainly look at it. I'm just -- I don't know how much detail I'm going to get in.
A. Are we done with the Elmore records?
Q. Well, you can put them aside. We may refer back to them. Let me find it.
On the front sheet -- well, you might have a different front sheet --
A. It's a --
Q. Just a cover sheet?
A. The cover sheet, yeah.
Q. Okay.
-- listed at least in an order that I have them, and it may not necessarily be the right order, the front page says "Investigative Report" at the top. Is that what you have?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And then it goes on to a second page and the second page lists "Cause of Death"?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. It says, "Sepsis with probable toxic shock syndrome." Is that the Cause A as identified by the Office of the Coroner?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you disagree with that, or have no opinion whether it's right or wrong? Well, strike that.
Do you agree, disagree, or have no opinion about the accuracy of that postmortem diagnosis?
A. That's --
MR. JONES: I'm going to object to the form to the extent you list that as the diagnosis.
But if you understand the question, you can answer.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Let me rephrase the question. They list, "Sepsis with probable toxic shock syndrome" as Cause A, which you understand to mean Cause A for the cause of death?
A. Well, one of the causes of death, but that's -- I guess Cause A means to me their principal cause.
Q. We'll have to ask them. At least that's listed as a cause of death, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you agree with that diagnosis, or do you agree with that cause, meaning "Sepsis with probable toxic shock syndrome"?

A. I reviewed this case and looked at it and -- well, I -- I guess that's a very broad question and I'm trying to figure out the best way to answer it for you.
I think the clinical picture that she presented would be consistent with sepsis. The toxic shock syndrome, from my medical recollection and training, is probably not used accurately here in that my understanding of toxic shock syndrome is not a gram negative sepsis, which seems to be the question in the medical record. But when I looked at this entire record, I was very -- it was difficult to figure out exactly why this patient died.
Q. Okay.
A. Like I say, the clinical picture would be most consistent with sepsis. I can see why the coroner's office and the medical examiner put that.
MR. JONES: Object to form.

THE WITNESS: I think forming an opinion as to the exact cause and having -- Yeah, I think -- I think that's fair.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. Based on the -- Do you have an understanding that tissue samples were taken from the area where the fat was injected into Krystal Ballard's buttocks for purposes of gram staining?
MR. JONES: Object to form. Vague when you say "area."
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Take a look at page 5. Let me see what you're looking at, doctor, to make sure we're on the same page.
A. (Indicating.)
Q. We are. Okay. Which at the top of the sheet, for purposes of identifying it, says "Microscopic," then underneath it says "Cassette A," and then it goes down B, C and D; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have an understanding that tissue gram stains of tissue were taken from Ms. Ballard's buttocks?
A. It says Cassette A, B and C were buttocks; and Cassette D, abdominal wall.
Q. Okay.
A. So, yes.

Page 85

Q. And, "The tissue gram stain revealed many gram negative bacterial rods in the surgical site specimen." That's what's reported by the pathologist, correct?
A. Yeah; that's separate, down from the report of each cassette.
Q. Are gram negative rod bacteria supposed to be in the area that he took tissue from for purposes of the microscopic sections?
MR. JONES: Object to form. Foundation. Vague.
THE WITNESS: When I reviewed this part, a question arose that I have not been able to see an answer to in the report, which was exactly -- The buttocks is a big area. I didn't know if this was taken at the surgical site, the puncture site, if it was taken deeper in the tissue. I don't know where it was from. And I would want to know where it was from before I said whether or not it could be present there.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Okay. If -- That's fair. Right now, you can't tell, from the way in which the autopsy was reported, exactly where these tissue sections were taken from Krystal Ballard; is that fair?
A. That's true.

Q. By the way, have you ever done a -- you probably have rotated on pathology back in med school, is that correct?
A. Pathology in medical school? I don't think I did a pathology rotation.
Q. Okay. Have you ever participated in an autopsy?
A. I've attended multiple autopsies. I don't know how many, but I've been present at a lot of autopsies.
Q. Have you ever been the person performing the autopsy?
A. I've not performed one.
Q. Have you ever been asked at any point in time to arrive at a cause of death based upon a postmortem examination? Meaning have you ever been given the data from a postmortem and say, "We want you to prepare a cause of death" or "to arrive at the cause of death"?
A. Not from --
MR. JONES: You mean like a reported cause of death?
MR. HADDAD: Yeah.
THE WITNESS: Not from a postmortem exam.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) As a treating physician, if you had somebody die, you would arrive at a conclusion, correct?
A. Yeah. So I filled out death certificates, of course, but not based on my conduct of a postmortem exam.

Q. You may use the postmortem examination to fill out the death certificate, correct?
A. If there's one performed.
Q. Do you agree or disagree that Krystal Ballard had sepsis?
A. I think the clinical picture was one of sepsis.
Q. When we say "sepsis," do we mean an infection, from an infectious cause?
MR. JONES: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Do you think that the autopsy was incomplete because tissue samples of the bladder weren't taken?
A. I guess the short answer is I'm probably not qualified to answer that because I'm not a pathologist. I think it -- in light of the fact that the pathologist remarked in the report about erythema, redness of the bladder wall, I think it would have been appropriate to take those. But, again, that's -- I'm not a pathologist.
Q. So you have an opinion, but it's not based upon any expertise in the area of where tissue samples should be taken as part of a postmortem examination.
A. That's true.

MR. JONES: Object to form. Foundation.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) There's a reference in the disclosure, your disclosure -- and I'll read part of it, and if you need to read more to put it in context, do -- it indicates, "Dr. Lundeby will also comment upon the significance from his perspective regarding how the patient did not present to Elmore Medical Center with any fever but had a white blood cell count of 14.7. He will discuss causes for an elevated white blood cell count including surgery, stress, and dehydration."
Do you recall that the CBC from Elmore indicated a neutrophil count of 91.9?
A. Yes.
Q. What is -- what are neutrophils?
A. Neutrophils are the type of white blood cell that is often found in the setting of bacterial infection.
Q. Okay. Can a white blood cell count be elevated in the face of stress and dehydration?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you have a neutrophil count of 91.9?
MR. JONES: I think it was 91.7.
MR. HADDAD: Is it? I hate to be inaccurate.
THE WITNESS: I think it's 1.9, but --
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Either 91.9 or 91.7, that's -- doesn't -- shades of gray, really.

A. Yes.
Q. All right. If you have a neutrophil count of 91 or higher, in the face of an elevated white cell count, would you agree the most likely cause of the elevated white count is a bacterial infection?
MR. JONES: Object to form. Incomplete hypothetical.
THE WITNESS: I'd agree it's one of the potential causes.
Q. (BY MR. HADDAD) Do you still believe -- do you believe that stress can cause a neutrophil count to be 91 percent or greater?
A. I'm not a hematologist either, but stress, steroids, dehydration, sepsis, there's a bunch of causes of an elevated white blood cell count and it has to be taken in the context of the patient's clinical situation.
Q. Fair. I guess I can agree with that. Let me ask you specifically with Krystal Ballard. And when we say reasonable degree of medical probability, do you understand what that means?
A. As I understand it, it's more likely than not.
Q. You're -- at least we're talking on the same page. Whether we're right or not is another story. But I think I and you agree that medical probability means

PLAINTIFF'S RESPONSE TO DEFENSE COUNSEL'S MISREPRESENTATION TO THE COURT RE MEDIATION

ORIGINAL

Counsel for the Defendants, in his "Certification of Defense Counsel Per the Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings" received by the undersigned today, states at the outset of this pleading that Plaintiff, on October 22, 2013, brought up mediation for the first time. More specifically, defense counsel represents to this Court that on October 22, 2013:

> For the first time in the history of the case, counsel for Plaintiff said that his client would agree to mediation, even though the trial is scheduled to start November 5, 2013. Defense counsel had to decline the untimely suggestion of mediation due to the date the trial was to start, the impossibility of arranging mediation on such short notice and the fact that the bulk of the trial preparations had been completed and that defense counsel would be completely occupied with continued trial preparations.

Certification of Defense Counsel, p. 2 (emphasis added).

This representation by defense counsel is demonstrably false. By letter dated May 2, 2013, counsel for Plaintiff wrote to this same lawyer for the Defendants and stated as follows: "I write to inquire whether your clients are interested in exploring settlement in advance of trial. If so, I suggest we do so through mediation and before significant additional resources are expended by the parties." Letter of May 2, 2013, from P. Gregory Haddad to Jeremiah Quane, attached hereto as Exhibit "A" (emphasis added). Defense counsel acknowledged receipt of the foregoing letter and indicated: "Your recent letter regarding settlement negotiations will be considered but [sic] the carrier for Dr. Kerr and his entities. The carrier would like you to tender a settlement offer and so would Dr. Kerr." Letter of May 14, 2013, from Jeremiah Quane to P. Gregory Haddad, attached hereto as Exhibit "B." Plaintiff's counsel by letter dated June 10, 2013, provided defendants with the requested settlement demand in a detailed, eight-page letter to which defendants did not respond until the October 22 conference when defense counsel acknowledge having received plaintiff's earlier demand.

DATED this 30th day of October, 2013.

Re: Estate of Krystal Ballard

Dear Mr. Quane:

The trial in this case is scheduled for September 24, 2013. I write to inquire whether your clients are interested in exploring settlement in advance of trial. If so, I suggest we do so through mediation and before significant additional resources are expended by the parties. Alternatively, if you would prefer to simply negotiate this without the assistance of a mediator, we can proceed in that manner.

Defendants should have the information they need to fairly evaluate their exposure and the relative strength of our client, SSgt Charles Ballard's claims. Plaintiff's expert disclosure makes clear that we are prepared to establish at trial through the testimony of respected and qualified medical experts that the applicable standard of care was violated, that this violation caused the death of SSgt Krystal Ballard and that this death caused significant damages to Krystal's surviving spouse, SSgt Charles Ballard. In other words, this is not a case that will be decided by the Court on summary judgment.

I don't presume to know whether confidentiality is important to your clients. With that said, you may anticipate that we would agree to a confidentiality provision as part of any settlement. Obviously, confidentiality will not exist in the event of a public trial.

We anticipate providing you in the near future the details of SSgt Ballard's economic loss as calculated by our economist. If you wish to proceed with mediation, we can work, in the meantime, on selecting a mutually agreeable mediator and finding a date that will work for all concerned. We would provide you with our damage calculation well in advance of the mediation.

Please let me know your position on the foregoing.

Sincerely,

P. Gregory Haddad, Esq.

Re: Ballard v. Kerr
Our File No. 1107/25-938

Dear Mr. Haddad:

I will see when Brianna Kerr finishes school and get you dates for her deposition in Boise. In your letter of May 8, 2013, you say that you are out of the country from June 10 to June 30. Does this mean that her deposition will not be taken during this time frame or what? I am totally unavailable for her deposition during the rest of May and I have a trial starting July 1, 2013 in Idaho Falls, Idaho that is scheduled to last the entire month of July. There are several days in June, with the exception of June 4 through June 7, when I am available, if she is. I am also unavailable June 26, 27 and 28.

I have asked the Ada County Coroner for blood samples from the blood taken at the autopsy and the Coroner's office tells me that their policy is to only allow samples to be sent to a lab for testing if there is an agreement between the involved parties, meaning you and me. Will you agree to this if I provide you with the lab we want to use? If not, I will have to get a Court order which I hope to avoid. Your recent letter regarding settlement negotiations will be considered but the carrier for Dr. Kerr and his entities. The carrier would like you to tender a settlement offer and so would Dr. Kerr.

Very truly yours,

Jeremiah A. Quane

Case No. CV OC 1204792

REPLY MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' MOTION IN LIMINE

I. The Court Should Deny Plaintiffs' Efforts to Improperly Impeach the Defense Experts

Plaintiff claims he should be able to impeach the defense experts at trial, who do not include Dr. Kelly O'Neil, with questions and/or documents involving disciplinary action against Dr. O'Neil given his capacity as a familiarizing physician in this case. In support of their position, Plaintiff has produced a number of documents from the state of California purporting to be evidence of disciplinary action taken against Dr. O'Neil dating back to 1998. Setting aside the obvious hearsay implications associated with these documents which the defense maintains renders the documents themselves wholly inadmissible, the defense further maintains that any questions to the defense experts regarding Dr. O'Neil's prior disciplinary status is irrelevant and should be precluded at the trial.

We start by evaluating the various documents submitted by Plaintiff in opposition to the defense motion. Ex. D is a document entitled "Decision" dated August 14, 1998 by the Medical Board of California which has attached to it a stipulated settlement. The stipulation refers to an Accusation and First Supplemental Accusation, but those documents are not provided. The document also refers to a patient "J.G." but no information about that patient or the care at issue is provided. The document states that Dr. O'Neil's license is revoked, but refers him to complete a class and be placed on five years of probation along with other conditions. There is nothing in Ex. D which gives any indication as to what medical issue was involved regarding the one patient or if it even was a medical issue.

Ex. E is a document entitled "Order for Reciprocal Discipline" dated November 2, 1998 by the Idaho State Board of Medicine which states that it is ordering reciprocal discipline in the state of Idaho for Dr. O'Neil. Again, this document does not identify what the medical care at issue involved.

Ex. F contains multiple documents which are incapable of being reconciled individually or collectively. The first document is entitled "Decision" in case 1993-26899 and is dated August 11, 2004. In this document, the Division of Medical Quality of the Medical Board of California states that based on its review of the prior case from 1998, Dr. O'Neil's license to practice medicine was revoked, but stayed provided Dr. O'Neil complete a training course. It further states that if the board were able to prove the accusations contained in the attached First Amended Accusation that they would constitute grounds for discipline. For settlement purposes, the parties agreed that Dr. O'Neil's license would be revoked, but again stayed so he could complete a training course. The settlement document does not state what the basis is for disciplining Dr. O'Neil other than referring to the complaint document.

The second document in Ex. F consists of a First Amended Accusation, i.e. a complaint by the state against Dr. O'Neil dated October 16, 2002. In the complaint, it refers to allegations involving two patients whose care at issue dates back to 2000, some ten years prior to the care at issue in this case. Furthermore, the medical care at issue has nothing to do with the medical issues in this case.

The first case involves a 70 year old female patient who underwent a chemical peel in July 2000 and had complications associated with the administration of intravenous lidocaine. The board claimed that Dr. O'Neil inappropriately discharged the patient and failed to recognize her cardiac instability. The second case involved a 72 year old female who also had a chemical peel and a thigh liposuction in July 2000. The patient had complications associated with failure to maintain deep vein thrombosis precautions which led to a pulmonary embolism. The board claimed that Dr. O'Neil should not have performed liposuction and the chemical peel at the same time due to the preoperative work-up showing the patient suffered from lower extremity venous insufficiency. The other issues in the case relate to the propriety and accuracy of Dr. O'Neil's advertising and whether he was improperly using an Embassy Suites hotel for his post-operative patients to stay.

The third document in Ex. F is entitled "Decision After Nonadoption" and also relates to case 1993-26899. This 43 page decision goes through the evidence submitted apparently at a hearing or trial of some nature by both the state and Dr. O'Neil, including the opinions of the experts for both sides. The decision finds some of the allegations supported by adequate evidence and others were not. The decision concludes that Dr. O'Neil should be suspended from the practice of medicine for six months and be on probation or seven years. This decision is dated August 28, 2003, before the decision identified as the first document in Ex. F stating that Dr. O'Neil's license is not suspended.

The fourth document in Ex. F is entitled "Notice of Non-Adoption of Proposed Decision" and simply states that the decision of the administrative law judge, which is the fifth document of Ex. F is not adopted by the Board. This decision, which is dated March 15, 2003 summarizes the same evidence referred to in the third document in Ex. F but finds no evidence of any violations by Dr. O'Neil and dismisses both the Accusation and First Amended Accusation.

Ex. G is a June 15, 2005 document entitled "Public Reprimand" addressed to Dr. O'Neil from the Medical Board of California. It identifies two female patients who underwent an unknown "cosmetic surgery" who had postoperative complications. There is no mention of what types of procedures the patients had or what types of post-operative complications they had. It is unclear whether the two patients referred to are the same or different patients than those identified in Ex. F.

Also involving Dr. O'Neil, the first document in Ex. H refers to a March 14, 2007 decision of the California Medical Board in matter 2003-147439 and is entitled "Stipulated Settlement and Disciplinary Order." It states under paragraph 3 that Respondent, Dr. O'Neil is in possession of a certificate to practice medicine from the state of California that was "in full force and effect at all times relevant. . ." The document goes on to state under paragraph 8 that Respondent neither admits nor denies he violated Business and Professional Code section 2234 in his care and treatment of the patient in question referred to in Accusation No. 2003-147439. Under discipline, the order states that Dr. O'Neil's certificate is revoked, but stayed and that he is placed on probation for 35 months and sets forth various training requirements. The stipulation states further under paragraph 14 that upon completion of the probation that Dr. O'Neil's "certificate shall be fully restored."

The second document in Ex. H which consists of an Accusation, i.e. a complaint by the state against Dr. O'Neil dated June 9, 2006 – presumably this is what the first document in Ex. H is based upon. In this complaint, it refers to allegations involving two patients. The first is a 71 year old female who underwent a chemical peel procedure in February 2003, over seven years prior to the care at issue in this case. The allegations related to patient selection for use of phenol as an anesthetic in a patient with pre-existing heart disease and patient follow up post procedure. The second patient's age is not listed, but she also underwent a chemical peel dated July 2002. The allegations involve failure to maintain accurate and adequate medical records due in part to illegible handwritten records or having used some preprinted records which lacked individual patient content.

Ex. I is a document entitled stipulation and order from the Idaho Board of Medicine dated April 28, 2008. This document states that Dr. O'Neil applied for an Idaho license to practice medicine in December 2007. Under paragraph II, it states that Dr. O'Neil had malpractice cases and a disciplinary order in California and states that Dr. O'Neil "incorrectly answered various questions on the application." The document goes on to state in paragraph 6(d) that he shall only perform chemical peels and liposuction. Contrary to Plaintiff's contention, nowhere does the document state that Dr. O'Neil lied or falsified any information in his application for a license in Idaho.

Ex. J is a document entitled decision of the Medical Board of California dated May 5, 2009 with the adopted proposed decision dated March 30, 2009 attached thereto. This document summarizes the prior discipline against Dr. O'Neil and explains the circumstances of his incorrect answers on his Idaho and other state licensing applications due to an error by a Utah company hired to complete and submit documentation. After investigating the matter, the administrative law judge stated in his legal conclusions that there was no cause to conclude that Dr. O'Neil had committed an act of dishonesty, but that he would be subject to further discipline by way of extended probation for the action taken in Idaho in response to his improperly completed Idaho application for a medical license.

Although it is not specifically stated in his opposition, Plaintiff's counsel appears to argue that he should be allowed to not only question defense witnesses, but to also utilize the above documents at trial for impeachment purposes. The defense objects and contends that none of these documents are admissible nor may they be used for purposes of impeachment in any fashion at trial. Plaintiff states that such impeachment should be fair game because the defense witnesses elected to utilize Dr. O'Neil as a familiarizing expert in order to confirm the local standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr. Plaintiff's memorandum summarily concludes that the above evidence regarding Dr. O'Neil's past is relevant and therefore admissible under IRE 402. The defense disagrees.

Plaintiff fails to explain how administrative discipline involving Dr. O'Neil, a witness who is not going to be testifying at trial, involving unrelated medical care, unrelated medical issues, involving cases remote in time, in some cases involving stipulated settlements and involving different medical standards for discipline in another jurisdiction would in any way be relevant evidence in the case involving Krystal Ballard. The issue in the case is whether Dr. Kerr and Silk Touch Medical Spa violated the standard of practice in Boise in 2010 applicable to a cosmetic surgeon and a cosmetic surgery facility. None of the medical issues in this case involve chemical peels, nor do they involve the adequacy of the medical records since it has nothing to do with the standard of practice allegations advanced by Plaintiff's expert disclosures made to date in this case. Plaintiff cites no case authorities from any jurisdiction wherein the testimony of an expert was allowed to be impeached involving the discussion had with a familiarizing physician like Dr. O'Neil.

Not only are all of these events too remote in time to be of any probative value for impeachment purposes, but they focus on chemical peel procedures, not liposuctions, post-operative infections or fat transfer procedures which are the medical issues in this case. Furthermore, the interactions between the defense experts and Dr. O'Neil were limited to confirming they had knowledge of the local standard of practice and to confirm that the way Dr. Kerr provided care and treatment and operated his surgical facility was consistent with the way things were typically done in Boise. Plaintiff suggests that Dr. O'Neil is the basis for all of the defense opinions which is patently false. The defense experts will testify at trial that their conversations with Dr. O'Neil were intended to confirm knowledge of the Boise standard of practice in 2010 and whether there were any deviations in that standard as compared to the way they practiced cosmetic medicine in their own communities. For example, the laws in Tennessee are different on the types of persons and places where anesthesia can be utilized as compared to Idaho and this difference was partially discussed in Dr. Laurence's deposition.

Moreover, the California Medical Board documents use different standards which will only serve to confuse the jury and force the defense to present a trial within a trial about these irrelevant issues. For example, the legal conclusions set forth in the above administrative documents identify an entirely different format, standard of proof and list of definitions for purposes of imposing discipline which are completely different from whether or not there has been a violation of the standard of practice under Idaho law. The California decisions speak in terms of simple versus extreme negligence versus incompetence versus repeat acts of negligence. No such comparisons can be made to the application of Idaho Code §6-1012 nor the grounds for medical discipline under Idaho law per Idaho Code 54-1814.

The licensing background of Dr. O'Neil or any other expert has nothing to do with the issues in the case and will result in a trial within a trial about the underlying circumstances of each and every case or claim against each physician. Virtually every physician on both sides of this case has been involved in and/or listed as a defendant in one or more malpractice actions over the course of their careers. This does not make it admissible for purposes of impeachment. The fact that someone has been sued for malpractice or had a patient complaint to a state medical board does not render them incapable of confirming what the local standard of practice was at the time in question. None of the cases cited by Plaintiff stand for the proposition that it is proper impeachment to attack the credibility of the familiarizing local physician.

Under the facts of this case, the Plaintiff had every opportunity to take Dr. O'Neil's deposition if he wanted to challenge his credibility and/or basis of knowledge of the 2010 Boise standard of practice for cosmetic surgeons, but he elected not to do so. To get around this problem, it appears Plaintiff's plan for trial is to question each and every defense expert about whether they were aware that Dr. O'Neil had a prior malpractice lawsuit or that he had one or more prior licensing issue dating back years in an attempt to throw mud at the foundation of the defense expert's opinions. The only way for the defense to respond to such testimony would be to call Dr. O'Neil to the trial and have an extended discussion with him on the stand about the facts and circumstances of each and every issue which led to either a lawsuit and/or inquiry by a state licensing entity. Such a process could last days.

Plaintiff next contends that Dr. O'Neil was not truthful in completing his board of medicine license in Idaho. This is a totally false statement as evidenced by both the Idaho and California documents attached to Plaintiff's counsel's Affidavit which reflect that he proved he had properly disclosed the requested information to the Utah Company who made the omission which Dr. O'Neil did not discover. See Plaintiff's Ex. J at pages 4 and 5 of the Proposed Decision attached to the Affidavit of counsel in support of Plaintiff's Responses to Defendant's Motions in Limine. Unfortunately, since Plaintiff is not making accurate representations to this Court regarding the contents of these documents it makes this issue all the more concerning as to how Plaintiff would seek to use them at trial if allowed to do so.

Plaintiff's various references to several Idaho case authorities regarding the use of a local consultant to familiarize and out of area expert have no bearing on this issue whatsoever. None of the medical malpractice cases cited stand for the proposition that a party can cross examine an expert regarding unrelated licensing matters involving someone else. The only answer the defense experts can say to such questions is whether they knew or did not know about the events or circumstances of the investigations and decisions outlined above. None of these witnesses were present, none of them were involved with the care at issue, none of them reviewed any of the medical records of these administrative actions and the only basis for the questions is to try and unfairly cast dispersions against Dr. O'Neil who will not even be present to defend himself.

The defense does not dispute that questions about what an out of area expert did to become familiar with the local standard of practice is fair game at a trial, but that is not what Plaintiff's counsel is proposing to do. Instead, he wants to say in front of the jury to each of the defense experts "so did you know that the guy that Dr. Kerr's attorneys wanted you to talk to about the local standard has had his license in California sanctioned multiple times?" Such questions have nothing to do with what the expert did or how the expert became familiar with the local standard of practice as set forth in Dulaney v. St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, 137 Idaho 160 (2002) and its progeny. This Court should not allow Plaintiff to try and bootstrap improper impeachment under the phony guise that it would somehow qualify as valid questioning about how the expert became familiar with the applicable standard of practice.

Plaintiff further contends that Rule 705 supports the admissibility of the above matters involving Dr. O'Neil. This rule states:

> Idaho Rules of Evidence Rule 705. Disclosure of Facts or Data Underlying Expert Opinion.
> The expert may testify in terms of opinion or inference and give the reasons therefor without prior disclosure of the underlying facts or data, provided that the court may require otherwise, and provided further that, if requested pursuant to the rules of discovery the underlying facts or data were disclosed. The expert may in any event be required to disclose the underlying facts or data on cross-examination.

The defense contends there is nothing in Rule 705 which entitles the Plaintiff to cross examine the defense experts about what they did or did not know about Dr. O'Neil's prior malpractice actions or administrative matters involving chemical peel procedures. None of these issues were discussed by the defense experts with Dr. O'Neil and therefore none of these issues can be said to have helped form the underlying facts and data of the individual expert's opinion. These matters are entirely collateral issues disconnected from the matters before the court which are unfairly prejudicial and therefore not fair game for cross examination. The competence and credibility of Dr. O'Neil to provide background and familiarizing information to the defense experts about cleaning reusable medical equipment, what type of physician performs liposuction and was the way Dr. Kerr performed surgery in this case consistent with what they understand to be within the local standard of practice has nothing to do with the documents and administrative matters involving Dr. O'Neil.

None of the out of state cases cited by the Plaintiff involve the circumstances presented here and are therefore entirely distinguishable. Plaintiff cites to a number of cases from other jurisdictions where a court exercised discretion in allowing an expert on the stand to be questioned about his or her own prior lawsuits or administrative licensing disputes. Not one of the cases cited by the Plaintiff involves a situation where Plaintiff seeks to impeach an expert regarding the prior lawsuits or administrative licensing disputes of a third party he talked to about entirely unrelated issues.

As this court is well aware having reviewed Plaintiff's own Motions in Limine and the deposition excerpts submitted therewith, Plaintiff's counsel went to great lengths in deposition to question the defense experts, Drs. Stiller, Lundeby and Laurence about the content of their discussions with Dr. O'Neil. At no point, however, in any of his discussions did Plaintiff's counsel ever even mention or bring up any licensing issues or prior malpractice actions involving Dr. O'Neil. It is therefore clear, particularly considering the volume of materials they have now submitted in opposition to the defense motion, that Plaintiff's counsel intended all along to try and ambush and unfairly sandbag the defense experts with this issue at trial.

Based on the foregoing, the defense requests the court grant his first and second Motions in Limine and preclude the Plaintiff from bringing any of these issues up at trial in any fashion.

II. Rule 608(b) does not provide a basis for Plaintiff to try and impeach Dr. Laurence with evidence of criminal charges for which he has not been convicted of and which may be totally dismissed.

Plaintiff argues that he should be allowed to use as impeachment at trial the fact that Dr. Laurence has been indicted by a grand jury in the state of Colorado. The indictment involves allegations relating to tax evasion in response to poor advice Dr. Laurence and others received from the main targets of the case who were financial advisors to a large number of U.S. citizens. Plaintiff contends that these allegations against Dr. Laurence relate to his character for truthfulness, his fitness to practice medicine and his qualifications as a medical expert, such that the indictment should be fair game for impeachment at trial. Again, it is not clear from Plaintiff's briefing whether he seeks to merely question the witness or also try and utilize extrinsic evidence relating to the indictment. The defense disagrees that a mere criminal indictment may serve as a basis for either form of impeachment.[1]

Plaintiff points out that the Court has broad discretion in terms of the admissibility of evidence and the latitude associated with the scope of expert impeachment. In support, Plaintiff contends that the defense too narrowly reads IRE 608(b). The defense agrees that whether to admit evidence under Rule 608 is a matter of discretion for the trial court. State v. Araiza, 124 Idaho 82, 90, 856 P.2d 872, 880 (1993).

1 Plaintiff further attempts to buttress his flawed argument by claiming that the charges against Dr. Laurence "arise out of his medical practice" when in fact they arise out of his earned income period, regardless of whether he was a ditch digger, taxi cab driver or brain surgeon. Plaintiff takes quite the literary license in describing what he believes to be the charges and nature of alleged crimes committed by Dr. Laurence, however, his description, based solely on his reading of the criminal indictment, is nothing more than salacious fiction and unsupported allegations at this juncture.

However, this rule does not allow the nature of impeachment being proposed by Plaintiff regarding Dr. Laurence. IRE Rule 608 provides:

> Idaho Rules of Evidence Rule 608. Evidence of Character and Conduct of Witness.
>
> (a) Opinion and reputation evidence of character. The credibility of a witness may be attacked or supported by evidence in the form of opinion or reputation, but subject to these limitations: (1) the evidence may refer only to character for truthfulness or untruthfulness, and (2) evidence of truthful character is admissible only after the character of the witness for truthfulness has been attacked by opinion or reputation evidence or otherwise.
> (b) Specific instances of conduct. Specific instances of the conduct of a witness, for the purpose of attacking or supporting the credibility, of the witness, other than conviction of crime as provided in Rule 609, may not be proved by extrinsic evidence. They may, however, in the discretion of the court, if probative of truthfulness or untruthfulness, be inquired into on cross-examination of the witness concerning (1) the character of the witness for truthfulness or untruthfulness, or (2) the character for truthfulness or untruthfulness of another witness as to which character the witness being cross-examined has testified.

Plaintiff contends that evidence of a criminal indictment for tax evasion for which there has been no plea agreement, no conviction and no trial setting is somehow proper grounds for impeachment to try and establish the character of Dr. Laurence for untruthfulness. The defense contends that a criminal indictment for which there has been no conviction and for which the underlying defendant contests cannot, as a matter of law, qualify as a specific instance of conduct under IRE 608(b). The defense is aware of no case law in Idaho which so states.

Nevertheless, in support of his position, Plaintiff cites the recent Idaho Court of Appeals case of State v. Bergerud, __ Idaho __, __ P.3d __ (Ct. App. October 22, 2013). Bergerud involved Daniel and Kathleen Bergerud (the Bergeruds) who appealed their judgments of conviction entered following a jury verdict finding both guilty of several drug offenses. The issue on appeal involved the Bergeruds challenge of the district court's ruling prohibiting them from asking the State's rebuttal witness Jones if he had ever made a false statement to police. At trial, the defense position was that the State had not proved that it was the Bergeruds, rather than their occasional guest/renter, Jones, who engaged in the manufacturing of methamphetamine.

In an unrelated past case, Jones had pled guilty to a misdemeanor charge of providing false information to a police officer. At trial, the Bergeruds sought to cross-examine Jones by asking whether he had ever lied to police, and if he denied having done so, the Bergeruds sought permission to impeach Jones with evidence of the conviction. The State objected that such cross-examination was prohibited by Idaho Rules of Evidence 608 and 609. The district court sustained the State's objection, precluding questioning of Jones about lying to police or about the conviction. The court held that Idaho Rule of Evidence 609 barred the admission of the conviction because the crime was not a felony and also held that an episode of lying to police was not relevant for impeachment because it was not probative of Jones's credibility.

In analyzing the issue, the Bergerud court stated:

> As the Bergeruds point out, although Rule 608(b) prohibits extrinsic evidence of a witness's past conduct to attack credibility, it expressly allows cross-examination of the witness concerning instances of the witness's conduct if it is probative of the witness's truthfulness. They contend that > the district court did not recognize that the rule permitted this type of cross-examination and therefore abused its discretion in precluding cross-examination of Jones about having lied to police. We agree. Because Rule 608 expressly allows cross-examination of a witness concerning specific instances of conduct that are probative of truthfulness or untruthfulness, the Bergeruds' requested inquiry about the incident was not barred by this rule.

>
> . . . . . .
>
> We therefore hold that under Rule 608(b), the district court possessed discretion to permit cross-examination of Jones about his episode of lying to police and that the district court erred in failing to recognize this discretion.

Bergerud, at p. 8-9 (citations omitted).

The above discussion and excerpts from Bergerud demonstrate that the issue there involved whether a witness could be impeached with questions on cross examination under 608(b) of a prior misdemeanor conviction. No such conviction exists in this case therefore Bergerud does not support the proposition advanced that Plaintiff should be allowed to utilize 608(b) to try and impeach Dr. Laurence with cross examination questions relating to the fact a criminal indictment exists or any questions relating to it in any way. The defense contends that per Rule 403, any probative value for impeachment purposes of the indictment is massively outweighed by the realistic danger of unfair prejudice the defense and to misleading the jury with questions suggesting that Dr. Laurence committed some crime when no conviction or plea that he has ever done so exists.

Plaintiff further attempts to inflame the court by asserting that Dr. Laurence has failed to properly disclose the indictment to the Idaho Board of Medicine. In support, Plaintiff cites Idaho Code §54-1814(1) and (21), neither of which have any application to this case. By the very language of these statutes, they relate to the conviction or commission of any felony. Plaintiff ignores the obvious fact that an indictment is neither of these scenarios and therefore no reporting is necessary.

Plaintiff further argues that IRE 404(b) allows him to use the criminal indictment against Dr. Laurence to show financial bias on his part. Such a claim makes no sense. In response to questions by Plaintiff's counsel at deposition, Dr. Laurence testified that in his entire medical career he has only been involved in two other malpractice cases as an expert witness and only one of those resulted in his deposition being taken.[2] This hardly suggests he has a motive to "express a favorable opinion that will result in additional, lucrative expert witness work." Plaintiff's memo at p. 17. Plaintiff offers no case authority to support his claim that by reviewing two prior cases as an expert in his entire medical career that this somehow suggests Dr. Laurence is financially biased and that as a result Plaintiff's counsel should now be allowed to use his prior criminal indictment for impeachment purposes.

Based on the above authorities, there is no valid basis upon which the Plaintiff should be allowed to cross examine or impeach Dr. Laurence by extrinsic evidence relating to the criminal charges for tax evasion. On this basis the court should grant the defense Motion in Limine on this issue.

2 Q. Doctor, in terms of your involvement in this case, have you been involved in other medical malpractice cases before this one?
A. I have.
Q. Okay. I think I saw an e-mail, and it may be in the disclosure, that there were two other instances that you've reviewed records in a medical malpractice case?
A. That's correct.

See Depo. of Dr. Laurence at p. 8, ll 15 to 23.

III. Conclusion

The defense stands by its prior arguments relating to the balance of its Motions in Limine. For the reasons stated herein and in the Defendants' opening Memorandum, the Defendants respectfully request the court grant their Motions in Limine.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF
THE FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT
OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND
FOR THE COUNTY OF ADA

CHARLES BALLARD,

Plaintiff,

vs.

BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D., SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER AND LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

MEMORANDUM OBJECTING TO PLAINTIFF RECOVERING FOR KRYSTAL BALLARD'S MEDICAL COSTS AND BURIAL BENEFITS AND EXPENSES

I.

INTRODUCTION

This matter is solely a wrongful death action brought by Charles Ballard, individually, that is based on allegations that Defendant Dr. Kerr breached the standard of health care practice. Plaintiff should not be permitted to recover, as a windfall, expenses that were incurred and paid by Krystal Ballard, or her estate. Mr. Ballard must not be allowed to recover for expenses and obligations which died with his spouse, including medical bills and burial costs/benefits. All of these costs and expenses were paid for by Krystal Ballard's military medical insurance carrier, Tricare. Mr. Ballard did not pay these expenses and is under no obligation to reimburse any party for these expenses.

N

II.

ANALYSIS

It is well established that at common law, the death of either the victim of the tort or the tortfeasor, extinguished the victim's right of action, and could not be continued by a representative of the estate. Vulk v. Haley, 112 Idaho 855, 857, 736 P.2d 1309, 1311 (1987); Evans v. Twin Falls County, 118 Idaho 210, 215-16, 769 P.2d 87, 92-93 (1990). In addition, at common law where a person's death was caused by the wrongful act of another, the relatives and dependents of the victim had no cause of action on their own. Evans, 118 Idaho at 215.

In 1881, in order to alleviate the harshness of the common law rules regarding survival, Idaho enacted the Wrongful Death Act. The statute "as originally enacted, has remained virtually intact for over one hundred years." Westfall v. Caterpillar, Inc., 120 Idaho 918, 922, 821 P.2d 973, 977-78 (1991). The statute, Idaho Code § 5-311, "did not create a right for a survival action, but a new cause of action for the benefit of the heirs." Vulk, 112 Idaho at 858.

According to well established Idaho law, "[a] survival action is for the damages the deceased suffered and could have sued for had he survived, while a wrongful death action involves the damages suffered by the heirs of the decedent because of his death, such as loss of guidance, support, etc." Hayward v. Valley Vista Care Corp., 136 Idaho 342, 353, 33 P.3d 816, 827 (2001). The Idaho Supreme Court has held that no right of action is given to the estate of the victim of the tort, but is granted only to his or her heirs. Moon v. Bullock, 65 Idaho 594, 605, 151 P.2d 765, 770 (1944), overruled on other grounds by Doggett v. Boiler Eng'g & Supply Co., Inc. 93 Idaho 888, 477 P.2d 511 (1970). "If there are no heirs, no right of action vests in anybody." Id.

According to Idaho's Wrongful Death Act, "[w]hen the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another, his or her heirs or personal representatives on their behalf may maintain an action for damages against the person causing the death." I.C. §5-311. This statute "does not allow a decedent's claims to survive, but creates a new cause of action in favor of heirs or personal representatives." Craig v. Gellings, 148 Idaho 192, 194, 24 P.3d 1208, 1210 (Ct. App. 2009). Pursuant to Idaho's Wrongful Death Act, Charles Ballard may only pursue and recover his damages that he alleges were caused by his wife's death. Her medical and final expenses were her expenses and obligations. Her claims do not survive.

III.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, Plaintiff Charles Ballard should not be permitted to recover expenses which were the sole possession and obligation of Krystal Ballard. To allow this would be a windfall to Charles Ballard as he would have no obligation to repay the expenses.

DATED this 12 day of November, 2013.

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS, FOR FULL ENFORCEMENT OF SANCTIONS PREVIOUSLY IMPOSED, AND FOR ENFORCEMENT OF EXISTING DISCOVERY AND DISCLOSURE DEADLINES

ORIGINAL

Plaintiff Charles Ballard, through his attorneys, respectfully moves this Court pursuant to Rule 37(e) of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure for an order imposing sanctions upon Defendants and Defense counsel as a result of the mistrial declared by the Court on November 14, 2013. The declaration of a mistrial followed repeated warnings by the Court that it would declare a mistrial and impose sanctions in the form of payment to the non-offending party of all attorney fees associated with the trial, expert trial costs, and other costs of trial if the Court's orders in limine were violated. Following the declaration of this mistrial, the Court further indicated it would consider all other appropriate relief requested. Accordingly, Plaintiff now seeks through this motion an Order as follows:

- Imposing sanctions in the form of reimbursement of attorney fees associated with reasonable trial preparation and the handling of the trial by Plaintiff's counsel;
- Imposing sanctions in the form of reimbursement of the costs associated with Plaintiff's experts' travel, lodging, and testimony at the trial of this matter;
- Imposing sanctions in the form of reimbursement of reasonable trial costs incurred by Plaintiff and Plaintiff's counsel to include travel, lodging, and meals for SSgt Charles Ballard, attorney Greg Haddad, paralegal Farrah Caruthers, costs associated with Plaintiff's courtroom technician to run Trial Director, costs for service of trial subpoenas, costs of trial witness fees, and other reasonable costs to be submitted to the Court upon entry of an Order imposing sanctions;
- Imposing sanctions in the form of striking Defendants' liability defenses;
- Imposing sanctions in the form of the remaining attorney fees requested by Plaintiff following the Court's earlier imposition of sanctions against Defense counsel for improperly refusing to answer Plaintiff's discovery (See Court's Order, filed October 11, 2012, imposing sanctions against Defendants' counsel in the amount of $1,500.00 and permitting Plaintiff to later seek reimbursement for full fees incurred in bringing motion to compel);

- Enforcing existing discovery and disclosure deadlines;
- Disqualifying Jeremiah Quane, Terrence Jones, and the law firm of Quane, Jones and McColl from handling the retrial of this matter; and
- Other sanctions deemed appropriate by the Court, including reimbursement to Ada County of the jury costs associated with the trial.

Good cause exists for this motion given Defendants' and defense counsel's conduct in ignoring the admonitions of the Court concerning conduct at trial, including specifically the need to strictly adhere to the Court's limine orders and pretrial rulings, as well defense counsel's repeated and persistent efforts to undermine the fairness of these proceedings, all of which ultimately caused a mistrial at great cost and prejudice to Plaintiff. Accordingly, Plaintiff seeks an Order consistent with the foregoing, after which Plaintiff will submit an itemized statement of costs and attorney fees for consideration by the Court.

A memorandum of law and declaration of counsel are submitted contemporaneously herewith. Plaintiff requests a hearing on this motion.

Dated this 6th day of December 2013.

MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS, FOR FULL ENFORCEMENT OF SANCTIONS PREVIOUSLY IMPOSED, AND FOR ENFORCEMENT OF EXISTING DISCOVERY AND DISCLOSURE DEADLINES

I. INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

COMES NOW Plaintiff, Charles Ballard, by and through his attorneys, pursuant to Rule 37(e) of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, and moves for an order imposing sanctions upon Defendants and defense counsel following the declaration of a mistrial by the Court in this matter.

On November 14, 2013, this Court declared a mistrial as a result of the Defendants' violation of a pretrial limine order of the Court in the presence of the jury. The mistrial declaration occurred on the eighth day of trial, and it followed repeated warnings by the Court that if orders in limine were violated, the Court would declare a mistrial and impose sanctions in the form of payment to the non-offending party of all trial related attorney fees, expert trial costs, and other trial related costs. Following the mistrial declaration, the Court further indicated it would consider all other appropriate relief requested.

Plaintiff now seeks an Order not only consistent with the above admonitions, but also commensurate with defense counsel's repeated disregard for this Court's pretrial rulings and persistent efforts to undermine the fairness of these proceedings, all of which ultimately caused a mistrial at great cost and prejudice to Plaintiff. The sanctions requested through this motion and set forth below are wholly within the Court's discretion. Moreover, the requested sanctions are required to bring some semblance of fairness to these proceedings in light of Defendants' persistent disregard for the rules, the blatant indifference defense counsel exhibited toward this Court's authority to govern the parties' conduct at trial, as well as the inexcusable prejudice defense counsel inflicted upon Plaintiff Charles Ballard.

No better example highlights the disrespect Defendants exhibited not only toward Charles Ballard, but also toward the Court, than Defendants' conduct when the Court recessed to consider, and ultimately grant, Plaintiff's motion for mistrial. After committing the fatal violation of this Court's in limine Order, and after the Court indicated that it would declare a mistrial prior to the noon break, Defendants and their counsel could be seen smiling, apparently pleased about the prospect of a mistrial, rather than demonstrating any measure of contrition. After the noon break, while the Court issued its mistrial ruling and explained the necessity of same as a direct result of Defendants' misconduct, Defendants' lead counsel, Jeremiah Quane, had the audacity to rotate his chair and turn his back to the Court.

In commencing its analysis under these circumstances, the Court need ask one fundamental question: which party should bear the costs and expenses incurred in preparing and attending trial -- including those of readily calculable monetary value (trial related attorney fees and costs), as well as those less readily quantifiable (the jurors' time wasted, the Court's time wasted, Charles Ballard's time wasted away from active duty in the United States Air Force, and the emotional toll Charles Ballard suffered while recounting his wife's death on the witness stand) -- when the conduct of the Defendants, defense counsel, and defense witnesses demonstrated such profound and flagrant disregard for the Court's authority and disrespect for Staff Sergeant Charles Ballard that a mistrial was required? Of course, the answer is as simple as the question: it must be the Defendants. Otherwise, any party would, in effect, be granted license to disrupt the orderly and efficient administration of justice at trial with only limited repercussions. Surely, the sanctions being requested here are moderate in comparison to those the Plaintiff must face in terms of a retrial.

The Court itself, in ruling on the mistrial, astutely observed that the mistrial was not caused by an isolated incident of misconduct, but rather a demonstrated "pattern and practice" of misconduct. Noteworthy is the fact that defense counsel's misconduct at trial is consistent with, and comprises, a pattern of misconduct taking place over the course of months. This same pattern and practice, while pervasive throughout the litigation, became so prejudicial as to destroy the fundamental fairness that every litigant should rightfully expect at trial.

In addition to costs, expenses, and attorney fees, Plaintiff moves for enforcement of existing discovery and disclosure deadlines, which have long passed. Neither defense counsel, nor Defendants should realize any benefit by a new trial necessitated by their misconduct, and specifically, by the admission of evidence not previously produced, or by the elicitation of opinions not previously disclosed. Defendants should be strictly confined to the record evidence exchanged in this case before defense counsel sabotaged the fairness of trial; otherwise, Defendants, no matter the sanctions ultimately imposed, will reap significant benefits for their counsel's blatant unwillingness to follow the rules and this Court's repeated mandates, and Plaintiff will suffer even greater prejudice in the form of trial by ambush.

Additionally, Charles Ballard seeks imposition of the following sanctions: full imposition of sanctions previously imposed, but held in abeyance, as a result of Defendants' refusal to abide by the rules of discovery; the striking of Defendants' liability defenses; the disqualification of Defendants' present counsel from handling the retrial of this matter; and such other relief and sanctions this Court deems appropriate, including, but not limited to, reimbursement of the jury costs associated with this trial to Ada County.

II. ARGUMENT

a. Defense Counsel's Conduct at Trial is Part of a Larger Pattern of Obstructive and Noncompliant Conduct.

Defense counsel's behavior, which the Court correctly noted had become a pattern during trial, actually extends back to the very first hearing in this case. As the Court will likely recall, on September 12, 2012, Plaintiff was forced to bring a motion to compel discovery after Defendants refused to answer any of Plaintiff's initial interrogatories. Defendants claimed that those interrogatories exceeded the number permitted by rule, thus purportedly excusing Defendants from answering any of those interrogatories. The Court, of course, deemed Defendants' position baseless, ordered Defendants to answer all of Plaintiff's interrogatories, and assessed sanctions against defense counsel in the amount of $1,500.00. (See Order, Oct. 11, 2012.) The Court also ruled, however, that "[t]his order does not preclude plaintiff from requesting full fees at a later date." (Id.)

Defense counsel's pattern of obstructive and noncompliant behavior continued to develop when, shortly prior to trial, defense counsel attempted to mislead this Court regarding Plaintiff's willingness to engage in mediation. In reference to the parties' pretrial exchange of information conference, defense counsel made the following representation to this Court:

> For the first time in the history of the case, counsel for Plaintiff said that his client would agree to mediation, even though the trial is scheduled to start November 5, 2013. Defense counsel had to decline the untimely suggestion of mediation due to the date the trial was to start, the impossibility of arranging mediation on such short notice and the fact that the bulk of the trial preparations had been completed and that defense counsel would be completely occupied with continued trial preparations.

(Certification of Defense Counsel 2, Oct. 29, 2013.) In so doing, defense counsel audaciously assigned blame for the undersigned's "untimely" willingness to participate in mediation, all the while making a demonstrably false representation as evidenced by correspondence exchanged six months earlier, which Plaintiff was compelled to produce to the Court in an effort to confront defense counsel's astounding betrayal of reality. (See Pl.'s Resp. to Defense Counsel's Misrepresentation Re: Mediation, Oct. 30, 2013.) Defense counsel became remarkably quiet when it came time to acknowledge, or offer any explanation for, their misrepresentation; in fact, they filed nothing in reply to Plaintiff's correction.

Furthermore, in response to Plaintiff's Motions in Limine to Preclude Speaking Objections, Unsworn Testimony of Counsel, and References to the Parties' Motion Practice While in the Jury's Presence, Defendants offered the following, self-righteousness statement: "Defense counsel have tried cases before this court in the past and were quite capable of staying within the rules of this court." (Defs.' Mem. in Opp. to Pl.'s Mots. in Limine 40, Oct. 29, 2013.) In the wake of a mistrial caused by Defendants, their counsel, and their witnesses, one would quite naturally wonder, then, whether Defendants lacked the capacity, or perhaps only the willingness, to act accordingly in this instance. Defendants' response continued, "Defense counsel is comfortable that this Court is fully capable of determining whether any lines are about to be crossed during the trial before it occurs." (Id. at 41.) As defense counsel proved at trial, they are also quite comfortable disregarding any such determinations.

Throughout the trial, when objections were sustained by the Court, defense counsel, within the hearing of the jury, stated the testimony he wished to elicit, though the Court had previously ruled the testimony improper. Undeterred, not only did defense counsel state the substance of the precluded testimony, but he also declared the inference to be drawn from the inadmissible testimony. Defense counsel's conduct sunk to such a level that Plaintiff counsel asked the Court to admonish defense counsel. And though the Court did admonish defense counsel, the admonishment had little, if any, deterrent effect on defense counsel.

In granting Plaintiff's motion in limine on the topic, the Court explicitly ruled that evidence of Krystal Ballard's purported "noncompliance" would be precluded because it lacked any causal connection to the alleged injuries. The Court reasoned that evidence and argument pertaining to Krystal Ballard's reluctance to use narcotic pain medication, her failure to inform her husband of the liposuction procedure, and her failure to inform the Air Force about the liposuction procedure had nothing whatsoever to do with Krystal Ballard's death from an infection. And prior to commencement of trial, the Court warned both sides that if pretrial rulings on any matter needed to be revisited, those issues would be addressed outside the presence of the jury.

Despite the Court's admonition, and in direct contravention of the Court's pretrial rulings, defense counsel attempted to introduce evidence of Krystal Ballard's "noncompliance." Defense counsel elicited testimony from his own client of Krystal Ballard's "noncompliance" without seeking reconsideration of the Court's pretrial ruling. Additionally, even after an objection, defense counsel, again, in the jury's presence, blurted out that "this goes to the issue of noncompliance".

Plaintiff's counsel responded by moving for a mistrial based on a clear violation of the Court's pretrial rulings. Although the Court acknowledged that the Defendant and his counsel had violated the Court's order, it did not feel that the prejudice inflicted by the violation rose to a level justifying a mistrial. However, the Court advised the parties, yet again, that if a mistrial was occasioned by a violation of its pretrial rulings, the Court would award sanctions in the form of costs, expenses, and fees. It goes without comment that the Defendants, their counsel, and their witnesses ignored this admonition as well.

The fatal violation necessitating a mistrial occurred during Defendants' presentation of their expert, Dr. Stiller. Defense counsel asked Dr. Stiller directly why he believed Defendants had not violated the standard of practice, to which Dr. Stiller responded that there had not been any other infections at Defendants' facility. This testimony was offered despite the fact that the Court had previously deemed this information inadmissible. At no time did defense counsel even feign an attempt to stop Dr. Stiller as he rambled on for several sentences in this prohibited area. And though defense counsel characterized Dr. Stiller's prohibited testimony as inadvertent, other areas of Dr. Stiller's testimony reveal the speciousness of defense counsel's explanation.

First, despite only speaking with Dr. O'Neil on one occasion prior to trial in order to avail himself of knowledge pertaining to the applicable standard of care, Dr. Stiller admitted that he conferred with Dr. O'Neil the night before taking the witness stand at trial, after he recognized in reviewing his deposition transcript that he had insufficient information about the local standard of practice. This conversation, clearly intended to remedy the paucity of information derived from Dr. Stiller's previous conversation with Dr. O'Neil, was never disclosed to Plaintiff's counsel. It is apparent, then, that Defendants attempted to sandbag Plaintiff, who had no ability to discover the substance of the conversation, and therefore, had no meaningful capacity to cross-examine Dr. Stiller on that topic.

Second, Dr. Stiller had not been provided information about the absence of other infections at Silk Touch prior his deposition. The compilation of information purportedly revealing a lack of other infections had been, according to defense counsel, "prepared shortly before August 20," well after Dr. Stiller's deposition of July 19. (Letter from J. Quane to P. Gregory Haddad 1, September 26, 2013; see also Pl.'s Consol. Mots. in Limine 12-18, Oct. 22, 2013 (providing chronology and analysis related to "absence of infection" information.).) Defendants never provided an opportunity to engage in discovery on the data underlying this compilation. Thus, Stiller had only recently been provided the information, which again demonstrates a pattern of sandbagging in violation of discovery rules, as it does the propriety of, and necessity for, Plaintiff's motions in limine.

Lastly, defense counsel asked Dr. Stiller, who previously served in the military, about Air Force protocol, which violated the Court's prohibition of evidence and argument pertaining to Krystal Ballard's failure to inform the Air Force of her liposuction. In fact, defense counsel didn't simply ask Dr. Stiller once, but even after an objection was sustained, defense counsel attempted to ask the same question immediately after the Court sustained the objection.

To suggest mere inadvertence in eliciting testimony from Stiller on the issue of an alleged lack of infections requires an untenable suspension of disbelief in light of the numerous instances of Defendants' misconduct, which are almost too numerous to recount. Each such instances of misconduct placed Plaintiff's counsel in the impossible position of having to choose whether to object in the jury's presence, and thus call attention to the issue, or to silently allow the questioning notwithstanding the prejudicial effect. For example, Plaintiff's counsel chose not to object during the cross-examination of SSgt Ballard when defense counsel immediately published to the jury a pay stub of Plaintiff's wife and asked Plaintiff to identify deductions from Mrs. Ballard's earnings, which were made for life insurance and federal taxes. The Court had previously and clearly prohibited inquiry into these areas in its limine rulings. Nevertheless, defense counsel immediately forged ahead into these areas upon the opportunity to examine SSgt Ballard.

Defendants' claim of inadvertence rings hollow in light of the pervasive pattern of conduct in this case, including violations of discovery rules, rules of evidence, Court rulings, sustained objections, and fundamental notions of fairness and professional conduct. However, even if one were to believe that Dr. Stiller's improper testimony was the product of inadvertence, the prejudice and damage caused by that inadvertence is obvious, and it is the responsibility of the party sponsoring a witness to ensure that the witness does not offer precluded testimony. Neither Charles Ballard, nor his witnesses, nor his attorneys should be the ones to bear the resultant costs, expenses, and fees.

On at least three occasions prior to the Court's declaration of mistrial, the parties were warned that a violation of its rulings would result in an assessment of expert costs, trial costs, and attorney fees against the party responsible for a mistrial. Notwithstanding these repeated warnings, Defendants acted unprofessionally and violated clear and unequivocal Court mandates. In so doing, defense counsel exhibited disrespect toward the Court, as well as toward the jurors, all of whom set aside two weeks of their lives to perform an honorable civic duty. What renders defense counsel's conduct particularly inexcusable, however, is the disrespect shown for Staff Sergeant Charles Ballard, who seeks and deserves nothing more, and certainly nothing less, than the fair administration of justice in relation to the death of his wife. Charles Ballard is the most severely impacted by defense counsel's apparent disdain for fair and orderly trial proceedings.

Charles Ballard, who is on active duty in the United States Air Force, and who is currently stationed in Florida when not deployed overseas, is now, due to defense counsel's conduct, forced to seek two to three weeks of additional leave in order to participate in a second trial. And he will be forced to once again endure agonizing memories associated with the loss of his wife, the effects of which this Court observed when Charles Ballard described his loss from the witness stand.

b. This Court is Afforded Considerable Discretion to Impose Significant Sanctions Upon Defense Counsel for Their Disdainful, Noncompliant, and Highly Prejudicial Conduct.

By his motion to compel discovery, as well as his memorandum of law in support thereof, both filed on August 24, 2012, Plaintiff provided full legal support in requesting sanctions for Defendants' refusal to answer Plaintiff's interrogatories. This Court granted Plaintiff's motion by Order dated October 11, 2012, awarding $1,500.00 in fees and costs. Pursuant to that Order, Plaintiff now seeks full reimbursement of fees and costs incurred in pursuing Defendants' compliance with their discovery obligations.

Whereas Rule 37(a)(4) justified sanctions under those circumstances, Rule 37(e) authorizes sanctions for defense counsel's misconduct at trial:

> General Sanctions--Failure to Comply With Any Order. In addition to the sanctions above under this rule for violation of discovery procedures, any court may in its discretion impose sanctions or conditions, or assess attorney's fees, costs or expenses against a party or the party's attorney for failure to obey an order of the court made pursuant to these rules.

Moreover, under the instant circumstances, dismissal of Defendants' liability defenses is a permissible and justified sanction. Due to the severity of this sanction, there is no doubt that this Court must consider the ineffectiveness of lesser sanctions. However, "explicit warnings are among the lesser sanctions that are appropriate before imposition of the drastic sanction of dismissal." Adams v. Reed, 138 Idaho 36, 39, 57 P.3d 505, 508 (Ct. App. 2002) (citing Ashby v. W. Council, Lumber Prod. & Indus. Workers, 117 Idaho 684, 687, 791 P.2d 434, 437 (1990)).

Additionally, "the Idaho Supreme Court enumerate[s] factors that must be expressly considered by the trial court in deciding whether dismissal with prejudice is warranted:

> The two primary factors are a clear record of delay and ineffective lesser sanctions, which must be bolstered by the presence of at least one "aggravating" factor, including: 1) delay resulting from intentional conduct, 2) delay caused by the plaintiff personally, or 3) delay causing prejudice to the defendant. The > consideration of these factors must appear in the record in order to facilitate appellate review.

Adams, 138 Idaho at 39, 57 P.3d at 508 (quoting Ashby, 117 Idaho at 686–87, 791 P.2d at 436–37).

"As to the ineffectiveness of lesser sanctions, the district court found that during . . . hearings of October 30, 2000 and March 19, 2001, the Adamses were specifically warned that failure to comply with discovery could result in dismissal, and they were admonished to immediately respond to outstanding discovery requests." Adams, 138 Idaho at 39, 57 P.3d at 508. Moreover, "[t]he district court's finding of a clear record of delay [was] amply supported by the record . . . which demonstrates that the Adamses were routinely late in responding to discovery, were repeatedly noncompliant with deadlines set out in pretrial orders, and on one occasion failed to engage in court-ordered mediation." Adams, 138 Idaho at 39, 57 P.3d at 508. For these reasons, the Court of Appeals affirmed the trial court's imposition of dismissal as a sanction for repeated misconduct.

1. Plaintiff seeks full reimbursement of fees and costs for pursuing his successful motion to compel Defendant's discovery responses.

In accordance with this Court's Order of October 11, 2012, Plaintiff requests that defense counsel be ordered to pay $5,651.36, which represents the difference between the sanctions imposed by the Court in October 2012, and the total fees and expenses associated with Plaintiff's pursuit of an order compelling Defendants to comply with well-established discovery obligations. (See Aff. of Counsel, Sept. 14, 2012 (setting forth $7,151.36 in reasonable fees and expenses).)

2. The reprehensible conduct of Defendants and defense counsel, which necessitates a new trial, warrants full reimbursement of Plaintiff's reasonable trial related fees, costs and expenses, all of which will be replicated for retrial.

In addition to full reimbursement of attorney fees incurred as a result of Defendants' failure to comply with discovery rules, Plaintiff also moves for an order compelling Defendants to reimburse the following, reasonable trial related fees, all of which will be itemized and submitted for the Court's consideration upon the granting of this motion:

- attorney fees incurred in trial preparation, including preparation of Plaintiff's expert witnesses to the extent the time associated with such fees will be replicated in preparation for retrial;
- attorney fees incurred for lead plaintiff counsel and his trial paralegal to travel to and from Boise, Idaho, for trial;
- attorney fees incurred from November 4, 2013, through November 14, 2013 (the first day of trial through the date the Court declared a mistrial); and
- attorney fees incurred in drafting and presenting this motion.

Sanctions should also include reimbursement of Plaintiff's reasonable, trial related costs and expenses, all of which will be itemized and submitted for the Court's consideration upon the granting of this motion:

- costs incurred for Plaintiff, Charles Ballard's travel from Florida to Boise, Idaho, and costs incurred for his return;
- costs incurred for Plaintiff, Charles Ballard's lodging and meals while in Boise, Idaho;
- travel costs incurred for lead plaintiff counsel and his trial paralegal to and from Boise, Idaho;

- costs incurred for Plaintiff's lead counsel and his trial paralegal's lodging and meals while in Boise, Idaho;
- costs and expenses incurred by Plaintiff's counsel for trial technology support;
- costs incurred for Dr. Dean E. Sorensen's trial preparation and expert witness appearance at trial;
- costs incurred for Dr. George R. Nichols's trial preparation and expert witness appearance at trial;
- costs incurred for Cornelius Hofman's trial preparation and expert witness appearance at trial; and
- costs for service of trial subpoenas, costs of trial witness fees, and other reasonable costs to be submitted.

Because Plaintiff will incur these fees and expenses upon retrial, defense counsel should be ordered to pay all of those fees and costs. The Plaintiff should not bear the cost, fees, and expenses, which must now be duplicated secondary to the Defendants' misconduct. To rule otherwise would send the message that mistrial bears no consequences and encourage parties to create a second opportunity in cases where a trial is not proceeding favorably.

3. Defendants' liability defenses should be dismissed because Defendants repeatedly disregarded Court rulings and warnings, because previous sanctions had no deterrent effect on Defendants' adherence to Court orders, and because extraordinary delay and prejudice befell Plaintiff upon the Court's declaration of mistrial.

Defendants were sanctioned by this Court in 2012 for failing to comply with discovery rules. Defense counsel made patently false representations regarding Plaintiff's willingness to engage in mediation. Defense counsel, despite multiple warnings from the Court, repeatedly violated explicit pretrial rulings, which eventually resulted in a mistrial.

Plaintiff not only incurred significant fees and costs in presenting this case to a jury, but he took leave from active duty to participate in seeking justice at trial for the death of his wife. Additionally, Plaintiff incurred the emotional cost of reliving his wife's death on the witness stand. Plaintiff will incur all of these costs when the case is retried.

Pursuant to the analysis set forth in Adams v. Reed, dismissal of Defendants' liability defenses is wholly appropriate. And though, in Adams, the plaintiffs were the offending party, it is only appropriate that all parties be subject to sanctions for conduct satisfying the criteria set forth in that case. Lesser sanctions, including the sanctions imposed by the Court's Order of October 11, 2012, as well as the explicit warnings issued to defense counsel during trial, were previously imposed, yet Defendants continued to defy Court orders and disregard Court warnings. In doing so, Defendants compromised the fairness of the trial proceedings to such a degree that the Court had little choice but to declare a mistrial.

Obviously, Defendants' misconduct will delay the administration of justice in this case, likely for months. While Plaintiff's counsel is currently attempting to identify a time for retrial that works for Plaintiff, Plaintiff's counsel and Plaintiff's witnesses, it is difficult to imagine that Plaintiff's counsel would be available to retry this case until February 2014, at the earliest. Because there can be little question by the repeated and overtly defiant instances of misconduct that defense counsel's conduct was intentional, and because there can be no question that Plaintiff suffered, and continues to suffer, extraordinary prejudice as a result of defense counsel's misconduct, dismissal of Defendants' liability defenses is entirely justified because all criteria under Adams is not only satisfied, but exceeded.

4. Defense counsel should be disqualified from this case.

Rule 37(e) authorizes this Court to impose sanctions or conditions for failure to obey an order in addition to those sanctions delineated by the rule. Additionally, the Court is afforded discretion to grant a motion to disqualify counsel. Crown v. Hawkins Co., Ltd., 128 Idaho 114, 122, 910 P.2d 786, 794 (Ct. App. 1996); Weaver v. Millard, 120 Idaho 692, 696, 819 P.2d 110, 114 (Ct.App.1991). This discretion derives from the Court's inherent authority to supervise the professional conduct of attorneys appearing before it. United v. Miller, 624 F.2d 1198, 1201 (3d Cir. 1980); see also Pichon v. Benjamin, 108 Idaho 852, 854, 702 P.2d 890, 892 (Ct. App. 1985) (regulation of the practice of law is an inherent power of the judiciary).

The party seeking disqualification has the burden of establishing the grounds, and the goal of the Court is to shape a remedy that will assure fairness to the parties and the integrity of the judicial process. Crown, 128 Idaho at 122-23, 910 P.2d at 794-95; Weaver, 120 Idaho at 696, 819 P.2d at 114. In extreme circumstances, a party to a lawsuit is permitted to interfere with the attorney-client relationship of his opponent. Alexander v. Superior Court In and For Maricopa County, 685 P.2d 1309, 1313 (Ariz. 1984). A motion to disqualify opposing counsel should be filed with promptness and reasonable diligence once the facts upon which the motion is based have become known. Crown, 128 Idaho at 122-23, 910 P.2d at 794-95; Weaver, 120 Idaho at 696, 819 P.2d at 114.

In engaging in a pervasive "pattern and practice" of refusing to obey Court orders and other conduct, as described above, defense counsel violated their duty under Idaho Rule of Professional Conduct 3.2, which requires a lawyer to "make reasonable efforts to expedite litigation consistent with the interests of the client." This rule reflects "that dilatory practices bring the administration of justice into disrepute." Cmnt 3.2. The rules of professional conduct also prohibit counsel from knowingly disobeying an obligation under the rules of a tribunal. I.R.P.C. 3.4(c).

Given defense counsels' ongoing practice of disobeying court orders notwithstanding admonitions and sanctions, the Court can expect such willful violations to continue to cause undue delay. In the event the Court determines that striking Defendants' defenses is too drastic a remedy, removing defense counsel from representation and requiring the appearance of counsel who will not disregard court orders is the only way to prevent further prejudice to Plaintiff.

c. Existing Discovery and Disclosure Deadlines Must Be Enforced to Ensure that Defendants Enjoy No Benefit Stemming from Their Misconduct.

As this Court knows, Defendants disclosed untimely and unsupported "demonstrative" evidence purportedly indicative of a lack of other infections at Defendants' practice. Defendants' expert, Dr. Garrison, revealed a previously disclosed opinion pertaining to fat embolism well after the expert disclosure deadline had passed. At trial, defense counsel attempted to elicit testimony from their expert witness, Dr. Stiller, pertaining to a conversation Plaintiff had no opportunity to discover because the conversation between Dr. Stiller and a local physician occurred the night prior to trial.

The mistrial caused by defense counsel should not benefit Defendants in any way. Specifically, Defendants should not be allowed, upon retrial, to depart from the record evidence exchanged during discovery in this matter, and, in essence, advance a trial by ambush strategy, which defense counsel so clearly espouses. Accordingly, Plaintiff seeks strict enforcement of the discovery and disclosure deadlines set forth by the Court's Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings, which the Court entered on September 9, 2013, as well as the pretrial rulings made by the Court prior to the start of trial.

III. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, this Court should grant the instant motion and enter an Order (1) imposing sanctions in the form of reimbursement of attorney fees associated with reasonable trial preparation and the handling of the trial by Plaintiff's counsel; (2) imposing sanctions in the form of reimbursement of costs associated with Plaintiff's expert's travel, lodging, and testimony at the trial of this matter; (3) imposing sanctions in the form of reimbursement of reasonable trial costs incurred by Plaintiff and Plaintiff's counsel to include travel, lodging, and meals for SSgt Charles Ballard, attorney Greg Haddad, paralegal Farrah Caruthers, costs incurred for Plaintiff's courtroom technician to run evidence and exhibit presentation software at trial, costs for service of trial subpoenas, costs of trial witness fees, and other reasonable costs to be submitted to the Court upon entry of an Order imposing sanctions; (4) imposing sanctions in the form of striking Defendants' liability defenses; (5) imposing sanctions in the form of the remaining attorney fees requested by Plaintiff following the Court's earlier imposition of sanctions against Defense counsel for improperly refusing to answer discovery; (6) enforcing the discovery and disclosure deadlines previously imposed by the Court; (7) disqualifying Jeremiah Quane, Terrence Jones, and the law firm of Quane, Jones and McColl from handling the retrial of this matter; and (8) other sanctions deemed appropriate by the Court, including reimbursement to Ada County of the jury costs associated with the trial.

Upon entry of an Order consistent with the foregoing, Plaintiff will submit an itemized statement of costs including expert costs and attorney fees for consideration by the Court.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE OVER LENGTH BRIEF IN RESPONSE TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

Defendants, by and through their counsel of record, Quane Jones McColl, PLLC, pursuant to Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure 7(b)(1) and Fourth Judicial District Local Rule 8.1, hereby move this Court for an Order granting leave to file an over length brief in Memorandum in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions, in excess of the 25-page limitation set forth in Local Rule 8.1. Defendants' Memorandum in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions is 37 pages in length inclusive of the caption page and Certificate of Service.

This Motion is brought in good faith and on the grounds that the 25-page limitation set forth in the local rule is insufficient to allow Defendants to respond to the numerous issues raised and/or omitted from Plaintiff's moving papers which seek substantial sanctions which, if granted, would severely prejudice the defense. References to deposition testimony and discovery documents are being provided within the body of the brief for the convenience of the Court and counsel, in addition to the actual excerpts which are being attached to the Affidavit of Counsel filed concurrently in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions.

For these reasons, Defendants respectfully requests that the Court grant this Motion and permit it to file an over length brief as requested herein.

Defendants do not request oral argument on this Motion, and leaves the determination as to the necessity of oral argument on this Motion to the sound discretion of the Court.

A proposed Order granting this Motion for Leave to File Over length Brief is attached hereto.

REPORTER'S PARTIAL TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS

Held on November 14, 2013, before

Deborah A. Bail, District Court Judge, sitting with a jury.

Reported by
Roxanne K. Patchell, RPR, CSR
Idaho CSR No. 733
California CSR No. 12057

Q. Did the standard of practice require Dr. Kerr to have any of his employees certified in any fashion in order for them to be able to clean, sterilize, and disinfect his reusable medical equipment?

A. I don't believe there is any certification for that.

Q. Now, you likened cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization to the use of the dishwasher at home. When you were in the military in the Air Force, did you have to perform sterilization in a field setting?

A. When I was at Mountain Home, I was on the -- I was deployable, which means -- and it was right after 9/11, so obviously, they geared us all up to ship. And Mountain Home, at that point in time, was a base where the whole base could up and move and you would have a whole fighting team because we had the bombers and everything. So as the surgeon, yeah. They sent me to all kinds of training to do that.

I had to do something called C4, which is combat, casualty, and something training. And during that we had to set up a tent and we had to set up an autoclave as well. Did I run the autoclave myself? Did I do the cleaning? No. Again, I had scrub techs there, but I was in the process of -- I was with the process of setting up the operating room and having that all available for us while we were there. It was actually the same equipment we would deploy with.

Q. And this was out in a field setting, not inside a building somewhere?

A. It was in a tent.

Q. And you were able to reach sterility?

A. As best as we can in a tent, yes.

Q. During Dr. Kerr's examination by the plaintiff, he was asked about a manual that exists for the Vaser machine?

A. Okay.

Q. A sound surgical technology manual. Have you had an opportunity to see that manual?

A. I have.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, this was not provided to him prior to his deposition. We've had no supplementation on any opinions regarding the significance or lack of significance of the Vaser manual. It was produced in discovery by the defendants long ago. It was available. They didn't provide it to him.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, this is consistent with his disclosure, which predated --

THE COURT: Which I've read.

MR. JONES: -- a deposition.

THE COURT: All right. Well, I'm going to allow him to respond to the question. The objection is overruled.

BY MR. JONES:

Q. I'd asked you if you had occasion to see that document.

A. I have.

MR. JONES: All right. And I don't remember which exhibit that was of yours, counsel.

Could I have the overhead? If the witness could be handed Exhibit 48.

BY MR. JONES:

Q. Now, there were two sections that were discussed with Dr. Kerr. One had to do with the fragmentation hand piece and the other had to do with the Vaser System Ventex Control Users guide.

And for ease of use so you don't have to dig through there and find it, I'm going to put them up on the overhead. One is page 8 of 14. And if I remember the instructions the judge gave me, if I zoom in, it will get better. And it does.

The other page that talks about cleaning and sterilization, you've seen both pages; haven't you not?

A. I have.

Q. All right. Now, the representation was made in questioning of Dr. Kerr that this manual in that second, I guess, it would be the third paragraph in the first sentence as well up at the top where it says, "This section described cleaning procedures and sterilization procedures and must be used to ensure clean systems." Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. And then you go down to the fourth paragraph where it says, "Follow the cleaning procedures and guidelines recommended by your institution. The following are guidelines that may be used in conjunction with your institution's procedures and guidelines." Did I read that correctly?

A. I believe so.

Q. All right. Now, my question to you regarding these two documents, which are identical, is simply this: Based on your understanding of the standard of healthcare practice applicable to Dr. Kerr in Boise in 2010, was he required to clean, disinfect, and sterilize his reusable surgical equipment as is discussed on this overhead document?

A. Well, he did on the second portion, not the first portion. And that being said, we've already discussed there is no magical wash, so he did follow within the standard of care.

Q. Okay.

A. Or standard of practice, excuse me.

Q. Thank you. That's all I have for that document.

Now, during the surgery -- get us back to our timeline here on July 21, 2010. I want you to assume that Dr. Kerr utilized reusable medical equipment during the liposuction and fat transfer which had been cleaned, disinfected, and sterilized as he described in his deposition as we've discussed here today. All right?

A. Okay.

Q. All right. Now, with that assumption, you are aware of the autopsy findings in this case that observe the presence of gram negative bacteria; are you not?

A. I am.

Q. All right. And the jury already has some idea of gram negative bacteria, but just so they know you know, can you just, in a nutshell, tell us what gram negative bacteria are.

A. So again we talk about two different types of staining for bacteria, negative and positive. Gram negative bacteria are a class of organisms that can be both aerobic and anaerobic. Anaerobic means can't use -- it will die in the presence of oxygen. Aerobic means it has to have oxygen.

So when you talk about a gram negative rod, it could be E coli or bacteroides or it could be pseudomonas so that is basically what you talk about with gram negatives.

Q. So there are different types?

A. There are.

Q. All right. Is there a more common type of gram negative bacteria that you are aware of?

A. The most common types, at least on humans, in humans would be E coli's and bacteroides.

Q. And the jury has heard that they live in the intestinal track.

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Are bacteria capable, in your opinion, Doctor, from being killed or eliminated from reusable surgical equipment?

A. That's the whole point of sterilization, yes.

Q. Is that the whole point of the autoclave?

A. That is the whole point of the autoclave.

Q. All right. And I have this question for you, Doctor: Is the presence of gram negative bacteria being found at the autopsy of Krystal Ballard at her buttock, is that proof to you that Dr. Kerr did anything wrong?

A. No.

Q. Explain your answer, please.

A. Gram negative rods or gram negative bacteria can come at any point in time. It's in your stool. If she wiped herself in the wrong way and put her hand on her buttock, it can go into the wound. So it isn't directly applicable to the surgical therapy.

Q. Now, Dr. Sorensen has rendered the opinion that he believes the patient became infected with gram negative bacteria as a result of contaminated reusable surgical instruments from Dr. Kerr's office being used on Krystal Ballard. You are aware of that?

A. I am.

Q. All right. Do you have an opinion in this case whether or not the gram negative bacteria found on Krystal Ballard came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr?

A. I do have an opinion.

Q. What is your opinion?

A. That that is incorrect.

Q. What is your opinion based on?

A. In order -- well, there's multiple different ways of looking at it.

As far as the process of sterilization, we know that a chemical marker was done so we've reached sterilization as far as the temperature is concerned as long as the machine basically said that it was adequate time. All the autoclave machines will have a register on it saying whether it has reached adequate time or not. So by that definition, it's been sterilized; okay.

Spore counts don't matter. It's a gram negative; okay. When you look at the process of liposuction and removing all of that tissue, and then injecting it back in, as far as it being done sterilely, a gram negative rod coming from the colon to the uria (phonetic) or from one of his equipment, I don't see how it can happen.

Let alone the fact of -- that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office. There is no history of the fact that --

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained, and we'll address it.

MR. HADDAD: Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. We'll break for the noon recess. Please remember my usual reminder and I will see you at 1:30.

(Jury Leaves.)

THE COURT: Is there some reason why you did not tell your witness about the order in limine?

THE WITNESS: He did; I apologize.

THE COURT: Well, that may not be sufficient.

MR. HADDAD: Well, Your Honor, at this time we are obligated, based upon the discussion with the Court earlier and the clear mandate by this Court on this very issue, not on other issues, this very issue, that if the issue of persistent history of infections or lack of infections came into this trial, that the Court would grant a mistrial and award attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses to the party that violated that order.

This is a clear violation of that order.

Based upon the activities in this trial, I am suspect as to the serendipity of that statement being made in the presence of this jury by this witness, but we move for a mistrial at this point in time, Your Honor, and ask you to enforce your admonition to these parties as you made earlier and on numerous occasions.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, first of all, I did make that discussion on more than one occasion with this particular witness. So to the extent it came out, I'll take responsibility for it; he's my witness. But the discussion was had and was had more than once.

I would like to see exactly what the witness said so I can better comment on it to the judge on the issue of grounds for a mistrial. I do know that when this judge -- when Your Honor talked about this initially, the issue of costs and attorney fees and granting a mistrial was in response to bringing up the issue of whether the patient was going to remarry.

Now, I know there was subsequent discussions about the issue of other infections, and I don't believe what this witness just testified to and what he said --

THE COURT: I said there was not to be any reference to any other infections.

I don't see I have any choice but to grant a mistrial. And I will address the costs and attorney fees later, but it seems to me that this was something I addressed specifically. I said, "take it up outside the presence of the jury."

This is a serious violation of the Court's prior order, and I don't see the Court has any choice but to grant counsel's request for a mistrial.

MR. KERR: Your Honor, can I --

MR. JONES: No. No.

THE COURT: We'll recess. I'll see you all at 1:30.

(Court in recess.)

THE COURT: I have reviewed extensively all of the orders and arguments in limine that we had the first day of the trial. And I specifically reviewed the testimony relating to the absence of other infections.

I discussed in general terms the general rule that the absence of other accidents is not generally admissible to prove the absence of negligence in a particular case. There are exceptions, and those exceptions require a foundation of a significant nature to establish why the evidence would be relevant and admissible in a particular case.

As our discussion on that issue continued, I was advised by plaintiff's counsel that they had not been provided the underlying data that went into the summary that there had, in fact, been no other infections. The failure to provide the data, which would support the conclusion, then played directly into my decision to grant the order in limine with respect to the absence of other infections as being not permissible and to direct counsel not to address that unless we had a discussion outside the presence of the jury and a foundation was laid.

But it was particularly of concern to me that the underlying records had not been provided to the plaintiffs so that the plaintiffs could independently verify whether that was a conclusion which could be drawn from the records. So there were a number of -- there were a number of problems that were flagged that were discussed by counsel on the first day of trial.

And at approximately 2:40 in the afternoon on the first day of trial, I said I'm granting an order in limine and I will not allow evidence of absence of other infections. And I expressly outlined the normal procedure to follow when counsel wants that revisited, which is draw my attention outside the presence of the jury and we would discuss it. But it was particularly critical because of the failure to disclose the underlying data.

I am therefore declaring a mistrial in this case, and I will award expert witness's cost to be paid to the plaintiff prior to the retrial.

And I will ask counsel that you take a look at your calendars and see when you would next be available. I know you will have to meet with various witnesses and consult with them so we can have -- so that we can proceed.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, are you only awarding expert witness costs?

THE COURT: I'm awarding expert witness fees. I'm reserving the issue on attorney fees. I'm not denying it. I said that it was something that I would consider if my orders in limine were

I think that -- frankly, I'm perturbed by the pattern in this case of pulling out exhibits and items that haven't previously been disclosed and then try to end run around the fact that when a person at a deposition is asked what's their opinion, what's it based on, and they respond in a certain way, then I see no reason to allow information to slip in later that they did not rely on when they formed their opinion and related their opinion a very brief time ago.

I don't think that is fair or reasonable. And I'm not going to permit it.

MR. JONES: So I'm clear, Your Honor. He is certainly capable, then, of talking about the reports which he reviewed and replied upon.

THE COURT: He can talk about everything he reviewed and testified about in his deposition, and I hope he will and I hope the jury find it informative.

MR. JONES: Thank you, Your Honor.

And also, with respect to the two in limine issues, there will be an offer of proof in about the middle of this witness that will need to be made. Perhaps, we can take it up during a break.

THE COURT: That's a very good idea.

BOISE, IDAHO

THE COURT: All right. I will take up Ballard vs. Kerr, No. 2012-4792.

Is the plaintiff ready to proceed?

MR. MCKAY: We are, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Is the defense ready to proceed?

MR. QUANE: We are, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Well, I'll take up a few preliminary matters first, and then I'll explain the jury selection process. The first thing we'll take up are motions in limine filed by both plaintiff and defense.

The purpose of a motion in limine under the rules is to address some item of anticipated evidence that is so problematic that it should be addressed at the start of the trial. However, a motion in limine is actually supposed to be a somewhat rare motion, because a judge, when considering it, lacks the context of the testimony.

And, therefore, a motion in limine should only be used to address unusual matters that present issues of such an extreme nature that mere reference of those issues could present a problem for maintaining the same jury. For that reason, it is not appropriate to deal with -- a motion in limine is not a proper mechanism to deal with things that should be addressed by way of a regular objection or things which should have been addressed by pretrial motions of a different nature.

Reviewing your motions in limine, there are certain things that are obviously proper in the motions that have been filed before the Court.

The Court will bar all reference and grant a motion in limine with respect to references to insurance of any kind.

The Court will grant the motion in limine with respect to any collateral source information. Since that's now presented to the jury, that's presented for the Court post-verdict, and the Court makes any appropriate adjustments.

The Court will grant the motion in limine with respect to all settlement negotiations and settlement offers, since that is always improper testimony.

Those are the motions in limine that appear to me to be, on their face, clearly proper issues to address in limine.

I will now take up the rest of your motions. But I would like you to prioritize, at this point, and address only those items that you think are going to come up during jury selection. We'll have a longer discussion after we select the jury, but before opening statements.
Question, Counsel?
MR. QUANE: Your Honor, I didn't hear exactly about the matter of insurance you mentioned.
THE COURT: I have granted the motion in limine barring any reference to insurance, by any party, covering anything, since that is a traditionally appropriate motion.
Now, that means that I left out some that you may feel warrant immediate attention. And so I'd like to address those now, before we begin with jury selection.
Now, of course, during jury selection, I would not anticipate that there would be anything other than very cursory reference to the facts of this particular case. And I would anticipate that we would be exploring those general issues that might make a person not an acceptable juror.

We will have too many jurors today because there is a defect -- was a defect in the computer system. Now, I think we've asked for them to check and see how many no-shows we have. But what happened was there was a problem in the automatic draw system that meant the notices went out a bit later than they should have.
And, for that reason, the jury commissioner anticipated that there might be more than average no-shows, because there's not as much notice as we usually give. And so the jury commissioner has given us an overlarge panel. Hopefully, it won't be that overlarge. And I have said, if we get everybody, which is not too likely -- if you get everybody, I only asked for 45. I think 45 is adequate.
And so we'll probably stop at the No. 45 on your list. And that would be the number on this column.
Now, let's talk about, first from the plaintiff, those issues that you feel are so critical that you would like to address them now before we get to the jury selection. As I said, we'll take a break before you begin your openings so we can resolve any remaining questions.

Counsel for the plaintiff?
MR. HADDAD: Thank you, Your Honor.
Your Honor, in taking the guidance from the Court as far as its preference, you know, to the extent that there's not a lot of issues, factual issues that are addressed with the jury in the voir dire, just based on my very cursory review of our motions, it appears there wouldn't be anything necessarily substantive that the Court needs to address at this point in time, until we impanel the jury and then decide how we want to deal with those evidentiary issues.
THE COURT: All right. How about with the defense, are there issues you would like to have addressed before we begin jury selection?
MR. JONES: Thank you, Your Honor.
There are so many that are intermingled, if the plaintiffs are willing to defer, we will do the same.
THE COURT: Okay. And I will say, it is not my practice to address speaking objections. I don't think it's necessarily appropriate for motions in limine.
But when an objection is made, I do follow the traditional and less exciting approach that a party should simply state the objection, the grounds for objection, and then weigh it, because most of the time it's not necessary to go further than that. But if we do have to have a more likely discussion, I'll excuse the jury.

So I do not welcome very significantly speaking objections. So just state the basis, "Objection, relevance"; "objection, hearsay." And if I need more discussion, I'll ask you for it. Because I think that's always the cleanest way to go.
(Voir dire of prospective jury panel. A jury of 13 is impaneled.)
(Recess.)
THE COURT: Let's proceed.
MR. HADDAD: To lay the chronology down, Your Honor, on August 20, 2013, we took the deposition of Dr. Thomas Kaufman, the plaintiff's infectious disease expert. At that point in time -- or the defendant's infectious disease expert. I'm sorry. And I might slip every once in a while, because I do a lot of defense work.
But during the time that they brought Dr. Kaufman's litigation file, Mr. Quane had produced to me at that time what appeared to be simply a chart with patient names, dates of procedure, and types of procedure.

THE COURT: Right. And, generally, that's not relevant.

So what is it you're specifically concerned about?

MR. HADDAD: Well, I'm concerned because we learned, after Dr. Kaufman's deposition when I asked, "Have you seen any charts that go along with this," "no," later the plaintiffs in September, after the discovery deadline, supplemented an interrogatory where they identified that Susie Kerr will testify that she and other staff went through all of the patient charts at Silk Touch and determined that there were no other infections.

THE COURT: Well, I'm certainly not going to permit that. So let's move on to the next topic. That is obviously a proper subject in limine, and your motion is granted with respect to that. And if counsel wanted me to revisit that, they would have to bring it up outside the presence of the jury.

Because clearly the absence of other car accidents is not relevant. The review of other charts with -- if it were to become relevant, counsel would have to draw my attention to it outside the presence of the jury. And then we would discuss it in full. Of course, that's not generally admissible.

MR. HADDAD: The other issue that we wanted to raise, Your Honor, was a theme that has been throughout this case on the defense side, which is the alleged noncompliance of Krystal Ballard.

THE COURT: Yes. And I read your brief on that subject. And it appeared -- first, it appears to me that there would have to be specific evidence of something she was noncompliant about.

Now, it is, of course, admissible if she were noncompliant. But -- and it would be a subject of cross-examination. But to simply speculate that she might have been noncompliant raises questions in my mind.

MR. HADDAD: I appreciate that, Your Honor. But there's actually a second step in that process, which means: If she was noncompliant, was there any causation that attaches to that noncompliance?

And, I think, certainly we don't feel that her actions were noncompliant. But, more importantly and I think undisputedly, nobody has testified to anything in terms of deciding not to take narcotic medications, not having somebody drive her home after the procedure, not telling Charles she had a procedure or telling the Air Force, no expert, nor has Dr. Kerr, connected that with any causative effect.

THE COURT: Okay. Let's focus a bit more narrowly. Not telling her husband or the Air Force is irrelevant as to whether there was or was not negligence. So, certainly, I see no relevance in that, and I see no reason to address it, nor do I care what the Air Force procedures were with respect to what people do about seeking all of their medical attention. And I don't see that that's a problem.

But, of course, it's always relevant whether she followed the doctor's instructions about care of the wound or that area. And that's entirely admissible.

MR. HADDAD: Yeah, I would agree with that, Your Honor. But there's no testimony, at least thus far. So maybe that's something that we can address.

12

But there has been no testimony. In fact, there has been contrary testimony from Dr. Kerr. And specifically he said, when he examined her in the postoperative period, there was nothing that he saw that led him to believe that she was not appropriately managing herself in terms of bandage changes and the like. It was completely absent from his testimony and absent from any other expert's testimony that has offered any opinions in this case.

So, with that caveat, understanding the Court may need to hear that testimony as it develops, I understand the Court's limitations.

THE COURT: Certainly, her care of the wound and her following of procedures that would minimize the risk of infection are, of course, relevant. But to the extent it has -- it is irrelevant to any issue of cause, I would not permit, I don't see, nor do I see any basis to permit, any evidence about whether or not she told the Air Force or whether or not she told her husband, unless counsel can explain to me why that would be relevant to an infection.

And, as far as the Air Force goes, I'm not even going to revisit that. It's not relevant. It's not going to be permitted.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, I guess maybe just as an offshoot, we moved in limine about conversations Dr. Kerr had with Krystal's aunt that, quite frankly, raised the issue of that conversation touching upon alleged noncompliance.
THE COURT: That's hearsay. So make your objection when it comes up.
MR. HADDAD: Thank you.
Your Honor, there's some issues with the experts, on the cumulative nature of them. We had raised that before the Court, thought it was premature, but did not think necessarily three experts were, on the face of it at the point in time in time when we were presenting that motion, unduly burdensome.
We had deposed all three of those experts, none of which practiced in Boise in 2010, all three of which relied upon a conversation they had with a Dr. Kelly O'Neil in order to avail themselves about the knowledge of the standard of care. To have three experts come in and simply parrot their conversations with Dr. O'Neil, we think is cumulative, especially since the individual doctor's backgrounds almost become irrelevant. It all focuses on what did Dr. O'Neil tell them and how did that help them understand the standard of care.

And three experts on that and regurgitating the same conversation seems to be cumulative, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Your reply?
MR. JONES: Your Honor, I want to make sure I understand the Court's ruling on the issue of noncompliance.
The Court isn't saying we're not allowed to present evidence of noncompliance as it relates to issues that would have impacted medical care and treatment decisions of the healthcare providers; correct?
THE COURT: I'm saying that if it relates to why there might be an infection, you can talk about it. If it relates to whether or not she told the husband or the Air Force, that's irrelevant. I'm not going to allow you to go into that, so don't go there.
As to -- I think it is a questionable relevance whether she drove herself home from the procedure or not. But perhaps you can fill me in on why that might present a problem.

15

MR. JONES: In your statement about whether or not she told her husband, it absolutely has to do with medical care and treatment because the records discuss and the testimony discusses how the patient was instructed to have someone at home to take care of her.
If she didn't even tell her husband -- in fact, the evidence will show --
THE COURT: Well, I'm granting the motion in limine with respect to that. I think I find that rather strange, Counsel, and a very peculiar argument.
MR. JONES: I'm not sure I'm understanding what the Court is saying. Peculiar that she didn't tell her husband?
THE COURT: I find this discussion peculiar.
Before you even get into it, I'm going to grant the motion in limine with respect to that. Before you get into it, if it becomes relevant on particular testimony, we can revisit it outside the presence of the jury --
MR. JONES: Very good, Your Honor.
THE COURT: -- so that I can get the benefit of hearing from the physician why or why not that would be important.

16

MR. JONES: Okay. Now, with respect to the issue involving other infections, we provided the Court with information regarding the opinions of the plaintiff's own expert on the importance of other infections and how he testified in his deposition. And it's in our brief that he said that was the very best evidence; the very best evidence of whether or not someone is having problems with their sanitizing, disinfecting, sterilization procedures, is whether or not they are having issues with other infections.
And so, I guess, for the benefit of making sure --
THE COURT: But you didn't have that -- you had that work done by personnel working for the defendant, just pulling files and looking to see if they had any notations about infection.
You either limit it on time. I mean, we're talking about a risk of extremely collateral information. So refine it, and tell me what you're talking about.
Are we talking about that day?
MR. JONES: We can talk about that day. We can talk about the week before, the week after. We can talk about -- and we have data --

17

THE COURT: The week after is irrelevant, so don't bother with the week after.

MR. JONES: Actually, Your Honor, the infectious disease guy will talk about how --

THE COURT: Well, he will not.

MR. JONES: Well, the week after, if you would allow him to, he would talk about how you want to look at the time period. Do you have --

THE COURT: No, you're not allowed to -- you may not go into the week after the accident.

Fill me in on the day of, the week before. Fill me in on your theory on that.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, there's two parts to it. The first is what the plaintiff's own expert said, where he said that was the best evidence to consider the infection issues.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. JONES: And so, whether or not we would offer testimony, we should be able to at least address, through the plaintiff's own expert, issues associated with his opinion. His opinion being that the best evidence in the case is to whether or not Dr. Kerr and his clinic are doing what they're supposed to do, is to look at either the presence of or absence of infections in other cases. So there's that aspect of it.

THE COURT: Um-hmm.

MR. JONES: Secondly, you have, from an infectious disease standpoint, what they look at and consider for purposes of evaluating whether or not a facility has problems with their infection control. They look at infection rates and look at that data.

As far as who gathered the information, Dr. Kerr has testified in his deposition regarding his knowledge, personally, of his own infection rates. And he should be able to testify regarding his knowledge, as opposed to concerns about, for example, a non-physician looking at the charts, which I understand is one of the concerns. So there's another avenue, I guess, in terms of utilizing Dr. Kerr's testimony on that basis.

But we take the position that because of the plaintiff's own expert testimony on that issue, at the very least Dr. Kerr's knowledge of his own infection rates, that that data ought to be something that should be considered by the jury when they're being asked in this case to evaluate the sterilization procedures, cleaning procedures, things of that nature.

THE COURT: Um-hmm. Well, I can see how if the plaintiff's expert were to testify in that fashion, then there could be some relevance to problems that day or problems in the immediate time period proceeding. But, as a general rule, one doesn't get into the absence of other accidents in establishing whether there was or was not negligence on a particular occasion.

And so it sounds to me like that, again, is probably one that we should revisit once we have an opportunity to hear the testimony. And it sounds to me that would be reasonable to revisit again.

Just draw my attention to it prior to bringing out the evidence. We'll exclude the jury, because it sounds to me that could have some relevance. In particular, that's what an expert in the field would rely on, then I think that it could be an appropriate area, provided it's limited to day of and time period immediately proceeding.

It could be relevant without leading us into too many collateral matters. But I think it would be prudent to have that discussion outside the presence of the jury, since the absence of other injuries, as a rule, is not viewed as relevant.

So I'll revisit that one, if you'll -- when you get ready to -- when you feel it has reached the point where it may be relevant for some purpose, just draw my attention to it. We'll excuse the jury, and we'll discuss it.

MR. JONES: So, for the purposes of opening statements, we should avoid that topic?

THE COURT: For opening statements, I would avoid it, because I think it's fair to say they followed proper practice. They did what was reasonable and required. And that's not, in their view, why anything occurred. And I think that's fair.

But to get more -- the risk of collateral evidence becomes rather high. And the fact that generally absence of other accidents is not admissible is also playing a role in my feeling that the preferred practice would be to just draw my attention to it, we'll have an extensive discussion outside the presence of the jury, and I'll revisit it. Because then I'll have the benefit of hearing the testimony that may have made it both relevant and admissible.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, I understand your directive. I just want to make sure that the Court understands that part of the dilemma that even revisiting that has is: We've never been supplied the information upon which, allegedly, there was no other infections, other than anecdotally by the defendants.

THE COURT: You were never given access to all of the other records that show there was no infection?

MR. HADDAD: I'm sorry, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Are you telling me you were never given that --

MR. HADDAD: No. We asked for it. As soon as they supplemented with the interrogatory answer, we asked the defendants, "We need the records that went into the summary so we can analyze that." They did not respond to that.

We then re-noticed Mrs. Kerr, because she was a 30(b)6, and said, "Bring those records with her." They told us we were untimely and refused to produce them.

THE COURT: All right. Well, in that case, I will definitely bar this in limine. And I will not revisit it, until we have a discussion outside the presence of the jury. And do not refer to it during opening statements. And we'll revisit it in its entirety, should the necessity arise.

But the lack of disclosure of data underlying the summary presents a separate and considerably more serious problem.

MR. JONES: I'll reserve my response on that issue, because there are more --

THE COURT: Yeah, I'll let you respond more fully on that.

MR. JONES: Yeah. Moving on, Your Honor, to the defense motions in limine.

THE COURT: Yes, and I think I granted some of those. So let me pull my notes up.

I granted your motion about whether complaints have been filed against any of your treating physicians. Complaints aren't evidence. So in your Motion in Limine No. 1, that's -- your motion is granted.

With respect to Motion in Limine No. 2, your position is correct. Your motion in limine is granted.

Your position with respect to Motion in Limine No. 3 is well taken. Your motion is granted.

23

Your position on Motion in Limine No. 4 is correct. Your motion in limine is granted.

Your -- I don't see a motion in limine level of problem with respect to No. 5.

And, in general, with respect to your Motion in Limine No. 6, neither side is usually permitted to argue the societal broad impacts of a particular decision in a particular case, as opposed to focusing on the case itself and the facts of the case.

So I didn't quite -- your No. 5, I suppose that it could be relevant that they had a friendly relationship with counsel, defense counsel. I suppose that would be fair. I have a hunch they have an answer for that. I don't think that rises to the level of an in limine concern.

MR. JONES: I understand. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Was there anything else on that? I think I pretty much granted your motions.

What else?

MR. JONES: You did, Your Honor. I want to digress only to the motion regarding cumulative nature of the testimony.

24

I don't know if I need to respond, given the Court's comments. We did argue this on July 10th. And I believe our testimony -- or the argument that I made at that point would again apply. I think the judge can take this up witness by witness, topic by topic.

THE COURT: I think I will take it up when it arises. I don't think it would be appropriate to allow extensive cumulative testimony. And it taxes a jury a great deal. And when they tend to resent that, it doesn't benefit either party.

But I think it's something that should be addressed with an objection made and after we've gotten into the testimony. And I don't think I can rule on it in any sensible fashion by way of an in limine motion.

I am not troubled by the fact that maybe more than one physician would have to talk to the same person to identify what the local standard of care is. And I don't think, in and of itself, that makes the testimony improperly cumulative.

So I'm deferring any ruling on cumulative testimony, until it appears to me that there is cumulative testimony. And then I will welcome an objection by either side, if the testimony has become unduly cumulative.

MR. JONES: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Now, what exhibits? You have stipulated to some?

MR. MCKAY: We have. Before we get into that, Your Honor, would it be possible to raise one issue with respect to the defense motions in limine? And that is --

THE COURT: Yes, one issue is fine.

MR. MCKAY: Okay. And that's the second part of their motion dealing with instances where defense experts have previously been sued.

And this is an issue that we just recently discovered. And it concerns one of their standard of care experts, Dr. Lawrence, the fellow who was also criminally indicted.

Dr. Lawrence testified at his deposition, he was asked how many times has he been named as a defendant. And testifies to two instances where he had been named, one where he was named among a bunch of other physicians where he was acting as the --

THE COURT: Who asked the question, you did?

MR. MCKAY: It was Mr. Haddad.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MCKAY: And the second case was part of his obstetrical practice. And it was some time ago. And he indicated the hospital was sued, the hospital settled, and then he was dismissed out of it.

What he didn't mention was that there was a current suit where he is named.

THE COURT: And what would be the relevance of this, Counsel?

MR. MCKAY: That he testified at his deposition that he had only been sued twice, when, in fact, he has an ongoing lawsuit where he has just recently given a deposition. It's not some matter that he --

THE COURT: Well, the question, "Have you ever been sued," to me, is not a proper question, anyway. Because when you're talking about somebody suing someone, you're saying their opinion is that somebody else did something that's negligent. That's hearsay. You're not going to bring in this out-of-court declarant to say, "This is my basis." Plus, it gets you into collateral trial, and it's not a permissible question.

Now, it's an acceptable deposition question. And so I think that would certainly be in the range of things that a person might normally inquire in a deposition. But it's not a relevant trial question.

MR. MCKAY: We would not ask the question. We would not revisit the issue with him to suggest that because he had been sued this third time, that it somehow suggests that he's not qualified to render an opinion on the standard of care.

The issue is more that he didn't tell the truth at the deposition when he was asked about it, and asked very, very clearly about it.

THE COURT: Well, I'm not going to permit it. I don't think it's permissible. It's somebody else's opinion about whether he did or did not do something that was negligent. It involves collateral matters. And it's not admissible impeachment.

MR. MCKAY: Okay. All right. And you have ruled also that the information that we have about Dr. O'Neil's various disciplinary matters in this state and in California --

THE COURT: That's correct.

MR. MCKAY: -- is not admissible?

THE COURT: That's correct.

28

MR. MCKAY: All right. Thank you.

(Opening arguments of counsel.)

(The proceedings adjourned.)

MR. McKAY: I haven't moved the admission of 38.

MR. QUANE: Oh.

THE COURT: Actually, you did. You did move 38.

MR. McKAY: I'm sorry. I did and I intended to move it. I'm sorry. I misspoke.

THE COURT: All right. Now, you had other issues to bring up.

MR. McKAY: Right. Our first witness this morning is an economist. We have moved in limine to forbid opposing counsel from inquiring, speculating about the possibility that Mr. Ballard might someday remarry.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. McKAY: And we don't think that is an appropriate subject of examination, and we wanted to cover that with the Court to the extent defense counsel is intending to do that. And I'll present further argument on that.

THE COURT: Well, it's not necessary to present further argument on it. Both sides very thoroughly briefed the issue. And rather than relying on a 1982 Michigan case, I'm going to rely on the 1991 Idaho case, Westfall versus Caterpillar, Incorporated. 120 Idaho 918, 821 P2d 973(1991). The case that sets forth the law in Idaho.

I informally polled my colleagues to see if anybody had been tempted to stray by existing Idaho law. And it was advised that none had been tempted nor had done so. So I am going to hold to existing Idaho precedent Westfall versus Caterpillar, Incorporated.

I will grant the motion in limine and under no circumstances whatsoever can a party refer to any possibility of remarriage nor to anything of that sort. There will be no evidence allowed of any potential remarriage by Mr. Ballard, period.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, may I make a point on the record for that?

THE COURT: Well, you already did in your motion. You did a very thorough job in your briefing. So you are preserved in terms of your objection.

MR. JONES: Very well, Your Honor, just so the record is clear that we disagree respectfully.

THE COURT: And I think it's quite clear and I thought it was a very thorough job, but I am sticking with Idaho precedent. It's clear. It's established. And it has some solid reasoning that still appears to be good solid reasoning, but whether it was solid reasoning or not, which it happens to be in this case, I would still be bound to follow it because it is existing Idaho law. I'm the trial judge. That's my obligation.

MR. QUANE: Could I have one point of clarification, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. QUANE: Does it -- does the prohibition apply only to remarriage or divorce? What -- I need to know exactly what the prohibition relates to and I don't understand that yet.

MR. McKAY: Is counsel suggesting that he would argue or question the economist about this couple getting a divorce?

THE COURT: Well, it's not -- I'm barring that. There will be no evidence. There will be no question. There will be no discussion of that. And if I have to grant a mistrial, I'm granting all witness costs and all attorney fees costs against anybody who causes it.

MR. QUANE: Well, all I need to know, judge, is what does the prohibition apply specifically to. That's all I'm asking. Remarriage?

THE COURT: And any -- it covers remarriage, and it covers all the speculation about all of the change, any change as a result of the death. Because the reasoning behind Idaho law is what the plaintiffs had a right to expect to receive from the party during their life and that is a loss for which they are to be compensated. What they get after the death of a person who has been taken, does not enter into the case.

So the law spoke of the taking away of that which they would have received had the person lived, the destruction of their expectations in that regard. And that is what the law bars that -- appears that Idaho also follows a majority rule with respect to this.

MR. QUANE: Now, I'm just trying to understand what the prohibition is so I don't invade it. I have to know what it is. Would it prohibit, for instance, the loss of his position in the Air Force as a possibility that would affect the economic analysis?

First, what if the Air Force downsized?

THE COURT: All right. That is undue speculation. I won't permit it. I think that unduly speculative. You largely look at the circumstances and expectations as of the date of death. And all the -- and I don't think there's any purpose in asking the jury to speculate about all the things that are simply possible for anybody to know about. There is always an element of uncertainty in certain kinds of damages for wrong death, but it is the loss of the companionship and support that they are talking about.

So, I don't think that speculating about Mr. Ballard might find his position downsized is relevant. I don't think that would be an appropriate area of inquiry.

MR. QUANE: What about -- what about -- the economist will say, according to him, Mr. Ballard had a life expectancy of so many years.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. QUANE: Well, does that take into account, for instance, if he dies within 20 years, as an element that would be contrary to the assumption he would live 20 more years? The questions like that on cross-examination?

THE COURT: Just a moment.

MR. McKAY: Your Honor, if I may respond?

THE COURT: I don't need you to respond. I don't see speculating what a third party might do like whether the Air Force will or will not downsize is worth consuming jury time because I think that is undue speculation.

And there will not be anyone on the planet who could truthfully answer the question about whether the Air Force will or will not downsize. But it is proper -- it is proper for you to discuss his occupation, health habits, and other activities. And so it is proper to discuss things like -- it would be proper to discuss those things that relate to his health habits and other activities which would mean that the standard mortality table would have to be adjusted in his particular case. That is a fair area of inquiry.

Now, as far as speculating about whether the Air Force might downsize, I think that is unduly speculative. On the other hand, there are already existing requirements about standards that people have to meet, what are existing factors that play into whether a person can make their full career in the military.

And to the extent that it relates to what exists now, and affects a person's ability to stay in their full career, then occupation, health habits, and other activities are permissible areas to inquire into.

MR. QUANE: Just for clarification, I anticipate, having been through this many times, that the economic expert will say these are his economic losses based on the assumption he will continue to be in the military service for a designated period of time and he will live that long. He is assuming that for the purpose of his calculations.

What I have done in the past and been permitted to do is say, "Well, you don't take into account the variables that what you are assuming may not come to pass." Because it's his assumption.

THE COURT: All right. It is his assumption. And there are existing variables that play a role into whether a person can make a full career in the military.

Now, I'm not as familiar as -- and I'm generally familiar with the fact that there are existing requirements that play into whether you can keep going on in the military. But I just don't I think to speculate about whether or not there might be a downsizing in the future, would need to be more finely -- would have to be a more refined condition.

MR. QUANE: Well, I'm not asking him to speculate on that. I'm just saying, "Does your assumption take into account the assumption that he will always be in the military for the length of time you project for your economic losses?"

THE COURT: Right.

MR. QUANE: And he will probably say, "Statistically yes, but not as it pertains to Mr. Ballard."

THE COURT: Right. It's fair to inquire about his occupation, health habits, and other activities that will play a direct role in his life expectancy. That is fair to inquire into. But as to remarriage, you can --

MR. QUANE: I understand the remarriage. There is no doubt about that. That was the motion in limine was remarriage.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. QUANE: I understand that perfectly. I won't mention that ever.

THE COURT: Okay. And I don't think the other area outside that approach is in limine, the approach is in limine level. So if counsel does have an objection, they need to make the objection.

MR. QUANE: Okay. Fine.

THE COURT: That does -- I am saying I do think that to speculate what a third party would do -- to speculate what congress would do about military funding is such an endless guessing game.

MR. QUANE: I'm not going to ask him to speculate. I'm just going to say, "You assume this --

THE COURT: Right.

MR. QUANE: -- per your calculation. Have you taken account other reasons why your calculation may be erroneous?"

THE COURT: Sure. That is fair.

MR. QUANE: That kind of approach is all I am saying.

THE COURT: That's all right, and council can make an objection if they think it's over -- but I don't think that approaches an in limine level where the remarriage issue is settled in Idaho.

All right. Well, hopefully (name redacted) -- I will tell you that (name redacted)

MR. QUANE: It isn't malpractice?
THE COURT: He said if everything were perfect.
MR. QUANE: It wouldn't be malpractice?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. QUANE: Okay. If he said that, that's what I'm asking him.
THE COURT: That's what he said.
MR. QUANE: And that was part of my question.
MR. HADDAD: Objection.
Q. BY MR. QUANE: You agree?
A. Yes.
Q. Does all surgery to some extent or another relate -- result in an inflammatory response? Let me shoot out ophthalmology surgery.
A. I think any time you cut the body, there's an inflammatory response.
Q. Isn't it true that just because there's bacteria present in an area, that doesn't mean the patient is infected?
MR. HADDAD: Objection, asked and answered.
MR. QUANE: I haven't asked that one.
THE COURT: Sustained. You have covered this topic, Counsel.

68

MR. QUANE: Pardon?
THE COURT: You have covered this topic.
MR. QUANE: I asked that question?
THE COURT: Yes, you have.
MR. QUANE: Oh, okay. I didn't think I had.
Q. BY MR. QUANE: Is -- let me ask you this: Do you subscribe to the view that under the best of circumstances and the highest degree of quality of care in performing surgery that infections can occur?
MR. HADDAD: Objection, asked and answered.
MR. QUANE: He hasn't answered that -- the way I worded that.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE COURT: I'm going to let the answer stand. I do think you covered this multiple times.
MR. QUANE: Well, I talked about equipment before.
THE COURT: All right.
Q. BY MR. QUANE: And when you gave your opinion, Doctor, isn't it true that you were assuming that bacteria did enter her body during Dr. Kerr's proceeding?
A. Yes.

69

Q. And you're assuming that, aren't you?
A. Yes.
Q. And it's an assumption on your part?
A. Yes.
Q. In your opinion is an assumption tantamount to conjecture?
A. I have no -- I don't know how to discriminate between those two words.
Q. They mean the same, don't they?
A. I don't know, Counselor.
THE COURT: Counsel, I think that's unduly argumentative. Please ask your next question.
Q. BY MR. QUANE: Isn't it true, Doctor, in your opinion that there's no proof by any means of the fact at the time of the surgery by Kerr that these gram negative bacteria went into her body, is there?
A. No.
Q. Not a dime's worth of proof, is there?
MR. HADDAD: Objection, argumentative, asked and answered.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. QUANE: But you agree that's your opinion?
MR. QUANE: Objection, asked and answered.

70

THE COURT: Sustain the objection. It has been asked and answered.
MR. QUANE: Oh, okay.
Q. BY MR. QUANE: You would agree, would you not, that Dr. Kerr is in a better position than you to know more about Crystal Ballard and what he did than you do?
MR. HADDAD: Objection, goes to the weight, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled.
MR. QUANE: I did not hear the answer because of that. I did not hear it, Judge, because he interrupted.
THE COURT: All right. You can state your answer again.
THE WITNESS: Counselor, he has to know more than I do about his own patient.
Q. BY MR. QUANE: Right. Does the term in medicine prophylaxis have a meaning?
A. Yes.
Q. What does it mean?
A. It means preventative.
Q. Does the term etiology in medicine have a meaning?
A. Yes.

I have been out of state on other matters. I see you sent out a notice of depo for Ms. Kerr for tomorrow. In addition to your notice being untimely, please be advised she will not be attending. Neither the witness nor Jerry are available in addition to which this witness has already been deposed and we object to producing her again. I am covering the depo of Dr. Laurence tomorrow while Jerry is out of state on other matters. You will need to take up the issue of obtaining a further depo of Ms. Kerr with the court consistent with Jerry's correspondence to you on this issue. I am working on getting the file for Dr. Laurence emailed to you later today so you will have it in advance of tomorrow. Please note that we also object to the breadth of your depo notice for Dr. Laurence and the limited time we have had to try and respond. We will do our best to have the requested information.

Case No. CV OC 1204792 CERTIFICATION OF DEFENSE COUNSEL PER THE AMENDED NOTICE OF TRIAL SETTING AND ORDER GOVERNING FURTHER PROCEEDINGS DATED SEPTEMBER 9, 2013

Undersigned counsel for the Defendants hereby certifies that the Court ordered exchange of information conference with counsel for the Plaintiff was conducted

October 22, 2013 and that a discussion was held on matters specified by Rules 16(a) and 16(b), I.R.C.P. and the attorneys for the parties engaged in an exchange of information. The subject of settlement or alternate dispute resolution was brought up by Defense counsel and discussed. For the first time in the history of the case, counsel for the Plaintiff said that his client would agree to mediation, even though the trial is scheduled to start November 5, 2013. Defense counsel had to decline the untimely suggestion of mediation due to the date the trial was to start, the impossibility of arranging mediation on such short notice and the fact that the bulk of the trial preparations had been completed and that defense counsel would be completely occupied with continued trial preparations.

CONSULTATION

SURGICAL CONSULT

CONSULTING FOR:
Dr. Fujii, critical care.

CHIEF COMPLAINT:
Sepsis, ARDS, hypotension, status post liposuction and transplantof fat to the buttocks.

HISTORY OF PRESENT ILLNESS:
This is a 27-year-old black female who apparently underwent liposuction with transplantation of the fat from the anterior abdominal wall to the buttocks on both sides. This apparently occurred on 07/21/2010. She apparently had it done at a MediSpa somewhere. Apparently they contacted a physician several times and subsequently she became increasingly ill on Friday, complaining of increasing pain in the transplantation site on her buttocks. She had no drainage from any of the wounds. She did not have a fever, no chills and apparently yesterday apparently passed out and early this morning was taken to the Elmore Emergency Room where she was seen and evaluated and subsequently transferred here. She arrived here at approximately 7:20 this morning and after a vigorous resuscitation she barely had a blood pressure, had significant findings on her chest x-ray and her CT is consistent with significant RDS in both lower lobes posteriorly. The patient had marked hypoxemia with a pO2 in the 40s and was admitted to the Coronary Care Unit by Dr. Fujii and she asked me if I would evaluate the patient. CT also showed that she has some stranding in the anterior abdominal wall anterior to the fascia consistent with her liposuction. She also has some subcutaneous air in the left posterior buttocks area in the soft tissues, but not in the muscle itself and not associated with the fascia according to my review of films.

LABORATORY VALUES:
In Elmore, showed a WBC of 14.7. Her hemoglobin was 10.3 and her hematocrit was 32.0. She had 189,000 platelets. She had 92 segs, 5 lymphs and 3 monos. Her CK-MB was 3.2. Her myoglobin was 277 and her T and I was 0.079 and her CK was 51. Again inconsistent with a necrotizing fasciitis. Her sodium is 142, potassium is 3.4, chloride is 102, her CO2 was 13, glucose was 93, BUN was 31, creatinine was 3.2. Her albumin was low at 2.4, total bilirubin was 1. Her total protein is 6.2 and her globulin was 3.8. Her alk phos was 73, AST was 19, ALT was 24. Her blood gas from the Elmore Emergency Room showed a pH of 6.99. Her pCO2 was 36. Her pO2 was 21 and her base excess was -22 and her bicarbonate was 8.7. Her O2 saturation, and her O2 saturation was minimal. She was seen in the Intensive Care Unit.

Patient: BALLARD, KRYSTAL
EMPI: 4828667

CONSULTATION

Chest x-ray from Elmore County shows bronchitis and bibasilar subsegmental atelectasis or scarring, minimal superimposed pneumonitis, aspiration of bronchiolitis not excluded and findings possibly a similar fat emboli syndrome. The patient is on a ventilator in the Intensive Care Unit.

OBJECTIVE:
VITAL SIGNS: Blood pressure at the time of my arrival is 105/60, heart rate in the 120s. Her O2 sat is not reading. CVP is 18. She does have a left femoral arterial line in.
HEENT: Shows that her pupils are sluggish and equal. She has bilateral mild proptosis and her sclerae are unremarkable. I see no petechial hemorrhages in and around the area of the sclerae or the upper and lower lids.
NECK: Supple, nontender, no step-offs or deformities. She has no jugular venous distension.
LUNGS: Clear to auscultation and percussion. Breath sounds are bilateral and equal in the upper lobes and marked rales in both bases. The cardiac exam shows a rapid rate and rhythm without murmurs or gallops.
CARDIAC: Echocardiogram done at the time of my evaluation shows that she has markedly hypokinetic segments in the apex and in both ventricles with an ejection fraction estimated by the tache at around 17-20%.
ABDOMEN: She has 4 Steri-Strips wounds in the anterior abdomen, 2 on each side with no subcutaneous emphysema or crepitance or redness or any sign of infection.
EXTREMITIES: Her extremities show 1+ edema times all four extremities.
BUTTOCKS: The patient's buttocks show 2 wounds 1 on the posterior superior iliac crest on each side with no crepitance to the subcutaneous tissue. No evidence of redness or inflammation and no drainage from the insertion sites for the fat transplants. The patient's current blood gas shows a pH of 6.84. Her pCO2 is 42. Her pCO2 is 38 and she has a bicarbonate of 7.2. Her calcium is 0.77 in ionized performed. Her O2 sat is 30%. The patient's EKGs are essentially show slight ST elevation in all leads.

IMPRESSION:
This most likely represents an unfortunate young black female who underwent liposuction with subsequent transplant of the fat into the buttocks on both sides 4 days ago. She now has what appears to be a probable fat emboli syndrome with significant ARDS, massive hypoxemia, unresponsive to ventilator modes from a surgical standpoint, I feel in light of the ejection fraction of 17% and a marked hypoxemia and a marginal cardiac output that she would not tolerate a trip to the Operating Room. I doubt very seriously that this represents necrotizing fasciitis in light of the CT scan, which only shows a small amount of air and no fluid anterior and/or posterior to the fascia in the buttocks. I have discussed these findings with Dr. Fujii, and will be available to continue to follow the patient and should there be any surgical needs.

DEPOSITION

OF

DEAN E. SORENSEN, M.D., F.A.C.S.

AUGUST 21, 2013

REPORTED BY:

BARBARA BURKE, CSR No. 463

Notary Public

A. Pneumonia is an infection. Prostatitis is an infection. Bladders have infections.

Q. In your opinion, am I covered with bacteria -- my skin?

A. Outside and inside.

Q. I'm covered with it, aren't I?

A. Of course.

Q. Am I infected?

A. No. There're symbiotic.

Q. Pardon?

A. They're symbiotic. They're there to help you -- and you help them in many cases, for example.

Q. So just because there's bacteria present, that doesn't mean I'm infected?

A. No.

Q. Well, that's what I'm getting at.

So, in that context, what does infection mean?

A. I would say that infection -- are you talking about any infection with or without surgery?

Q. I'm talking about in order to classify something -- some process as an infection, does it require more than just the presence of bacteria?

A. Sure. It requires a response to it. I mentioned those responses.

Q. So part of the definition then of "infection" quality of care in performing surgery, that infections can occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you think that infection is the primary nightmare of surgeons --

A. No.

Q. -- for postoperative complications?

A. No.

Q. Where does it rank, in your opinion, number two?

A. Well, it gets up there, but I think bleeding because it's more life-threatening would be one that you would think of first, you know.

Q. Okay.

A. And then infection is in there, but, you know, they're uncommon, so it needs to be mentioned and dealt with, but, you know, today we do so much to prevent it that it's one of the reasons it's rare.

I can go into detail if you want me to.

Q. Well, even if it's rare, under the best of circumstances and care it sometimes can't be prevented?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. We were talking earlier about your knowledge of infections, and we discussed some things that go to your so-called "expertise," if any, with infections, and we didn't mention bacterial organisms.

autopsy, in part, because that's what they saw.

Q. But it's an assumption, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. There's no proof by any means of the fact at the time of the surgery these gram-negative bacteria went into her body, is there?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Have you formed an opinion as to what is the best evidence that a doctor utilizes appropriate sterile conditions during surgery, disinfectant procedures with equipment, operating room, and the entire area where the procedure is done, cleansing of instruments -- what's the best proof that that is being done appropriately? What would be the best proof?

A. I think lack of complications would be the best answer.

Q. Right. Did you ever hold any committee assignments or positions at St. Luke's -- or ever?

A. You know, yes, but it's been so long ago, I can't remember. You know, I did a lot stuff I just don't remember.

Q. Okay. Let's say the last five years. Have you held any --

A. Do you mean chairmanships or just being on a committee?

Case No. CV OC 1204792

AFFIDAVIT OF TERRENCE S. JONES IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

STATE OF IDAHO)
: ss.
County of Ada)

Terrence S. Jones, having been first duly sworn upon oath, deposes and says:

1). I am a member of the law firm of Quane Jones McColl, PLLC, attorneys of record for Defendants in the above-captioned action, and the following statements are made of my own personal knowledge and are true and correct.

2). On Wednesday, November 13, I met with Dr. Geoffrey Stiller, one of our expert witnesses in this case for purposes of further preparing for trial. At the start of our meeting I informed Dr. Stiller of the Court's rulings on the Motions in Limine, specifically including the order regarding testimony and proof of other patient infections. I informed Dr. Stiller that per the Court's order, we would need to address this issue outside the presence of the jury first in order to get approval and that until that approval was given, no testimony in front of the jury on that issue could be given. Dr. Stiller indicated he understood this admonition.

3). I renewed this instruction and admonition to Dr. Stiller the morning of Thursday, November 14 both in my office during a second meeting and then a third time at the courthouse just prior to Dr. Stiller taking the stand. This issue was discussed in connection with my outline with Dr. Stiller for how the testimony would be presented so that I could timely request a break to address the issue with the court. On each of these occasions I reminded Dr. Stiller that the Motion in Limine issues, including the absence of infections involving other patients, was an issue that the court had said could not be presented to the jury without first bringing it up with her outside the jury to see if the Court would agree that such evidence and testimony should be allowed.

4). This was the very reason that I informed the court at the start of Dr. Stiller's testimony that morning that I had a matter that we would need to bring up later that day outside the presence of the jury. My questions leading up to as well as the answer given by Dr. Stiller were not intended to elicit a response which violated the Court's Orders in limine. This is why I asked the Court prior to the lunch recess for the opportunity to review precisely what was stated by the witness because I did not then, nor do I now, believe that Dr. Stiller had rendered testimony which ran afoul of the Court's order. As the transcript submitted reflects, I was never given an opportunity to address the court or make any sort of record following the lunch recess.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

AFFIDAVIT OF DR. GEOFFREY D. STILLER

STATE OF IDAHO)
: ss.
County of LATAH)

Geoffrey D. Stiller, M.D., having been first duly sworn upon oath, deposes and says:

1). The matters and facts specified and recited herein are based on your Affiant's actual personal knowledge and are true and accurate.

2). I was retained by counsel for the Defendants to act as an expert witness in this case and in that capacity I gave testimony on November 14, 2013 at the trial of this case. I have been provided with the attached Court Reporter's partial transcript of proceedings for my testimony on November 14, 2013 that is accurate and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief. In the afternoon of November 13, 2013 I met with attorney Terrence Jones in his office in connection with preparations for my trial testimony. At the beginning of our meeting, Mr. Jones informed me of the Court Order which precluded me from offering any testimony at trial regarding or related to the lack of prior infections of Dr. Kerr with other patients of his. The following morning, November 14, 2013 at his office, Mr. Jones repeated this admonition to me and he did so again on November 14, 2013 at the courthouse shortly before I took the witness stand to testify. On each of these occasions, Mr. Jones told me the Judge had said that I must not testify, in the presence of the jury, that Dr. Ker had not had any infections with other patients without first bringing the issue up outside the jury to see if the Judge would allow such testimony by me. I understood completely these instructions of Mr. Jones. Before November 13, 2013, I had been provided with and reviewed the medical records of Elmore Medical Center, Dr. Kerr, Silk Touch Laser, Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, Dr. Campbell, Dr. Olson, Dr. Morgan and Dr. Fujii. The records of Dr. Kerr and Silk Touch Laser, reflect that there is no evidence of infection of Krystal Ballard on either July 21, 2010 or July 23, 2010. The records of Elmore Medical Center and Dr. Olson reflect that there is no evidence of infection of Krystal Ballard on July 25, 2010. The records of Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, Dr. Campbell and Dr. Morgan reflect that there is no evidence of infection of Krystal Ballard on July 25, 2010 and July 26, 2010. Based on these records, it is my opinion that Krystal Ballard did not have infection on the dates reflected in these records and I was going to testify to this until my testimony on November 14, 20130 was terminated. None of the questions and my answers leading up to the last question asked of me and my partial incomplete answer involved or related to the absence of any prior infections of patients of Dr. Kerr. The questions asked of me, page 22 of the Court Report transcript, are:

> Q. All right, do you have an opinion in this case whether or not the gram negative bacteria found on Krystal Ballard came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr?
>
> A. I do have an opinion.
>
> Q. What is your opinion?
>
> A. That that is incorrect.
>
> Q. What is your opinion based on?

> A. In order, well there's multiple different ways of looking at it. As far as the process of sterilization, we know that a chemical marker was done so we've reached sterilization as far as the temperature is concerned as long as the machine basically said that it was adequate time. All the autoclave machines will have a register on it saying whether it has reached adequate time or not. So by that definition it's been sterilized. Okay. Spore counts don't matter. It's gram negative, okay. When you look at the process of liposuction and removing all of that tissue, and then injecting it back in, a far as it being done sterily, a gram negative rod coming from the colon to the uria or from one of his equipment, I don't see how it can happen. >
> The Court: Sustained and we'll address it.

3). The foregoing questions and answers pertain solely to Krystal

Ballard and whether the gram negative bacteria from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr. They do not ask for or involve prior infections of other patients of Dr. Kerr. The part of the answer to the last question, "let alone the fact of...that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office" is in reference to Krystal Ballard only and responsive to the last question. It means, in the opinion of Dr. Stiller, what he meant by this answer was the fact that Krystal Ballard had no infections pertinent or persistent in the office of Dr. Kerr. The word persistent means enduring, permanent, continuous, and has no relationship to prior infections or their absence of Dr. Kerr. This answer refers to the fact that Krystal Ballard was not infected when Dr. Kerr operated on July 21, 2010, evaluated Krystal Ballard on July 23, 2010, and the records of the subsequent treating physicians of Krystal Ballard of no evidence of infection. The word persistent does not mean or even imply anything to do with facts and events occurring before July 21, 2010 and the answer to the question is specifically in reference to Krystal Ballard and no one else.

4). The answer of your affiant was made in regard to Krystal Ballard and her lack of infection and did not violate the instructions received from Mr. Jones or the Court Order explained by Mr. Jones.

FURTHER your Affiant saith not.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

I. Introduction

This matter comes before the Court on Plaintiff's Motion made pursuant to Rule 37(e) seeking various sanctions against the Defense following the Court's grant of a mistrial on November 14, 2013. Plaintiff goes to great lengths to cast aspersions upon Defense counsel associated with the mistrial, however, the transcript of what actually transpired in this case which is provided along with this memorandum speaks volumes to the contrary. The Court granted the Plaintiff's Motion for a mistrial based on the perceived belief that one of the Defense witnesses, Dr. Geoffrey Stiller, had made statements in answer to Defense counsel questioning in violation of the Court Order in Limine regarding lack of prior infections involving other patients.

After excusing the jury, the Court promptly questioned both Defense counsel, Terry Jones, and the witness on the stand about whether notice of the Court's Order had been relayed to the witness so as to avoid improperly addressing various issues in front of the jury without approval from the Court. As will be outlined below, the Court heard from the witness on the stand confirm that he, indeed, was told by Defense counsel on more than one occasion that he needed to avoid discussing certain topics until the matter could be addressed outside the presence of the jury. Even more telling, however, is the actual transcript of what was said by the witness which demonstrates that at no time did he run afoul of the Court's Order. As a result, there was no valid basis to grant the mistrial based on what Dr. Stiller testified to and/or the preceding question advanced by Defense counsel. The Court should therefore decline to enter an award of any sanctions against the Defendants and their counsel and reconsider and reverse its Order granting and declaring a mistrial.

II. Factual background

This case proceeded to trial on November 5, 2013. Per the pleadings, Plaintiff was represented by three different law firms including Scott McKay as local counsel from Boise, Gregory Haddad from West Virginia and James Perrine from Alabama, both admitted pro hac vice. The Defendants were represented by one firm, with Jeremiah Quane and Terry Jones appearing as counsel of record. At the start of the trial, the Court took up the various motions in limine filed by the parties. The transcript of the Court's hearing on this issue is attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions as Exhibit D. As discussed in greater detail below, the Court granted and denied various motions in limine after stating that several of the Motions did not qualify as motions in limine and the issues they embodied would therefore have to be addressed during the trial when the issue came up.

The Court then allowed the parties to proceed with voir dire during which time the Court asked the prospective jury panel various initial questions regarding knowledge of the parties and witnesses, juror schedules, etc. before allowing the attorneys to question the remaining panel members. The Court made the decision to have only one alternate juror. The Court's Amended Scheduling Order dated September 9, 2013 specifically states this case was expected to continue for ten days. See Court's Amended Scheduling Order attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions as Exhibit B. By the wording of this Order, that meant that the trial in this case was expected to run for ten trial days or through November 20, 2013, taking into account weekends and Mondays when no trial would be held. On this basis, the Defense scheduled its witnesses for trial, estimating as best as possible when it might be able to start its case in chief. Keeping in mind the Amended Court Scheduling Order for ten trial days, the defense scheduled and planned its witnesses, lay and expert, to complete its case as scheduled within the time frame established by the Court.

Early on in the trial on November 8, the trial was stalled when Juror No. 11 failed to show that morning. The parties waited over two hours for the juror during which time the Court informed the parties that officials had been sent looking for Juror No. 11 at his work and home. Unable to find him, the Court ultimately excused Juror No. 11 after which the case proceeded with only twelve jurors. It was later disclosed to the attorneys by the Court that Juror No. 11 had been erroneously sent a notice by the jury commissioner stating that he was no longer needed. In other words, it was an error of the jury commissioner's office which resulted in the loss of the one juror.

During the second trial week, the Court provided notice to the parties that two of the remaining twelve jurors had reported a conflict due to work and/or travel plans and that they would not be able to attend the trial the following week or November 19 and 20. This was reported to the attorneys despite the fact that the time frame that the two jurors said they were no longer available was still within the original ten trial day time period that the case was scheduled to run. The Court granted the mistrial before this issue was resolved, however, it appears clear that had the Court not granted the mistrial on November 14, that it would have been forced to grant such a mistrial based on having less than twelve jurors the following week, had the Court excused the two jurors who were unavailable after November 15 or simply failed to return.

Had the Court waited to grant the mistrial the following week, no sanctions of any kind would have been available to award against any party since the mistrial would have been based on having an insufficient number of jurors per Rule 48(a). Based on the events of November 14, Plaintiff's counsel claimed all manner of prejudice both real and imagined in the presence of his client and the Court and demanded a mistrial without even taking a break to consult with his client. After granting the mistrial, Plaintiff's counsel then requested all sorts of relief including costs, attorney fees, striking of defenses and even the disqualification of Defense counsel from further appearing in the case. Plaintiff's counsel's argued that a mistrial somehow benefitted the Defense and that the case should be promptly reset in order to obtain justice for his client. Despite his strenuous demands back in November, it is curious that Plaintiff's counsel then elected to wait over 3 weeks to file any motion for sanctions and has yet to request the trial be reset in this matter or to even provide the Court with any available trial dates. Indeed, by the time this pending Motion for Sanctions is scheduled for hearing, it will be three months after the grant of a mistrial with still no proposal for available trial dates from Plaintiff's counsel nor any sense of any urgency being advanced.

III. Argument

A. Plaintiff's reliance on Rule 37(e) is misplaced as this rule does not provide Plaintiff with a means to recover the sanctions requested following the grant of a mistrial in view of the existence of and requirements of Rule 47(u).

It is well settled in Idaho that "trial courts have broad discretion when ruling on a motion in limine." Sun Valley Potato Growers, Inc. v. Texas Refinery Corp., 139 Idaho 761, 767 (2004). Appellate Courts review a trial court's decision to grant or deny a motion in limine under an abuse of discretion standard. Id. at 768. A trial court may deny the motion and wait until trial to determine if the evidence should be admitted or excluded. Lanham v. Idaho Power Co., 130 Idaho 486, 492 (1997). If the trial court defers a ruling on the motion a party must reassert an objection at the time of the offer in order to preserve the issue. State v. Hester, 114 Idaho 688 (1988). See also Gunter v. Murphy's Lounge, LLC, 141 Idaho 16, 25 (2005). As outlined below, in this case the issue involving the absence of infections regarding other patients was a deferred ruling.

A motion in limine does not involve a discovery order, but an order addressed to the presentation of evidence at the trial itself. A court's ruling regarding a motion in limine is subject to change when the case unfolds, particularly if the actual testimony differs from what was expected. U.S. v. Vasquez, 840 F. Supp. 2d 564 (E.D. N.Y. 2011). The purpose of a motion in limine is to prevent the proponent of potentially prejudicial matter from displaying it to the jury in any manner until the trial court has ruled upon its admissibility in the context of the trial itself. State v. Ciresi, 45 A.3d 1201 (R.I. 2012). An order resulting from a motion in limine is a temporary protective order that is subject to change during the trial. State v. Breedlove, 286 P.3d 1123 (Kan. 2012). A ruling on a motion in limine is not on the merits and only relates to the administration of the trial. Wert v. State, 383 S.W.3d 747 (Tex. App. Houston 14th Dist. 2012). A "motion in limine" seeks a preliminary expression of the court's opinion as to the admissibility of the evidence. Smith v. City of St. Louis, 395 S.W.3d 20 (Mo. 2013). See also, 20 Am. Jur. Trials 441.

Based on the alleged violation of the Order in Limine, Plaintiff has filed his Motion for Sanctions pursuant to Rule 37(e) which provides as follows:

> General Sanctions - Failure to Comply With Any Order.
>
> In addition to the sanctions above under this rule for violation of discovery procedures, any court may in its discretion impose sanctions or conditions, or assess attorney's fees, costs or expenses against a party or the party's attorney for failure to obey an order of the court made pursuant to these rules.

While recognizing that Rule 37(e) provides the court with broad authority to enter orders, there is a more specific rule which applies directly to sanctions following the granting of a mistrial. The order at issue which the Plaintiff claims the defense violated was not a discovery order, but rather an order in limine involving the presentation of evidence to the jury and its admissibility. The defense contends that resolution of this matter is therefore not controlled by Rule 37(e), but rather by Rule 47(u) which sets forth what the court should consider when addressing the issue of sanctions following a mistrial.

Rule 47(u) provides:

Declaration of Mistrial - Sanctions.

> After trial is commenced, at any time prior to the rendering of a verdict, the court on its own motion or upon motion of any party may declare a mistrial if it determines an occurrence at trial has prevented a fair trial. If the court determines that a mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of a party or attorney, the court may require the adverse party or the attorney, or both, to pay the reasonable expenses including attorney fees incurred by the opposing party or parties resulting from such misconduct. (Emphasis added).

Despite the existence of this rule and the requirements set forth within it, Plaintiff does not cite this rule anywhere in his moving papers nor does he discuss the required deliberate misconduct analysis. Instead, Plaintiff's counsel tries to exaggerate a prior entirely unrelated discovery issue from the fall of 2012 and suggest to this Court that it supports some pattern of bad behavior on the part of the defense. Using this bootstrap and suspenders approach, Plaintiff's counsel's moving papers engage in significant conjecture, overstatement and improper magnification of the circumstances at issue in order to support his Motion and attempt to influence this Court.

B. Plaintiff is not entitled to an award of sanctions against the Defendants or their counsel because per the requirements of Rule 47(u), the Defense did not engage in any deliberate misconduct

Per the above requirements of Rule 47(u), sanctions are only justified "If the court determines that a mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of a party or attorney. . ." Only after making such a finding is the court then allowed to award against "the adverse party or the attorney, or both . . . the reasonable expenses including attorney fees incurred by the opposing party or parties resulting from such misconduct." Under the facts of this case, the witness in question, Dr. Stiller, was neither a party nor an attorney nor had he ever before testified as an expert witness. Dr. Stiller specifically stated under oath to the Court that he had been instructed by Defense counsel not to discuss certain topics, including the topic involving infections related to other patients. See also the affidavit of Dr. Stiller submitted in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions and the Affidavit of Mr. Jones.

In his moving papers, Plaintiff represents to this Court that the Defense asked Dr. Stiller "why he believed Defendants had not violated the standard of practice, to which Dr. Stiller responded that there had not been any other infections at Defendants' facility." See Plaintiff's Memorandum in Support of Motion for Sanctions at P. 8. This representation by the Plaintiff is totally false and further demonstrates that Plaintiff (whether intentionally or not) is misconstruing the record for the sole purpose of trying to improperly influence the Court. The actual exchange which occurred in Court went as follows:

> Q. All right. Do you have an opinion in this case whether or not the gram negative bacteria found on Krystal Ballard came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr.

Kerr?

A. I do have an opinion.

Q. What is your opinion?

A. That that is incorrect.

Q. What is your opinion based on?

A. In order – well, there's multiple different ways of looking at it. As far as the process of sterilization, we know that a chemical marker was done so we've reached sterilization as far as the temperature is concerned as long as the machine basically said that it was adequate time. All the autoclave machines will have a register on it saying whether it has reached adequate time or not. So by that definition, it's been sterilized; okay. Spore counts don't matter. Its' a gram negative; okay. When you look at the process of liposuction and removing all of that tissue, and then injecting it back in, as far as it being done sterilely, a gram negative rod coming from the colon to the uria (phonetic) or from one of his equipment, I don't see how it can happen. Let alone the fact of – that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office. There is no history of the fact that –

Mr. Haddad: Your Honor.

The Court: Sustained, and we'll address it.

Mr. Haddad: Thank you.

See November 14, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit C at p. 23, ll 1 to p. 26, ll 13.

Contrary to the statements by Plaintiff's counsel, Dr. Stiller did not state that his opinion was based on their being no other patient infections at Defendant's facility. The transcript conclusively proves that nothing even remotely close to that ever came out of Dr. Stiller's mouth. Moreover, the question posed by Defense counsel was not framed to elicit an improper response. The interruption by Mr. Haddad of Dr. Stiller's testimony which the Court sustained without an objection even being made was totally premature considering the transcript reveals that Dr. Stiller did not testify contrary to, nor did Defense counsel ask a question contrary to the Court's Order in Limine. The Court should therefore reconsider the basis for the mistrial being based on the testimony of Dr. Stiller considering he did not violate the Order in Limine.

Dr. Stiller did not testify about an absence of prior infections involving other patients or that he had reviewed any chart or representations involving other patients. He simply stated "no pertinent or persistent infections in the office." Plaintiff interprets this statement to infer that Dr. Stiller must have been referring to infections involving other patients. While this interpretation represents nothing more than sheer speculation on the part of Plaintiff's counsel, the fact remains that an equally plausible interpretation by the jury was the fact the patient herself had never presented with any evidence of infection during her office visits and/or subsequent discussions with Dr. Kerr. There was simply no basis upon which the jury would have reasonably concluded Dr. Stiller was bringing in evidence related to other patients. As a result, there was no basis to conclude that the jury was somehow tainted with improper information based on what Dr. Stiller said such that a mistrial should have been granted or that Plaintiff was prevented a fair trial.

Plaintiff provides no case authority from any jurisdiction supporting such a proposition, nor is there any case authority in Idaho applying either Rule 47(u) or Rule 37(e) in such a fashion. There was only one Court Order issued on discovery matters and it was promptly obeyed by the Defense. The Defense did not violate any of the Orders issued by the Court on the Motions in Limine and the Defendants and their counsel did nothing that amounted to a violation of the Court Order on evidence of prior infections of other patients of Dr. Kerr. In fact, counsel for the Defendants did everything possible and reasonable to prevent Dr. Stiller from offering testimony that was in violation of the Court Order. The question asked of Dr. Stiller that resulted in his answer that is in question, related solely to whether gram negative bacteria found on Krystal Ballard came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr and it defies logic to conclude that this question could be construed to include anything to do with the absence of infections of other patients of Dr. Kerr.

In the court reporter's transcript for the matters discussed and taken up after the noon recess on November 14, 2013, the Court made the following statement: "I said there was not to be any reference to any other infections." See Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions, as Exhibit A. The question asked of Dr. Stiller referred to Krystal Ballard only and did not refer to other infections. The answer of Dr. Stiller was, among other testimony, "let alone the fact of that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office." (Emphasis added). It is logical that the jury would interpret the answer to mean the ordinary dictionary definition of the words pertinent and persistent. A standard dictionary definition of these words are: "Persistent, persevering or stubborn in a course or resolve. Enduring, permanent, continuous. Not falling away. Remaining past the time of majority." "Pertinent, related to or properly bearing upon the matter in hand, relevant." Applying these definitions, there is no basis for the conclusion that these words mean other infections, because the question related only to Krystal Ballard and whether gram negative bacteria found on her came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr.

The questions of Dr. Stiller and his answers leading up to the testimony in question of Dr. Stiller, did not relate to or involve testimony that pertained to other infections. Presumably with knowledge of this fact, Plaintiff spends the majority of his brief trying to discredit and condemn the Defense on collateral issues which are not only disputed, but have absolutely nothing to do with the issue before the Court on why the mistrial was granted. In an attempt to manufacture evidence of alleged deliberate misconduct, Plaintiff's counsel fills his brief with inflated and half-truth statements aimed at maligning the Defense in hopes that the Court will award one or more of the requested sanctions. Plaintiff's moving papers are filled with statements which are not only irrelevant to the matter at hand, but are objectionable and clearly aimed at trying to create improper bias against the Defense.

For example, Plaintiff states that Mr. Quane turned his back on the Court somehow suggesting this was done as a sign of disrespect when in reality he was coughing, blowing his nose and conferring with his client about what the Court had stated. Mr. Quane is 79 years old and his hearing is not perfect as was demonstrated during the trial when he asked both the Court and various witnesses on occasion to repeat themselves. It is hard to imagine a physical disability like hearing loss and old age being relied upon by Plaintiff's counsel as a legitimate basis to award sanctions against a party and/or their attorney. Furthermore, as was obvious to all at the trial, both Defense counsel were ill during the trial which resulted in Mr. Quane being briefly sick. This did not justify the sanctions sought nor was it grounds for the mistrial.

Plaintiff further claims that the Defense was pleased about the fact that a mistrial was granted. Nothing could be further from the truth. Frankly this is a totally disingenuous and baseless allegation for Plaintiff's counsel to advance. Trials are rare occurrences in today's practice and no one wants to have to prepare a second time or to expose their client to multiple trials. It is without question that significant time, money and effort had been put in to preparing the Defense case. Most assuredly the Defendants themselves, Dr. Kerr and his wife, do not want to spend another ten trial days away from their practice in order to attend a second trial. Plaintiff seems to forget and/or ignore the fact that by attending the trial to defend himself Dr. Kerr basically had to shut down the majority of his practice at great financial loss with no means of recovery.

In addition, the defense has already had to endure a significant financial penalty as a direct result of the mistrial being granted. In addition to Dr. Kerr, the defense expert witnesses were already scheduled and indeed, some were in route to testify when the mistrial was granted. The defense not only had to reimburse these experts for their time in preparing and for cancelling their respective practices so they could attend the trial, but now the defense will be forced to incur these costs a second time – again at significant expense. It is therefore clear that the respective costs of the mistrial are not lopsided to one party or the other, but rather to both parties.

Another example can be found in Plaintiff's characterization of Dr. Stiller's prior testimony. Plaintiff contends that Dr. Stiller and/or Defense counsel had done something improper by having Dr. Stiller engage in further conversation with Dr. O'Neil, the familiarizing local cosmetic surgeon. In response to Plaintiff's objection, the Court, during a break outside the presence of the jury specifically asked Dr. Stiller if he learned anything new about the local standard of practice as a result of his conversation with Dr.

O'Neil and he said he had not. This ended the issue and Defense counsel was instructed simply to avoid discussing the second conversation with the witness.

This issue has nothing to do with why the mistrial was granted and is simply another example of Plaintiff trying to unfairly characterize this issue and engage in mud-slinging against the Defense. There is no case authority in Idaho which states that a witness cannot discuss as many times as he/she wants to, issues with the familiarizing expert. Defense counsel cited the Court to an Idaho appellate case in which the district Court allowed the out of area expert to take a break in the trial to try and contact a familiarizing expert during the middle of the trial. See Gubler v. Boe, 120 Idaho 294, 296, 815 P.2d 1034, 1036 (1991) (the trial court delayed the proceedings to allow Dr. Tune an opportunity to re-contact Dr. Groberg, or any other doctor, in an attempt to familiarize Dr. Tune with the local community standard of care).

Another example can be found in Plaintiff's characterization of the lack of prior patient infections issue as a whole. Without the opportunity to consider the issue, the Court initially compared it to the Defense trying to have the jury consider the absence of other car accidents as proof that the defendant was a good driver. See November 5, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit D at p. 9, ll 18 to p. 10, ll 6. However, this is not a fair comparison when taken in connection with the testimony of Plaintiff's expert, Dr. Sorensen, outlined below that he considered the lack of other patient complications to be the best evidence that Dr. Kerr and his staff were cleaning and disinfecting the equipment correctly.

Plaintiff's attorney took the deposition of Dr. Kerr on January 30, 2013 and asked Dr. Kerr about post-operative infections of patients undergoing lipolysis, whether any patient's died, how any post-operative infections were diagnosed, and conditions of cellulitis that Dr. Kerr answered. Plaintiff's counsel never asked at that time for medical records of other patients. Instead, he elected to wait until after the end of discovery, as ordered in the Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings dated September 9, 2013, to raise this issue to try and cast a shadow over the Defense in a deliberate effort to prevent relevant evidence from being admitted at the trial by claiming they had asked for information which the Defense failed to provide.

The Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings provided in part that no later than 7 days before trial each attorney shall certify to the Court a descriptive list of all exhibits proposed to be offered in evidence. The same Notice provided that the last day for the taking of any discovery depositions shall be no later than 60 days prior to trial which was September 5, 2013.

The Defense submitted its list of trial exhibits that included exhibit number AA with a description that reads "Compilation of Operative procedures of Dr. Kerr from December of 2007 through December 23, 2010, with Krystal Ballard identified on July 21, 2010 with the total number of liposuction procedures, consisting of 338." Exhibit number AA was produced at the Plaintiff's deposition of Dr. Coffman on August 20, 2013. No exhibits of the Defendants were listed that consisted of records and data of Silk Touch for infections. Exhibit AA was simply a list of the procedures of Dr. Kerr and nothing else and had nothing to do with patient infections.

On September 27, 2013, Plaintiff filed a Notice to take the video conference deposition duces tecum of Susan Kerr on October 2, 2013 that specified she produce at the deposition records and data of Silk Touch for infections and patients among other things. September 27, 2013 was a Friday and on October 1, 2013, Terrence Jones sent an email to Mr. Haddad, objecting to the deposition of Susan Kerr, Exhibit F in the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane. The Notice of Taking the Deposition of Susan Kerr and the date for the deposition were untimely and in violation of the Court Order for the last day for taking depositions, being September 5, 2013. The Notice of the deposition was not timely because it only allowed for slightly over 2 working days before the deposition was scheduled October 2, 2013 at noon, the same day the Plaintiff had scheduled the deposition of Dr. Laurence. The Notice of the deposition was received by Defense counsel the mid-afternoon at September 27, 2013 by fax transmission. The notice, being duces tecum, did not comply with Rule 34 that governs the procedure for taking depositions duces tecum. The short notice for the deposition of Susan Kerr made it impossible to assemble the records requested, redact the patient names, data and SS numbers in order to comply with HIPAA rules and the fact that Susan Kerr was not available to be deposed on October 2, 2013.

After being advised by Mr. Jones that an objection to the deposition of Susan Kerr was asserted, Mr. Haddad did not move the Court to compel the deposition or seek relief from the Court Order limiting the time frame for taking depositions, although there was time for him to do so before the trial on November 5, 2013. The certification of Defense counsel per the Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings dated September 9, 2013, lists the exhibits of the Defendants, including exhibit AA and no exhibit is listed of the records of Silk Touch for infections or lack of infections of other patients. Plaintiff never challenged the objections advanced by Defense counsel, but yet represents to this Court that the Defense did not comply with discovery of the Plaintiff and accused the Defense of somehow trying to hide information from the Plaintiff's counsel which was false. In the court reporter's transcript of November 14, 2013, Exhibit A to the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane, the Court said in regard to the testimony of Dr. Stiller "He can talk about everything he reviewed and testified about in his deposition, and I hope he will and I hope the jury find it informative." This statement by the Court should be equally applicable to the deposition testimony of Dr. Kerr in his deposition taken January 30, 2013, that is described and set forth above. Again, this issue was raised for the first time during oral argument on the Motions in Limine and the Defense was never given an opportunity to advance argument on this issue, but was instead told the matter would be revisited during the trial outside the presence of the jury. Something the Defense was never allowed to do given the mistrial.

Plaintiff claims that the Defense was warned on three occasions that a violation of the Court's rulings would result in an award of costs and fees. Defendant would like to know precisely where in the transcripts of this case such citations can be found. The Defense has provided the Court with the only reference which could be found dealing with the risk of a mistrial with the attendant costs and fees and it dealt squarely with the issue of whether the Plaintiff would seek to remarry – not the issue of prior patient infections. See November 8, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the Affidavit of Counsel as Exhibit E.

Plaintiff's counsel claims that the Defense was somehow disrespectful to the Plaintiff himself. This is an absurd statement which has no factual basis in support and which should be ignored by this Court. After the mistrial was granted, Plaintiff's counsel watched as the Defendants both personally went over and apologized to the Plaintiff for the fact that his wife had died and Defense counsel apologized directly to the Plaintiff that the events had led to a mistrial. The Defense did not want this case to result in a mistrial. Plaintiff claims that the Defense was somehow happy that the case resulted in a mistrial. This is not true. The Defense was barely into its second day of its case, had all of its witnesses, both lay and expert, still set to testify and was prepared to rebut and overcome both the standard of practice and causation arguments advanced by the Plaintiffs.

Suggesting that the Defense would intentionally try to sabotage the trial so that it would end prematurely is both offensive and absurd. Mr. Quane has handled and defended physicians in over 2,000 medical cases and matters of all types, and tried medical malpractice jury trials for physicians in many of these cases. He has conducted over 175 civil jury trials of all types in his career including those for physicians and never had any that ended or terminated with a mistrial. Mr. Jones has never been involved in a trial that was terminated by a mistrial. This was not the desired outcome for this case by the Defendants, and it is not fair to make the Defense the scapegoats for the costs of a retrial. Plaintiff's counsel made it perfectly clear that the only reason he was seeking a mistrial was based on one narrow issue of other patient infections, but yet now in support of sanctions Plaintiff is advancing the entire kitchen sink argument. After sustaining Plaintiff's counsel, the following exchange occurred after the lunch break on November 14:

> The Court: All right. We'll break for the noon recess. Please remember my usual reminder and I will see you at 1:30.

(Jury leaves.)

The Court: Is there some reason why you did not tell your witness about the order in limine?

The Witness: He did; I apologize.

The Court: Well, that may not be sufficient.
Mr. Haddad: Well, Your Honor, at this time we are obligated, based upon the discussion with the Court earlier and the clear mandate by this Court on this very issue, not on other issues, this very issue, that if the issue of persistent history of infections or lack of infections came into this trial, that the Court would grant a mistrial and award attorneys' fees, costs and expenses to the party that violated that order. This is a clear violation of that order.

. . . .

See November 14, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit A. (Emphasis added).

The above comments by Mr. Haddad make it clear that he sought the mistrial solely on the issue of whether testimony had come in regarding the lack of other patient infections and this was the sole basis for the Court granting the mistrial. Despite making this claim crystal clear at that time he sought a mistrial, Plaintiff now argues everything under the sun in support of his claim that all manner of sanctions should be levied against the Defense. This is improper and should not be countenanced by this Court. Virtually all of the arguments advanced by Plaintiff relate to alleged "other bad conduct" to which he seeks to bootstrap his claim for sanctions as outlined above.

To the contrary, with the benefit of the transcript and in viewing the question and answer between Defense counsel and Dr. Stiller, the Defense contends there is nothing to indicate that he violated the Court's Order or that Defense counsel or the defendant engaged in any "deliberate misconduct", much less that it would justify granting a mistrial or awarding costs and attorney fees or other sanctions against the Defense. Defense counsel suspected as much at the time and requested the opportunity to review the actual record of what was stated, but was never given the opportunity to address the Court at all regarding what was actually said:

> Mr. Jones: Your Honor, first of all, I did make that discussion on more than one occasion with this particular witness. So to the extent it came out, I'll take responsibility for it; he's my witness. But the discussion was had and was had more than once. I would like to see exactly what the witness said so I can better comment on it to the judge on the issue of grounds for a mistrial. I do know that when this judge – when Your Honor talked about this initially, the issue of costs and attorney fees and granting a mistrial was in response to bringing up the issue of whether the patient was going to remarry. Now, I know there was subsequent discussions about the issue of other infections, and I don't believe what this witness just testified to and what he said - -
>
> The Court: I said there was not to be any reference to any other infections. I don't see I have any choice but to grant a mistrial. And I will address the costs and attorney fees later, but it seems to me that this was something I addressed specifically. I said, "take it up outside the presence of the jury." This is a serious violation of the Court's prior order, and I don't see the Court has any choice but to grant counsel's request for a mistrial.

See November 14, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit A. (Emphasis added).

At no time after the noon recess was Defense counsel even allowed to address the Court to advance any argument in an attempt to dissuade the Court from granting the Motion for a mistrial. Finally, regarding the Motions in Limine, Defense counsel has found nothing in the Court transcripts obtained to date which stands for the proposition advanced by Plaintiff's counsel on the issue of other patient infections and that a violation of the Court's Order in Limine would result in an award of all costs and attorney fees against the Defense.

On the first day of the trial, the Court addressed the Motions in Limine filed by the parties. Although no written decision was issued regarding the Court's ruling on the Motions in Limine, the transcript read as follows:

> Mr. Jones: Okay. Now, with respect to the issue involving other infections, we provided the Court with information regarding the opinions of the Plaintiff's own expert on the importance of other infections and how he testified in his deposition. And it's in our brief that he said that was the very best evidence; the very best evidence of whether or not someone is having problems with their sanitizing, disinfecting, sterilization procedures, is whether or not they are having issues with other infections. And so, I guess, for the benefit of making sure --
> . . . .
>
> Mr. Jones: Your Honor, there's two parts to it. The first is what the plaintiff's own expert said, where he said that was the best evidence to consider the infection issues.
>
> The Court: Okay.
>
> Mr. Jones: And so, whether or not we would offer testimony, we should be able to at least address, through the plaintiff's own expert, issues associated with his opinion. His opinion being that the best evidence in this case is to whether or not Dr. Kerr and his clinic are doing what they're supposed to so, is to look at either the presence of or absence of infections in other cases. So there's that aspect of it.
>
> The Court: Um-hmm.
>
> Mr. Jones: Secondly, you have, from an infectious disease standpoint, what they look at and consider for purposes of evaluating whether or not a facility has problems with their infection control. They look at infection rates and look at that data.
>
> As far as who gathered the information, Dr. Kerr has testified in his deposition regarding his knowledge, personally, of his own infection rates, and he should be able to testify regarding his knowledge, as opposed to concerns about, for example, a non-physician looking at the charts, which I understand is one of the concerns. So there's another avenue, I guess, in terms of utilizing Dr. Kerr's testimony on that basis.

But we take the position that because of the plaintiff's own expert testimony on that issue, at the very least Dr. Kerr's knowledge of his own infections rates, that that data ought to be something that should be considered by the jury when they're being asked in this case to evaluate the sterilization procedures, cleaning procedures, things of that nature.

The Court: Um-hmm. Well, I can see how if the plaintiff's expert were to testify in that fashion, then there could be some relevance to problems that day or problems in the immediate time period proceeding. But, as a general rule, one doesn't get into the absence of other accidents in establishing whether there was or was not negligence on a particular occasion.

And so it sounds to me like that, again, is probably one that we should revisit once we have an opportunity to hear the testimony. And it sounds to me that would be reasonable to revisit again.

Just draw my attention to it prior to bringing out the evidence. We'll exclude the jury, because it sounds to me that could have some relevance. In particular, that's what an expert in the field would rely on, then I think that it could be an appropriate area, provided it's limited to day of and time period immediately proceeding.

It could be relevant without leading us into too many collateral matters. But I think it would be prudent to have that discussion outside the presence of the jury, since the absence of other injuries, as a rule, is not viewed as relevant.

So I'll revisit that one, if you'll – when you get ready to – when you feel it has reached the point where it may be relevant for some purpose, just draw my attention to it. We'll excuse the jury and we'll discuss it.

See November 5, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit D at p. 16, ll 1 to p. 20, ll 7.

By way of additional background for the Court, Plaintiff's expert, Dr.

Sorensen gave the following answer during his deposition regarding the importance of what he considered to be the best evidence of the adequacy of a physician's cleaning and disinfection procedures:

> Q. There's no proof by any means of the fact at the time of the surgery these gram-negative bacteria went into her body, is there?
>
> A. No.
>
> Q. Okay.··Have you formed an opinion as to what is the best evidence that a doctor utilizes appropriate sterile conditions during surgery, disinfectant procedures with equipment, operating room, and the entire area where the procedure is done, cleansing of instruments -- what's the best proof that that is being done appropriately? What would be the best proof?
>
> A. I think lack of complications would be the best answer.

See August 21, 2013 deposition transcript of Dean Sorensen, M.D. attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit J. (Emphasis added).

While Plaintiff's counsel seeks to crucify the Defense counsel for the mistrial in this case, the Court is obligated to review and address what actually transpired with the benefit of the above transcripts. Similar to the findings of the Ninth Circuit in the case of U.S. v. Meza-Soria, the Defense contends "there was no good legal reason whatever to grant the mistrial, and that absence of a reason makes the grant an abuse of discretion." United States v. Meza-Soria, 935 F.2d 166, 170-71 (9th Cir. 1991). In further support, Dr. Stiller submitted an affidavit in which he represents to the Court that the questions and answers which were being presented were not intended to come even remotely close to violating the Court's ruling that the prior patient infection issue needed to be addressed outside the presence of the jury for approval before presenting evidence of that nature.

In fact, as further proof that the Defense was both aware of and being mindful of the Court's ruling, the Court should consider the transcript at the beginning of Dr. Stiller's testimony the morning of November 14. Defense counsel made it clear before starting the examination of Dr. Stiller that he would need to take up a matter outside the presence of the jury regarding the witness' testimony. The very reason this advance notice was given was to inform the Court that the lack of prior infections involving other patients was an issue that the Defense would need to discuss outside the presence of the jury in order to revisit it with the Court – just as Defense counsel had been instructed on day one of the trial. The statements of Defense counsel were as follows:

> Mr. Jones: Thank you, your honor. And also, with respect to the two in limine issues, there will be an offer of proof in about the middle of this witness that will need to be made. Perhaps, we can take it up during a break.
>
> The Court: That's a very good idea.
>
> Mr. Jones: I'm just letting the Court know.

See Exhibit A to the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane.

Why would the Defense counsel and/or this witness intentionally run afoul of the Court's Orders in Limine while at the same time specifically state to the Court at the start of the witness' testimony that he wanted to address the issue outside the presence of the jury just as the Court had ordered him to do? The Defense contends this is strong evidence that the Defense did not engage in anything even remotely close to deliberate misconduct. Pursuant to Rule 47(u), the Defense contends that the necessary showing has not been made to support any award of sanctions against the Defense arising out of the Court granting the Plaintiff's Motion for a mistrial.

C. The range of sanctions available under Rule 47(u) does not include striking defenses or disqualifying Defense counsel.

In addition to costs and attorney fees, Plaintiff further seeks the imposition of even more harsh sanctions including striking the Defendant's defenses and disqualifying Defense counsel. In support, Plaintiff relies on the case of Adams v. Reed, 138 Idaho 36, 57 P.3d 505 (Ct. App. 2002). Adams involved a personal injury action which followed a long and protracted discovery process that included multiple motions to compel, motions for mediation and motions to dismiss. The case was reset for trial multiple times in front of different judges over an extended time period. Id. at 38. After repeated delays, Reed filed a motion to dismiss the action as a sanction for repeated discovery violations, noncompliance with pretrial orders, and untimely submission of the Adams' pretrial memorandum. The district Court concluded that dismissal was an appropriate sanction and granted the motion. Id. at 39.

On appeal, the Court noted that "a trial Court's discretion is not unfettered, however, particularly where the ultimate sanction, dismissal of a party's claim, has been imposed." Id. The Court explained that "a trial court possesses authority to sanction parties for failure to comply with discovery orders or pretrial orders and for failure to seasonably supplement responses to discovery." Id. citing Rules 16(i), 26(e)(4), and 37(b). Permissible sanctions include those identified in Rule 37(b) which includes dismissal of an action. Citing Ashby v. W. Council, Lumber Prod. & Indus. Workers, 117 Idaho 684, 791 P.2d 434 (1990), the court stated that there were several "factors that must be expressly considered by the trial court in deciding whether dismissal with prejudice is warranted:

> The two primary factors are a clear record of delay and ineffective lesser sanctions, which must be bolstered by the presence of at least one "aggravating" factor, including: 1) delay resulting from intentional conduct, 2) delay caused by the plaintiff personally, or 3) delay causing prejudice to the defendant. The consideration of these factors must appear in the record in order to facilitate appellate review.

Ashby, 117 Idaho 686–87 (citations omitted).

Analyzing the Ashby factors, the Adams court found evidence of a clear record of delay which included: "the Adamses were routinely late in responding to discovery, were repeatedly noncompliant with deadlines set out in pretrial orders, and on one occasion failed to engage in court ordered mediation." Adams, 138 Idaho at 39. Regarding the ineffectiveness of lesser sanctions, "the district court found that during the hearings of October 30, 2000 and March 19, 2001, the Adamses were specifically warned that failure to comply with discovery could result in dismissal, and they were admonished to immediately respond to outstanding discovery requests." Per the Ashby decision, explicit warnings are among the lesser sanctions that are appropriate for the court to impose before imposition of the drastic sanction of dismissal. Ashby, 117 Idaho at 687, 791 P.2d at 437.

Applying the Adams decision and the primary factors analysis used therein by the court to the facts of this case, the Adams decision strongly favors the Defense as there is no pattern of delay in this case that would support any monetary or dismissal sanctions including striking of defenses or exclusion of Defense counsel. Plaintiff has not demonstrated fulfillment of any of the Ashby factors outlined above. There has been no "pattern of delay" on any issue by the Defense which played any role in the granting of the mistrial which was based solely on the erroneous conclusion that Dr. Stiller had rendered testimony in violation of a Court Order in Limine regarding testimony of infections involving other patients. As a result, the Adams decision cuts squarely against Plaintiff's motion for sanctions whether applying Rule 37(e) or Rule 47(u).

Plaintiff next cites to the case Crown v. Hawkins Co., Ltd., 128 Idaho 114, 910 P.2d 786 (1996) for the proposition that the Court should disqualify the Defense counsel as a sanction. Crown involved a bench trial as to the duties of a director of a warehouse corporation related to its bean grower members. As a sub-issue on appeal, the bean growers argued that Nungester's legal counsel should have been disqualified because a conflict of interest existed between Nungester and Hepworth, Lezamiz and the law firm. The growers asserted that if Nungester's actions as a director of the warehouse corporation were found to be negligent, the assets of the law firm and its partners would be implicated. They submitted that such a direct, personal stake in the outcome of the litigation violates Rule1.7(b) of the Idaho Rules of Professional Conduct. Crown, 128 Idaho 122.

Relying upon the case of Weaver v. Millard, 120 Idaho 692, 696, 819 P.2d 110, 114 (Ct.App.1991), the Crown court stated:

> The moving party has the burden of establishing grounds for the disqualification. The goal of the court should be to shape a remedy which will assure fairness to the parties and the integrity of the judicial process. Whenever possible, courts should endeavor to reach a solution that is least burdensome to the client. Where the motion to disqualify comes not from a client or former client of the attorney, but from an opposing party, the motion should be reviewed with caution.

Crown, 128 Idaho at 123 (citations omitted).

After addressing Model Rule 1.7 and after concluding that the growers had waited almost five years before first seeking to file a motion to disqualify opposing counsel, the court concluded the district court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion to disqualify. Id. In the matter before the court, Plaintiff cites to Crown as support for excluding Defense counsel as a sanction for the mistrial. A review of the Crown decision aptly demonstrates that it supports no such proposition. The disqualification issue in Crown involved concerns over whether the attorney had an improper financial interest in the outcome of the case such that he should be disqualified from serving as counsel. The disqualification was not being sought as a sanction for alleged conduct resulting in a mistrial as Plaintiff claims in the instant motion.

Plaintiff's reliance on the Weaver v. Millard, 120 Idaho 692, 696, 819 P.2d 110, 114 (Ct.App.1991) is similarly misplaced. Weaver involved a commercial transaction to build fish ponds. The Court of Appeals ruled that the district court did not abuse its discretion in denying a motion to disqualify either the attorney for contractor or the attorney for third-party defendant partner, who were both represented by attorneys from same law firm. Again, this case involves potentially conflicted counsel and has nothing to do with the issues in this case.

Plaintiff next cites to Model Rule 3.2 and 3.4 in further support of their Motion for Sanctions. Rule 3.2 relates to making reasonable efforts to expedite the litigation consistent with the interests of the attorney's client. The portion of Rule 3.4 cited by Plaintiff states that an attorney shall not knowingly disobey an obligation under the rules of the tribunal. Since the mistrial was granted based on the belief that a trial witness, not a party, included in his answer to a question information otherwise subject to an Order in Limine, these rules have no application and do not serve to support Plaintiff's request to strike defenses or exclude Defense counsel. In addition, similar to the language of rule 47(u) which requires the court to find an act of deliberate misconduct by a party or the party's attorney, Model Rule 3.4 refers to an attorney who "knowingly disobeys" the rules.

Because the question posed to Dr. Stiller, who admitted he was informed by Defense counsel of the court's limine rulings on other patient infections, did not request him to comment upon that topic in his answer, there is no evidence that Defense counsel engaged in conduct which would be considered in violation of Model Rule 3.4, nor is there any evidence that Defense counsel or the Defendant himself engaged in any "pervasive pattern of refusing to obey court orders." See Plaintiff's Memorandum in Support of Motion for Sanctions at p. 16. As a result, Plaintiff's Motion seeking the sanction of disqualifying Defense counsel is without merit and should be denied.

D. Because Dr. Stiller did not testify in violation of the Court's Order in Limine, the Plaintiff's Motion for a mistrial should not have been granted

Even if Dr. Stiller had made the improper disclosure being alleged, (which the Defense contends the above transcript clearly refutes) the Defense maintains that it would not have been grounds for a mistrial, especially given the lack of any effort at a curative instruction to the jury to disregard any perceived improper testimony. Furthermore contrary to the arguments of Plaintiff, the Court had not issued a number of prior cautionary instructions to the jury prior to granting a mistrial. The author of this document was not able to find any case authority in Idaho regarding the granting of mistrials in a civil case setting. In the criminal arena, however, there is some analogous case authority. Idaho Criminal Rule 29.1 states that "a mistrial may be granted only where there is an "error or legal defect in the proceedings, or conduct inside or outside of the courtroom, which is prejudicial to the defendant and deprives the defendant of a fair trial."

> Applying Rule 29.1, the Idaho Court of Appeals stated:
>
> > The admission of improper evidence does not automatically require the declaration of a mistrial. See, e.g., State v. Rose, 125 Idaho 266, 269, 869 P.2d 583, 586 (Ct.App.1994). Where improper testimony is inadvertently introduced into a trial and the trial court promptly instructs the jury to disregard such evidence, the Idaho Supreme Court noted that "it is ordinarily presumed that the jury obeyed the court's instruction entirely." See State v. Hedger, 115 Idaho 598, 601, 768 P.2d 1331, 1334 (1989); State v. Boothe, 103 Idaho 187, 192, 646 P.2d 429, 434 (Ct.App.1982).
>
> No less an authority than the United States Supreme Court has proclaimed:
>
> > We normally presume that a jury will follow an instruction to disregard inadmissible evidence inadvertently presented to it, unless there is an "overwhelming probability" that the jury will be unable to follow the court's instructions, and a strong likelihood that the effect of the evidence would be "devastating" to the defendant. Greer v. Miller, 483 U.S. 756, 766 n. 8, 107 S.Ct. 3102, 97 L.Ed.2d 618 (1987) (citations omitted).

State v. Hill, 140 Idaho 625, 631, 97 P.3d 1014, 1020 (Ct. App. 2004).

In State v. Hill, the Court of Appeals reviewed a case in which the trial court refused to grant a mistrial and instead instructed the jury to disregard the prosecutor's question which included reference to the defendant having been in jail. The court found that "the prosecutor's disclosure to the jury that Hill had been in jail could hardly be characterized as "devastating." Given that Hill was on trial for a criminal offense, even in the absence of the prosecutor's question, any reasonably knowledgeable juror likely would have surmised that Hill had at some point been in jail. Hill has not demonstrated that she was denied a fair trial. Accordingly, we hold that the district court did not err in denying her motion for a mistrial." State v. Hill, 140 Idaho 625, 631, 97 P.3d 1014, 1020 (Ct. App. 2004).

Likewise in this case, the above testimony by Dr. Stiller can hardly be considered "devastating" to the Plaintiff's case. There was nothing stated which "let the genie out of the bottle" regarding the issue of lack of prior infections involving other patients which the Court previously indicated it would revisit later in the trial, something that the Defense was never allowed to do by virtue of the mistrial being granted. Not only was the question about other patient infections not asked, but that issue never came out in Dr. Stiller's answer. Instead, Plaintiff's counsel, interpreted Dr. Stiller's statement as containing information which it did not and which the Defense contends the jury could not have possibly attached anywhere near the same meaning to it that Plaintiff's counsel claims.

The Court instructed the parties to bring this issue up outside the presence of the jury which is what the Defense was planning to do when it was time to present that issue. Had the Defense been given the opportunity to address with the Court the above testimony from Plaintiff's expert, Dr. Sorensen that the lack of other patient infections was the "best evidence" that Dr. Kerr was properly cleaning and sterilizing his equipment, then the Defense would have sought the right to ask a direct question to Dr. Stiller on that very subject referring to the deposition question and answer by Dr. Sorensen. The Defense contends that where the Plaintiff's expert has the opinion that the best evidence in an alleged failure to sterilize equipment is whether there is the presence or absence historically of other complications, that this is relevant and proper consideration by the jury which the Defense intended to pursue consistent with the Court's Order in Limine.

Plaintiff claims that there was some "pattern and practice" of misconduct, but yet cannot point to a single instance wherein the Court admonished the jury to disregard any statement made by either Defense counsel or a Defense witness. It is hard to understand how there could be any alleged pattern of conduct by the Defense where the jury has not been told on numerous occasions, much less even one time, to disregard a statement, opinion, question or comment of a witness. Thus, pursuant to the Adams decision outlined above, there has not been a showing as to the ineffectiveness of lesser instructions.

Based on what the transcript shows clearly transpired, it is unknown why Plaintiff's counsel, without even consulting his own client, would jump up and demand a mistrial. It suggests an alternative motive to seeking this drastic remedy which he repeatedly claims has unfairly prejudiced his client. Such an alternative motive would include knowledge of the fact that at least two jurors stated they would be unable to continue the trial into the following week. With knowledge that the lone alternate juror had been lost due to an error by the jury commissioner's office, there is no way the trial would have been able to continue into the third week and a mistrial would have, in all likelihood, have been granted at that time anyway. By demanding the mistrial when they did, Plaintiff's counsel was clearly trying to jump on this issue early by seeking to lay blame on the Defense so they could try and recover some of their costs against the Defense - whereas if the mistrial had been granted due to having less than twelve jurors they would have no one to blame.

Plaintiff seeks to bootstrap its claim by referring to a Motion to Compel it prevailed upon filed some fourteen months before the trial and the fact that no mediation occurred. Despite the fact that Defense counsel advanced what he believed to be valid objections regarding the number of interrogatories and the topics covered, the issue was brought before the Court and the Defense was ordered to respond to the discovery. The Defense therefore complied with the one and only discovery Order entered in this case which clearly does not support Plaintiff's claim of any so-called pattern of conduct nor does it show that lesser sanctions were ineffective. Furthermore, Plaintiff's counsel makes several references to why mediation did not occur, but fails to concede the obvious fact that he had the ability to file a motion to request mediation at any time which he did not do. By virtue of the multiple sanctions requested in the Plaintiff's Motion, the Plaintiff seeks to be put in a position, sanction-wise, superior to the sanctions authorized by Rule 47(u). It is clear that the Court's Order on sanctions is confined to sanctions for having to declare a mistrial and none others. In this regard, Plaintiff's Motion that included enforcement of existing discovery and disclosure deadlines, is not pertinent to or the subject of the Court Order on sanctions related to the mistrial or sanctions authorized by Rule 47(u).

IV. Conclusion

What Plaintiff's counsel is truly trying to relay to this Court is that they do not want Jeremiah Quane and Terrence Jones to continue to be Defense counsel, taking into count that Jeremiah Quane's record in the defense of physicians is 98% total wins and that he has tried jury cases for physicians over the past 22 years, none of which, resulted in a verdict of negligence against a physician. Plaintiff's attorney seeks disqualification of defense counsel on a bogus argument of some other nefarious intent for the purpose of unfairly benefiting their own client, without consideration of the detriment to the Defendants if Defense counsel is disqualified. Counsel makes numerous references to statements claimed to be contrary to Court Orders, but fails to present any actual evidence for the Court to consider.

The Defense, however, has presented the Court with the actual transcripts to see for itself what was said and by whom. These transcripts stand in stark contrast to the representations advanced by Plaintiff's counsel in its memorandum seeking sanctions. Plaintiff's counsel misrepresents to this Court the statements made by Dr. Stiller by suggesting that he testified about the reasons the Defendants had not violated the standard of practice was because there had not been any other infections at Defendants' facility. The actual transcript shows no such testimony was ever elicited by Defense counsel nor offered by the Defense witness, Dr. Stiller, such that the Court should reconsider the basis for its decision granting the mistrial considering the Court did not have all the facts at the time it ruled.

In the Plaintiff's case-in-chief, the medical records of Dr. Kerr, Elmore Medical Center and St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center were admitted in evidence and these records were reviewed long before trial by Dr. Stiller. These records contain the reports of several doctors in which they state that there is no evidence of infection in Krystal Ballard which include the records of Dr. Kerr for his assessment of Krystal Ballard on July 23, 2010.

Dr. Billy Morgan, is a general surgeon at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center who evaluated Krystal Ballard at the request of Dr. Tisha Fujii, who was the primary treating physician of Krystal Ballard at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center. Dr. Morgan issued a report that covered his evaluation of Krystal Ballard on July 25, 2010 and the report states in pertinent part "she now has what appears to be a probable fat emboli syndrome with significant ARDS, massive hypoxemia, unresponsive to ventilator modes from a surgical standpoint." His report goes on to say in part in regard to the chest x-ray from Elmore Medical Center "findings possibly a similar fat emboli syndrome."

His Report also states in regard to the buttocks of Krystal Ballard, "The patient's buttocks show 2 wounds, 1 on the posterior superior iliac crest on each side with no crepitance to the subcutaneous tissue. No evidence of redness or inflammation and no drainage from the insertion sites for the fat transplants." Defendants' Exhibit U. On July 25, 2010, chest x-rays of Krystal Ballard were taken at Elmore Medical Center and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center and interpreted by radiologists Dr. Stemmler and Dr. Schaff. They issued radiology reports for their respective interpretations of the chest x-rays, Defendants' Exhibits W and X. Exhibits U, W and X are identified in the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane. Their reports collectively provide that similar findings may be seen in setting of fat embolism and findings may represent fat embolism.

The subject records, put in evidence by the Plaintiff, demonstrate that no pertinent or persistent infections existed which is the testimony of Dr. Stiller that resulted in the mistrial Order of the District Judge. At the time of the subject testimony of Dr. Stiller, the entries in the subject records had not yet been explained by witnesses although the records themselves that contained the entries of doctors of no evidence of infection in Krystal Ballard were in evidence at the doing of the Plaintiff. See also the Affidavit of Dr. Stiller. The foregoing litany of events and facts, give context to the testimony of Dr. Stiller that in fairness the Court may not have been aware of when the mistrial was declared.

Plaintiff's counsel has blatantly inflamed and exaggerated the nature of the testimony and the events at issue solely hoping to unfairly influence the Court and further their quest for sanctions. Pursuant to the requirements of Rule 47(u), Plaintiff can point to no "deliberate misconduct" by the Defense which resulted in the granting of the mistrial. Furthermore, Plaintiff cites to no case authority to support such an award of sanctions against a party in response to a mistrial whether applying Rule 37(e) or Rule 47(u). For these reasons, the Defense requests the Court deny Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions in its entirety.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

I. Introduction

This matter comes before the Court on Plaintiff's Motion made pursuant to Rule 37(e) seeking various sanctions against the Defense following the Court's grant of a mistrial on November 14, 2013. Plaintiff goes to great lengths to cast aspersions upon Defense counsel associated with the mistrial, however, the transcript of what actually transpired in this case which is provided along with this memorandum speaks volumes to the contrary. The Court granted the Plaintiff's Motion for a mistrial based on the perceived belief that one of the Defense witnesses, Dr. Geoffrey Stiller, had made statements in answer to Defense counsel questioning in violation of the Court Order in Limine regarding lack of prior infections involving other patients.

After excusing the jury, the Court promptly questioned both Defense counsel, Terry Jones, and the witness on the stand about whether notice of the Court's Order had been relayed to the witness so as to avoid improperly addressing various issues in front of the jury without approval from the Court. As will be outlined below, the Court heard from the witness on the stand confirm that he, indeed, was told by Defense counsel on more than one occasion that he needed to avoid discussing certain topics until the matter could be addressed outside the presence of the jury. Even more telling, however, is the actual transcript of what was said by the witness which demonstrates that at no time did he run afoul of the Court's Order. As a result, there was no valid basis to grant the mistrial based on what Dr. Stiller testified to and/or the preceding question advanced by Defense counsel. The Court should therefore decline to enter an award of any sanctions against the Defendants and their counsel and reconsider and reverse its Order granting and declaring a mistrial.

II. Factual background

This case proceeded to trial on November 5, 2013. Per the pleadings, Plaintiff was represented by three different law firms including Scott McKay as local counsel from Boise, Gregory Haddad from West Virginia and James Perrine from Alabama, both admitted pro hac vice. The Defendants were represented by one firm, with Jeremiah Quane and Terry Jones appearing as counsel of record. At the start of the trial, the Court took up the various motions in limine filed by the parties. The transcript of the Court's hearing on this issue is attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions as Exhibit D. As discussed in greater detail below, the Court granted and denied various motions in limine after stating that several of the Motions did not qualify as motions in limine and the issues they embodied would therefore have to be addressed during the trial when the issue came up.

The Court then allowed the parties to proceed with voir dire during which time the Court asked the prospective jury panel various initial questions regarding knowledge of the parties and witnesses, juror schedules, etc. before allowing the attorneys to question the remaining panel members. The Court made the decision to have only one alternate juror. The Court's Amended Scheduling Order dated September 9, 2013 specifically states this case was expected to continue for ten days. See Court's Amended Scheduling Order attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions as Exhibit B. By the wording of this Order, that meant that the trial in this case was expected to run for ten trial days or through November 20, 2013, taking into account weekends and Mondays when no trial would be held. On this basis, the Defense scheduled its witnesses for trial, estimating as best as possible when it might be able to start its case in chief. Keeping in mind the Amended Court Scheduling Order for ten trial days, the defense scheduled and planned its witnesses, lay and expert, to complete its case as scheduled within the time frame established by the Court.

Early on in the trial on November 8, the trial was stalled when Juror No. 11 failed to show that morning. The parties waited over two hours for the juror during which time the Court informed the parties that officials had been sent looking for Juror No. 11 at his work and home. Unable to find him, the Court ultimately excused Juror No. 11 after which the case proceeded with only twelve jurors. It was later disclosed to the attorneys by the Court that Juror No. 11 had been erroneously sent a notice by the jury commissioner stating that he was no longer needed. In other words, it was an error of the jury commissioner's office which resulted in the loss of the one juror.

During the second trial week, the Court provided notice to the parties that two of the remaining twelve jurors had reported a conflict due to work and/or travel plans and that they would not be able to attend the trial the following week or November 19 and 20. This was reported to the attorneys despite the fact that the time frame that the two jurors said they were no longer available was still within the original ten trial day time period that the case was scheduled to run. The Court granted the mistrial before this issue was resolved, however, it appears clear that had the Court not granted the mistrial on November 14, that it would have been forced to grant such a mistrial based on having less than twelve jurors the following week, had the Court excused the two jurors who were unavailable after November 15 or simply failed to return.

Had the Court waited to grant the mistrial the following week, no sanctions of any kind would have been available to award against any party since the mistrial would have been based on having an insufficient number of jurors per Rule 48(a). Based on the events of November 14, Plaintiff's counsel claimed all manner of prejudice both real and imagined in the presence of his client and the Court and demanded a mistrial without even taking a break to consult with his client. After granting the mistrial, Plaintiff's counsel then requested all sorts of relief including costs, attorney fees, striking of defenses and even the disqualification of Defense counsel from further appearing in the case. Plaintiff's counsel's argued that a mistrial somehow benefitted the Defense and that the case should be promptly reset in order to obtain justice for his client. Despite his strenuous demands back in November, it is curious that Plaintiff's counsel then elected to wait over 3 weeks to file any motion for sanctions and has yet to request the trial be reset in this matter or to even provide the Court with any available trial dates. Indeed, by the time this pending Motion for Sanctions is scheduled for hearing, it will be three months after the grant of a mistrial with still no proposal for available trial dates from Plaintiff's counsel nor any sense of any urgency being advanced.

III. Argument

A. Plaintiff's reliance on Rule 37(e) is misplaced as this rule does not provide Plaintiff with a means to recover the sanctions requested following the grant of a mistrial in view of the existence of and requirements of Rule 47(u).

It is well settled in Idaho that "trial courts have broad discretion when ruling on a motion in limine." Sun Valley Potato Growers, Inc. v. Texas Refinery Corp., 139 Idaho 761, 767 (2004). Appellate Courts review a trial court's decision to grant or deny a motion in limine under an abuse of discretion standard. Id. at 768. A trial court may deny the motion and wait until trial to determine if the evidence should be admitted or excluded. Lanham v. Idaho Power Co., 130 Idaho 486, 492 (1997). If the trial court defers a ruling on the motion a party must reassert an objection at the time of the offer in order to preserve the issue. State v. Hester, 114 Idaho 688 (1988). See also Gunter v. Murphy's Lounge, LLC, 141 Idaho 16, 25 (2005). As outlined below, in this case the issue involving the absence of infections regarding other patients was a deferred ruling.

A motion in limine does not involve a discovery order, but an order addressed to the presentation of evidence at the trial itself. A court's ruling regarding a motion in limine is subject to change when the case unfolds, particularly if the actual testimony differs from what was expected. U.S. v. Vasquez, 840 F. Supp. 2d 564 (E.D. N.Y. 2011). The purpose of a motion in limine is to prevent the proponent of potentially prejudicial matter from displaying it to the jury in any manner until the trial court has ruled upon its admissibility in the context of the trial itself. State v. Ciresi, 45 A.3d 1201 (R.I. 2012). An order resulting from a motion in limine is a temporary protective order that is subject to change during the trial. State v. Breedlove, 286 P.3d 1123 (Kan. 2012). A ruling on a motion in limine is not on the merits and only relates to the administration of the trial. Wert v. State, 383 S.W.3d 747 (Tex. App. Houston 14th Dist. 2012). A "motion in limine" seeks a preliminary expression of the court's opinion as to the admissibility of the evidence. Smith v. City of St. Louis, 395 S.W.3d 20 (Mo. 2013). See also, 20 Am. Jur. Trials 441.

Based on the alleged violation of the Order in Limine, Plaintiff has filed his Motion for Sanctions pursuant to Rule 37(e) which provides as follows:

General Sanctions - Failure to Comply With Any Order.

> In addition to the sanctions above under this rule for violation of discovery procedures, any court may in its discretion impose sanctions or conditions, or assess attorney's fees, costs or expenses against a party or the party's attorney for failure to obey an order of the court made pursuant to these rules.

While recognizing that Rule 37(e) provides the court with broad authority to enter orders, there is a more specific rule which applies directly to sanctions following the granting of a mistrial. The order at issue which the Plaintiff claims the defense violated was not a discovery order, but rather an order in limine involving the presentation of evidence to the jury and its admissibility. The defense contends that resolution of this matter is therefore not controlled by Rule 37(e), but rather by Rule 47(u) which sets forth what the court should consider when addressing the issue of sanctions following a mistrial.

Rule 47(u) provides:

Declaration of Mistrial - Sanctions.

> After trial is commenced, at any time prior to the rendering of a verdict, the court on its own motion or upon motion of any party may declare a mistrial if it determines an occurrence at trial has prevented a fair trial. If the court determines that a mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of a party or attorney, the court may require the adverse party or the attorney, or both, to pay the reasonable expenses including attorney fees incurred by the opposing party or parties resulting from such misconduct. (Emphasis added).

Despite the existence of this rule and the requirements set forth within it, Plaintiff does not cite this rule anywhere in his moving papers nor does he discuss the required deliberate misconduct analysis. Instead, Plaintiff's counsel tries to exaggerate a prior entirely unrelated discovery issue from the fall of 2012 and suggest to this Court that it supports some pattern of bad behavior on the part of the defense. Using this bootstrap and suspenders approach, Plaintiff's counsel's moving papers engage in significant conjecture, overstatement and improper magnification of the circumstances at issue in order to support his Motion and attempt to influence this Court.

B. Plaintiff is not entitled to an award of sanctions against the Defendants or their counsel because per the requirements of Rule 47(u), the Defense did not engage in any deliberate misconduct

Per the above requirements of Rule 47(u), sanctions are only justified "If the court determines that a mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of a party or attorney. . ." Only after making such a finding is the court then allowed to award against "the adverse party or the attorney, or both . . . the reasonable expenses including attorney fees incurred by the opposing party or parties resulting from such misconduct." Under the facts of this case, the witness in question, Dr. Stiller, was neither a party nor an attorney nor had he ever before testified as an expert witness. Dr. Stiller specifically stated under oath to the Court that he had been instructed by Defense counsel not to discuss certain topics, including the topic involving infections related to other patients. See also the affidavit of Dr. Stiller submitted in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions and the Affidavit of Mr. Jones.

In his moving papers, Plaintiff represents to this Court that the Defense asked Dr. Stiller "why he believed Defendants had not violated the standard of practice, to which Dr. Stiller responded that there had not been any other infections at Defendants' facility." See Plaintiff's Memorandum in Support of Motion for Sanctions at P. 8. This representation by the Plaintiff is totally false and further demonstrates that Plaintiff (whether intentionally or not) is misconstruing the record for the sole purpose of trying to improperly influence the Court. The actual exchange which occurred in Court went as follows:

> Q. All right. Do you have an opinion in this case whether or not the gram negative bacteria found on Krystal Ballard came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr?
>
> A. I do have an opinion.
>
> Q. What is your opinion?
>
> A. That that is incorrect.
>
> Q. What is your opinion based on?
> A. In order – well, there's multiple different ways of looking at it. As far as the process of sterilization, we know that a chemical marker was done so we've reached sterilization as far as the temperature is concerned as long as the machine basically said that it was adequate time. All the autoclave machines will have a register on it saying whether it has reached adequate time or not. So by that definition, it's been sterilized; okay. Spore counts don't matter. Its' a gram negative; okay. When you look at the process of > liposuction and removing all of that tissue, and then injecting it back in, as far as it being done sterilely, a gram negative rod coming from the colon to the uria (phonetic) or from one of his equipment, I don't see how it can happen. Let alone the fact of – that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office. There is no history of the fact that –

>
> Mr. Haddad: Your Honor.
>
> The Court: Sustained, and we'll address it.
>
> Mr. Haddad: Thank you.

See November 14, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit C at p. 23, ll 1 to p. 26, ll 13.

Contrary to the statements by Plaintiff's counsel, Dr. Stiller did not state that his opinion was based on their being no other patient infections at Defendant's facility. The transcript conclusively proves that nothing even remotely close to that ever came out of Dr. Stiller's mouth. Moreover, the question posed by Defense counsel was not framed to elicit an improper response. The interruption by Mr. Haddad of Dr. Stiller's testimony which the Court sustained without an objection even being made was totally premature considering the transcript reveals that Dr. Stiller did not testify contrary to, nor did Defense counsel ask a question contrary to the Court's Order in Limine. The Court should therefore reconsider the basis for the mistrial being based on the testimony of Dr. Stiller considering he did not violate the Order in Limine.

Dr. Stiller did not testify about an absence of prior infections involving other patients or that he had reviewed any chart or representations involving other patients. He simply stated "no pertinent or persistent infections in the office." Plaintiff interprets this statement to infer that Dr. Stiller must have been referring to infections involving other patients. While this interpretation represents nothing more than sheer speculation on the part of Plaintiff's counsel, the fact remains that an equally plausible interpretation by the jury was the fact the patient herself had never presented with any evidence of infection during her office visits and/or subsequent discussions with Dr. Kerr. There was simply no basis upon which the jury would have reasonably concluded Dr. Stiller was bringing in evidence related to other patients. As a result, there was no basis to conclude that the jury was somehow tainted with improper information based on what Dr. Stiller said such that a mistrial should have been granted or that Plaintiff was prevented a fair trial.

Plaintiff provides no case authority from any jurisdiction supporting such a proposition, nor is there any case authority in Idaho applying either Rule 47(u) or Rule 37(e) in such a fashion. There was only one Court Order issued on discovery matters and it was promptly obeyed by the Defense. The Defense did not violate any of the Orders issued by the Court on the Motions in Limine and the Defendants and their counsel did nothing that amounted to a violation of the Court Order on evidence of prior infections of other patients of Dr. Kerr. In fact, counsel for the Defendants did everything possible and reasonable to prevent Dr. Stiller from offering testimony that was in violation of the Court Order. The question asked of Dr. Stiller that resulted in his answer that is in question, related solely to whether gram negative bacteria found on Krystal Ballard came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr and it defies logic to conclude that this question could be construed to include anything to do with the absence of infections of other patients of Dr. Kerr.

In the court reporter's transcript for the matters discussed and taken up after the noon recess on November 14, 2013, the Court made the following statement: "I said there was not to be any reference to any other infections." See Affidavit of Counsel in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions, as Exhibit A. The question asked of Dr. Stiller referred to Krystal Ballard only and did not refer to other infections. The answer of Dr. Stiller was, among other testimony, "let alone the fact of that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office." (Emphasis added). It is logical that the jury would interpret the answer to mean the ordinary dictionary definition of the words pertinent and persistent. A standard dictionary definition of these words are: "Persistent, persevering or stubborn in a course or resolve. Enduring, permanent, continuous. Not falling away. Remaining past the time of majority." "Pertinent, related to or properly bearing upon the matter in hand, relevant." Applying these definitions, there is no basis for the conclusion that these words mean other infections, because the question related only to Krystal Ballard and whether gram negative bacteria found on her came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr.

The questions of Dr. Stiller and his answers leading up to the testimony in question of Dr. Stiller, did not relate to or involve testimony that pertained to other infections. Presumably with knowledge of this fact, Plaintiff spends the majority of his brief trying to discredit and condemn the Defense on collateral issues which are not only disputed, but have absolutely nothing to do with the issue before the Court on why the mistrial was granted. In an attempt to manufacture evidence of alleged deliberate misconduct, Plaintiff's counsel fills his brief with inflated and half-truth statements aimed at maligning the Defense in hopes that the Court will award one or more of the requested sanctions. Plaintiff's moving papers are filled with statements which are not only irrelevant to the matter at hand, but are objectionable and clearly aimed at trying to create improper bias against the Defense.

For example, Plaintiff states that Mr. Quane turned his back on the Court somehow suggesting this was done as a sign of disrespect when in reality he was coughing, blowing his nose and conferring with his client about what the Court had stated. Mr. Quane is 79 years old and his hearing is not perfect as was demonstrated during the trial when he asked both the Court and various witnesses on occasion to repeat themselves. It is hard to imagine a physical disability like hearing loss and old age being relied upon by Plaintiff's counsel as a legitimate basis to award sanctions against a party and/or their attorney. Furthermore, as was obvious to all at the trial, both Defense counsel were ill during the trial which resulted in Mr. Quane being briefly sick. This did not justify the sanctions sought nor was it grounds for the mistrial.

Plaintiff further claims that the Defense was pleased about the fact that a mistrial was granted. Nothing could be further from the truth. Frankly this is a totally disingenuous and baseless allegation for Plaintiff's counsel to advance. Trials are rare occurrences in today's practice and no one wants to have to prepare a second time or to expose their client to multiple trials. It is without question that significant time, money and effort had been put in to preparing the Defense case. Most assuredly the Defendants themselves, Dr. Kerr and his wife, do not want to spend another ten trial days away from their practice in order to attend a second trial. Plaintiff seems to forget and/or ignore the fact that by attending the trial to defend himself Dr. Kerr basically had to shut down the majority of his practice at great financial loss with no means of recovery.

In addition, the defense has already had to endure a significant financial penalty as a direct result of the mistrial being granted. In addition to Dr. Kerr, the defense expert witnesses were already scheduled and indeed, some were in route to testify when the mistrial was granted. The defense not only had to reimburse these experts for their time in preparing and for cancelling their respective practices so they could attend the trial, but now the defense will be forced to incur these costs a second time – again at significant expense. It is therefore clear that the respective costs of the mistrial are not lopsided to one party or the other, but rather to both parties.

Another example can be found in Plaintiff's characterization of Dr. Stiller's prior testimony. Plaintiff contends that Dr. Stiller and/or Defense counsel had done something improper by having Dr. Stiller engage in further conversation with Dr. O'Neil, the familiarizing local cosmetic surgeon. In response to Plaintiff's objection, the Court, during a break outside the presence of the jury specifically asked Dr. Stiller if he learned anything new about the local standard of practice as a result of his conversation with Dr. O'Neil and he said he had not. This ended the issue and Defense counsel was instructed simply to avoid discussing the second conversation with the witness.

This issue has nothing to do with why the mistrial was granted and is simply another example of Plaintiff trying to unfairly characterize this issue and engage in mud-slinging against the Defense. There is no case authority in Idaho which states that a witness cannot discuss as many times as he/she wants to, issues with the familiarizing expert. Defense counsel cited the Court to an Idaho appellate case in which the district Court allowed the out of area expert to take a break in the trial to try and contact a familiarizing expert during the middle of the trial. See Gubler v. Boe, 120 Idaho 294, 296, 815 P.2d 1034, 1036 (1991) (the trial court delayed the proceedings to allow Dr. Tune an opportunity to re-contact Dr. Groberg, or any other doctor, in an attempt to familiarize Dr. Tune with the local community standard of care).

Another example can be found in Plaintiff's characterization of the lack of prior patient infections issue as a whole. Without the opportunity to consider the issue, the Court initially compared it to the Defense trying to have the jury consider the absence of other car accidents as proof that the defendant was a good driver. See November 5, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit D at p. 9, ll 18 to p. 10, ll 6. However, this is not a fair comparison when taken in connection with the testimony of Plaintiff's expert, Dr. Sorensen, outlined below that he considered the lack of other patient complications to be the best evidence that Dr. Kerr and his staff were cleaning and disinfecting the equipment correctly.

Plaintiff's attorney took the deposition of Dr. Kerr on January 30, 2013 and asked Dr. Kerr about post-operative infections of patients undergoing lipolysis, whether any patient's died, how any post-operative infections were diagnosed, and conditions of cellulitis that Dr. Kerr answered. Plaintiff's counsel never asked at that time for medical records of other patients. Instead, he elected to wait until after the end of discovery, as ordered in the Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings dated September 9, 2013, to raise this issue to try and cast a shadow over the Defense in a deliberate effort to prevent relevant evidence from being admitted at the trial by claiming they had asked for information which the Defense failed to provide.

The Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings provided in part that no later than 7 days before trial each attorney shall certify to the Court a descriptive list of all exhibits proposed to be offered in evidence. The same Notice provided that the last day for the taking of any discovery depositions shall be no later than 60 days prior to trial which was September 5, 2013.

The Defense submitted its list of trial exhibits that included exhibit number AA with a description that reads "Compilation of Operative procedures of Dr. Kerr from December of 2007 through December 23, 2010, with Krystal Ballard identified on July 21, 2010 with the total number of liposuction procedures, consisting of 338." Exhibit number AA was produced at the Plaintiff's deposition of Dr. Coffman on August 20, 2013. No exhibits of the Defendants were listed that consisted of records and data of Silk Touch for infections. Exhibit AA was simply a list of the procedures of Dr. Kerr and nothing else and had nothing to do with patient infections.

On September 27, 2013, Plaintiff filed a Notice to take the video conference deposition duces tecum of Susan Kerr on October 2, 2013 that specified she produce at the deposition records and data of Silk Touch for infections and patients among other things. September 27, 2013 was a Friday and on October 1, 2013, Terrence Jones sent an email to Mr. Haddad, objecting to the deposition of Susan Kerr, Exhibit F in the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane. The Notice of Taking the Deposition of Susan Kerr and the date for the deposition were untimely and in violation of the Court Order for the last day for taking depositions, being September 5, 2013. The Notice of the deposition was not timely because it only allowed for slightly over 2 working days before the deposition was scheduled October 2, 2013 at noon, the same day the Plaintiff had scheduled the deposition of Dr. Laurence. The Notice of the deposition was received by Defense counsel the mid-afternoon at September 27, 2013 by fax transmission. The notice, being duces tecum, did not comply with Rule 34 that governs the procedure for taking depositions duces tecum. The short notice for the deposition of Susan Kerr made it impossible to assemble the records requested, redact the patient names, data and SS numbers in order to comply with HIPAA rules and the fact that Susan Kerr was not available to be deposed on October 2, 2013.

After being advised by Mr. Jones that an objection to the deposition of Susan Kerr was asserted, Mr. Haddad did not move the Court to compel the deposition or seek relief from the Court Order limiting the time frame for taking depositions, although there was time for him to do so before the trial on November 5, 2013. The certification of Defense counsel per the Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings dated September 9, 2013, lists the exhibits of the Defendants, including exhibit AA and no exhibit is listed of the records of Silk Touch for infections or lack of infections of other patients. Plaintiff never challenged the objections advanced by Defense counsel, but yet represents to this Court that the Defense did not comply with discovery of the Plaintiff and accused the Defense of somehow trying to hide information from the Plaintiff's counsel which was false. In the court reporter's transcript of November 14, 2013, Exhibit A to the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane, the Court said in regard to the testimony of Dr. Stiller "He can talk about everything he reviewed and testified about in his deposition, and I hope he will and I hope the jury find it informative." This statement by the Court should be equally applicable to the deposition testimony of Dr. Kerr in his deposition taken January 30, 2013, that is described and set forth above. Again, this issue was raised for the first time during oral argument on the Motions in Limine and the Defense was never given an opportunity to advance argument on this issue, but was instead told the matter would be revisited during the trial outside the presence of the jury. Something the Defense was never allowed to do given the mistrial.

Plaintiff claims that the Defense was warned on three occasions that a violation of the Court's rulings would result in an award of costs and fees. Defendant would like to know precisely where in the transcripts of this case such citations can be found. The Defense has provided the Court with the only reference which could be found dealing with the risk of a mistrial with the attendant costs and fees and it dealt squarely with the issue of whether the Plaintiff would seek to remarry – not the issue of prior patient infections. See November 8, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the Affidavit of Counsel as Exhibit E.

Plaintiff's counsel claims that the Defense was somehow disrespectful to the Plaintiff himself. This is an absurd statement which has no factual basis in support and which should be ignored by this Court. After the mistrial was granted, Plaintiff's counsel watched as the Defendants both personally went over and apologized to the Plaintiff for the fact that his wife had died and Defense counsel apologized directly to the Plaintiff that the events had led to a mistrial. The Defense did not want this case to result in a mistrial. Plaintiff claims that the Defense was somehow happy that the case resulted in a mistrial. This is not true. The Defense was barely into its second day of its case, had all of its witnesses, both lay and expert, still set to testify and was prepared to rebut and overcome both the standard of practice and causation arguments advanced by the Plaintiffs.

Suggesting that the Defense would intentionally try to sabotage the trial so that it would end prematurely is both offensive and absurd. Mr. Quane has handled and defended physicians in over 2,000 medical cases and matters of all types, and tried medical malpractice jury trials for physicians in many of these cases. He has conducted over 175 civil jury trials of all types in his career including those for physicians and never had any that ended or terminated with a mistrial. Mr. Jones has never been involved in a trial that was terminated by a mistrial. This was not the desired outcome for this case by the Defendants, and it is not fair to make the Defense the scapegoats for the costs of a retrial. Plaintiff's counsel made it perfectly clear that the only reason he was seeking a mistrial was based on one narrow issue of other patient infections, but yet now in support of sanctions Plaintiff is advancing the entire kitchen sink argument. After sustaining Plaintiff's counsel, the following exchange occurred after the lunch break on November 14:

> The Court: All right. We'll break for the noon recess. Please remember my usual reminder and I will see you at 1:30.
>
> (Jury leaves.)
>
> The Court: Is there some reason why you did not tell your witness about the order in limine?
>
> The Witness: He did; I apologize.
> The Court: Well, that may not be sufficient.
> Mr. Haddad: Well, Your Honor, at this time we are obligated, based upon the discussion with the Court earlier and the clear mandate by this Court on this very issue, not on other issues, this very issue, that if the issue of persistent history of infections or lack of infections came into this trial, that the Court would grant a mistrial and award attorneys' fees, costs and expenses to the party that violated that order. This is a clear violation of that order.
> . . . .

See November 14, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit A. (Emphasis added).

The above comments by Mr. Haddad make it clear that he sought the mistrial solely on the issue of whether testimony had come in regarding the lack of other patient infections and this was the sole basis for the Court granting the mistrial. Despite making this claim crystal clear at that time he sought a mistrial, Plaintiff now argues everything under the sun in support of his claim that all manner of sanctions should be levied against the Defense. This is improper and should not be countenanced by this Court. Virtually all of the arguments advanced by Plaintiff relate to alleged "other bad conduct" to which he seeks to bootstrap his claim for sanctions as outlined above.

To the contrary, with the benefit of the transcript and in viewing the question and answer between Defense counsel and Dr. Stiller, the Defense contends there is nothing to indicate that he violated the Court's Order or that Defense counsel or the defendant engaged in any "deliberate misconduct", much less that it would justify granting a mistrial or awarding costs and attorney fees or other sanctions against the Defense. Defense counsel suspected as much at the time and requested the opportunity to review the actual record of what was stated, but was never given the opportunity to address the Court at all regarding what was actually said:

> Mr. Jones: Your Honor, first of all, I did make that discussion on more than one occasion with this particular witness. So to the extent it came out, I'll take responsibility for it; he's my witness. But the discussion was had and was had more than once. I would like to see exactly what the witness said so I can better comment on it to the judge on the issue of grounds for a mistrial. I do know that when this judge –when Your Honor talked about this initially, the issue of costs and attorney fees and granting a mistrial was in response to bringing up the issue of whether the patient was going to remarry. Now, I know there was subsequent discussions about the issue of other infections, and I don't believe what this witness just testified to and what he said - -
>
> The Court: I said there was not to be any reference to any other infections. I don't see I have any choice but to grant a mistrial. And I will address the costs and attorney fees later, but it seems to me that this was something I addressed specifically. I said, "take it up outside the presence of the jury." This is a serious violation of the Court's prior order, and I don't see the Court has any choice but to grant counsel's request for a mistrial.

See November 14, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit A. (Emphasis added).

At no time after the noon recess was Defense counsel even allowed to address the Court to advance any argument in an attempt to dissuade the Court from granting the Motion for a mistrial. Finally, regarding the Motions in Limine, Defense counsel has found nothing in the Court transcripts obtained to date which stands for the proposition advanced by Plaintiff's counsel on the issue of other patient infections and that a violation of the Court's Order in Limine would result in an award of all costs and attorney fees against the Defense.

On the first day of the trial, the Court addressed the Motions in Limine filed by the parties. Although no written decision was issued regarding the Court's ruling on the Motions in Limine, the transcript read as follows:

Mr. Jones: Okay. Now, with respect to the issue involving other infections, we provided the Court with information regarding the opinions of the Plaintiff's own expert on the importance of other infections and how he testified in his deposition. And it's in our brief that he said that was the very best evidence; the very best evidence of whether or not someone is having problems with their sanitizing, disinfecting, sterilization procedures, is whether or not they are having issues with other infections. And so, I guess, for the benefit of making sure --

. . . .

Mr. Jones: Your Honor, there's two parts to it. The first is what the plaintiff's own expert said, where he said that was the best evidence to consider the infection issues.

The Court: Okay.

Mr. Jones: And so, whether or not we would offer testimony, we should be able to at least address, through the plaintiff's own expert, issues associated with his opinion. His opinion being that the best evidence in this case is to whether or not Dr. Kerr and his clinic are doing what they're supposed to so, is to look at either the presence of or absence of infections in other cases. So there's that aspect of it.

The Court: Um-hmm.

Mr. Jones: Secondly, you have, from an infectious disease standpoint, what they look at and consider for purposes of evaluating whether or not a facility has problems with their infection control. They look at infection rates and look at that data.

As far as who gathered the information, Dr. Kerr has testified in his deposition regarding his knowledge, personally, of his own infection rates, and he should be able to testify regarding his knowledge, as opposed to concerns about, for example, a non-physician looking at the charts, which I understand is one of the concerns. So there's another avenue, I guess, in terms of utilizing Dr. Kerr's testimony on that basis.

But we take the position that because of the plaintiff's own expert testimony on that issue, at the very least Dr. Kerr's knowledge of his own infections rates, that that data ought to be something that should be considered by the jury when they're being asked in this case to evaluate the sterilization procedures, cleaning procedures, things of that nature.

The Court: Um-hmm. Well, I can see how if the plaintiff's expert were to testify in that fashion, then there could be some relevance to > problems that day or problems in the immediate time period proceeding. But, as a general rule, one doesn't get into the absence of other accidents in establishing whether there was or was not negligence on a particular occasion.

>
> And so it sounds to me like that, again, is probably one that we should revisit once we have an opportunity to hear the testimony. And it sounds to me that would be reasonable to revisit again.
>
> Just draw my attention to it prior to bringing out the evidence. We'll exclude the jury, because it sounds to me that could have some relevance. In particular, that's what an expert in the field would rely on, then I think that it could be an appropriate area, provided it's limited to day of and time period immediately proceeding.
>
> It could be relevant without leading us into too many collateral matters. But I think it would be prudent to have that discussion outside the presence of the jury, since the absence of other injuries, as a rule, is not viewed as relevant.
>
> So I'll revisit that one, if you'll – when you get ready to – when you feel it has reached the point where it may be relevant for some purpose, just draw my attention to it. We'll excuse the jury and we'll discuss it.

See November 5, 2013 hearing transcript attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit D at p. 16, ll 1 to p. 20, ll 7.

By way of additional background for the Court, Plaintiff's expert, Dr. Sorensen gave the following answer during his deposition regarding the importance of what he considered to be the best evidence of the adequacy of a physician's cleaning and disinfection procedures:

> Q. There's no proof by any means of the fact at the time of the surgery these gram-negative bacteria went into her body, is there?
>
> A. No.
>
> Q. Okay.··Have you formed an opinion as to what is the best evidence that a doctor utilizes appropriate sterile conditions during surgery, disinfectant procedures with equipment, operating room, and the entire area where the procedure is done, cleansing of instruments -- what's the best proof that that is being done appropriately? What would be the best proof?
>
> A. I think lack of complications would be the best answer.

See August 21, 2013 deposition transcript of Dean Sorensen, M.D. attached to the affidavit of counsel in opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions attached as Exhibit J. (Emphasis added).

While Plaintiff's counsel seeks to crucify the Defense counsel for the mistrial in this case, the Court is obligated to review and address what actually transpired with the benefit of the above transcripts. Similar to the findings of the Ninth Circuit in the case of U.S. v. Meza-Soria, the Defense contends "there was no good legal reason whatever to grant the mistrial, and that absence of a reason makes the grant an abuse of discretion." United States v. Meza-Soria, 935 F.2d 166, 170-71 (9th Cir. 1991). In further support, Dr. Stiller submitted an affidavit in which he represents to the Court that the questions and answers which were being presented were not intended to come even remotely close to violating the Court's ruling that the prior patient infection issue needed to be addressed outside the presence of the jury for approval before presenting evidence of that nature.

In fact, as further proof that the Defense was both aware of and being mindful of the Court's ruling, the Court should consider the transcript at the beginning of Dr. Stiller's testimony the morning of November 14. Defense counsel made it clear before starting the examination of Dr. Stiller that he would need to take up a matter outside the presence of the jury regarding the witness' testimony. The very reason this advance notice was given was to inform the Court that the lack of prior infections involving other patients was an issue that the Defense would need to discuss outside the presence of the jury in order to revisit it with the Court – just as Defense counsel had been instructed on day one of the trial. The statements of Defense counsel were as follows:

> Mr. Jones: Thank you, your honor. And also, with respect to the two in limine issues, there will be an offer of proof in about the middle of this witness that will need to be made. Perhaps, we can take it up during a break.
>
> The Court: That's a very good idea.
>
> Mr. Jones: I'm just letting the Court know.

See Exhibit A to the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane.

Why would the Defense counsel and/or this witness intentionally run afoul of the Court's Orders in Limine while at the same time specifically state to the Court at the start of the witness' testimony that he wanted to address the issue outside the presence of the jury just as the Court had ordered him to do? The Defense contends this is strong evidence that the Defense did not engage in anything even remotely close to deliberate misconduct. Pursuant to Rule 47(u), the Defense contends that the necessary showing has not been made to support any award of sanctions against the Defense arising out of the Court granting the Plaintiff's Motion for a mistrial.

C. The range of sanctions available under Rule 47(u) does not include striking defenses or disqualifying Defense counsel.

In addition to costs and attorney fees, Plaintiff further seeks the imposition of even more harsh sanctions including striking the Defendant's defenses and disqualifying Defense counsel. In support, Plaintiff relies on the case of Adams v. Reed, 138 Idaho 36, 57 P.3d 505 (Ct. App. 2002). Adams involved a personal injury action which followed a long and protracted discovery process that included multiple motions to compel, motions for mediation and motions to dismiss. The case was reset for trial multiple times in front of different judges over an extended time period. Id. at 38. After repeated delays, Reed filed a motion to dismiss the action as a sanction for repeated discovery violations, noncompliance with pretrial orders, and untimely submission of the Adams' pretrial memorandum. The district Court concluded that dismissal was an appropriate sanction and granted the motion. Id. at 39.

On appeal, the Court noted that "a trial Court's discretion is not unfettered, however, particularly where the ultimate sanction, dismissal of a party's claim, has been imposed." Id. The Court explained that "a trial court possesses authority to sanction parties for failure to comply with discovery orders or pretrial orders and for failure to seasonably supplement responses to discovery." Id. citing Rules 16(i), 26(e)(4), and 37(b). Permissible sanctions include those identified in Rule 37(b) which includes dismissal of an action. Citing Ashby v. W. Council, Lumber Prod. & Indus. Workers, 117 Idaho 684, 791 P.2d 434 (1990), the court stated that there were several "factors that must be expressly considered by the trial court in deciding whether dismissal with prejudice is warranted:

> The two primary factors are a clear record of delay and ineffective lesser sanctions, which must be bolstered by the presence of at least one "aggravating" factor, including: 1) delay resulting from intentional conduct, 2) delay caused by the plaintiff personally, or 3) delay causing prejudice to the defendant. The consideration of these factors must appear in the record in order to facilitate appellate review.

Ashby, 117 Idaho 686–87 (citations omitted).

Analyzing the Ashby factors, the Adams court found evidence of a clear record of delay which included: "the Adamses were routinely late in responding to discovery, were repeatedly noncompliant with deadlines set out in pretrial orders, and on one occasion failed to engage in court ordered mediation." Adams, 138 Idaho at 39. Regarding the ineffectiveness of lesser sanctions, "the district court found that during the hearings of October 30, 2000 and March 19, 2001, the Adamses were specifically warned that failure to comply with discovery could result in dismissal, and they were admonished to immediately respond to outstanding discovery requests." Per the Ashby decision, explicit warnings are among the lesser sanctions that are appropriate for the court to impose before imposition of the drastic sanction of dismissal. Ashby, 117 Idaho at 687, 791 P.2d at 437.

Applying the Adams decision and the primary factors analysis used therein by the court to the facts of this case, the Adams decision strongly favors the Defense as there is no pattern of delay in this case that would support any monetary or dismissal sanctions including striking of defenses or exclusion of Defense counsel. Plaintiff has not demonstrated fulfillment of any of the Ashby factors outlined above. There has been no "pattern of delay" on any issue by the Defense which played any role in the granting of the mistrial which was based solely on the erroneous conclusion that Dr. Stiller had rendered testimony in violation of a Court Order in Limine regarding testimony of infections involving other patients. As a result, the Adams decision cuts squarely against Plaintiff's motion for sanctions whether applying Rule 37(e) or Rule 47(u).

Plaintiff next cites to the case Crown v. Hawkins Co., Ltd., 128 Idaho 114, 910 P.2d 786 (1996) for the proposition that the Court should disqualify the Defense counsel as a sanction. Crown involved a bench trial as to the duties of a director of a warehouse corporation related to its bean grower members. As a sub-issue on appeal, the bean growers argued that Nungester's legal counsel should have been disqualified because a conflict of interest existed between Nungester and Hepworth, Lezamiz and the law firm. The growers asserted that if Nungester's actions as a director of the warehouse corporation were found to be negligent, the assets of the law firm and its partners would be implicated. They submitted that such a direct, personal stake in the outcome of the litigation violates Rule1.7(b) of the Idaho Rules of Professional Conduct. Crown, 128 Idaho 122.

Relying upon the case of Weaver v. Millard, 120 Idaho 692, 696, 819 P.2d 110, 114 (Ct.App.1991), the Crown court stated:

> The moving party has the burden of establishing grounds for the disqualification. The goal of the court should be to shape a remedy which will assure fairness to the parties and the integrity of the judicial process. Whenever possible, courts should endeavor to reach a solution that is least burdensome to the client. Where the motion to disqualify comes not from a client or former client of the > attorney, but from an opposing party, the motion should be reviewed with caution.

Crown, 128 Idaho at 123 (citations omitted).

After addressing Model Rule 1.7 and after concluding that the growers had waited almost five years before first seeking to file a motion to disqualify opposing counsel, the court concluded the district court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion to disqualify. Id. In the matter before the court, Plaintiff cites to Crown as support for excluding Defense counsel as a sanction for the mistrial. A review of the Crown decision aptly demonstrates that it supports no such proposition. The disqualification issue in Crown involved concerns over whether the attorney had an improper financial interest in the outcome of the case such that he should be disqualified from serving as counsel. The disqualification was not being sought as a sanction for alleged conduct resulting in a mistrial as Plaintiff claims in the instant motion.

Plaintiff's reliance on the Weaver v. Millard, 120 Idaho 692, 696, 819 P.2d 110, 114 (Ct.App.1991) is similarly misplaced. Weaver involved a commercial transaction to build fish ponds. The Court of Appeals ruled that the district court did not abuse its discretion in denying a motion to disqualify either the attorney for contractor or the attorney for third-party defendant partner, who were both represented by attorneys from same law firm. Again, this case involves potentially conflicted counsel and has nothing to do with the issues in this case.

Plaintiff next cites to Model Rule 3.2 and 3.4 in further support of their Motion for Sanctions. Rule 3.2 relates to making reasonable efforts to expedite the litigation consistent with the interests of the attorney's client. The portion of Rule 3.4 cited by Plaintiff states that an attorney shall not knowingly disobey an obligation under the rules of the tribunal. Since the mistrial was granted based on the belief that a trial witness, not a party, included in his answer to a question information otherwise subject to an Order in Limine, these rules have no application and do not serve to support Plaintiff's request to strike defenses or exclude Defense counsel. In addition, similar to the language of rule 47(u) which requires the court to find an act of deliberate misconduct by a party or the party's attorney, Model Rule 3.4 refers to an attorney who "knowingly disobeys" the rules.

Because the question posed to Dr. Stiller, who admitted he was informed by Defense counsel of the court's limine rulings on other patient infections, did not request him to comment upon that topic in his answer, there is no evidence that Defense counsel engaged in conduct which would be considered in violation of Model Rule 3.4, nor is there any evidence that Defense counsel or the Defendant himself engaged in any "pervasive pattern of refusing to obey court orders." See Plaintiff's Memorandum in Support of Motion for Sanctions at p. 16. As a result, Plaintiff's Motion seeking the sanction of disqualifying Defense counsel is without merit and should be denied.

D. Because Dr. Stiller did not testify in violation of the Court's Order in Limine, the Plaintiff's Motion for a mistrial should not have been granted

Even if Dr. Stiller had made the improper disclosure being alleged, (which the Defense contends the above transcript clearly refutes) the Defense maintains that it would not have been grounds for a mistrial, especially given the lack of any effort at a curative instruction to the jury to disregard any perceived improper testimony. Furthermore contrary to the arguments of Plaintiff, the Court had not issued a number of prior cautionary instructions to the jury prior to granting a mistrial. The author of this document was not able to find any case authority in Idaho regarding the granting of mistrials in a civil case setting. In the criminal arena, however, there is some analogous case authority. Idaho Criminal Rule 29.1 states that "a mistrial may be granted only where there is an "error or legal defect in the proceedings, or conduct inside or outside of the courtroom, which is prejudicial to the defendant and deprives the defendant of a fair trial."

Applying Rule 29.1, the Idaho Court of Appeals stated:

> The admission of improper evidence does not automatically require the declaration of a mistrial. See, e.g., State v. Rose, 125 Idaho 266, 269, 869 P.2d 583, 586 (Ct.App.1994). Where improper testimony is inadvertently introduced into a trial and the trial court promptly instructs the jury to disregard such evidence, the Idaho Supreme Court noted that "it is ordinarily presumed that the jury obeyed the court's instruction entirely." See State v. Hedger, 115 Idaho 598, 601, 768 P.2d 1331, 1334 (1989); State v. Boothe, 103 Idaho 187, 192, 646 P.2d 429, 434 (Ct.App.1982).

> No less an authority than the United States Supreme Court has proclaimed:
>
> We normally presume that a jury will follow an instruction to disregard inadmissible evidence inadvertently presented to it, unless there is an "overwhelming probability" that the jury will be unable to follow the court's instructions, and a strong likelihood that the effect of the evidence would be "devastating" to the defendant. Greer v. Miller, 483 U.S. 756, 766 n. 8, 107 S.Ct. 3102, 97 L.Ed.2d 618 (1987) (citations omitted).

State v. Hill, 140 Idaho 625, 631, 97 P.3d 1014, 1020 (Ct. App. 2004).

In State v. Hill, the Court of Appeals reviewed a case in which the trial court refused to grant a mistrial and instead instructed the jury to disregard the prosecutor's question which included reference to the defendant having been in jail. The court found that "the prosecutor's disclosure to the jury that Hill had been in jail could hardly be characterized as "devastating." Given that Hill was on trial for a criminal offense, even in the absence of the prosecutor's question, any reasonably knowledgeable juror likely would have surmised that Hill had at some point been in jail. Hill has not demonstrated that she was denied a fair trial. Accordingly, we hold that the district court did not err in denying her motion for a mistrial." State v. Hill, 140 Idaho 625, 631, 97 P.3d 1014, 1020 (Ct. App. 2004).

Likewise in this case, the above testimony by Dr. Stiller can hardly be considered "devastating" to the Plaintiff's case. There was nothing stated which "let the genie out of the bottle" regarding the issue of lack of prior infections involving other patients which the Court previously indicated it would revisit later in the trial, something that the Defense was never allowed to do by virtue of the mistrial being granted. Not only was the question about other patient infections not asked, but that issue never came out in Dr. Stiller's answer. Instead, Plaintiff's counsel, interpreted Dr. Stiller's statement as containing information which it did not and which the Defense contends the jury could not have possibly attached anywhere near the same meaning to it that Plaintiff's counsel claims.

The Court instructed the parties to bring this issue up outside the presence of the jury which is what the Defense was planning to do when it was time to present that issue. Had the Defense been given the opportunity to address with the Court the above testimony from Plaintiff's expert, Dr. Sorensen that the lack of other patient infections was the "best evidence" that Dr. Kerr was properly cleaning and sterilizing his equipment, then the Defense would have sought the right to ask a direct question to Dr. Stiller on that very subject referring to the deposition question and answer by Dr. Sorensen. The Defense contends that where the Plaintiff's expert has the opinion that the best evidence in an alleged failure to sterilize equipment is whether there is the presence or absence historically of other complications, that this is relevant and proper consideration by the jury which the Defense intended to pursue consistent with the Court's Order in Limine.

Plaintiff claims that there was some "pattern and practice" of misconduct, but yet cannot point to a single instance wherein the Court admonished the jury to disregard any statement made by either Defense counsel or a Defense witness. It is hard to understand how there could be any alleged pattern of conduct by the Defense where the jury has not been told on numerous occasions, much less even one time, to disregard a statement, opinion, question or comment of a witness. Thus, pursuant to the Adams decision outlined above, there has not been a showing as to the ineffectiveness of lesser instructions.

Based on what the transcript shows clearly transpired, it is unknown why Plaintiff's counsel, without even consulting his own client, would jump up and demand a mistrial. It suggests an alternative motive to seeking this drastic remedy which he repeatedly claims has unfairly prejudiced his client. Such an alternative motive would include knowledge of the fact that at least two jurors stated they would be unable to continue the trial into the following week. With knowledge that the lone alternate juror had been lost due to an error by the jury commissioner's office, there is no way the trial would have been able to continue into the third week and a mistrial would have, in all likelihood, have been granted at that time anyway. By demanding the mistrial when they did, Plaintiff's counsel was clearly trying to jump on this issue early by seeking to lay blame on the Defense so they could try and recover some of their costs against the Defense - whereas if the mistrial had been granted due to having less than twelve jurors they would have no one to blame.

Plaintiff seeks to bootstrap its claim by referring to a Motion to Compel it prevailed upon filed some fourteen months before the trial and the fact that no mediation occurred. Despite the fact that Defense counsel advanced what he believed to be valid objections regarding the number of interrogatories and the topics covered, the issue was brought before the Court and the Defense was ordered to respond to the discovery. The Defense therefore complied with the one and only discovery Order entered in this case which clearly does not support Plaintiff's claim of any so-called pattern of conduct nor does it show that lesser sanctions were ineffective. Furthermore, Plaintiff's counsel makes several references to why mediation did not occur, but fails to concede the obvious fact that he had the ability to file a motion to request mediation at any time which he did not do. By virtue of the multiple sanctions requested in the Plaintiff's Motion, the Plaintiff seeks to be put in a position, sanction-wise, superior to the sanctions authorized by Rule 47(u). It is clear that the Court's Order on sanctions is confined to sanctions for having to declare a mistrial and none others. In this regard, Plaintiff's Motion that included enforcement of existing discovery and disclosure deadlines, is not pertinent to or the subject of the Court Order on sanctions related to the mistrial or sanctions authorized by Rule 47(u).

IV. Conclusion

What Plaintiff's counsel is truly trying to relay to this Court is that they do not want

Jeremiah Quane and Terrence Jones to continue to be Defense counsel, taking into count that Jeremiah Quane's record in the defense of physicians is 98% total wins and that he has tried jury cases for physicians over the past 22 years, none of which, resulted in a verdict of negligence against a physician. Plaintiff's attorney seeks disqualification of defense counsel on a bogus argument of some other nefarious intent for the purpose of unfairly benefiting their own client, without consideration of the detriment to the Defendants if Defense counsel is disqualified. Counsel makes numerous references to statements claimed to be contrary to Court Orders, but fails to present any actual evidence for the Court to consider.

The Defense, however, has presented the Court with the actual transcripts to see for itself what was said and by whom. These transcripts stand in stark contrast to the representations advanced by Plaintiff's counsel in its memorandum seeking sanctions. Plaintiff's counsel misrepresents to this Court the statements made by Dr. Stiller by suggesting that he testified about the reasons the Defendants had not violated the standard of practice was because there had not been any other infections at Defendants' facility. The actual transcript shows no such testimony was ever elicited by Defense counsel nor offered by the Defense witness, Dr. Stiller, such that the Court should reconsider the basis for its decision granting the mistrial considering the Court did not have all the facts at the time it ruled.

In the Plaintiff's case-in-chief, the medical records of Dr. Kerr, Elmore Medical Center and St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center were admitted in evidence and these records were reviewed long before trial by Dr. Stiller. These records contain the reports of several doctors in which they state that there is no evidence of infection in Krystal Ballard which include the records of Dr. Kerr for his assessment of Krystal Ballard on July 23, 2010.

Dr. Billy Morgan, is a general surgeon at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center who evaluated Krystal Ballard at the request of Dr. Tisha Fujii, who was the primary treating physician of Krystal Ballard at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center. Dr. Morgan issued a report that covered his evaluation of Krystal Ballard on July 25, 2010 and the report states in pertinent part "she now has what appears to be a probable fat emboli syndrome with significant ARDS, massive hypoxemia, unresponsive to ventilator modes from a surgical standpoint." His report goes on to say in part in regard to the chest x-ray from Elmore Medical Center "findings possibly a similar fat emboli syndrome."

His Report also states in regard to the buttocks of Krystal Ballard, "The patient's buttocks show 2 wounds, 1 on the posterior superior iliac crest on each side with no crepitance to the subcutaneous tissue. No evidence of redness or inflammation and no drainage from the insertion sites for the fat transplants." Defendants' Exhibit U. On July 25, 2010, chest x-rays of Krystal Ballard were taken at Elmore Medical Center and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center and interpreted by radiologists Dr. Stemmler and Dr. Schaff. They issued radiology reports for their respective interpretations of the chest x-rays, Defendants' Exhibits W and X. Exhibits U, W and X are identified in the Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane. Their reports collectively provide that similar findings may be seen in setting of fat embolism and findings may represent fat embolism.

The subject records, put in evidence by the Plaintiff, demonstrate that no pertinent or persistent infections existed which is the testimony of Dr. Stiller that resulted in the mistrial Order of the District Judge. At the time of the subject testimony of Dr. Stiller, the entries in the subject records had not yet been explained by witnesses although the records themselves that contained the entries of doctors of no evidence of infection in Krystal Ballard were in evidence at the doing of the Plaintiff. See also the Affidavit of Dr. Stiller. The foregoing litany of events and facts, give context to the testimony of Dr. Stiller that in fairness the Court may not have been aware of when the mistrial was declared.

Plaintiff's counsel has blatantly inflamed and exaggerated the nature of the testimony and the events at issue solely hoping to unfairly influence the Court and further their quest for sanctions. Pursuant to the requirements of Rule 47(u), Plaintiff can point to no "deliberate misconduct" by the Defense which resulted in the granting of the mistrial. Furthermore, Plaintiff cites to no case authority to support such an award of sanctions against a party in response to a mistrial whether applying Rule 37(e) or Rule 47(u). For these reasons, the Defense requests the Court deny Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions in its entirety.

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO STRIKE DEFENDANTS' SECOND OVERLENGTH MEMORANDUM

ORIGINAL

Plaintiff Charles Ballard, through his attorneys, moves this Court to strike Defendants' Memorandum in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanction filed on the afternoon of Friday, February 7, 2014 pursuant to Rules 7(b)(1) and 10(a)(1) of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure and Fourth Judicial District Local Rule 8.1. This Memorandum, like Defendants' first Memorandum filed without leave of Court on February 5, 2014, violates the pleading requirements of the foregoing Rules.

More specifically, Defendants on February 5, 2014 filed a Memorandum in Opposition to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions which was 36 pages long, excluding the certificate of service page. This Memorandum exceeded by 11 pages the 25 page limit set forth in Fourth Judicial District Local Rule 8.1. Rather than obtaining leave of court prior to filing this overlength Memorandum, Defendants instead filed a contemporaneous Motion for Leave to File Over Length Brief in Response to Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions presumably assuming the Court would allow nunc pro tunc their overlength filing.[1]

On February 7, 2014, the parties were informed by the Court that the Defendants' Motion for Leave to File Over Length Brief was denied. (See Letter dated February 7, 2014, from attorney Jeremiah Quane to the Court attached hereto as Exhibit "A.") In response, Defendants' filed the same Memorandum later that day which they asserted had now been "reformatted ... in conformance with Rule 10(a)(1)." (Id.) According to defense counsel, "[w]ith these formatting changes only, our Memorandum now falls within the 25 page limit of local Rule 8.1." (Id).

[1] Plaintiff filed his motion for sanctions on December 6, 2013, leaving Defendants two months in which to obtain leave to file an overlength brief and file their responsive pleading. Rather than requesting leave during this period, Defendants waited until the very last day to file their responsive pleadings so as to leave Plaintiff's counsel with only the minimum amount of time to respond to their lengthy, overlength filing.

Defendants' second Memorandum is not in conformity with I.R.C.P. 10(a)(1) which governs the form of pleadings and requires that the body of such memoranda "be typed with double line spacing or one-and-one half (1 ½) line spacing with pica standard typing of not more than 10 letters to the inch." A double spaced document using Times New Roman 12 text, which Defendants state they used, will generally have 23 lines of text per page. Defendants' second Memorandum has 32 lines of text per page and it is clear to even the naked eyed that it is not double spaced. It is further clear that the text of Defendants memoranda far exceeds the pica standard of 10 letters to an inch to the extent Defendants used line spacing of one and one-half (1½).[2]

Accordingly, Defendants' second Memorandum should be stricken. Defendants, in response to the Court's ruling, have simply crammed together, without regard to the pagination and formatting requirements set forth in our local rules and the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, their prior overlength Memorandum, which was rejected by the Court. In so doing, Defendants continue to flout the rules applicable to them and the rulings of this Court.

Plaintiff does not seek oral argument on this motion.

---

[2] Defendants' second Memorandum also is untimely pursuant to Rule 7(b)(3)(E) – "[a]ny responsive briefs shall be filed with the court, and served so that it is received by the parties, at least seven (7) days prior to the hearing."

Dated this 10th day of February, 2014.

THE COURT: I understand you have something to take up; please proceed.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, on the defense side for our case this morning we have an out-of-town witness with a scheduling issue, kind of like Dr. Sorensen, and we would like to call him this morning first thing.

THE COURT: Who is that?

MR. JONES: Dr. Stiller, Jeffery Stiller.

THE COURT: And did you advise counsel that he would be one of your witnesses today?

MR. JONES: Yes, ma'am.

THE COURT: Okay. Comments?

MR. McKAY: Yes.

THE COURT: Briefly.

MR. McKAY: Yes, thank you, Your Honor.

I hope I have earned the reputation over the years of being reasonable and accommodating reasonable requests from opposing counsel. This is not reasonable. Counsel chose to spend all day yesterday with Dr. Kerr on direct examination examining him on things like his anaesthesia and the practices that he uses and how he does a procedure when it involves the heart, things that are completely irrelevant to this case. And it's true, they did accommodate Dr. Sorensen, but that was only because he spent two hours talking to Dr. Sorensen --

THE COURT: I know. I think that -- I agree with you that jury time is not being used well at all. The examinations tend to cumulative. They tend to be wandering all over the place. And they tend not to be beneficial.

And there was some relevance in it, which is getting a little idea of perhaps what an anesthesiologist might do, so I think that was fair. But, yes, I have concerns as well that jury time is being used very poorly and there is substantial and unnecessary repetition, but I don't see how that relates to whether a witness should be called out of order.

And I think sometimes -- my experience has been that sometimes when attorneys have been in situations for a considerable period of time, they find it a bit aggravating and have a tendency to "kitchen sink" objections. And I don't know that that is beneficial. The focus right now is -- I agree with you, things have not moved anywhere close, anywhere close to a desirable pace.

And I will be emphasizing to the jury the need to give fair treatment to the case and to remember their functions as judges of the facts because I would hate to think that using their time poorly was deliberate.

MR. HADDAD: So I understand Your Honor, and maybe at the risk of sounding self-serving here, you gave us two weeks to try the case. We've done everything we can to present our case in a way that it can be tried in two weeks.

THE COURT: And you are going to talk to me about how this affects Dr. Stiller because you will, of course, not give in to the temptation to the "kitchen sink" because you are frustrated?

MR. HADDAD: I understand the Court's comments and I'll sit down now.

THE COURT: I'll allow this witness to be called out of order.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, can we take up one other thing?

THE COURT: One other thing.

MR. HADDAD: And just so that we don't get into a situation where we have to try to raise an issue that might be better served outside the presence of the jury, there's some CT scans that Mr. Jones had raised the issue of using some of those CT scans of Ms. Ballard in Dr. Stiller's presentation of evidence.

Those CTs were not presented as part of the materials that Dr. Stiller had at the time of his deposition. In fact, the plaintiffs -- I'm sorry -- the defendants did not get those until they subpoenaed those from St. Al's, I believe, the end of October.

THE COURT: Oh, so this was something that was not previously used and not previously disclosed? Was it was disclosed as a potential exhibit?

MR. HADDAD: As an exhibit, and they had identified the radiologist that read them, and that may be appropriate under some circumstances. But with this witness, he didn't have the benefit of those, didn't have them with him, didn't comment on them. In fact, they didn't get the X-rays or CTs until sometime at the end of October.

So to use those with Dr. Stiller in their presentation on his direct examination would be improper because there's been no cross-examination availability on that.

THE COURT: Okay. I think that is a serious issue. What is your response?

MR. JONES: Your Honor, the radiology report of the CT that interprets the very images that are simply represented by the films themselves, have been in their possession the whole time.

THE COURT: Wasn't that witness asked what he relied on in his deposition?

MR. JONES: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And did he rely specifically on these CT scans?

MR. JONES: He relied on the St. Al's records, which include the report of the CT scan. All this is is the image itself. The CT scan report --

THE COURT: Okay. I'm sustaining the objection.

I think that -- frankly, I'm perturbed by the pattern in this case of pulling out exhibits and items that haven't previously been disclosed and then try to end run around the fact that when a person at a deposition is asked what's their opinion, what's it based on, and they respond in a certain way, then I see no reason to allow information to slip in later that they did not rely on when they formed their opinion and related their opinion a very brief time ago.

I don't think that is fair or reasonable. And I'm not going to permit it.

MR. JONES: So I'm clear, Your Honor. He is certainly capable, then, of talking about the reports which he reviewed and replied upon.

THE COURT: He can talk about everything he reviewed and testified about in his deposition, and I hope he will and I hope the jury find it informative.

MR. JONES: Thank you, Your Honor.

And also, with respect to the two in limine issues, there will be an offer of proof in about the middle of this witness that will need to be made. Perhaps, we can take it up during a break.

THE COURT: That's a very good idea.

MR. JONES: I'm just letting the Court know.

THE COURT: All right. I'm very concerned that we are not using our jury time well.

MR. JONES: I'll try to move quickly this morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Counsel, I have confidence that you will make every effort, so I'll look forward to it.

MR. JONES: Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Well, let's bring in our jury.

(Jury enters courtroom.)

THE COURT: Well, the members of the jury are present. We'll be taking a witness out of order again for scheduling reasons. Normally, you'll -- this doesn't happen on a regular basis, but it does tend to happen from time to time when we have physician witnesses because the parties are balancing their professional responsibilities. And so it is sometimes necessary to call a witness out of order.

Also, I do have some concerns that our pace is off the pace that I anticipated the trial to be. And I think the most important thing -- absolute most important thing is that a case be decided fairly and impartially and based on the evidence received in court and the jury's wise and independent evaluation of that evidence.

And I know that feeling pressured by your personal schedule can sometimes get in the way. Although, I have faith that you all know the case is important to everybody and you will give it your best consideration.

But to help me and to help the parties, I'd like you to write down and put down any schedule issues you have and write it down and pass to the bailiff to pass it along to me. Because we will do what we can to make it possible for you to do the best job that you can. And so if there are things that we can do and adjustments we can make, we'll do so.

Counsel assures me today that he will be presenting an efficient presentation to you, but I need to know where you are. As a general rule, within the first couple of days of the trial, I have a pretty good estimate on how we are proceeding and let's just say that I have now developed concerns about our schedule. And I need to know what your concerns are.

So if you'd just write it down, give it to the bailiff and we'll do what we can to make it work for everybody. Because absolutely the most important thing in any trial is that the case be decided fairly and impartially by jurors who don't feel unduly pressured or harassed by life. So if we can make adjustments to our schedule to make things work better for you, we will.

Please call your witness.

MR. JONES: Thank you, Your Honor. Defense calls Dr. Stiller.

Madam Clerk, this witness will need a few exhibits and I'll tell what you they are so we can have those. Exhibit G. And I can get started with the witness while you get started with that, if you want to write these down. G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O.

GEOFFREY DAVID STILLER, having been sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. JONES:

Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Please introduce yourself to the jury.
A. I'm Geoffrey David Stiller.
Q. And what is your occupation?
A. Can you hear me well enough? Okay.

Page 11

I'm a general and cosmetic surgeon.

Q. Where do you reside?
A. In Spokane, Washington.
Q. Where do you practice?
A. In Moscow, Idaho; Pullman, Washington; and Colfax, Washington.
Q. Are you are a retained expert in this case for the defense; are you not?
A. I am.
Q. And the court clerk is getting Exhibit G, which is -- Defense Exhibit G, which is an admitted exhibit of your CV.

While she is getting that, if you could tell the jury a little bit about your background training and education?

A. Absolutely. So I did medical school at the University of Minnesota from '92 to '96. And then a general surgical residency at Graduate Hospital in Philadelphia, which is part of the University of Pennsylvania system when I started.

After I finished my residency training, I then entered the Air Force and was stationed at Mountain Home Air Force base -- was stationed there as a general surgeon and became chief of the medical staff for a short amount of time. I spent four years there as a general surgeon.

When I completed my four years in the Air Force, I moved up to Moscow/Pullman area and started a general surgical practice called Palouse Surgeons. After practicing for three years, I finally got to do what I wanted to do which was go off and do some training in cosmetic surgery. And I did a fellowship in cosmetic surgery in Seattle.

After that, I practiced for about a year and a half in North Carolina and made my back to Spokane. Practiced there for two years. And then finally came back to my original practice in Moscow and Pullman. And I'm now practicing there.

Q. And just to kind of summarize that. How many years of medical school, residency, fellowship, how many years was your training total?
A. Four years in medical school, five years in residency, one year in fellowship, so a total of ten.
Q. And you've currently been practicing in the Moscow area for the last how many years?
A. About a year and a half, almost two years now.
Q. Now, in looking at Exhibit G, it indicates you were in the Air Force. You said that briefly. When you were stationed at Mountain Home Air Force here south of Boise, tell the jury a little bit about what you did there.

A. Sure. I was a staff general surgeon. There were two of us stationed there and at times three of us stationed there. We would take care of all of the dependents of the Air Force as well as the Air Force members, as well as retirees.

Even to the point where I would come and practice occasionally up here at the V.A. and do my larger cases, my thoracic cases, vascular cases.

Q. And let's talk about that a little bit. With your background in general surgery, can you give the jury kind of a brief flavor of the types of surgeries that you perform in general surgery.

A. Sure. General surgery a lot right now is minimally invasive, so your small incisions taking out gallbladders, doing colon cancer surgeries that way. I will even take out parts of a liver or the spleen through small incisions.

I also do trauma surgery. Occasionally we'll have to do some vascular surgery if it's from trauma. I try to stay away from that as much as possible now because it has now become specialized. We do thoracic surgery, so if I have somebody with a lung injury, I'll take care of that. Or a lung cancer, I can take out the lung cancer as well.

Other than that, biopsies of the skin, a wide array of anything that, basically, can come in that is not an orthopaedic we handle in general surgery.

Q. Do you have hospital privileges currently?

A. I do.

Q. Where?

A. At Griffin Medical School in Moscow, Idaho. I have Pullman Regional Hospital in Pullman, Washington. And then at Whitman Health and Medical Center in Colfax, Washington.

Q. Colfax?

A. Colfax, correct.

Q. So the catchment area for your patients is that whole Palouse area up there?

A. It really is. It's from Spokane down to about Boise. We will get patients coming from three or four hours away.

Q. Now, with respect to your cosmetic practice, you said you started doing after you completed your tour of obligation to the Air Force, correct?

A. A couple of years afterwards. I spent my four yours in the military and my goal was always to do cosmetics. But I had a few kids and a family to take care of, so I had to earn enough money to go back to a resident's salary, so I did that.

Q. Can you tell us a little bit -- tell the jury a little bit about the nature of your cosmetic practice currently.

A. Sure. So I'm considered by my practice 50 percent general, 50 percent cosmetic.

Now, my cosmetic practice really entails from head to toe, so I do liposuction. I'll do fat grafting. I will do tummy tucks. I will do complete body lifts. I'll do facelifts, rhinoplasties, breast reductions, and I do some cancer reconstruction for breast cancer.

Q. Now, also in your CV, Exhibit G, I see there is a reference to faculty appointments.

A. Correct.

Q. Could you describe that to the jury.

A. So in here I have Affiliate Faculty at the University of Washington Medical School WWAMI program. The University of Washington, how it functions is it takes students from Wyoming, Washington, Alaska, Montana, and Idaho. And they will all go for a number of years at U-Dub in Seattle, but their first year, they stay in the state where they are at.

So if they are an Idaho student, there will be a program here in Boise where physicians will teach them. The same thing happens in Moscow, Idaho. So I have medical students with me every week that I'm teaching them surgery as well as clinical medicine.

As far as the Faculty of the National Society of Cosmetic Physicians, that is a national program or group that I do lectures and I'll do training of different physicians for.

Q. And I see in your CV you have a reference to a number of presentations. Do you provide physicians with presentations on cosmetic surgery issues?

A. I do.

Q. And could you discuss briefly with the jury what that entails and the topics that you cover.

Page 17

A. Sure. So at national conferences, so there will be people from all over the world coming to these conferences. I'll lecture on different aspects of medicine.

You can see -- well, I assume you will have a copy of all of these -- but you will see the case presentations. But just recently in September, I lectured there and I did a lecture of art of beauty, a lecture on like lipo-abdominoplasties, breast augmentation and techniques, and as well as circumferential body lifts.

Q. Have you provided lectures to physicians on the topic of fat transfers?

A. Many times, to be specific, Brazilian butt.

Q. And tell the jury a little bit about who your audience is and what your training involves.

A. So during the lectures or during a training course?

Q. Both.

A. Both, okay. So for the lectures it will be for nurses and doctors that are interested in cosmetic surgery. It can be the staff of physicians as well. I start from a basic approach of how to evaluate a patient all the way to what the goals are to even in my presentations I show a video of a procedure.

So it gives the doctors the opportunity to see if this is something they are going to augment their practice with. Or if it's a physician, it gives them the opportunity to say, "Hey, I do it this way," and we can have a discussion regarding the procedure itself.

When I do courses, I do them in Idaho, so they are not hands-on courses. But it's clinical physicians coming in and they will spend between one and five days with me going through different cases. And what I do with that is I ask them, "Okay, what kind of procedures do you want to see that you are interested in?" And I will have my schedule filled up with that.

And we'll have a course curriculum on what we are going over starting again from the complete basics to advanced procedures, and then they get to watch me do procedures.

Q. Now, these trainings courses that you are referring to, have you been involved directly in training physicians on the topic of liposuction and fat transfers?

A. Yes.

Q. And about how many years have you been involved in providing that sort of training?

A. About 4 or 5 years. When I was in my fellowship, we also did trainings and there were international students coming and we would always have physicians coming in during training and spending the week with us.

So I guess I can add that up to five years then.

Q. With respect to the types of physicians that attend these training classes, whether the seminars are at big conferences or the ones that are coming directly to your practice to shadow with you, can you tell the jury the types of specialists those physicians are, generally.

A. I've trained anywhere from family practice docs to cardiologists to plastic surgeons, so it can be a wide array of someone wanting to get into the cosmetic aspect of medicine.

Q. And, in fact, with respect to the plastic surgeons that you've trained, do you have an understanding as to why they are coming to you as cosmetic surgeon for training on those topics?

A. Well, one of them -- a lot of the plastic surgeons are coming in for more advanced training or using lasers, which if they went and did their residency more than ten years ago, laser hypologist, which is ultrasound guided by hypologist wasn't around.

So if they have later training, they have to be trained some way to how to do it, and so they will come to somebody like myself and do that. However, a lot of plastic surgeons -- I do all outpatient surgery so when I talk about circumferential body lift, which is a tummy tuck all the way around as an outpatient, most plastic surgeons have never done anything like that so they will come and spend time with me.

Q. Do the training of the surgeons -- or excuse me -- the training of the physicians that you have performed in the last five years, do they include as some of the specialities anesthesiologists?

A. Wouldn't be unheard of. I don't recall an anesthesiologist training with me, but it wouldn't out of the realm of possibility.

Q. Looking at your CV again, doctor, I see a reference to some publications. Could you talk to the jury just briefly about what you have published in what capacity.

A. Sure. So when I was in residency, in surgery residency, I did -- we did a paper on alternative approaches to antegrade catheter-directed thrombolysis in a case of phlegmasia cerulean dolens -- I apologize. It is a mouth full.

MR. JONES: I have the spelling, ma'am court reporter.

THE WITNESS: And this is actually before catheter-directed thrombolysis. Now, catheter-directed thrombolysis, which is basically when someone has a blood clot, you will slide a catheter up through a vessel to that blood clot and directly infuse a clot buster, EPA or (inaudible) or (inaudible).

When I was in residency, we were one of the first people to try it on a patient who had blood clots in her leg so no blood flow was coming out of the leg, and the leg was basically dying. So we did the catheter-directed thrombolysis with that and had good success. And that was the beginning stages of starting to do those.

The next was neoadjuvant chemotherapy and radical resection of the intraoperative --

THE COURT: You need to slow down just a tad.

MR. JONES: A little fast again, sorry, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: I apologize. I'm from the east coast.

THE COURT: You need to slow down for our court reporter.

THE WITNESS: I've seen smoke coming out of her ears.

Neoadjuvant chemotherapy and radical resection of the intraoperative. So basically at my institution, I was working with our surgical oncologist and we would have people that would have cancers at the base of the esophagus, beginning of the stomach.

And as part of the operation, what we would do is instead of just going in and resecting it, we would start them first with chemotherapy to try and reduce their tumor side, their tumor burden. And then during surgery we would do interoperative radiation, so we actually operate on them, take out their tumor, and then have a radiation oncologist radiate them and then put them all back together. So they didn't have to have any postoperative radiation or chemotherapy and found the success rate. So, again, that is why we published that.

The third one I published after my fellowship is a unique method of body contouring after massive weight loss. Now, this journal, again, is talking about doing circumferential body lifts, which I've mentioned a couple of times, as an outpatient with no drains. And we presented 26 patients and the outcomes of those 26 patients.

BY MR. JONES:

Q. So that particular article, the last one you referred to was published in the American Journal of Cosmetic Surgery?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that a peer reviewed journal?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you describe for the jury what "peer review" means.

A. So a peer review journal -- when you look at multiple different aspects of journals, you can just publish -- you can write a letter to a magazine and it's a publication.

Page 24

Now, what a peer review journal means is that there are multiple other people that are in your specialty reviewing the journal to see what efficacy it has in medicine. And so if it passes the, I guess, the test, it gets published.

Q. And in this instance with respect to that last one that was published in the American Journal of Cosmetic Surgery, it passed peer review and was selected for publication?

A. It did. And, again, that was one of the reasons I was able to present that at that last conference.

Q. And what year was that one published?

A. In 2011.

Q. In what states are you licensed, doctor?

A. Currently I'm a licensed in Idaho and in Washington.

Q. And what are your board certifications?

A. I'm board certified by the American Board of Surgery. I'm board certified by the American Board of Cosmetic Surgery.

Q. When did you obtain the certification for cosmetic surgery?

A. I believe it was 2011.

Page 25

Q. All right. Thank you for sharing your CV with the jury.

You indicated that you are currently about 50 percent between cosmetic and general surgery, correct?

A. At least that's what my contract says.

Q. Tell the jury a little bit about what is the nature of your current practice in terms of where you worked, the various locations, just briefly.

A. Sure. So I have a practice in Moscow, Pullman, and Colfax. We have two offices, one in Pullman and one in Moscow. My cosmetic practice is solely in Moscow. However, I will do some surgical procedures if I'm doing a tummy tuck at the same time they are doing a hysterectomy, I'll do that in Pullman if it's being done robotically at their hospital.

Now, according to my contract, it says 50/50. That being said, about 95 percent of my time is spent cosmetically. The 50/50 comes down to the fact that I take calls for general surgery, meaning that 25 percent of the time. So every Monday night I'm on call and one weekend a month I'm on call, just for general surgery.

Q. Now, with respect to your cosmetic practice, you indicated that that is focused in Moscow, correct?

A. Right.

Q. And where specifically? Describe the facility where you are practicing your cosmetic surgery.

A. So we have -- I practice my cosmetic surgery in multiple different places, but my office base setting, there's four doctors -- four surgeons in our group and one GI doctor in our group. So we have an office, multiple rooms. And I have four operating rooms in the back that are office-based suites for surgery.

Then I also do operations at each of the four hospitals, and we also have a surgery that is owned by one of the hospitals that I will do cases at as well.

Q. Do you perform liposuction and fat transfer grafting procedures in your office-based practice?

A. Almost exclusively.

Q. Do you combine those procedures sometimes?

A. Well, you always have to do some liposuction to get the fat to harvest, so yes.

Q. All right. Now, with respect to the area of Moscow, is it pretty common for you to have patients to come see you that are, say, greater than 45 minutes to an hour away from your office?

A. I have patients still coming in from North Carolina that I operated on there or I operated on there that fly into Moscow for me to operate on them.

Q. Can you describe to the jury, just briefly, the challenge it faces or it poses to you as a physician having patients that are located remotely from you.

A. It's very challenging in the fact that, one, you can't just say, "Come on into my office. I want to see you." You have to be respective of their distance, especially if they are coming from multiple hours away. So it does make it a little bit more challenging. And, oftentimes, I will have patients to stay for a night at least in the hotel close by so I can see them the next day if they are from a further distance.

When I have patients fly in from North Carolina, oftentimes I tell them that I want them to stay for a week. And then I still have friends back there that I will arrange for them to follow up with if there's any concerns.

Now, the nice thing about cosmetics, is a lot of -- a lot of what we do is visual. So if they are having concerns, a lot times they can pick up the phone. I can talk with them. I can have them text me a picture, and we can talk about what is going on from that circumstance.

Q. Do you in your cosmetic practice, specifically, with procedures like liposuction and fat transfer, employ the use of prophylactic antibiotics?

A. All of my patients are actually given Keflex in the morning, the night before. They are given Cephalexin the morning of and are continued on an 8-day course of Keflex or if they are allergic, then I use something different.

Q. But for the jury's benefit, Keflex and Cephalexin are what?

A. They are both sefalasporin?

Q. An antibiotic?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you explain to the jury why that is part of your procedure.

Page 29

A. It's really what we are trying to do is prophylactically treat an infection. Now, when we do any type of surgical procedure in the hospital, if I'm doing a hernia repair, I give them a dose of antibiotics.
Q. And again, that is prophylactically treating them for infection?
A. In cosmetics it's very common and just about everybody I talk to, and everybody in my training, recommend using some antibiotics afterwards.
Is there any science behind it? I don't rightfully know, but that's what we do in cosmetics.
Q. When you were in the Air Force and you indicated you were a healthcare provider out at Mountain Home Air Force base, when you were treating members of the military, were there any requirements associated with how you would treat someone from the military in terms of, say, if they needed a surgical procedure, would they have to come see you if you were doing the surgery and would that impact their status in any way as an active duty person?
MR. HADDAD: Objection relevance,

Page 30

Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
BY MR. JONES:
Q. To your knowledge as a physician that was involved in the Air Force, when a patient would -- an airman, for example, would seek to undergo a surgical procedure, was that something that you would be required to see the patient for and to sign-off on in any way?
MR. HADDAD: Objection. Relevance, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
BY MR. JONES:
Q. Now, I want to come back to your practice a little bit, doctor, with respect to seeing patients in the hospital, how much of your time are you spending -- since you've indicated about 95 percent cosmetic and 5 percent general, how much of your time are you actually seeing patients in a hospital as opposed to within your clinic setting?
A. I only see patients in the hospital when I'm on-call. So every Monday I will do rounds for whatever patients we have in the hospital. Obviously, if I'm doing an operation in the hospital, I'll see that patient, but -- so every Monday I'll do it. Otherwise, one weekend a month I take calls and see hospitalized patients at that point in time as well.

Q. Are you aware, given your status in Idaho as a cosmetic physician who performs surgical procedures in your office, are you aware of any requirement in order to perform and provide that care to your patients of any certification or license of any kind that you need in order to be able to perform, for example, liposuction and fat transfers in your office?
A. I believe the only license you would be required would be your medical license.
Q. Do you believe it's safe for you to perform cosmetic procedures, like liposuction and fat transfer, in an office-based setting as opposed to an hospital?
A. Absolutely.
MR. HADDAD: Objection, Your Honor. Overly broad, relevance.
THE COURT: It is a broad question, but I think it's relevant so the objection is overruled.
THE WITNESS: Absolutely. I think it's safe. I do it daily.

Page 32

BY MR. JONES:
Q. Okay. Now, you weren't here for an expert that testified for the plaintiff, a Dr. Sorensen who has testified in this case.
He was asked questions regarding the use of general anesthetic for liposuction. Do you use general anesthetic for your liposuction procedures?
A. No.
Q. And can you explain to the jury why you don't.
MR. HADDAD: Objection. Relevance, Your Honor.
THE COURT: I'm going to sustain the objection. What the relevance is not what he does in a different community, but what he does -- whether he's familiar with the applicable standard of care as it existed in this area at the time and place that this occurred and then how it relates. So I think it would be helpful --
MR. JONES: I'll tie it up, Your Honor.
THE COURT: -- to tie it up now.
MR. JONES: I'll circle around to that, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Well, if you want to go directly, that would be useful, too.

BY MR. JONES:
Q. Let me ask you this, doctor. As a result of your work in this case, have you engaged in any discussions with any physicians from Boise who practice cosmetic surgery here in Boise in the year 2010?
A. I have.
Q. Who did you speak with?
A. Dr. O'Neil.
Q. Who do you understand Dr. O'Neil to be?
A. I believe he is a family doc who actually practiced here who did cosmetic procedures here during that time frame. He is now in California.
Q. Okay. Did you know Dr. O'Neil before this case?
A. I did not.
Q. Were you asked to call him in order to discuss standard of practice issues for Boise?
A. I was.
Q. Did you do so?
A. I did.
Q. And can you share with the jury some of the information you learned based on your conversation with Dr. O'Neil?

Page 34

A. Regarding what aspects?
Q. Well, for example, did your discussion with Dr. O'Neil focus on a specific time frame?
A. It did. It was during 2010.
Q. Did it focus on a specific type of practice?
A. A non-surgical based cosmetic practice.
Q. Did your discussion with Dr. O'Neil involve the facts of this case?
A. It did.
Q. And did you discuss with Dr. O'Neil issues relating to the performance of liposuction and fat transfer?
A. We did.
Q. And can you describe to the jury what you talked about in general regarding those topics.
A. We talked about what kind of procedures he was performing and people like him were performing, the other physicians in the area, whether they did it at surgery centers, in their office, what they felt comfortable with. And as far as that is concerned, what kind of anesthetics they used.

Page 35

We briefly discussed some aspects of cleaning and sterilization, but we didn't go into -- during our conversation, we didn't go into that. But since then, we have discussed it more thoroughly.
MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, may we approach because that is new opinion, new testimony as to the foundation for his opinions. That was not disclosed to us.
THE COURT: All right. Well, let's excuse the jury briefly and have you all stretch. Please don't start talking about the case and don't express or form an opinion, and I will see you shortly.
(Jury Leaves.)
THE COURT: Okay. Proceed.
MR. HADDAD: Thank you, Your Honor.
In the deposition of Dr. Stiller that took place July 19th of this year, he was asked about how he availed himself of knowledge of the standard of care in Idaho, specifically Boise.
He said he spoke with Dr. O'Neil. I asked him on how many occasions. And he said, "Once." And now it appears he's had subsequent calls that we were not made aware of and have not had a chance to delve into on cross-examination.

MR. JONES: May I respond, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes, you may.
MR. JONES: Your Honor, I struggle with this continued reference to depositions. When Rule 26(b) specifically states that the way in which an expert's opinions may be learned is based not only on deposition, but on interrogatory responses.
And in this particular case, interrogatory responses which predated Dr. Stiller's deposition go into nauseating detail on the nature and discussion that he had to learn about the standard of healthcare practice in Boise, Idaho, in 2010. And that he would be coming here today to testify fully on that topic.
THE COURT: I see. And you answered, no doubt, in general terms about how he familiarized himself with the standard of care in Boise during that time period.
MR. JONES: In more than general terms, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Well, let me see your response.
MR. JONES: Well, it's about 15 pages for Dr. Stiller's portion and --
THE COURT: And I would be delighted to see it.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, just for your attention -- and I think the Court has hit the nail on the head -- they said Dr. Stiller will testify how he became aware of the standard in care. In that very generality.
That's why when I deposed him, I said, "How did you become aware?"
"I spoke with Dr. O'Neil."
How many times?
"Once."
So I was given a very vague disclosure. I asked him in his deposition to find out what, in fact, those opinions would be based on. I was told he spoke with Dr. O'Neil one time.
MR. JONES: I have the disclosure. I would be happy to provide it to the Court, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Yes, please.
MR. JONES: May I approach?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. JONES: It starts on this page, Your Honor, and --
THE COURT: All right.
MR. JONES: There are a number of references throughout.

Page 38

And I have some additional points after you've had a chance to look at that, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Okay. Let me give this back counsel.
MR. JONES: Thank you, Your Honor.
May I further my argument, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Not right yet.
What appears to me from reading the interrogatories is that the interrogatory, that is not all that unusual, contains simply the general statement that the witness has familiarized himself with the appropriate standard of care. I noted that the responses were filed on May 31st, and it's my understanding that the deposition was in July.
MR. HADDAD: That's correct, Your Honor.
THE COURT: And then he discussed his familiarity with the standard of care.
And if the court reporter could give me the specific question once again that prompted our objection, that would be helpful.
(Last question was read by the reporter.)
THE COURT: All right. I think that is a proper question.
MR. HADDAD: I apologize, Your Honor. I think he asked -- I think it was a question on how many occasions did he speak with Dr. O'Neil. I thought that's what prompted the objection.

THE COURT: Okay.
THE REPORTER: Okay. Let me just recheck.
MR. JONES: I don't remember asking that question, but...
THE COURT: Well, it is proper for him to discuss generally what he talked about in terms of as I indicated, you know, the procedures -- what the general practice was, what the procedures were with respect to performing liposuction and fat transfer. An it's appropriate that he discussed those general topic areas and familiarize himself with the standard of care in this area.
MR. HADDAD: I thought he said that he had spoken -- he had called him on more than one occasion. That is really what prompted this because when I spoke -- and just to give the Court a heads up -- first of all, when I deposed him, he brought his file. There is a letter dated May 17, 2010 -- 2013, I'm sorry -- from Mr. Quane to him saying, "Call Dr. O'Neil. He will tell you what the standard of care is."
In July, I deposed him and he said he spoke to him once.

THE COURT: Okay.
MR. HADDAD: And just for the Court's edification, he said he did not ask Dr. O'Neil what cleaners he used. He didn't ask Dr. O'Neil disinfectants he used.
THE COURT: You can bring that up in your cross-examination, counsel.
MR. HADDAD: Well, the problem is, if he's spoken -- if after the deposition all of a sudden he goes out and now he learns it, I can't cross examine him on later learned evidence. That is the prejudice and that is the case law because, quite frankly, after taking Dr. Stiller's deposition, I anticipated this is exactly what was going to transpire.
I was going to depose him, ask him all the relevant questions. "What did you know? What did you talk about to avail yourself of the standard of care?" And then I was going to come into court and he was going to use after-acquired information to expand upon what he said he knew at the time of his deposition. And I would have no chance of cross examine him, except to say you didn't tell me that in July. That is meaningless if he says, "I spoke with Dr. O'Neil."

The prejudice is compounded by the fact, Your Honor, that Dr. O'Neil -- if the Court remembers, the Court granted a motion in limine to keep out his board of medicine issues.
If you read the 2008 order, because that's when Dr. O'Neil applied for licensure was late 2007, and the disciplinary action came about in 2008, Dr. O'Neil was not permitted under that restriction to do fat transfers.
So if, in fact, he said, "I spoke to Dr. O'Neil about his practice of doing fat transfers in 2010," I should be entitled to cross examine him saying, "Well, did you know the Board of Medicine in Idaho restricted his license such that he could not do those?" Because that goes to the credibility and honesty of the person he has spoken with.
THE COURT: Well, that is an unusual situation.
MR. JONES: Your Honor, if I may, I haven't had a chance to respond to any of that, if I could.
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. JONES: First of all, if I had written

Page 42

Mr. Haddad a letter and said, "Dr. Stiller has called and the questions that you asked him about in his deposition, he has since followed up to see if there was additional information that he could obtain," the Ramos versus Dixon -- I believe -- and a couple of other med-mal decisions, specifically on this issue of people who are at trial and have failed to qualify their expert witness have been given breaks in the trial to go out and place a phone call to try and learn about the standard of practice. There hasn't been an issue that has been unfair for the opposing party to not be able to depose that person about whatever it was that they talked about.
In this instance, they've know that Dr. O'Neil was involved all along. They never sought to take his deposition. If they wanted to question or challenge his veracity or his knowledge, they certainly --
THE COURT: I don't think that is particularly relevant. Talk to me about the specific issue whether it's violative of any rule to allow your witness to supplement his prior testimony in some more major way.
MR. JONES: Well, two issues there.

Page 43

Number one, this is foundational information. These don't relate to his opinions. He hasn't added new opinions as a result of having an additional phone call with Dr. O'Neil.
THE COURT: So he hasn't added new opinions as a result --
MR. JONES: He hasn't added new opinions. This was simply -- he was asked, "Did you know or did you talk to Dr. O'Neil about this issue involving what happened in Boise, or this issue?" It's not that he didn't already have a basic understanding of what the local standard of practice is. And that is set forth in his deposition quite clearly. And I can read sections out of it for the Court if the Court would like.
The issue is when he asked him the question, for example, "Do you know if Dr. O'Neil used spore counts?" And he didn't know the answer to that question. So he called and talked to Dr. O'Neil again. "Do you use spore counts?" Why? Not because it will change his opinions that he is going to render in this case, but in order to address the question that Mr. Haddad wanted to say, which was you don't even know if he takes spore counts. He can say he knows he didn't take spore counts.

The basis for which he seeks to cross examine him on, is the same basis he has now and would have had even if he had taken a second deposition of Dr. Stiller. Nothing has changed. So for him to claim that he is somehow unfairly prejudiced because Dr. Stiller had a second conversation after his deposition to address some of the concerns that were advanced by saying, "Well, you didn't ask Dr. O'Neil this specific question" is not improper.
MR. HADDAD: It is absolutely improper because he's -- the whole issue is me being able to cross examine him on how he availed himself of knowledge about what the local standard of care is with respect to cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing medical equipment.
If he says, "I did that" -- and quite frankly, and I think Dr. Stiller will tell you this, he in March of 2012 -- 2010, I'm sorry -- he was still in North Carolina, not in this area. He had not been to this area since 2007 when he was in Washington doing his fellowship training.
He goes back to Washington in 2010 and practices in Spokane. He didn't even come to Idaho until 2012. So he wouldn't even have, based on his own knowledge, known what's going on in Boise, even arguably, until he came --

THE COURT: All right. So he is not himself familiar with the general practice in Boise on 2010.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, for example, on page 70 in his deposition, he was asked:

"QUESTION: When you were talking to him" -- meaning Dr. O'Neil -- I'm on page 70, line 17 -- "did you ask him how he was trained both in and through medical school, residency, and in cosmetic procedures?

"ANSWER: No. I asked him about the standard of practice in Boise at that point in time."

And now there's a number of other discussions about him where he said he talked to Dr. O'Neil about sterilization. And if the Court would like, I can try to provide an exhaustive list of exactly what was discussed, but the issue is whether or not Dr. Stiller can lay a foundation that he has actual knowledge of the standard of healthcare practice in Boise in 2010 applicable to Dr. Kerr.

Now, if plaintiff wants to challenge that by virtue of cross-examination on the questions and the depth of the discussion that he had, it wouldn't matter if he had talked Dr. O'Neil 12 times or if he talked to him 5 minutes ago before he came in here.

He can still challenge the basis and suggest to the jury if he wants, "Well, you didn't ask Dr. O'Neil this question or that question." The fact that he hadn't asked him every question under the sun when he had his deposition taken, doesn't mean he didn't have an adequate foundation to be able to testify.

All I'm trying to do by having him have an additional discussion with Dr. O'Neil is prepare him to oppose some of these questions that Hr. Haddad is going to try to beat on him with on cross-examination.

MR. HADDAD: The whole issue in this case, despite the defense presentation of examination, has been: Was the standard of care met in Boise, Idaho, in July of 2010 with respect to the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization of the equipment.

So that for this witness, Dr. Stiller would have to avail himself of the standard of care of 2010, in July, in Boise, with respect to what is the appropriate method of cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization. And that's why I asked him specifically, "What did you ask to avail yourself of the information on those issues that are the issues that are directly relevant to the plaintiff's case." You said he never asked.

Now they want to come back and say, "Oh, that's irrelevant to him being able to go back and supplement what is a complete derth of basis of knowledge with respect to the standard of care on those key issues and now they have him go back without.

And, quite frankly, again, I've looked in the issue (inaudible) and (inaudible) says, if you are going to supplement, you have to reasonably supplement. If he is going to go back and say, "I am now aware of the standard of care with regarding with cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization, then he should have let me know that.

This is akin, quite frankly, Your Honor, as to what happened with Dr. Garrison. And if you remember, at his deposition was the first time in September that he knew he had an opinion about fat embolysis. And he admitted that wasn't part of his disclosure.

At that point, quite frankly, Your Honor, we were prepared and did file a motion in limine. Defense counsel ultimately allowed us to re-depose Dr. Garrison on that issue. And, therefore, I did not raise the issue of what was a very late disclosure, but nonetheless, the opportunity to cure that by a second deposition so I could ask those questions and be adequately prepared to cross examine Dr. Garrison on that.

That's how big boys play. This is trial by ambush, quite frankly, Your Honor.

MR. JONES: Page 77, Your Honor --

THE COURT: All right. I don't really need any -- I have questions specifically.

Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 26(e) requires the responses be supplemented. It is particularly required under 26 (e)(1b) that the identity of person expected to be called as an expert witness, the subject matter in which the person is expected to testify, and the substance of the person's testimony is specific subject to duty to supplement.

A party under Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure 26(e)(2) has a duty to seasonably supplement. Under subsection b, "If the party knows that the response, though correct when made, is made no longer true and the circumstances are such that a failure to amend the response is in substance a knowing concealment."

And so it seems to me that there's no question. It's always -- it has been a very long time in this case, a critical issue about how the equipment used in the procedure was sterilized and maintained and used. And that is a central issue in this case.

The focus of expert testimony at a trial of this type is whether the practitioner negligently failed to meet the applicable standard of healthcare of the community in which the care was provided as the standard existed at the time and place of the alleged negligence.

So it is the central issue in the case that certain conduct did not meet the standard of care for a practitioner of that type in this area in 2010. That's the central issue. And it is a central issue in a medical malpractice case that all experts be familiar with the local standard of care.

So I find that I do have some concerns about two things. I have some concern about the fact that the expert engaged in additional inquiry into the standard of care after his deposition which was not disclosed to counsel by way of supplementation.

And I must say, I do have some concern about some of the issues being raised with respect to whether the source of this information was a person who was himself adequately familiar with the standard of care for the procedure at the time and place the care was rendered.

It is not, in my experience, terribly uncommon for a deposition to flag issues that a party feels then should be addressed more fully by their expert. I don't think that is unusual, so I don't see anything incorrect in and of itself for Dr. Stiller to have, after a deposition, sought to clarify with the person he was relying on to provide standard of care information, additional information that the deposition raised questions about. That doesn't seem to me to be improper or unusual.

The problem I do have, though, is whether then counsel's obligation would be to supplement that response because that is so particularly material.

MR. HADDAD: I know the Court's thinking, Your Honor. Can I say one more thing very briefly?

We had prepared a motion in limine on this very subject matter. And even after receipt of that, we were never provided with anything that would give us a clue that he had availed himself of additional information.

MR. JONES: Counsel, I disagree with that representation --

THE COURT: Well, I'm going to let you have a response now, so go right ahead.

MR. JONES: I disagree that there was something in the motion of limine that specifically raised the concern about whether or not Dr. Stiller or any of the defense experts had had further discussions with Dr. O'Neil. And I would love to see plaintiff's counsel point to somewhere in his brief where he could say --

THE COURT: Wait. Wait.

MR. HADDAD: I apologize. I didn't mean to say that. I just mean to say the issue of what was said at the deposition of Dr. Stiller with respect to his lack of knowledge about the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization. Because I asked specifically, "Do you know what cleaner? Do you know what disinfectant? Do you know if he takes spore counts?" He said, "No. No. No."

I raised that as a failure to avail himself of sufficient knowledge on the court issues of the motion in limine. That's what I meant. I apologize if counsel misunderstood my statement.

MR. JONES: And to the suggestion that Dr. Stiller had no information at the time of his deposition, there are a few key passages we can point to in the deposition.

Page 77.

"QUESTION: All right. Let me ask you this. You talked about alcohol, Hibiclens and, obviously, you couldn't have much discussion about the appropriateness of some unknown cleaner, correct?

"Correct.

"QUESTION. All right.

"Well, we talked also about autoclave, the steam autoclave and the fact that he did use a chemical marker."

Page 53

And then going to page 75.

"Now, when you say you discussed the sterilization and the adequacy of the sterilization as described, are you talking about, as Dr. Kerr described in his deposition?

"Yes."

THE COURT: Wait a minute. You talking about Dr. Kerr's practices?

The issue that is before me right now is whether this expert familiarized himself with the applicable standard of care from his other expert. Now, of course -- and, as I looked at the plaintiff's motion in limine which was filed before the Court October 22, 2013, at page 21 of that brief filed by the plaintiffs, specific concerns are raised with respect to whether Dr. Stiller had had a sufficient conversation with Dr. O'Neil to familiarize himself for the standard of practice for cosmetic surgeons in Boise in 2010. That is a specific issue that's raised and it's flagged on October 22nd.

Now, I am concerned about the lack of further supplementation. Let me -- so you talked with Dr. O'Neil after your deposition and asked about some things that the deposition had raised.

THE WITNESS: (Witness shakes head).

THE COURT: So how many times did you talk to him?

THE WITNESS: One more time.

THE COURT: Just one more time. And when did you talk to him?

THE WITNESS: Last night.

THE COURT: Well, that makes that tricky for supplementation. Can you just kind of fill us in a little bit.

THE WITNESS: Sure. Specifically we were trying to address, okay, the sterilization that was done, his chemical cleaning apparatus, whether he was using Hibiclens, what he was doing this for, what he had talked to other people in the area that he was doing; okay.

Again, his opinion was, and I agreed with that, Hibiclens and alcohol used to clean an instrument and then using a cleaner afterwards is fine. But the most important part is sterilization with an autoclave. That's what kills the bacteria that the cleaning and disinfecting don't.

And the only way to test that is by chemical markers, which is again, what I had said beforehand regarding --

THE COURT: And you had said that at your deposition.

THE WITNESS: Exactly.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, I would just point to his deposition. He doesn't know and didn't ask what disinfectants were used. Doesn't know and didn't ask if he even uses an autoclave. That is on page 71 of his deposition.

THE COURT: Okay. Now, wait a minute. Does Dr. O'Neil use an autoclave?

MR. HADDAD: He didn't even bother to ask and there was no discussion about an autoclave even being used by Dr. O'Neil.

THE WITNESS: Ma'am, could I answer that?

THE COURT: Yes, please do.

THE WITNESS: The only way to sterilize something is by an autoclave, so it's a redundant question.

MR. HADDAD: Doesn't know and doesn't ask if he used biological markers. I mean, if he doesn't know, that is the point. If you are asking the only person that's been flagged as being the guy you're supposed to go to and you don't even bother to find out if he is the one doing the autoclaving, how he does it, whether it's steam or some other type, whether he takes spore counts, how am I to know? And now he has a conversation last night with -- and quite frankly, I have serious concerns that Dr. O'Neil was never here.

THE COURT: Well, would you be able to render your opinion without discussing what came of last night?

THE WITNESS: Absolutely. My opinion hasn't change.

THE COURT: All right, then. I think that probably cuts to the chase. We'll just skip last night's discussion because his opinion hasn't changed. I think he can explain his reasons for his opinion without any discussion last night. And I think that would address the problem that is created.

Because I do think -- it isn't uncommon for people after depositions to double check with people to see about this or that issue that may have come up, as long as it's reasonably supplemented. I think the best thing to do is just to stick with what he did at the deposition.

If it didn't change your opinion, we are probably spending way too much time on this. The jury needs to understand the basic issues in the case and my goal in the case is to make sure that the jury fairly and completely has adequate information, that both sides have had a fair time to explore it.

So if we stick with what he has already disclosed since he said it doesn't change the opinion, then I think that will be sufficient.

MR. HADDAD: If I ask the questions, obviously, what I asked in deposition and got the answers I got, am I somehow going to be opening the door to some conversation he had last night?

I mean, that's my concern is all of a sudden, well, you didn't know if Dr. O'Neil even used an autoclave, do you? Oh, yeah I do because I talked to him. And then it opens that door for that whole --

THE COURT: Well, I assume he is familiar with what Dr. Kerr did. And Dr. Kerr said he used an autoclave.

MR. HADDAD: I'm talking about Dr. O'Neil.

THE COURT: Yes, I know. But I don't think that -- I therefore think that this is an appropriate area for him to discuss as long as he limits himself to his prior opinion and the basis for that.

And at this point, we'll ask the witness not to discuss anything that was discussed last night, not to go into that, not to reference it. But I think we are consuming a good deal of time on something that perhaps doesn't warrant this level of concern.

I don't think you are necessarily opening the door for it, but I would recommend that -- I mean, this witness has just said that he hasn't changed his opinion since he gave his deposition. And at the time of his deposition, he had talked to Dr. O'Neil one time.

We know that he will have reviewed Dr. Kerr's records, and he will know from Dr. Kerr's records for himself that he used an autoclave. And certainly, this witness has the expertise to talk about what the desired results would be for that process.

MR. HADDAD: Obviously, it raises the issue again, Your Honor, of Dr. O'Neil, and I want to make an offer of proof at this time. So we are here on the motion of limine for both the Court's reconsideration as well as make an offer of proof.

Dr. O'Neil applied for licensure in the state of Idaho in late of 2007. Because of some misrepresentations on his application, it became the subject of a disciplinary action. He had been disciplined once before and his license revoked once before in the state of Idaho.

When he came in 2008, he entered into an agreed order that limited his practice to chemical peels and liposuction. It also said, very interesting, Your Honor, that if Dr. O'Neil intends to come to practice in Idaho, he is to let the Board of Medicine know by way of written letter. He was not practicing in at least 2008 --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. HADDAD: So I want to get into the issues of obviously that I think that sets a tenure that is much different --

THE COURT: Okay. Stop. Stop. Stop. Board of Medicine restriction is he can only do liposuction?

MR. HADDAD: And chemical peels.

THE COURT: Liposuction and chemical peels. The fact that he may not be able to do the fat transfers does not necessarily mean that he is not familiar with the local standard of practice in Boise.

And it seems to me that you can get into the fact that he himself does not -- that Dr. O'Neil -- was the witness aware that Dr. O'Neil did not do fat transfers without getting to other areas that we've previously addressed. Of course, the question is would that make any difference in your opinion.

THE WITNESS: If you look at the expert witness, he doesn't do -- for the defendant, he doesn't do fat grafting either.

MR. JONES: You mean the plaintiff.

THE WITNESS: The plaintiff. I'm sorry.

MR. HADDAD: Of course, if you heard the testimony you would know that he practiced alongside his partner --

THE WITNESS: But he didn't do it --

THE COURT: Don't. Don't. Don't. Don't. Don't.

MR. JONES: If I may just respond --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. JONES: -- to the coloring of Dr. O'Neil. The suggestion that he made a misrepresentation, there was an extensive amount of information that was provided in our briefing about his license application and how there was a Utah company that was hired to complete the application, and then they were provided with the information.

THE COURT: Right. And that's why we are not going to go into all of those collateral matters. It is sufficient that Dr. O'Neil does not do fat transfers.

And that is a fair question and I'll allow him to ask if he knows if Dr. O'Neil does not do fat transfers and the answer to that is no Dr. O'Neil does not do fat transfers. And then we move on because that still doesn't mean that he wouldn't be aware of the standard of practice in the area, even though he doesn't do it.

Because I do think that the fact that it is pretty clear from the testimony that the doctors can be aware of the standard of care with respect to the procedures that they don't necessarily do. And I think we are consuming too much time on this.

So, no. I don't want him to talk about what he talked about last night. And, certainly, he can respond to the question, "Does Dr. O'Neil do fat transfers?" "No, he doesn't."

MR. JONES: Well, he didn't whether he was in Idaho, but he does them. I mean, when he had his conversation with --

THE COURT: Well, yeah, that he did not perform fat transfers in 2010 himself is a fair question. And it doesn't implicate all of these collateral matters that we would have to get into if we were going to have to be totally stirred off track into a discussion about Dr. O'Neil's issue.

So I think we can deal with this cleanly. And since we've been dealing with this for a while, let's take a five-minute break and we'll resume.

(Short break taken.)

THE COURT: All right. Please proceed.

MR. JONES: Thank you, Your Honor.

BY MR. JONES:

Q. Before the break, Dr. Stiller, we had been discussing your conversation that you had had with Dr. O'Neil. Do you recall where we were at?

A. No.

Q. All right. Basically, my question that I'm wanting you to answer to the jury is to discuss with them what you learned as a result of your conversation prior to, say, June of this year with Dr. O'Neil.

A. Our conversation really -- what I wanted to know is whether the standard of practice was met with what Dr. Kerr had done, so we had discussed liposuction and the aspects of liposuction and discussed the way that Dr. Kerr had done his sterilization and whether it was within what was considered the standard of practice in the Boise at that.

Q. As a result of your discussion with Dr. O'Neil on those topics, do you believe you have actual knowledge of the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr regarding the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing of reusable surgical equipment in Boise in 2010?

A. I'm sorry. Could you repeat that one more time?

Q. I'm sorry. There's a lot there. A lot of it is just to comply with lots of things.

Do you believe that as a result of your discussion with Dr. O'Neil regarding the topics of cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing of reusable medical equipment that you actually have actual knowledge of the standard of practice applicable to Dr. Kerr in Boise in 2010 on that issue?

A. Yes.

Q. With respect to your own practice, doctor, your own office-based practice, are you certified -- is your facility certified in any way?

A. It is not.

Q. Now, I want to circle back for a minute to this discussion that you had with Dr. O'Neil. Did your discussion with Dr. O'Neil prior to June of 2003 include discussing whether or not his facility or facilities for cosmetic surgeons in Boise in 2010 were board certified?

A. His -- Dr. O'Neil's was not, and he felt that the other non-plastic surgeon cosmetic physicians were not certified.

Q. Did you have an occasion during that discussion to discuss with Dr. O'Neil, in addition to the fact that the facility itself, the surgical facility, didn't have any requirements to be certified, whether the staff involved in cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing reusable surgical equipment were required to have any special certifications, licenses, designations?

Page 65

A. I do not believe there is any certifications, licenses, or designations for a person who sterilizes equipment.
Q. During your discussion with Dr. O'Neil, the time period we've focused on prior to June of 2013, did you have a discussion regarding the care and treatment that was provided by Dr. Kerr to Krystal Ballard?
A. One more time. I'm sorry. I lost you there.
Q. Sure. I'm putting my preface -- all of my questions will be relating to the discussion that you shared with the jury with Dr. O'Neil prior to June of 2013.
Did you have a discussion with him as part of your conversation about the care and treatment Dr. Kerr provided to Krystal Ballard in this case?
A. We did. That was the focus of our conversation.
Q. And if you could provide the jury, to the extent you haven't, with information about what you discussed.
A. We discussed, first of all, the surgical procedures, what other non-plastic cosmetic surgeons were doing, what kind of liposuction were they performing, whether it was laser liposuction, traditional liposuction, whether it was done under anesthesia or not, whether it was done just solely with the tumescent anesthesia.

And it got more specifically involved in the case regarding the rendering of care that Dr. Kerr had performed as far as follow up whether, you know, it was necessary to do blood work post procedure or not. And we discussed those issues as well. And regarding the case itself, what he had thought as far as his -- Dr. Kerr's handling of this patient.
Q. Now, as a result of your discussion, did you confirm that Dr. O'Neil was familiar with the standard of practice in Boise for cosmetic surgeons in 2010 regarding the performance of both liposuction and fat transfer procedures?
MR. HADDAD: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
MR. JONES: You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Okay. Did I confirm that he had a knowledge of fat transfer as well as liposuction, yes.

BY MR. JONES:
Q. All right. As a result of your conversation with Dr. O'Neil, did you learn of there being any significant differences between how things were done in Boise in 2010 and how you were doing things in your own cosmetic practice in 2010?
MR. HADDAD: Objection. Relevance to his practice, Your Honor, because he was not in this area in 2010.
THE COURT: Sustained. Rephrase your question.
BY MR. JONES:
Q. Dr. Stiller, as a result of your conversation with Dr. O'Neil, did you learn anything about the standard of practice in 2010 that was different from how you were conducting your own practice at that time?
MR. HADDAD: Same objection.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: No. It is very similar to the way I practice.
BY MR. JONES:
Q. For example, do you know if Dr. O'Neil himself cleans his own instruments as a result of your discussion with him, the conversation that you had with him?

A. I don't know if we actually discussed whether he cleaned his own instruments.
Q. Do you know whether or not he has a separate room, a standalone room that he uses to perform the -- or for his employees or himself to perform the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing of his reusable medical equipment?
A. He did not do the cleaning and sterilizing in the operating room. So, yes, it was in a separate room.
Q. Okay. Do you know if he had -- for example, if there was more than one sink, a dedicated sink that was used specifically for the purpose of one aspect, or more than one aspect, of the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing of reusable medical equipment?
A. He had a sink that he did it in. I don't know if it was specifically just for that.
Q. Now, you were asked in your deposition about the issue of spore counts. Do you remember you were taken -- a deposition was taken by Mr. Haddad. What is your understanding given your position in a cosmetic surgical practice that you have in Moscow; do you take spore counts?

A. I don't personally, but my tech does.
Q. Do you have an understanding as to what spore counts do as it relates to bacteria?
A. From what I understand, it's a biological marker so you are trying to see if there is any bacteria or spores left behind after you've done a sterilization process.
Q. What is a spore?
A. Basically, I define it like an egg, something that can grow into a bacterium.
Q. Do you know whether or not a spore count will tell you if your autoclave is killing gram negative bacteria?
A. Gram negatives don't cause spores.
Q. Explain your answer.
A. Spores are caused by gram positive bacteria, not gram negatives.
Q. So to the extent there's been criticism advanced in this case by Dr. Sorensen that Dr. Kerr was not taking spore counts, do you have an opinion as to whether or not if Dr. Kerr had been taking spore counts, there would have been any identification of any gram negative bacteria; do you have an opinion?

Page 70

A. Absolutely.
Q. What is your opinion?
A. My opinion is that gram negative rods or gram negatives do not give spores. Your spore count won't be elevated, changed, or anything, whether he checked it or not. They don't develop spores.
Q. So regardless of whether Dr. Kerr or his facility had been keeping spore counts, it would not have had any bearing on his ability or inability to identify the presence of a gram negative bacteria; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Based on your answer a moment ago that you didn't learn anything new about the way things were done in Boise, is it a true statements that the opinions you are rendering here today are your opinions?
A. They are.
Q. As a result of your background, training, and experience in cosmetic surgery, including your discussion with Dr. O'Neil and your review of the medical records and the depositions in this case, do you believe you have actual knowledge of the standards of practice for a cosmetic surgeon like Dr. Kerr practicing in Boise in 2010?

A. I do.
Q. And are you prepared to offer opinions to the jury today in this case based on your knowledge of this standard and your review of the case?
A. I will.
Q. All right. Now, I asked you to review some records and depositions in this case; did I not?
A. You did.
Q. And can you share with the jury, and to the extent you can recall, the items that you were asked to review.
A. Sure. I was asked to review the depositions of Dr. Kerr, Mrs. Kerr, their daughter Brianna, Ms. Berg. I was asked to review the medical records from Elmore County, the ambulance transfer, the lifeflight records, St. Alphonsus' records, as well as the autopsy records. And I was given the -- part of the testimony of Dr. Sorensen from yesterday.
Q. Did you also have the opportunity -- when you said "autopsy record," you mean the coroner's records?

A. Correct, I'm sorry. Yes.
Q. Did you also have the opportunity to review any of the Air Force medical records?
A. I looked at a part of the medical records of Ms. Ballard from the Air Force.
Q. All right. And the portion of Dr. Sorensen's testimony was a portion of his cross-examination that was given in this trial, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Now, I asked you to come to this court and discuss and explain to the jury the facts of the case, the standards of practice involving cosmetic surgery, and the cause of death of this patient; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. I left out Dr. Kerr's records, Silk Touch records.
A. Oh, yes. I did look at the Silk Touch records as well.
Q. Now, I've agreed to reimburse you for your time spent away from your practice of medicine. You have a full-time practice in Moscow as you've shared, right?

Page 73

A. Correct.
Q. You have staff and requirements to pay for your employees and your building and overhead, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. I've agreed to reimburse you for traveling and coming down here to Boise to testify and be involved in this case; have I not?
A. Correct.
Q. And I'm reimbursing you at the rate of $5,000 for your time today to be away, to travel, and to be here today, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Now, the opinions that you hold and that you are prepared to render today, do you hold those opinions to a reasonable degree of medical certainty?
A. Yes.
Q. If at any point I ask you a question or you provide us an opinion that is not so based on reasonable certainty, would you please let me know?
A. Yes.
MR. JONES: Could the witness be handed those other exhibits, please?

Page 74

THE COURT: Except I'm going to require that Exhibit 5, instead of H be used. There is not sense in having duplicate Dr. Kerr records, so go ahead.
MR. JONES: Just while that is being done, Your Honor, obviously, that wasn't going to be shown to the jury but there are differences.
THE COURT: Right. Please proceed.
BY MR. JONES:
Q. Now, let's talk just a little bit before we get into your opinions, Dr. Stiller, about your own experience performing cosmetic surgery.
Can you kind of describe for the jury a little bit about the frequency and volume of the type of procedure in this case, a liposuction, that was done and fat transfers, just kind of describe that and explain your experience to the jury.
A. As far as liposuction is concerned, I do a lot of liposuctions because any time I do an aspect of a breast lift, a liposuction, some aspect of it, obviously, with liposuction, all different parts of the body -- and any time I do a tummy tuck, I do liposuction as well -- so as far as a weekly basis, I'll be doing three to ten, it depends.

As far as fat grafting, I would say really about 20 to 50 a year I will do some aspect of fat grafting, although, that is starting to increase with doing breast reconstruction because fat grafting for breast reconstruction is actually increasing.
Q. Now, with respect to the fat grafting, is fat transfers to the buttocks something that you do in your practice?
A. It is, yes.
Q. Okay. The other types of cosmetic procedures that you do, for example, are you involved in Botox or fillers and things like that?
A. I am.
Q. What else do you do in your practice, your strictly cosmetic practice?
A. My strictly cosmetics, so for non-invasive, we are starting up a laser program. So I'll do laser hair removal as well as lesions on the face, blood vessels.
As far as injectables, I do Botox, (inaudible), which is a different type botulism, toxin, (inaudible) -- (inaudible) -- sorry -- which are fillers to pump up the face. However, almost every patient I have with a filler, I will actually transfer them into doing fat into their face because it's a longer lasting volumizer.

Then starting from the head to toe, I do brow lifts, so I will do an incision across the forehead or just endoscopic. With the brow, I do blepharoplasties; facelifts; rhinoplasties; otoplasties, which are ears.
I do transgenders, so I will do feminization to the face, tracheal shavings. I do -- as far as breasts, I do breast augmentation, breast reduction, gynecomastia with liposuction versus just excisions. Arms, liposuction of the arms. Liposuction just about everywhere. Tummy tucks. I'll do thigh lifts, butt lifts, back lifts. So if somebody has loose skin, we can pretty much lift it someplace.
Q. Let's talk about the types of patients that you have. Are all of the patients that you see on your cosmetic practice, are they just trying to fight the effects of time or are they there for other reasons?
A. Well, everybody does it for different reasons. The majority of the reasons -- well, I guess, everybody does it for different reasons.

You will have patients that just have a crink in their nose and never liked it or they don't want to look like their mom anymore, so we do it from that standpoint.
And certainly, ageing is a process, but you look at the age range where we do cosmetic surgery. The youngest person I've done an operation on was 16 years old where I did a breast reduction versus the oldest person has been 86 and I did a facelift on her, so it's a wide range for different reasons.
Q. Your cosmetic patients include trauma victims?
A. No.
Q. Cancer victims?
A. No.
Q. Do --
A. Well, I should say that they may have had cancer, but they are not seeing me for that cosmetic reason typically. I consider that part of my general surgical practice.
Q. Is there an art to what you do as a cosmetic surgeon?
A. It's all art.

Q. Describe to the jury what you mean by that.
A. It's art in a lot of different ways in just the way you deal with a patient trying to understand what they are trying to really achieve. Because most people can say, "I don't like this," but they don't know what it is they don't like. So just the art of trying to get a patient to relate to you what they want.
When you get into the surgical procedure, especially with liposuction, the goal of liposuction isn't taking away the fat. It's sculpting the body. It is all art.
And then when you get into the fat grafting aspect of it, trying to change the buttock in a different way, it depends on the individual. You talk about African American woman, they will want it differently than a Hispanic or Caucasian woman. They all want it differently and it's all an artistic approach on how to reach that.
Q. Now, with respect to your practice and the types of patients that you treat, do you have occasion to review medical records from other places for your patients?

Page 79

A. That, as well as working in the hospital, we have to do medical reviews on charts all the time.
Q. All right. So this isn't the first instance where you've been asked to look at somebody's records and discuss the care?
A. No.
Q. All right. Now, on that topic, have you ever testified before in a court in any fashion?
A. I have not, no.
Q. Have I ever asked you to review a case for myself or my office ever before?
A. Just this one.
Q. Now, with respect to Dr. Kerr's records, which you were handed Exhibit 5, and I'll ask you to have those records handy so we can discuss a little bit of the care.
Have you got Exhibit 5 handy?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, anytime you need to refer to those exhibits that you've been provided with to address some of my questions, they've been admitted exhibits and feel free to do so.
Now, you are aware in this case, doctor, that the patient first presented on July 13, 2010?

Page 80

A. Correct.
Q. And she was there for a pre-op evaluation and discussion?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Based on your review of the records of that encounter with Silk Touch and the staff and folks there, did you see any evidence or indication that the patient had a health concern of any kind?
A. She doesn't mark any and none is noted.
Q. Is there anything that indicates she was sick or infected at that time?
A. There was not.
Q. All right. Now, have you Exhibit O in front of you, which the jury has seen those photographs yesterday, the preoperative photographs were taken of Krystal Ballard.
Do you see anything in those photographs, and I believe there are 21 of them, anything in those photographs that would in any way disqualify or raise a red flag of concern for doing a liposuction or fat transfer procedure on Krystal Ballard?

Page 81

A. I apologize. I will look at these real quickly. The only ones I had were photocopies.
Q. Okay. So, these are the color ones. And while you are doing that, doctor, why don't you explain --
THE COURT: Wait until he can answer his question.
THE WITNESS: No. She actually looks like a great candidate for both liposuction and fat grafting.
BY MR. JONES:
Q. And what I was going to ask you, what are you looking at when you are looking at those pictures?
A. Sure. So when you are looking at it, and specifically, when I'm looking at the abdomen, what I'm looking for is whether there's any stretch marks or if there's any scarring that might be going across -- having had a previous appendectomy or abdominal operation to make it a little more challenging as far as that is concerned. Looking at the areas of adiposity and what she is trying to achieve as far as her fast grafting. I'm looking at all of those possibilities. Now, when I look at somebody that has darker skin, I'm always more apt to say they are a great candidate for liposuction if they don't have any significant loose skin because their skin bounces back so much better than a Caucasian individual does.

Q. So in your experience, you have seen a difference in the quality of the outcome depending on the race of the patient?
A. Oh, absolutely. Somebody that is Caucasian, I may not offer liposuction to. I would rather do a tummy tuck than do liposuction because of the quality of their skin.
Q. And was it your opinion in looking at those that the patient was what, as far as qualified or not qualified?
A. She was phenomenal and would be a great candidate for liposuction and fat transfer.
Q. Now, again, keeping in mind Dr. Kerr's records, when the patient came in, you understand the procedure was done later in July?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what day it was?
A. I believe it was the 23rd.
Q. 21st.
A. 21. I'm sorry.

Page 83

Q. All right. Do you have -- I would like you to turn to that page in the record, if you could. And what I'm interested in sharing with the jury is based on your view of these records.
Do you see anything in the records, including in that the deposition testimony that you've reviewed and considered for Dr. Kerr and his staff, which at that point in time as of the date of surgery, would raise any red flags or concern about Krystal Ballard undergoing this liposuction fat transfer?
A. No. As far as her candidacy in the procedure itself, it looks like everything went just as you would expect.
Q. Now, with respect to your knowledge of the standard of practice in Boise, an issue has been raised in this case regarding the taking of a complete blood count or additional laboratory work prior to a patient, like Krystal Ballard, undergoing liposuction.
And I would like you -- first of all, do you have an opinion on whether or not any preoperative testing of any kind was required by the standard of practice on Krystal Ballard?
A. No. And --

Page 84

Q. I asked you if you have an opinion.
A. Yes, I have an opinion.
Q. All right. And what is your opinion?
A. My opinion is that as far as the standard of practice with people doing that, again, discussing that with Dr. O'Neil, a CBC, I don't think is necessary or any urinalysis beforehand.
Now in my own clinical practice, I will judge on -- depending on how much fat I'm going to be taking out on whether I will actually take out -- whether I will do a blood count beforehand on somebody who is a low volume, which is what she is. I wouldn't check the blood count.
As far as a urinalysis, the only reason to do that is was she symptomatic. And she never expressed any symptoms of a urinary tract infection. So I wouldn't do that as a standard practice. I don't do it for my hernia repairs.
Q. Now, just to make sure that the jury understands, describe for them what a complete blood count is and what that information gives you as a physician.
A. When you looking at a complete blood count, you are looking at your white blood cells, your hematocrit, which is a measure of what the hemoglobin is. It's three times normal hemoglobin, and your platelet count.

And it will give you a bunch of other information regarding what size are the cells to tell you whether you have any iron deficiency anemia or they have something else going on. So in a young individual, really the pertinency of it is really low because you are not worried about them having a GI bleed anywhere else or having anemia for an unknown reason, especially in a healthy individual.

Q. Now, do you -- as part of your practice in Idaho, do you routinely perform whether it's complete blood counts, urinalysis, a blood culture, a urine culture, anything like that on a patient such as Krystal Ballard?

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, I would just object to relevancy. We have not make a claim that a preoperative CBC urinalysis condition exists.

THE COURT: Okay. So why are we discussing this, Counsel.

MR. JONES: It was an issue that was raised by Dr. Sorensen as I understand his testimony --

THE COURT: I don't recall that but I'll give a little leeway. Let's finish on the key issues, that would be great.

MR. JONES: This will be the last question.

THE WITNESS: So on a patient like Krystal Ballard, no.

BY MR. JONES:

Q. And we'll move on, Doctor.

What is your understanding in this case as to how Dr. Kerr cleaned, disinfected, and sterilized his reusable medical equipment?

A. As far as cleaning and disinfecting, he used Hibiclens and an alcohol solution. And for the cleaning aspect, he used some type of enzymatic cleaner after that. And then he put it in a steam autoclave to autoclave it.

Q. And is enzymatic cleaner, is that synonymous to you as a detergent?

A. Basically that's what it is.

Q. Is that similar to how you clean equipment?

A. I don't clean equipment. It's similar to how my staff does it for me.

Q. And who do you have that cleans your equipment at your office-based practice?

A. My surgical scrub.

Page 87

Q. And is that somebody that -- are they a physician or a physician's assistant, or what is their background?

A. No. It's a surgical scrub. Whenever we do operations, we surgeons need someone to hold our hands. That is what a surgical scrub does.

Basically, they are the people who pass us instruments. They prep the patient to make sure everything is ready for us in the operating room. And then at the end of the procedure, they are the ones who cleans everything.

In a hospital, we will send it to a central supply or central area and you will have somebody who all they will do is clean instruments. And in a office-based setting or surgery center, your surgical scrubs will be the one who clean the instruments and put it them in the autoclave for you.

Q. I want to talk about a little bit more in depth about this procedure used by Dr. Kerr at his office for cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilizing the equipment, the reusable medical equipment that would be used in, for example, liposuction, such as was done on Krystal Ballard.

Can you explain to the jury your understanding of what is happening at each of these stages, the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization.

A. Sure. So you can kind of look at it a couple of different ways. I'll attribute it to kind of washing your dishes; okay.

You eat your dinner. You get your dish. You run it over water. You run water over it. That is your cleaning. Your disinfecting would be like taking the soap and putting a scrub brush on it and brushing it. That is your disinfecting.

So you are looking at taking away the gross contamination and then scrubbing it further would be the disinfecting aspect where you are trying to get more of the process out, more of whatever is left behind out. And then you are going to put it in the dishwasher, your sterilizer, which is going to then further clean it.

The sterilizer, the dishwasher is really the one that really cleans it.

Q. Now, describe to the jury, they've heard a little bit about there term Hibiclens. Briefly, what is Hibiclens?

Page 89

A. It's basically a soap product, an antibacterial soap.
Q. So based on your testimony, the process is remove gross debris, try to clean off the equipment; but it's the third process that is the key process?
A. The sterilization, correct.
Q. Okay. Is there any magic solution, to your knowledge, that is required to either clean or disinfect reusable medical equipment?
A. I wish there were, but no there isn't.
Q. What is the goal you are trying to achieve prior to placing your reusable medical equipment into a autoclave?
A. Is taking away gross contamination.
Q. Now, another issue that -- my memory is -- was raised during Dr. Sorenson's testimony on direct during the plaintiff's case, had to do with the existence or lack of existence of written policies or procedures regarding the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization of reusable medical equipment.
Do you yourself at your practice in Moscow, Idaho, your office-based surgical practice, do you have any such written policies or procedures?

A. We do not at this time.
Q. Does the absence of written policies or procedures concerning the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization of reusable medical equipment impact the ability of your staff to clean the equipment?
A. No.
Q. What is your understanding as to the basis for having it in writing?
A. The only reason I would put it in writing is if I was going for standardization or getting certification for my operative procedure, in on my office-based procedure room.
Q. So in other words, if you wanted to certify your facility as a surgical center?
A. Correct or office-based surgery.
Q. There is it a requirement that you have these written policies?
A. Basically that's what certification is. It's a requirement for policies.
Q. It doesn't mean that you don't have one in terms of what the staff do?
A. No.
Q. Now, there's been some discussion in this case regarding an autoclave, and I would like you to give the jury based on your understanding, a brief discussion and description of an autoclave.

A. So an autoclave, there are multiple different types. And the main type and what really is mostly used in facility, especially in office-based surgery center is steam autoclave.
So it's using water rather than gas; okay. And what you are doing is you are putting your instruments in there and you're and heating it and pressuring it to a certain temperature and pressure that will kill bacteria.
And if it maintains at that pressure for 15 minutes, all the bacteria will be gone. And that's the whole point is to kill the bacteria or fry them.
Q. Do you use an autoclave in your office-based practice?
A. I do.
Q. All right. What -- you used the term "fry." What is your understanding -- when you use that term you say it kills everything that's on the instrument?
A. That's the whole point.

Page 92

Q. All right. It doesn't segregate as to what it kills and what it doesn't. The idea is to kill everything?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you use a chemical indicator with your autoclave?
A. I do.
Q. What is the purpose of using a chemical indicator?
A. So the chemical indicator is to tell you that it's reached the temperature that is appropriate for sterilization.
Q. Does the presence of the indicator help to tell you whether or not the autoclave is working properly?
A. It tells you that you have reached adequate temperature, so yes.
Q. Now, the autoclaves that exists, do they just have -- for example, are you aware of the type of autoclave that Dr. Kerr has?
A. I'm aware that it's a steam autoclave, correct.
Q. Now, in your experience with autoclaves, do you just have a start button or will it tell you whether it's run a cycle or do you know?

A. In all honesty, I've never started an autoclave myself.
Q. Okay. Fair enough. With respect to these chemical indicators, you indicated that they help to tell you whether or not three things have happened. It's time, temperature, and pressure.
A. Well as far as pressure, pressure is going to -- depending on the pressure, it's going to depend on how hot the temperature has to get. So you change the temperature -- you change the pressure, it's going to change the temperature you have to good to.
As far as the chemical indicators and what they indicate is only that it has reached temperature. That's all it indicates. It doesn't tell you time. It doesn't tell you pressure. But, then again, pressure is going to be related to temperature.
Q. All right. In Dr. Sorenson's testimony cross-examination before this jury, he was asked this question. This is on page 14 of his cross-examination.
"QUESTION: Is there any temperature degree that you are safe in concluding will kill a bacteria?

"ANSWER: I don't think that number is available."
Q. Do you agree with Dr. Sorensen?
A. No.
Q. Can you explain to the jury why?
A. Because depending on your pressure, if you are at a pressure of 26, usually it's between 26 PSI and 30. At 26 PSI, you have to be at a temperature of 121 celsius. At 30 PSI, you have to be at 130 degree celsius.
So actually, it's well documented on what pressure you have to be at. That's why the chemical indicators are made.
Q. So if you achieve that pressure and that temperature, you have achieved sterility?
A. As long as it lasts 15 minutes.
Q. Another issue that Dr. Sorensen raised had to do with whether or not Dr. Kerr needed to have a third party come in and handle checking up on his autoclave or servicing his autoclave.
Do you have an opinion in this case as to whether or not the standard of practice required Dr. Kerr to have some third party involved in that fashion with his autoclave? Do you have an opinion?

A. If there was --
Q. Do you have an opinion?
A. Do I have an opinion, yes.
Q. What is your opinion?
A. My opinion is if there was some indication to say his autoclave was broken, he should have somebody come fix it. If there is no indication that it's broken, there is no need to check.
Q. In your own practice you indicate you don't clean your instruments in Moscow, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. In your discussion with Dr. O'Neil, in your knowledge and experience as a cosmetic surgeon, in your opinion, does the standard of healthcare practice applicable to Dr. Kerr in Boise in 2010 require that he personally be the one handing the cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization of his reusable medical equipment?
A. No. I don't believe it requires him to do it.
Q. Did the standard of practice require Dr. Kerr to have any of his employees certified in any fashion in order for them to be able to clean, sterilize, and disinfect his reusable medical equipment?

Page 96

A. I don't believe there is any certification for that.
Q. Now, you likened cleaning, disinfecting, and sterilization to the use of the dishwasher at home. When you were in the military in the Air Force, did you have to perform sterilization in a field setting?
A. When I was at Mountain Home, I was on the -- I was deployable, which means -- and it was right after 9/11, so obviously, they geared us all up to ship. And Mountain Home at the point in time was a base where the whole base could up and move and you would have a whole fighting team because we had the bombers and everything. So as the surgeon, yeah. They sent me to all kinds of training to do that.
I had to do something called C4, which is combat, casualty, and something training. And during that we had to set up a tent and we had to set up an autoclave as well. Did I run the autoclave myself? Did I do the cleaning? No. Again, I had scrub techs there, but I was in the process of -- I was with the process of setting up the operating room and having that all available for us while.

We were there it was actually the same equipment we would deploy with.

Q. And this was out in a field setting, not inside a building somewhere?

A. It was in a tent.

Q. And you were able to reach sterility?

A. As best as we can in a tent, yes.

Q. During Dr. Kerr's examination by the plaintiff, he was asked about a manual that exists for the Vaser machine?

A. Okay.

Q. A sound surgical technology manual. Have you had an opportunity chance to see that manual?

A. I have.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, this was not provided to him prior to his deposition. We've had no supplementation on any opinions regarding the significance or lack of significance of the Vaser manual. It was produced in discovery by the defendants long ago. It was available. They didn't provide it to him.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, this is consistent with his disclosure, which predated --

THE COURT: Which I've read.

MR. JONES: -- a deposition.

THE COURT: All right. Well, I'm going to allow him to respond to the question. The objection is overruled.

BY MR. JONES:

Q. I'd asked you if you had occasion to see that document.

A. I have.

MR. JONES: All right. And I don't remember which exhibit that was of yours, counsel.

Could I have the overhead? If the witness could be handed Exhibit 48.

BY MR. JONES:

Q. Now, there were two sections that were discussed with Dr. Kerr. One had to do with the fragmentation hand piece and the other had to do with the Vaser System Ventex Control Users guide.

And for ease of use so you don't have to dig through there and find it, I'm going to put them up on the overhead. One is page 8 of 14. And if I remember the instructions the judge gave me, if I zoom in, it will get better. And it does.

Page 99

The other page that talks about cleaning and sterilization, you've seen both guys; haven't you?

A. I have.

Q. All right. Now, the representation was made in questioning of Dr. Kerr that this manual in that second, I guess, it would be the third paragraph in the first sentence as well up at the top where it says, "This section described cleaning procedures and sterilization procedures and must be used to ensure clean system." Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. And then you go down to the fourth paragraph where it says, "Follow the cleaning procedures and guidelines recommended by your institution. The following are guidelines that may be used in conjunction with your institution's procedures and guidelines." Did I read that correctly?

A. I believe so.

Q. All right. Now, my question to you regarding these two documents, which are identical, is simply this: Based on your understanding of the standard of healthcare practice applicable to Dr. Kerr in Boise in 2010, was he required to clean, disinfect, and sterilize his reusable surgical equipment as is discussed on this overhead document?

A. Well, he did on the second portion, not the first portion. And that being said, we've already discussed there is no magical wash, so he did follow within the standard of care.

Q. Okay.

A. Or standard of practice, excuse me.

Q. Thank you. That's all I have for that document.

Now, during the surgery -- get us back to our timeline here on July 21, 2010. I want you to assume that Dr. Kerr utilized reusable medical equipment during the liposuction and fat transfer which had been cleaned, disinfected, and sterilized as he described in his deposition as we've discussed here today. All right?

A. Okay.

Q. All right. Now, with that assumption, you are aware of the autopsy findings in this case that observe the presence of gram negative bacteria; are you not?

A. I am.

Q. All right. And the jury already has some idea of gram negative bacteria, but just so they know you know, can you just in a nutshell tell us what gram negative bacteria are.
A. So again we talk about two different types of staining for bacteria, negative and positive. Gram negative bacteria are a class of organisms that can be both aerobic and anaerobic. Anaerobic means can't use -- it will die in the presence of oxygen. Aerobic means it has to have oxygen.
So when you talk about a gram negative rod, it could be E coli or bacteroides or it could be pseudomonas so that is basically what you talk about with gram negatives.
Q. So there are different types?
A. There are.
Q. All right. Is there a more common type of gram negative bacteria that you are aware of?
A. The most common types, at least on humans, in humans would be E coli's and bacteroides.
Q. And the jury has heard that they live in the intestinal track.
A. Correct.

Page 102

Q. All right. Are bacteria capable, in your opinion, Doctor, from being killed or eliminated from reusable surgical equipment?
A. That's the whole point of sterilization, yes.
Q. Is that the whole point of the autoclave?
A. That is the whole point of the autoclave.
Q. All right. And I have this question for you, Doctor: Is the presence of gram negative bacteria being found at the autopsy of Krystal Ballard at her buttock, is that proof to you that Dr. Kerr did anything wrong?
A. No.
Q. Explain your answer, please.
A. Gram negative rods or gram negative bacteria can come at any point in time. It's in your stool. If she wiped herself in the wrong way and put her hand on her buttock, it can go into the wound. So it isn't directly applicable to the surgical therapy.
Q. Now, Dr. Sorensen has rendered the opinion that he believes the patient became infected with gram negative bacteria as a result of contaminated reusable surgical instruments from Dr. Kerr's office being used on Krystal Ballard. You are aware of that?

A. I am.
Q. All right. Do you have an opinion in this case whether or not the gram negative bacteria found on Krystal Ballard came from contaminated reusable medical instruments by Dr. Kerr?
A. I do have an opinion.
Q. What is your opinion?
A. That that is incorrect.
Q. What is your opinion based on?
A. In order -- well, there's multiple different ways of looking at it.
Spore counts don't matter. It's a gram negative; okay. When you look at the process of liposuction and removing all of that tissue, and then injecting it back in, as far as it being done sterilely, a gram negative rod coming from the colon to the uria or from one of his equipment, I don't see how it can happen.

Let alone the fact of that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office. There is no history of the fact that --
MR. HADDAD: Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained, and we'll address it.
MR. HADDAD: Thank you.
THE COURT: All right. We'll break for the noon recess. Please remember my usual reminder and I will see you at 1:30.
(Jury Leaves.)
THE COURT: Is there some reason why you did not tell your witness about the order in limine?
THE WITNESS: He did; I apologize.
THE COURT: Well, that may not be sufficient.
MR. HADDAD: Well, Your Honor, at this time we are obligated, based upon the discussion with the Court earlier and the clear mandate by this Court on this very issue, not on other issues, this very issue, that if the issue of persistent history of infections or lack of infections came into this trial, that the Court would grant a mistrial and award attorneys' fees, costs, and expenses to the party that had violated that order. This is a clear violation of that order.

Based upon the activities in this trial, I am suspect as to the serendipity of that statement being made in the presence of this jury by this witness, but we move for a mistrial at this point in time, Your Honor, and ask you to enforce your admonition to these parties as you made earlier and on numerous occasions.

MR. JONES: Your Honor, first of all, I did make that discussion on more than one occasion with this particular witness. So to the extent it came out, I'll take responsibility for it; he's my witness. But the discussion was had and was had more than once.

I would like to see exactly what the witness said, so I can better comment on it to the judge on the issue of grounds for a mistrial. I do know that when this judge -- when Your Honor talked about this initially, the issue of costs and attorney fees and granting a mistrial was in response to bringing up the issue of whether the patient was going to remarry.

Now, I know there was subsequent discussions about the issue of other infections, and I don't believe what this witness just testified to and what he said --

THE COURT: I said there was not to be any reference to any other infections.

I don't see I have any choice but to grant a mistrial. And I will address the costs and attorney fees later, but it seems to me that this was something I addressed specifically. I said take it up outside the presence of the jury.

This is a serious violation of the Court's prior order, and I don't see the Court has any choice but to grant counsel's request for a mistrial.

MR. KERR: Your Honor, can I --

MR. JONES: No. No.

THE COURT: We'll recess. I'll see you all at 1:30.

(Court recessed, lunch break.)

(Proceedings had outside the presence of the jury.)

THE COURT: I have reviewed extensively all of the orders and arguments in limine that we had the first day of the trial. And I specifically reviewed the testimony relating to the absence of other infections.

I discussed in general terms the general rule that the absence of other accidents is not generally admissible to prove the absence of negligence in a particular case. There are exceptions, and those exceptions require a foundation of a significant nature to establish why the evidence would be relevant and admissible in a particular case.

As our discussion on that issue continued, I was advised by plaintiff's counsel that they had not been provided the underlying data that went into the summary that there had, in fact, been no other infections. The failure to provide the data, which would support the conclusion, then played directly into my decision to grant the order in limine with respect to the absence of other infections as being not permissible and to direct counsel not to address that unless we had a discussion outside the presence of the jury and a foundation was laid.

But it was particularly of concern to me that the underlying records had not been provided to the plaintiffs so that the plaintiffs could independently verify whether that was a conclusion which could be drawn from the records. So there were a number of -- there were a number of problems that were flagged that were discussed by counsel on the first day of trial.

And at approximately 2:40 in the afternoon on the first day of trial, I said I'm granting an order in limine and I will not allow evidence of absence of other infections. And I expressly outlined the normal procedure to follow when counsel wants that revisited, which is draw my attention outside the presence of the jury and we would discuss it. But it was particularly critical because of the failure to disclose the underlying data.

I am therefore declaring a mistrial in this case, and I will award expert witness's cost to be paid to the plaintiff prior to the retrial.

And I will ask counsel that you take a look at your calendars and see when you would next be available. I know you will have to meet with various witnesses and consult with them so we can have -- so that we can proceed.

MR. HADDAD: Your Honor, are you only awarding expert witness costs?

THE COURT: I'm awarding expert witness fees. I'm reserving the issue on attorney fees. I'm not denying it. I said that it was something that I would consider if my orders in limine were violated, and I will consider it. I just, at the very outset, I think at a minimum, the plaintiff's experts -- because we have to retry this -- that is a fair cost.
MR. HADDAD: I'm going to let Mr. McKay speak to other issues, but I would ask, at least at this juncture understanding the Court's holding a ruling on attorney's fees, that we likewise be reimbursed other ancillary costs associated. Meaning, obviously, Mr. Ballard had to travel here. I did with my paralegal. We have stayed in a hotel. Those kind of costs as well.
THE COURT: I think you can submit all appropriate costs. I'm not denying them. I'm only reserving them so you can submit those.
MR. McKAY: Your Honor, could I just be heard on the issue of a mistrial? Frankly, we find ourselves in an untenable position here. On the one hand we've been grossly prejudiced by testimony that, as this Court has indicated, was clearly not to be offered during this trial.

On the other hand, a mistrial benefits these defendants --
THE COURT: Well, that's why I tried to -- by the award of costs, tried to avoid as much as I can with that and minimize that because I do think that's one of the terrible consequences.
MR. McKAY: I understand. And it benefits these lawyers and -- but there's other consequences besides just the costs.
THE COURT: I know, counsel, and I will tell you, that this is something I rarely do. And I don't want to do it, but I don't think there's any way around it.
This is a grossly prejudicial issue to raise particularly when the underlying data has not been disclosed to the other side. It's simply a bell that can't be unrung.
And I will consider any other additional requests you have, but I think that it's so tainting to a jury that it really can't -- this is the only sensible way to address it.
MR. McKAY: But Charles Ballard, he is active duty --
THE COURT: I know and I --

Page 111

MR. McKAY: If I could just be heard briefly, Your Honor --
THE COURT: Sure. I'm sorry. Go ahead.
MR. McKAY: He's active duty in the United States Air Force. He is stationed in Florida. You heard testimony about him being deployed overseas. He has no control over that. He is entitled to justice here. And delaying this -- delaying this, delays justice. And it's wrong what they did. It's a pattern that we've seen throughout this trial.
And giving him a new trial at some undetermined date in the future, which permits them to recalibrate, to have the advantage of having seen our case, to provide us, I assume, with the data that they wouldn't otherwise provide us, to having a do-over at a time when the evidence has come in, it's not fair.
And I think that there are -- I think there are other sanctions available to this Court. This Court can strike their defenses and order that this case go to the jury on damages. I think that would be an appropriate sanction given the conduct that occurred here and the conduct that has occurred throughout this trial.

I heard counsel say he didn't mean for it to happen, but that witness was two sentences into describing what happened before we had to stand up and stop him.
THE COURT: Well, I agree with you, counsel. And it's -- I mean, I definitely agree with you that it's terribly unfair to be in this situation. And I -- that is one of the reasons why I think it's imperative that the plaintiff's costs for experts and attorney's fees and incidental costs be paid prior to the next proceeding.
But the reason I'm granting a mistrial is because I think it's so unfairly damaging to your case that it's just something that I can't remedy with an instruction. And I think it could potentially pollute your suggested remedy, which is not a remedy I considered, I admit.
I think there would be circumstances where maybe that would be reasonable. But I think there are things that can so pollute a case, and I think this is one of them. That's why I felt so strongly about it on the first day of trial. There are things that when they pollute a case, they pollute the entire part of the case.
So I won't bar you from addressing anything else additional that you want to consider by way of sanctions, but I am going to declare a mistrial. And I will -- your case will have the absolute priority on my calendar. You will have priority over any proceeding. I will do everything possible to minimize the harm to Sergeant Ballard.

MR. McKAY: Thank you, Your Honor, and I'll just make the Court aware that we will also be moving that these lawyers be disqualified from representing these defendants.

THE COURT: Okay. We'll address all of that.

MR. McKAY: They should not benefit from a new trial.

THE COURT: Well, I won't bar you from anywhere you want to take this discussion.

MR. McKAY: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Well, let's bring the jury back and we'll excuse them.

(Jury enters the courtroom.)

THE COURT: Well, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I deeply regret informing you that I have declared a mistrial in this case. Prior to trial, a number of motions come before the court, and those motions address matters what either side feels would be so potentially problematic that they should not be brought up in a trial.

And a court makes certain rulings called orders in limine. And those orders in limine are designed to address major problem areas and major issues that should not be touched upon at all. For example -- well, I won't give you an example, but just to say, they are major and important and critical issues.

And the Court in this case -- I, in this case, issued a clear ruling with respect to the certain information. And that ruling was violated, and I am forced to declare a mistrial in this case.

So I want to thank you for your service. I want you to know it's very rare that this occurs. We don't bring you here to torment you, even though sometimes it might feel that way. We don't take you from your other jobs, we don't spend all this time, money, and effort to present a case to you to have it blow up.

So, in any event, I want to thank you all for your service. I really appreciate you being here and being available to serve. You, a hundred percent, came through on your duty. We really appreciate it. I know you've made sacrifices to be here. There were many other obligations that were calling out to you and you all put them aside to be what your community asked you to be, the judges of the facts.

And so on behalf of myself and the other judges, I want to thank you for your service in this case because we a hundred percent count on jurors making the sacrifice that you made and we deeply appreciate it. And I want to thank you for your service in this case. You may talk about the case if you choose to do so. I would recommend you might consider not talking about the case, but you may talk about it with friends and family if you choose to do so. You are released from your obligation not to discuss the case any further.

Now that -- you know, there were times in this trial where things didn't move very crisply. I'm sorry about that. It happens; trials vary. But I will say you all worked hard. You all paid attention. You all did a fine job. Thank you for your service. You are excused from service in this case.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

PLAINTIFF'S REPLY MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR SANCTIONS

ORIGINAL

> Mr. Quane's intentional, inflammatory, and unfair tactic to violate the statute and confuse and unfairly prejudice the jury should not be tolerated. It must be controlled by the swift and firm application of Idaho Code § 10–111, which requires a mistrial and leaves no discretion to the trial court judge. A new trial is required pursuant to Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure 59(a)(1) because this "irregularity in the preceedings" prevented the Robertsons "from having a fair trial."
>
> In addition, since the Plaintiffs have been required to try the case to completion and incur tremendous expenses and costs, the court should award costs and attorney's fees against defendant pursuant to Idaho Code § 12–121 and Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure 54(e). The intentional violation of Idaho Code § 10–111 was an unreasonable bad faith defense of this case and justifies an award of attorney's fees both at the trial level and on this appeal.

Robertson v. Richards, 115 Idaho 628, 643, 769 P.2d 505, 520 (1987) (Bistline, J., concurring specially) (emphasis in original).

Rarely is counsel mentioned by name by our appellate courts. In the above case, handling defense counsel is mentioned nearly 50 times, not counting references to the transcript, and his trial tactics resoundingly criticized. And yet in response to the instant Plaintiff's motion for sanctions which followed this Court's declaration of mistrial and misconduct by the Defendants, defense counsel has the audacity to claim the real motivation behind Plaintiff's motion is his effectiveness as a trial lawyer and that among the many trials he has handled, he has "never had any that ended or terminated by a mistrial." Defendants Second "Reformatted" Memorandum, p. 13.[1]

Plaintiff seeks the sanctions set forth in his motion for one simple reason: Defendants and their counsel caused a mistrial by violating the Court's rulings which significantly prejudices

[1] Plaintiff has contemporaneously filed a motion to strike this reformatted memorandum which is not in conformity with the pleading requirements set forth in the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure and Local Rules and thus like Defendants' initial overlength memorandum, is similarly overlength.

SSgt. Charles Ballard. This mistrial generated tremendous expense and waste of the Court and Plaintiff's resources. The Defendants' actions delay SSgt. Ballard's ability to obtain justice for the death of his spouse, Krystal Ballard, and will require him to once again undergo the excruciating pain and sorrow associated with describing this loss – which the Court witnessed.

Plaintiff seeks monetary sanctions because Defendant's caused the mistrial. This Court has already stated that such monetary sanctions are appropriate:

> THE COURT: Well, I agree with you, counsel. And it's -- I mean, I definitely agree with you that it's terribly unfair to be in this situation. And I -- that is one of the reasons why I think it's imperative that the plaintiff's costs for experts and attorney's fees and incidental costs be paid prior to the next proceeding.

Transcript of Proceedings from November, 14, 2013, p. 112.[2]

Plaintiff also seeks through his sanction motion the removal of defense counsel from this case. In short, these lawyers have forfeited the right to appear before this Court on this case. Plaintiff's motion and supporting memorandum detail the factual and legal basis for all the relief sought by Plaintiff through his sanction motion including the removal of defense counsel.

In response to Plaintiff's motion, Defendants assign blame to everyone but themselves including this Court. They assert the case would have ended in mistrial anyway because of jury scheduling issues. Thus, they presumably believe the Court and Plaintiff conspired to use Dr. Stiller's testimony as subterfuge for the real reason for the mistrial. They incredulously deny that any prejudicial violation of this Court's pretrial rulings occurred and take no responsibility for their conduct and actions at trial. For the reasons stated herein and in Plaintiff's previously filed motion and supporting pleadings, all relief sought by Plaintiff through this motion should be granted.[3]

a. Defendants oppose sanctions through a distorted attempt at revisionist history and blame everyone but themselves for the mistrial in this case.

By their memorandum, Defendants blame the Jury Commissioner, Plaintiff, and this Court for the mistrial in this case. Defendants deny that a violation of the Court's in limine rulings occurred. Defendants deny any and all responsibility for the mistrial in this matter and quite incredibly, cast themselves as victims of the Court's ruling.

Defendants blame this Court for purportedly failing to allow argument prior to granting a mistrial, although Defendants had every opportunity to argue their position, but elected not to do so – and as pointed out in Plaintiff's opening memorandum, lead counsel even turned his back on this Court as the Court addressed the parties. Defendants blame the Court for failing to offer a curative instruction which they never requested (and, thus, for failing to bring more attention to their prejudicial testimony). They blame the Court for granting a mistrial arguing Dr. Stiller didn't really say what he said – or that the jury was not sophisticated enough to understand the import of what he said. They dismiss the significance of their own misconduct arguing a mistrial would have occurred anyway because of juror scheduling issues which they presumably don't believe the Court could have resolved.[4] They blame the Jury Commissioner for failing to ensure

[3] Defendants present no opposition to the additional relief requested by Plaintiff's motion -- full enforcement of sanctions previously imposed for their discovery violation and enforcement of existing discovery and disclosure deadlines, and accordingly, such relief also should be ordered.

[4] It is hard to know whether Defendants really believe that a couple jurors' expression of concerns over scheduling could not be overcome by this experienced Court after two weeks of trial other than by the grant of a mistrial. While this belief might explain their dilatory trial tactics, it seems incredible to think that these issues could not be resolved just at they are resolved in every other multi week trial.

a panel of sufficient number. They blame Plaintiff's counsel claiming they purportedly failed to consult with Mr. Ballard prior to seeking a mistrial. They blame SSgt. Ballard for having "three different law firms" represent him.[5] They even blame the process of aging claiming Mr. Quane had his back turned to the Court because of hearing loss and having the sniffles. These arguments are as irrelevant as they are inaccurate.

The only questions presented by Plaintiff's motion is whether a violation occurred, and who should bear the cost of the mistrial in this case. The answers to those questions are as abundantly clear today as they were the moment Dr. Stiller tendered the offending testimony – which this Court immediately recognized.

Defendants cannot now credibly claim that "[t]he [d]efense did not violate any of the Orders issued by the Court on the Motions in Limine." (Defs' Mem. at 8.[6]) The witness offered an apology to the Court in the wake of Mr. Haddad's objection. (Exhibit A to Declaration of Counsel, Partial Tr. Of Proceedings 104:18, Nov. 14, 2013.) And defense counsel, Mr. Jones, stated that, "to the extent it came out, I'll take responsibility for it; he's my witness" (Id. at 105:15-17.) Now Defendants incredibly argue Dr. Stiller presented no offending testimony – notwithstanding what everyone in Court including this Court, the parties, the lawyers and the jury otherwise understood.

Consider, for example, the linguistic gymnastics offered by Defendants in their transformative interpretation of Dr. Stiller's testimony. Defendants argue that when Dr. Stiller testified that he based his opinions on "the fact . . . that [there were] no pertinent or persistent infections in the office[,]" Plaintiff employed "sheer speculation" in jumping to the conclusion that a violation of the Court's in limine ruling had occurred arguing that "an equally plausible interpretation . . . was the fact the patient herself had never presented with evidence of infection during her office visits and/or subsequent discussions with Dr. Kerr." (Defs.' Mem. at 7.)

---

[6] Throughout this reply, Plaintiff cites to the "reformatted" version of Defendants' memorandum.

Though this "equally plausible" interpretation is completely at odds with a plain-meaning interpretation of the testimony at issue, which contains no cognizable reference to Mrs. Ballard whatsoever, and though everyone in the courtroom with knowledge of the Court's pretrial ruling immediately recognized the impropriety of the testimony including Defendants, their lawyers and Dr. Stiller himself, Defendants' counsel accuses Plaintiff's counsel of "inflated and half-truth statements." (Defs.' Mem. at 8.)

This Court was repeatedly clear on this point, that the issue should not have been unilaterally raised without further discussion outside the jury's presence. Defendants violated this ruling as already found by the Court. Their "ordinary dictionary definitions [for] the words pertinent and persistent[,]" all the while ignoring the witness' reference to "in the office" and the lack of any such office history, is unpersuasive. The witness's apology to the Court's inquiry about the Order in Limine on this precise point, and everyone's immediate understanding of this testimony, leaves no room for the revisionist interpretation now argued by Defendants.

b. Sanctions are warranted under IRCP 37(e) as well as IRCP 47(u).

Defendants quite understandably given their conduct in this case wish to limit the analysis of this motion to a parsing of Dr. Stiller's testimony and to characterize the other improper pretrial and trial tactics cited in Plaintiff's initial memorandum as "collateral issues." (See Defs.' Mem. at 8.) According to the defense, "Plaintiff's counsel made it perfectly clear that the only reason he was seeking a mistrial was based on one narrow issue of other patient infections, but yet now in support of sanctions Plaintiff is advancing the entire kitchen sink argument." (Defs.' Mem. at 13.)

Defendants' attempt to mischaracterize the instant analysis is unavailing. First, the Court on several prior occasions raised the specter of a mistrial should the Court's pretrial rulings be violated. Numerous objections were raised, and sustained, due to defense counsel's conduct including following violation of the Court's rulings. And while the Court finally declared a mistrial in response to Dr. Stiller's obvious violation of the Court's pretrial ruling related to other infections, the issue of sanctions need not be confined to the specific conduct triggering a mistrial. Defense counsel's repeated disregard for the rules and for this Court's rulings, both before and during trial, is absolutely relevant. Thus, sanctions are appropriate in this case under both IRCP 37(e) for failure to comply with the Court's order as well as IRCP 47(u) for deliberate misconduct by a party or attorney.

Under the analysis provided in the Adams and Ashby cases, an analysis acknowledged by the parties, "delay resulting from intentional conduct" is one of three aggravating factors, only one of which need be satisfied. Adams v. Reed, 138 Idaho 36, 39, 57 P.3d at 505, 508 (Ct. App. 2002) (quoting Ashby v. W. Council, Lumber Prod. & Indus. Workers, 117 Idaho 684, 686–87, 791 P.2d 434, 436–37 (1990)). Clearly, the conduct defense counsel characterizes as "collateral" is wholly relevant in this context. Moreover, Defendants' assertion that "there is no pattern of delay in this case" is erroneous. Plaintiff encourages the Court to refer to his initial memorandum of law, which sets forth numerous examples of defense counsel's intentional and improper tactics in the context of discovery, pretrial, and trial. Plaintiff's satisfaction of the Ashby factors is clear.

And while Rule 47(u) appears to limit the Court's consideration of sanctions to "deliberate misconduct of a party or attorney," Defendants offer no reason to believe that this Court cannot consider trial conduct separate and apart from that which ultimately caused the mistrial in determining whether the offending conduct was, in fact, deliberate. Surely defense counsel's trial tactics throughout the trial proceedings is illuminative on this issue, and should be considered.

In any event, there can be no dispute that Defendants violated this Court's order in limine and thus all monetary sanctions sought by Plaintiff including attorney's fees, costs and expenses are recoverable under the clear language of IRCP 37(e).

c. The Court should exercise its discretion and remove defense counsel from this case.

With regard to Plaintiff's request for disqualification of defense counsel, Defendants' attempt to distinguish the cases cited by Plaintiff misses the mark for three reasons. First, the Crown and Weaver holdings both specifically acknowledge that "[t]he decision to grant or to deny a motion to disqualify counsel is within the discretion of the trial court." Crown v. Hawkins Co., Ltd., 128 Idaho 114, 122, 910 P.2d 786, 794 (Ct. App. 1996) (citing Weaver v. Millard, 120 Idaho 692, 696, 819 P.2d 110, 114 (Ct.App.1991)). Accordingly, such a ruling would be wholly appropriate so long as it is the product of the proper exercise of that discretion. Secondly, the Idaho Court of Appeals in Crown affirmed the trial court's denial of the Growers' motion to disqualify Nungester's counsel due to the prejudice that Nungester would have suffered upon the disqualification of his counsel in such close proximity to trial. Crown, 128 Idaho at 122, 910 P.2d at 794. Here, Defendants stand to suffer no such prejudice and have known since Plaintiff raised this issue in Court on November 14, 2013 that Plaintiff would seek the removal of defense counsel. (Tr. 113, ll. 8-11) ("Thank you, Your Honor, and I'll just make the Court aware that we will also be moving that these lawyers be disqualified from representing these defendants."). Lastly, in Weaver, the trial court's order denying disqualification was based, in large part, on the fact that the moving party waited over a year to file the subject motion. Weaver v. Millard, 120 Idaho 692, 698, 819 P.2d 110, 116 (Ct. App. 1991). Again, that is simply not the case here. Plaintiff promptly filed his motion for sanctions and took the first hearing date offered by the Court when scheduling this motion for hearing.

d. Conclusion

For the reasons stated in Plaintiff's motion, his accompanying memorandum of law, and the instant reply, this Court should grant Plaintiff's motion and award Plaintiff all requested sanctions and other relief sought through his motion.

Dear Judge Bail:

In view of having been informed today that the Court denied our Motion for Leave to File and Overlength Brief, we have reformatted our brief in conformance with Rule 10(a)(1). We also confirmed today with the Ada County Court Clerk's office that the use of Times New Roman 12 point font is acceptable and appropriate. With these formatting changes only, our Memorandum now falls within the 25 page limit of local Rule 8.1. Please note we could have submitted our brief originally in this format, but for the convenience and ease of reading for the Court and counsel we had used the expanded format and therefore sought the longer page limit.

Very truly yours,

Case No. CV OC 1204792

PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF ATTORNEY FEES AND COSTS

Plaintiff Charles Ballard, through his attorneys, hereby submits this Memorandum of Attorney Fees and Costs pursuant to the Court's order in open court on February 12, 2014, whereby the Court considered Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions, For Full Enforcement of Sanctions Previously Imposed and for Enforcement of Existing Discovery and Disclosure Deadlines. The Court has awarded Plaintiff and ordered Defendants to pay Plaintiff his costs including expert witness costs and attorney fees associated with the jury trial in the above matter that ended in a mistrial declared by the Court on November 14, 2013.[1]

The foregoing monetary award is consistent with the Court's ruling at the time it declared this mistrial and as noted by the Court, these fees and costs must be paid by Defendants prior to the retrial of this case:

> THE COURT: Well, I agree with you, counsel. And it's -- I mean, I definitely agree with you that it's terribly unfair to be in this situation. And I -- that is one of the reasons why I think it's imperative that the plaintiff's costs for experts and attorney's fees and incidental costs be paid prior to the next proceeding.

Transcript of Proceedings from November, 14, 2013, p. 112, lines 5-11 (emphasis added).[2]

This Memorandum of Attorney Fees and Costs is supported by a contemporaneously filed Declaration of P. Gregory Haddad attesting to the amounts sought herein as well as the Declaration of J. Charles Hepworth attesting to the reasonableness of the professional rates underlying the attorney fee amounts. Based on the foregoing, the Court should order Defendants to pay Plaintiff prior to beginning the retrial in this matter the following:

---

[1] The Court also ordered that Defendants reimburse Ada County for the jury costs and fees paid by Ada County in connection with this trial.

[2] The transcript from the proceedings on November 14, 2013 was previously submitted as Exhibit "A" to the Declaration of P. Gregory Haddad filed February 10, 2014.

A. Attorney Fees Associated with Mistrial: $151,090.50

1. Attorney fees pretrial commencing on the date of counsel's arrival in Boise on October 30, 2013, to prepare for trial beginning on November 5, 2013: $48,373.00 (Bailey & Glasser, LLP - $30,467.00; Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP -$17,906.00).

2. Attorney fees during trial, November 5, 2013 to November 14, 2013: $70,566.50 (Bailey & Glasser, LLP - $46,479.00; Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP - $24,087.50).

3. Attorney fees following mistrial associated with mistrial and litigating motion for sanctions: $32,151.00 (Bailey & Glasser, LLP -$19,202.50; Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP - $12,948.50).

B. Trial Costs and Expert Witness Fees Associated with Mistrial: $55,051.96

1. Costs for Plaintiff SSgt. Charles Ballard consisting of travel from Florida where he is stationed to Boise, lodging and meals associated with trial: $4,324.54.

2. Other trial costs incurred by Plaintiff including expert's travel to Boise, lodging and testimony at trial; travel from West Virginia to Boise, lodging and meals for Bailey & Glasser attorney Greg Haddad and trial paralegal Farrah Caruthers, trial technician for evidence and exhibit presentation software, costs for service of trial subpoenas, costs of trial witness fees and other itemized and reasonable trial costs: $50,727.42 (Bailey & Glasser, LLP - $48,673.41; Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP - $2,054.01).

C. Total Attorney Fees and Costs Associated with Mistrial: $206,142.46

D. Attorney Fees Held in Abeyance for Earlier Discovery Sanctions Imposed by the Court: $5,651.36

The Court earlier imposed partial sanctions against Defendants' counsel as a result of Defendants' refusal to answer discovery and invited Plaintiff to seek full reimbursement for attorney fees incurred as a result of this violation at a later time. (See Court's Order filed October 11, 2012 imposing sanctions against Defendants' counsel in the amount of $1,500 and permitting Plaintiff to later seek reimbursement for full fees incurred in bringing motion to compel). Plaintiff's motion for sanctions following the mistrial seeks reimbursement of the remaining attorney fees held in abeyance by this Court. The Court did not address this aspect of Plaintiff's motion at the hearing on February 12, 2014. Plaintiff now seeks imposition of full attorney fees for this discovery violation.

E. Total Attorney Fees and Costs Associated with Mistrial and Attorney Fees Held in Abeyance for Earlier Discovery Sanctions Imposed by Court: $211,793.82

The above attorney fees and costs are reasonable and the result of the mistrial declared in this case as well as the Defendants' earlier refusal to answer discovery as required. Accordingly, Plaintiff respectfully requests that attorney fees and costs totaling $ be awarded in full to him and against Defendants and Defendants be required to pay this amount prior to the retrial of the above matter.

Dated this 18th day of February, 2014.

Respectfully Submitted,

DECLARATION OF P. GREGORY HADDAD IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF ATTORNEY FEES AND COSTS

6

ORIGINAL

I, P. Gregory Haddad, as the attorney for Plaintiff, Charles Ballard, subscribed hereto by authority duly given, after being duly sworn, upon his oath, state and allege the following.

1. I am duly licensed to practice law in the State of West Virginia, and I am a partner with the law firm of Bailey & Glasser LLP in Morgantown, West Virginia. I am admitted pro hac vice in this case, and I am lead counsel for Plaintiff, Charles Ballard. Together with the law firm of Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett LLP, I have prosecuted this case, and I was present throughout the trial of this matter, which began on November 5, 2013, and which ended upon the declaration of mistrial on November 14, 2013. Bailey & Glasser, LLP, is based in Charleston, West Virginia, and now employs over forty lawyers practicing from nine offices, including offices in Birmingham, Alabama, Boston, Massachusetts, Washington, D.C., and Springfield, Illinois. Our lawyers practice in state and federal courts across the country and routinely represent clients in complex litigation and trial. I have tried over seventy cases, and I have represented plaintiffs and defendants in complex personal injury and professional liability matters, including medical malpractice and wrongful death cases, in state and federal courts, both in West Virginia and around the country.

2. Scott McKay and the law firm of Nevin Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP, have been instrumental and necessary to the preparation of this case, as well as its presentation at trial. Upon information and belief, Nevin Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP, was founded more than thirty years ago. Mr. McKay has handled cases throughout the country, and regularly appears in both state and federal court. Mr. McKay and his firm have an "AV" rating from Martindale-Hubbell, the highest rating available from this lawyer rating service. Mr. McKay graduated magna cum laude from the Gonzaga University School of Law in 1990 and, aside from clerking at the Idaho Supreme Court, he has been engaged continuously in the private practice of law. Along with his "AV" rating from the Martindale-Hubbell lawyer rating service, Mr. McKay has been selected by his peers each year since 2003 for listing in "The Best Lawyers in America." He has been listed in Mountain States Super Lawyers Magazine, which describes itself as featuring the top five percent of lawyers in Nevada, Utah, Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming.

3. My senior paralegal, Farrah L. Caruthers, arrived in Boise, Idaho, to prepare for trial on October 30, 2013. I arrived in Boise, Idaho, to prepare for trial on October 31, 2013. For purposes of this Declaration, October 30, 2013, is considered the date counsel arrived in Boise, Idaho, to prepare for trial.

4. Bailey & Glasser, LLP's pretrial fees commencing on the date of lead counsel's arrival in Boise on October 30, 2013, to November 4, 2013, total $30,467.00.

5. Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP's pretrial fees commencing on the date of lead counsel's arrival in Boise on October 30, 2013, to November 4, 2013, total $17,906.00.

6. Bailey & Glasser, LLP's fees during trial, from November 5, 2013, to November 14, 2013, total $46,479.00.

7. Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP's fees during trial, from November 5, 2013, to November 14, 2013, total $24,087.50.

8. Bailey & Glasser, LLP's fees since the mistrial and associated with Plaintiff's motion for sanctions total $19,202.50.

9. Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP's fees since the mistrial and associated with Plaintiff's motion for sanctions total $12,948.50.

10. Attached hereto at Exhibit A is Bailey & Glasser, LLP's fee and cost detail for the time period October 30, 2013, to February 17, 2014. As reflected in this fee and cost detail, legal work and costs that need not be duplicated as a result of the mistrial have been stricken from the computations set forth herein. So, too, have non-trial related costs and expenses. The undersigned redacted time entry narratives to protect attorney-client confidentiality and attorney work product information.

11. Attached hereto at Exhibit B is Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP's fee and cost detail for the time period October 30, 2013, to February 17, 2014, consistent with the above paragraph.

12. The hourly rates associated with the above stated fees are reasonable and consistent with that of other law firms and lawyers handling cases of this nature in this area. Attached hereto at Exhibit C is the Declaration J. Charles Hepworth, an attorney practicing in Boise, Idaho, who attests to the reasonableness of Plaintiff's counsel's hourly rates.

13. Bailey & Glasser, LLP has incurred $48,673.41 in costs and expenses associated with the trial that ended in a mistrial in this case and pursuing a motion for sanctions. Included in this amount are the costs associated with the presentation of expert witness testimony at the trial in this case.

14. Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett, LLP incurred $2,054.01 in costs and expenses related to trial and in pursuit of an Order granting sanctions against Defendants.

15. Attached hereto at Exhibit D is an invoice from National Travel, which details airfare costs incurred by Bailey & Glasser, LLP for the undersigned's air travel to and from Boise, Idaho, in conjunction with the undersigned's appearance before this Court on Plaintiff's motion for sanctions. As this cost was paid with Bailey & Glasser, LLP's credit card, and as this cost will appear on Bailey & Glasser LLP's March 2014 credit card statement, same has not yet been posted to Mr. Ballard's file.

16. Plaintiff, Charles Ballard incurred $864.11 in rental car and gasoline costs, $1,130.90 in airfare and baggage costs, $1,598.95 for lodging, and $730.58 for meals in attending trial. Accordingly, Mr. Ballard incurred a total of $4,324.54 in costs and expenses to participate in the trial of this matter.

17. By Order dated October 11, 2012, this Court granted sanctions to Plaintiff in the amount of $1,500.00 for Defendants' failure to comply with their discovery obligations. Furthermore, the Court permitted Plaintiff to later seek full reimbursement for the remaining fees and costs associated with Plaintiff's motion to compel. In accordance with this Court's Order of October 11, 2012, Plaintiff now requests that defense counsel be ordered to pay $5,651.36, which represents the difference between the sanctions imposed by the Court in October 2012, and the total fees and expenses associated with Plaintiff's pursuit of an order compelling Defendants to comply with well-established discovery obligations. (See Aff. of Counsel, Sept. 14, 2012 (setting forth $7,151.36 in reasonable fees and expenses).)

18. The fees and costs detailed above total $211,793.82. Plaintiff seeks full reimbursement of this total in conjunction with the mistrial caused by Defendants, as well as in relation to Defendants' discovery sanction.

19. Plaintiff provides the attached attorney fees and cost details without waiving his attorney-client privilege or the protections afforded pursuant to the work product doctrine.

20. Plaintiff, through his counsel, endeavored to keep the aforementioned fees and expenses reasonable by engaging paralegals to perform work; by engaging a paralegal, as opposed to an associate or another partner, to accompany lead counsel at trial; and by planning Plaintiff's order of proof at trial so as to minimize the unnecessary expenditure of resources, particularly as applied to expert witnesses.

This ends my declaration.

I declare under penalty of perjury, pursuant to the law of the State of Idaho, that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge, information and belief.

Dated this 18th day of February, 2014.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

DECLARATION OF J. CHARLES HEPWORTH

1. I am an attorney, duly licensed to practice law in the State of Idaho and the senior partner with the law firm of Hepworth, Janis & Kluksdal, Chtd., in Boise. I make the statements contained in this declaration based on my own personal observations and knowledge.

2. I graduated from Stanford University with a degree in English in 1978 and obtained my law degree from the University of California, Hastings College of Law in 1981. Since that time, I have actively been engaged in the private practice of law and for over thirty years, have been practicing in Idaho.

3. My law firm and my practice are devoted to representing individuals and surviving family members in claims for personal injury and wrongful death including medical malpractice. I have tried to verdict many such cases including a $6.15 million verdict that I helped obtain in 2006 for the family of a 28-year-old woman who died as a result of a medical error, and a $7.55 million verdict that I helped obtain against St. Luke's Hospital in a wrongful death case in 2001.

4. I am listed in The Best Lawyers in America and was rated one of the top 75 lawyers in all fields by the Mountain States Super Lawyers for 2009. I have an "AV" rating from the Martindale Hubbell lawyer rating service. I am a member of the American Association for Justice, a fellow with the American College of Trial Lawyers and a long standing member of the Idaho Trial Lawyers Association.

5. I am familiar with hourly rates charged by the lawyers and legal professionals at my law firm as well as other law firms in this area. It is my opinion that a billing rate for attorney P. Gregory Haddad of $325/hr. and for attorney Scott McKay of $275/hr., the attorneys who handled the first trial in the above matter, is eminently reasonable and consistent with billing rates in the Boise area for attorneys of similar experience, skill and reputation. I further believe that billing rates for experienced paralegal support of up to $125/hr. and for experienced associate attorneys of up to $225/hr. is likewise reasonable for experienced paralegals and associates assisting on cases of this nature in the Boise area.

This ends my declaration.

I declare under penalty of perjury pursuant to the law of the State of Idaho that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge, information and belief.

DATED This Dated this 14th day of February, 2014.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF
THE FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT
OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND
FOR THE COUNTY OF ADA

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D., SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER AND LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.	Case No. CV OC 1204792 OBJECTIONS TO PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF ATTORNEY FEES AND COSTS

The following constitute the objections of the Defendants to the Plaintiff's Memorandum of attorney fees and costs. The Plaintiff's Memorandum cites five categories of fees and costs, labeled A through E, each of which is objected to by the Defendants, in their totality and in certain portions and aspects.

It is the position of the Defendants that an award is confined to the Plaintiff's costs for his experts who testified at trial, 3 in number, attorney fees for the trial itself and incidental costs for the trial. Attorney time spent preparing for trial is not included and time spent in addition to the time in Court for trial is not included, nor is the payment to Ada County for Jury costs and fees for the trial authorized by rule 47(u), I.R.C.P. It is prohibited by Rule 48(a), I.R.C.P. In the opinion of undersigned, the services of paralegals and legal assist for trial are not recoverable, not reasonably required or necessary and not within the scope of the award to be entered by the Court. The fees and costs for services rendered after November 14, 2013 are not recoverable and not within the scope of the award to be entered by the Court.

At trial, the Plaintiff called 5 live witnesses and one witness by her deposition and its video. The medical records were admitted by agreement of counsel. The Plaintiff called 3 expert witnesses, Dr. Kerr and the Plaintiff. The Plaintiff rested his case-in-chief on November 12, 2013. The Defendants called Dr. Kerr and Dr. Stiller in their case-in-chief and neither were cross-examined by Plaintiff's counsel. The trial also included jury selection, opening statements, Court hearings on several Motions and matters, and the matter of one juror not returning for trial. The Defendants did not have a paralegal or legal assistant at trial or technician for operating equipment showing exhibits, none of which was reasonably necessary or required.

Defendants object as follows to the categories specified in the Plaintiff's Memorandum of Attorney Fees and Costs.

Category A.1. Not recoverable.

Category A.2. Excessive time, attorney duplication, improper attorney hourly rates, lack of proof that the time of all persons was necessary, reasonable and required.

Category A.3. Not recoverable.

Category B.1. Not recoverable.

Category B.2. Other than the expert witness fees of Drs. Sorensen and Nichols and Economist Hoffman, there is only travel expense of Dr. Nichols. Travel expense of Mr. Haddad and paralegal Farrah Caruthers and costs of trial technician not recoverable. Costs of trial subpoenas, trial witness fees and other itemized trial costs not recoverable. The Declaration of Mr. Haddad under the heading Additional Charges does not describe or identify the need or reasons for the items listed and Dr. Armitage did not testify at the trial.

Category D. Not recoverable. Has nothing to do with the mistrial. Defense counsel did not violate any discovery order or refusal to answer discovery, once the Court overruled objections to Plaintiff's interrogatories. Answers to the interrogatories were promptly filed and served and payment made to Plaintiff's attorney as ordered by the District Judge.

Category E. Objections noted above are applicable.

The Affidavit of Jeremiah A. Quane is filed and served with these objections. It is relied upon in the instances where applicable to these objections.

The Defendants and their counsel urge the Court to consider the following factors in determining the amount of attorney fees:

1. The time and labor reasonably required and necessary as opposed to time entries simply made in time records.

2. The novelty and difficulty of the issues, legal and factual, of the case.

3. The skill requisite to perform the legal services properly and the experience and ability of the Plaintiff's attorneys in the field of law for medical malpractice.

4. The prevailing changes in the Boise area for like work.

5. Whether the fees of Plaintiff's counsel are fixed or contingent.

6. The time limitations imposed under the circumstances of the case.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

AFFIDAVIT OF JEREMIAH A. QUANE FOR OBJECTIONS TO PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF ATTORNEY FEES AND COSTS

STATE OF IDAHO)
: ss.
County of Ada)

Jeremiah A. Quane, having been first duly sworn upon oath, deposes and says:

AFFIDAVIT OF JEREMIAH A. QUANE FOR OBJECTIONS TO PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF ATTORNEY FEES AND COSTS - 1

1. I am the attorney of record for Defendants in the above captioned action, and the following statements are made of my own personal knowledge and are true and correct.

2. I have handled numerous civil tort cases that involved varying legal issues. Of these civil tort cases, many were medical malpractice cases. I have handled and/or tried civil tort and medical malpractice cases in all but 8 of the 44 counties in the State of Idaho and the Federal District Courts of Idaho and Montana. Of these cases, a great number of them were in the District Court of Ada County.

3. Based on my experience, I am familiar with and have knowledge of the attorney fee hourly rates customarily and usually charged by attorneys in civil tort and medical malpractice cases that include cases in the District Court of Ada County and its surrounding counties. I have acquired this knowledge by means of discussing hourly rates with attorneys, reviewing billing statements of attorneys and claims asserted by attorneys in connection with litigated cases and decisions of courts for the assessment of attorney fees. I have testified as an expert witness in the District Court of Ada County on the subject of reasonable and customary attorney fee hourly rates and observed other attorneys doing the same. In these cases, the presiding judge accepted me as a qualified expert witness.

4. I am qualified to render the opinions stated in this Affidavit.

5. The customary, usual and accepted hourly rates for attorneys in the Fourth and other Judicial Districts of the State of Idaho in civil tort and malpractice cases is in the range of $150 to $190, and $190 is the outer or highest rate.

6. In my opinion, these are the ranges for the assessment of attorney fees in connection with the Plaintiff's pending motion.

7. My experience and acquired knowledge set forth above, covers, applies and relates to the attorney time necessary and reasonably required to perform the legal services for the issues involved in this case and I believe that I am qualified to render an opinion on the time that is customarily and reasonably necessary and required of Plaintiff's attorney to conduct the trial of this case.

8. The trial of this case started November 5, 2013 and ended November 14, 2013, a total of slightly over 6 ½ days. The actual time spent in trial is as follows for the trial days:

November 5, 2013	8.2 hours
November 6, 2013	6.1 hours
November 7, 2013	6.6 hours
November 8, 2013	6.8 hours
November 12, 2013	6.4 hours
November 13, 2013	6.5 hours
November 14, 2013	4.9 hours
Total	45.4 hours

9. According to the declaration of Mr. Haddad, the following time is stated to be as follows for himself and Mr. McKay for the trial dates:

Mr. Haddad

November 5, 2013	11.5 hours
November 6, 2013	12.2 hours
November 7, 2013	11.4 hours
November 8, 2013	10.2 hours
November 12, 2013	11.0 hours
November 13, 2013	12.0 hours
November 14, 2013	8.5 hours
Total	76.8 hours

Mr. McKay

November 5, 2013	9.7 hours
November 6, 2013	11.4 hours
November 7, 2013	10.8 hours
November 8, 2013	8.1 hours
November 12, 2013	10.7 hours
November 13, 2013	11.4 hours
November 14, 2013	6.3 hours
Total	68.4 hours

10. According to the time records of Nevin, Benjamin, McKay and Bartlett, Exhibit B to the Declaration of Mr. Haddad and the time records of Bailey and Glasser, Exhibit A to the Declaration of Mr. Haddad, the description of services for each trial day for both Mr. McKay and Mr. Haddad are very similar and constitute in the opinion of undersigned, the unnecessary duplication of services of one to the other.

11. The Declaration of Mr. Haddad, page 2, states that he has tried over seventy cases, but his declaration does not state the numbers of cases tried. Assuming the number of cases tried is about 70 or close to 70, undersigned has tried 175 civil cases in Idaho compared to the alleged 70 or so cases tried by Mr. Haddad, none in Idaho except this case.

12. The Declaration of Mr. Haddad does not describe or mention the trial experience of Mr. McKay in medical malpractice cases.

13. The Declaration of Mr. Haddad, page 4, paragraph 12, states "the hourly rates associated with the above stated fees are reasonable and consistent with that of other law firms and lawyers handling cases of this nature in this area." The Declaration then refers to the Declaration of attorney Charles Hepworth. The above quoted statement of Mr. Haddad lacks foundation and the factual basis for it, and is tantamount to pure speculation and conjecture.

14. In the opinion of undersigned, he has handled and tried many more medical malpractice cases than attorney Charles Hepworth and he disagrees with the attorney fee rates specified in the Declaration of Mr. Hepworth and he disagrees with the attorney fee rates specified in the Declaration of Mr. Haddad.

15. The Complaint in this case was filed March 16, 2012. The Declaration of Mr. Haddad contains the time records of Bailey and Glasser and Nevin, Benjamin, McKay and Bartlett that reflect the attorney time registered for both Mr. Haddad and Mr. McKay for the following dates:

Mr. Haddad

October 30, 2013	8.7 hours
October 31, 2013	18.6 hours
November 1, 2013	10.4 hours
November 2, 2013	10.0 hours
November 3, 2013	9.7 hours
November 4, 2013	9.8 hours

Mr. McKay

October 30, 2013	6.7 hours
October 31, 2013	6.5 hours
November 1, 2013	12.4 hours
November 2, 2013	7.5 hours
November 3, 2013	8.6 hours
November 4, 2013	10.7 hours

The same time records reflect the time registered for others on the following dates:

Bailey and Glasser

October 30, 2013	(FLC (paralegal))	12.4 hours
	(RDS (paralegal))	1.6 hours
October 31, 2013	(FLC)	11.6 hours

November 1, 2013	(FLC)	10.0 hours
November 2, 2013	(FLC)	10.0 hours
November 3, 2013	(FLC)	11.0 hours
November 4, 2013	(FLC)	11.9 hours

Nevin, Benjamin, McKay and Bartlett

October 30, 2013	(DP (legal assist))	3.5 hours
October 31, 2013	(DP)	6.2 hours
November 1, 2013	(DP)	6.8 hours
November 2, 2013	(DP)	7.7 hours
November 3, 2013	(DP)	8.6 hours
November 4, 2013	(DP)	6.4 hours

The time entries themselves noted above, do not in the opinion of undersigned establish that the services were reasonably necessary and required and customary nor do they show that the services of each person are not the duplication of the services of others.

Taking into account the fact that both law firms for the Plaintiff have been working on this case since the Complaint was filed March 16, 2012 and before, it is the opinion of undersigned that the time reflected in the time records is excessive, not required, not customary and not reasonably necessary, notwithstanding, the position taken by the Defendants that services performed before the trial started on November 5, 2013 are not recoverable or the subject of the Court Order for fees and costs based on the mistrial.

16. The time records for both Mr. Haddad and Mr. McKay for the trial dates do not describe or identify the type and nature of the services rendered. They are both similar in descriptions that basically say prepare for trial, attend trial and prepare for trial the next day. It is the opinion of undersigned that there is no showing by the Plaintiff or documentation that the services for Mr. Haddad and Mr. McKay are reasonably necessary, required and customary, which is the standard the Court should apply. Examples of two random time entries for Mr. Haddad and Mr. McKay are:

Mr. Haddad:

11/6/13 Trial time 6.1 hours. Recorded time is 12.2 hours, leaving 6.1 hours.

Mr. McKay

11/6/13 Trial time 6.1 hours. Recorded time is 11.4 hours, leaving 5.3 hours.

Mr. Haddad:

11/13/13 Trial time is 6.5 hours. Recorded time is 12.0 hours, leaving 5.5 hours.

Mr. McKay:

11/13/13 Trial time is 6.5 hours. Recorded time is 11.4 hours, leaving 4.9 hours.

17. The Declaration of Charles Hepworth states in part "billing rate for attorney P. Gregory Haddad of $325/hour and for attorney Scott McKay of $275/hour,... is consistent with billing rates in the Boise area for attorneys of similar experience, skill and reputation." The Declaration of Mr. Haddad does not identify or describe the experience, skill and reputation of Mr. McKay on the handling and trial of medical malpractice cases. The Declaration of Mr. Haddad does not identify or describe his experience, skill and reputation in the handling and trial of medical malpractice cases, although it states generally that he has represented Plaintiffs and Defendants in complex personal injury and professional liability matters, including medical malpractice and wrongful death cases, in state and federal courts, both in West Virginia and around the country. These matters stated for Mr. McKay and Mr. Haddad are vague, non-specific and lacking in particulars that bear upon their experience with and knowledge of the medical and legal issues involved in medical malpractice cases so as to allow the Court to determine and gauge their experience, skill and reputation as stated in the Declaration of Mr. Hepworth.

It is the opinion of undersigned that the attorney rates for Mr. Haddad and Mr. McKay as stated by Mr. Hepworth are not consistent with the billing rates in the Boise area for attorneys of similar experience, skill and reputation.

FURTHER your Affiant saith not.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

MOTION FOR FIRST DISQUALIFICATION OF THE HONORABLE DEBORAH BAIL

DENIED 2/28/14
Deborah A. Bail

COME NOW the Defendants, pursuant to Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure 40(d)(1), 40(d)(1)(A), 40(d)(1)(B) and 40(d)(1)(F) and respectfully move this Court for its order, without cause, for the disqualification of the Honorable Deborah Bail. This is the first and only Motion for Disqualification without cause of the Honorable Deborah Bail by the Defendants and is not made to hinder, delay or obstruct the Administration of Justice. On February 21, 2014, Judge Bail signed and entered her Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings that was served by mail on the attorneys for the Plaintiff and Defendants February 21, 2014 as certified by Deputy Court Clerk Linda Sims-Douglas and received by counsel for the Defendants February 25, 2014. A trial of this case has been held starting November 5, 2013 in which the Plaintiff completed his case-in-chief and rested on November 12, 2013 and the Defendants then proceeded with their case-in-chief that ended November 14, 2013 when the Court granted the Plaintiff's Motion for a mistrial. The Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings of Judge Deborah Bail setting this case for jury trial to commence April 8, 2014 is a complete new trial from the previous trial that was held. This Motion is timely filed after service of the written Notice or Order of Judge Deborah Bail setting the action for trial and is filed before the commencement of the new trial before the Honorable Deborah Bail.

The trial scheduled April 8, 2014 per the written Amended Notice of Trial Setting dated February 21, 2014 will be a complete trial, irrespective of the events of the trial held previously and the provisions of Rules 40(d)(1), 40(d)(1)(A) and 40(d)(1)(B) are applicable. Per Rule 40(d)(1)(A), the Motion for Disqualification, if timely, shall be granted. As respects the trial scheduled April 8, 2014, there has been no status conference, pre-trial conference, contested proceeding before Judge Deborah Bail. The Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings dated February 21, 2014 specifies and denotes the issues, matters and events to be undertaken and completed before the trial is scheduled to start April 8, 2014. This Order has no bearing on or relationship to anything that transpired in the trial previously conducted and the consequences of the Order of the Judge granting a mistrial. The trial scheduled April 8, 2014 is a totally new and different trial than the trial previously conducted.

This matter is not made on the basis of cause for the disqualification of the Honorable Deborah Bail.

Defendants/Appellants.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

NOTICE OF APPEAL

TO: THE ABOVE NAMED RESPONDENT, CHARLES BALLARD, AND THE PARTY'S ATTORNEYS, DAVID Z. NEVIN, SCOTT MCKAY, NEVIN, BENJAMIN, MCKAY & BARTLETT LLP, P.O. BOX 2772, BOISE, IDAHO 83701, P. GREGORY

HADDAD, BAILEY & GLASSER LLP, 2855 CRANBERRY SQUARE, MORGANTOWN, WEST VIRGINIA 26508, JAMES B. PERRINE, BAILEY & GLASSER LLP, 3000 RIVERCHASE GALLERIA, SUITE 905, BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA 35244, AND THE CLERK OF THE ABOVE ENTITLED COURT.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT:

1. The above named Appellants, Brian Calder Kerr, M.D., Silk Touch Laser, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and Silk Touch Laser, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba Silk Touch Med Spa and/or Silk Touch Med Spa and Laser Center, and/or Silk Touch Med Spa, Laser and Lipo of Boise, appeal against the above named Respondent to the Idaho Supreme Court from the following orders of the District Court, both of which were verbally rendered from the bench by the District Judge without written orders:

a. Order of the District Court for the award of witness costs, expert witness fees, travel expenses and costs of the Plaintiff, travel expenses and attorney fees of Plaintiffs' attorney and jury fees of Ada County against Appellants as a result of the mistrial ordered by the District Court on November 14, 2013, entered in the above-entitled action on February 12, 2014, honorable Judge Deborah A. Bail presiding.

b. Order of the District Court for the award of expenses and costs against Appellants in the sum of $64,324.54 that must be paid by noon, March 21, 2014, Mountain Daylight Time as a result of the mistrial ordered by the District Court on November 14, 2013, entered in the above entitled action on March 12, 2014, Honorable Judge Deborah A. Bail presiding.

2. That the party has a right to appeal to the Idaho Supreme Court and the Orders described in paragraph 1 above are appealable Orders under and pursuant to Rule 11, (a)(1), I.A.R. and the following:

a. The Orders appealed from are final Orders and enforceable and not dependent on or subject to the District Court Order scheduling the case for trial April 8, 2014 for three weeks, excluding each Monday, entered February 21, 2014 and the results or outcome of the scheduled trial. The appealed orders are in effect despite anything to do with the trial or court ordered preparations for the trial and the time period to appeal the Orders is not extended by reason of the scheduled trial.

b. By virtue of the Order of the District Court of March 12, 2014 for the award of expenses and costs against Appellants in the sum of $64,324.54 that must be paid by March 21, 2014 constitutes significant detriment to Appellants and the only viable remedy for relief from the Order is this Appeal.

c. The trial is scheduled April 8, 2014 through April 25, 2014 (3 weeks) and appeals from the Court Orders of February 12, 2014 and March 12, 2014 will be untimely if the appeal is taken after April 25, 2014 or the conclusion of the trial.

d. The Orders appealed from involve legal issues and questions of first impression in this state in regard to the application, effect and interpretation of Rule 47(u), I.R.C.P.

3. A preliminary statement of the issues on appeal which the Appellants then intend to assert in the appeal are as follows:

a. Did the District Court error in its Order of March 12, 2014 awarding costs and expenses for Respondent against Appellants that must be paid by March 21, 2014 in the sum of $64,324.54.

b. Whether the provisions of Rule 37(e), I.R.C.P., for the assessment of attorney fees, costs or expenses against a party or the party's attorney control, or apply to the violation of a Court Order on a Motion in Limine entered during trial.

c. Whether the provisions of Rule 47(u) for the payment of expenses and attorney fees is the controlling basis and authority for an Order of the District Court for payment of expenses and attorney fees.

d. Whether the District Court erred by failing to make a determination that an occurrence at trial prevented a fair trial for the Respondent in ordering a mistrial on November 14, 2013 that resulted in the Orders of the District Court of February 12, 2014 and March 12, 2014 for the award of costs, expenses and attorney fees against the Appellants.

e. Whether the District Court erred by failing to make a determination that the mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of the Appellants and their attorneys that resulted in the orders of the District Court of February 12, 2014 and March 12, 2014 for the award of costs, expenses and attorney fees against Appellants.

f. After the jury was impaneled on November 5, 2013, the District Court granted Respondent's Motion in Limine to exclude evidence pertaining to the lack of post-surgical infections of other patients of Appellants. Whether the testimony of Dr. Geoffrey Stiller on November 14, 2013 constituted a violation of this Order of the District Court on the Respondent's Motion in Limine that justified a mistrial that resulted in the Orders of the District Court of February 12, 2014 and March 12, 2014 for awards of costs, expenses and attorney fees.

g. Whether the District Court erred in its Order of February 12, 2014 for payment of jury fees of Ada County by Appellants.

4. No order has been entered sealing all or any portion of the record.

5. (a) Reporter's transcripts have been requested.

(b) The appellants request the preparation of the following reporter's transcripts in hard copy format for:

(1) Portions of the November 5, 2013 trial transcript;

f. 2/18/14, Declaration of P. Gregory Haddad In Support Of Plaintiff's Memorandum of Attorney Fees and Costs; and

g. 2/21/14, Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

PLAINTIFF'S NOTICE OF RELIANCE ON PREVIOUSLY FILED CONSOLIDATED MOTIONS IN LIMINE AND SUPPLEMENTAL MOTIONS IN LIMINE

ORIGINAL

COMES NOW the Plaintiff, Charles Ballard, by and through his attorneys, pursuant to Idaho Code § 9-102, Idaho Rule of Evidence 103(c), and the Court's Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings of February 21, 2014, and hereby gives notice of his reliance on Plaintiff's Consolidated Motions in Limine, which Plaintiff filed on October 22, 2013. Plaintiff incorporates by reference this prior filing as if it was fully set forth herein. For the Court's convenience, the matters previously addressed by Plaintiff's Consolidated Motions in Limine, and ruled upon by the Court, include the following:

I. The Possibility that Charles Ballard Might Remarry or Enter Into Another Relationship;

II. Krystal Ballard's Purported Noncompliance;

III. The Absence of Infection in Other Silk Touch Patients to Prove Compliance with the Standard of Care as to Krystal Ballard;

IV. Life Insurance and Other Collateral Sources;

V. Dr. Charles Garrison's Untimely Opinion Regarding Fat Embolism and All Undisclosed Expert Opinions;

VI. Defense Experts Who Failed to Properly Familiarize Themselves as to the Applicable Standard of Practice;

VII. Dr. Kerr's Communication with Krystal Ballard's Aunt;

VIII. Dr. Lundeby's Testimony as to Krystal Ballard's Cause of Death;

IX. Evidence, Argument, and Special Verdict Pertaining to Third Party Liability;

X. Testimony of Dr. Kerr Regarding a Medical Malpractice Action Involving Plaintiff's Expert, Dr. Sorenson;

XI. Speaking Objections, Unsworn Testimony of Counsel, and References to the Parties' Motion Practice While in the Jury's Presence;

XII. Ad Hominem Arguments and Remarks;

XIII. Settlement Negotiations;

XIV. Expert Testimony That Invades the Province of the Jury; and

XV. Cumulative Expert Testimony.

Additionally, Plaintiff moves for a further order in limine regarding the following matters:

XVI. Dr. Gregory Laurence's Recent Guilty Plea to a Federal Felony Offense is Admissible, as are the Underlying Facts Contained Within His Plea Agreement, Which Dr. Laurence Now Admits Are True; and

XVII. Defendants Should be Precluded from Eliciting Responses From Witnesses or Jurors That Vouch for the Credibility of One of Their Retained Experts.

As for the evidence Plaintiff seeks to preclude, the order(s) in limine should forbid Defendants, Defendants' counsel, and Defendants' witnesses at trial from causing or permitting the jury to hear, read, or otherwise become aware of the foregoing matters in any way, whether through the testimony of its witnesses, in cross-examination of Plaintiff's witnesses, in colloquy or argument, or in any other manner, and whether in the case-in-chief, rebuttal, or surrebuttal.

A memorandum in support of these motions follows. An Affidavit of Counsel, to which all exhibits referenced herein are attached, is filed contemporaneously herewith.

MEMORANDUM

XVI. DR. GREGORY LAURENCE'S RECENT GUILTY PLEA TO A FEDERAL FELONY OFFENSE IS ADMISSIBLE, AS ARE THE UNDERLYING FACTS CONTAINED WITHIN HIS PLEA AGREEMENT, WHICH DR. LAURENCE NOW ADMITS ARE TRUE.

Defendants retained Dr. Gregory Laurence and intend to call him as an expert witness on the standard of care. To buttress his testimony and credibility, Defendants are likely to elicit testimony highlighting Dr. Laurence's "various publications, honors and university appointments as set forth in his curriculum vitae," among other qualifications. (See Exhibit N to Aff. of Counsel in Support of Pl.'s Resp. to Defs.'s Mots. in Limine, Oct. 29, 2013 (Defs.' Ans. to Pl.'s Third Set of Discovery 42).)

In light of such a jury presentation, and by operation of Idaho Rules of Evidence 608 and 609, Plaintiff should be allowed to demonstrate that Dr. Laurence pleaded guilty to a federal felony offense, one which originates from his medical practice, and one which certainly calls into question his character for truthfulness, his fitness to practice medicine, and his qualifications to render standard of care opinions in this case. Moreover, because Dr. Laurence now faces the very real possibility of prolonged imprisonment, substantial fines, restitution, and the loss of his license to practice medicine, Plaintiff should be free to inquire as to whether these significant financial consequences bear on the issue of Dr. Laurence's motives and/or biases in this case.

a. On February 6, 2014, Dr. Laurence Pleaded Guilty to a Federal Felony Offense Arising Out of His Medical Practice.

On May 8, 2013, a federal grand jury in the United States District Court for the District of Colorado returned a six count indictment charging Dr. Laurence and two co-defendants with various felony offenses ranging from Conspiracy to Defraud the United States to Corruptly Endeavoring to Obstruct or Impede the Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws. (See Exhibit A, Indictment, United States v. Eva Melissa Sugar, Jerry Lynn Roberts and Gregory Nathan Laurence, U.S. District Court, District of Colorado, Criminal Case No. 13-cr-00-193 JLK.) The government charged Dr. Laurence with this latter crime, as well as Obstruction of Justice. (Id. at Counts 5 and 6.) Recently, Dr. Laurence "[entered a plea of] guilty to the violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7212(a), Corruptly Endeavoring to Impede the Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws, [as] charged in Count 5 of the Indictment." (Exhibit B, Plea Agreement 1, Feb. 6, 2014; Exhibit C, Change in Plea Minutes 1, Feb. 6, 2014.) By the agreement, the parties stipulate that, under 26 U.S.C. § 7212(a), the government has the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that 1) "the defendant acted with the purpose to obstruct or impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue Laws;" 2) "the defendant's acts had a reasonable tendency to obstruct or impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws;" 3) "the defendant acted knowingly;" and 4) "the defendant acted corruptly, that is, with the purpose to obtain an unlawful benefit for himself or someone else." (Plea Agreement at 5-6 (citing Fed. Crim. Jury Instr., 7th Cir 7212[1]).)

By his signed, sworn guilty plea, Dr. Laurence admits to the following conduct:

- "[Dr. Laurence] practiced medicine through two entities in which he was the sole physician, Germantown Family Care and Obstetrics, LP and Germantown Aesthetics, LP." (Plea Agreement at 7.)
- "Beginning in approximately June, 2002, and continuing through at least the end of 2007, Dr. Laurence used the services of . . . an attorney . . . as well as others associated with a group known as Financial Fortress Associates . . . to take steps to disguise his true income from the IRS and to support the false business and personal tax returns he filed during the relevant period." (Id.)
- "Dr. Laurence paid [the attorney] for the use of various unincorporated business organizations ("UBOs") . . . ." (Id.)
- "Dr. Laurence also paid [the attorney] to set up bank accounts for the UBOs at two different banks and to list sham trusts as depositors for the bank accounts." (Id. at 8.)
- "Dr. Laurence and [the attorney] opened the bank accounts for the UBOs using the UBO EINs in part so that Dr. Laurence's social security number would not be associated with the bank accounts." (Id.)

- "Dr. Laurence paid [the attorney] to conduct bank transactions for the UBOs on his behalf." (Id.)
- "Dr. Laurence took steps which purported to transfer ownership of the sham trusts of assets that he or his medical practices owned, such as his personal residence, his cars, the buildings where he conducted his practices, and the equipment used in those practices." (Id.)
- "[Dr. Laurence] issued checks from his professional corporation to the fictitious trust entities for expenses such as rents and equipment leases. These checks were deposited into various UBO accounts. Dr. Laurence then treated these payments as legitimate deductions for business expenses to reduce the apparent profit generated by Germantown Family, thereby reducing its taxable income." (Id. at 8-9.)
- "Dr. Laurence also avoided payroll taxes for Germantown Family and Germantown Aesthetics by stopping his previous practices of withholding and paying over payroll taxes and issuing his employees Forms W-2 each year. Instead, Dr. Laurence caused his employees to be paid their wages and other incentives, without any withholdings and as purported independent contractors, through [a UBO.]" (Id. at 9.)
- "Between January 1, 2003, and April, 2007, Dr. Laurence deposited over $1.7 million into [a UBO account] from his practices. He did not report the employees' receipt of those wages to the IRS in any form, but he did claim his payments as deductions for labor on Germantown Family's returns." (Id.)
- "Dr. Laurence caused the preparation and filing of federal tax returns for Germantown Family for tax years 2002 through 2007, which reported these false deductions and substantially under-reported the total compensation he received. During the same period, Dr. Laurence did not file any returns or other documents which would have allowed the IRS to determine that Germantown Aesthetics even existed." (Id.)
- "Dr. Laurence also caused the preparation and filing of false individual federal income tax returns for tax years 2002 through 2007, which tracked the corporate returns by substantially under-reporting the total compensation he received from his medical practices." (Id.)
- "Dr. Laurence used the funds in the UBO account to pay personal expenses, such as vehicles, his home mortgage, and tuition for his children's schools." (Id.)
- "During the time period at issue . . . neither [the attorney] nor Dr. Laurence filed Forms 1065 for the UBOs or federal tax returns for any of the fictitious entities. Dr. Laurence was aware that he had a duty to file tax returns which contained accurate information and that the IRS was relying on the information in his corporate and personal returns when computing taxes due and owing. The total tax loss from Dr. Laurence's conduct was between approximately $195,000 and approximately $300,000." (Id. at 10.)

The Plea Agreement continues to describe how Dr. Laurence "took a number of steps to obstruct [the ensuing grand jury] investigation," and furthermore, how Dr. Laurence defied a court order compelling the production of materials requested in grand jury subpoenas. (Id. at 10-11.) In fact, "[o]n January 23, 2009, the Court issued an order finding Dr. Laurence in contempt of its . . . order to compel." (Id. at 11.) The Court imposed fines upon Dr. Laurence for his contemptuous behavior. (Id.)

Pursuant to the Plea Agreement, "[Dr. Laurence] agrees to pay restitution . . . in the amount of all taxes, interest, and penalties due and owing since 2003 . . . ." (Id. at 1.) In addition to restitution, Dr. Laurence faces an estimated eighteen (18) to thirty-six (36) months in prison, fines estimated between four thousand dollars ($4,000.00) and six hundred thousand dollars ($600,000.00), and one year of supervised release. (Id. at 12-13.) The parties, including Dr. Laurence, signed and filed the Plea Agreement on February 6, 2014. (Id. at 1, 14.) That same day, Senior District Judge John L. Kane accepted Dr. Laurence's plea and set sentencing for September 4, 2014. (Change in Plea Minutes at 1-2.)

Germantown Aesthetics, as identified in the Plea Agreement, is the entity used by Dr. Laurence to practice cosmetic medicine. Defendants note as much in their expert disclosure, by which they list: "Gregory Laurence, M.D., Germantown Aesthetics." (See Defs.' Ans. to Pl.'s Third Set of Discovery 37, July 22, 2013.) Dr. Laurence describes himself in his curriculum vitae as the Medical Director of Germantown Aesthetics. Similarly, Defendants' disclosure touts Dr. Laurence's obstetrical experience, and his curriculum vitae likewise lists a long association with Germantown Family Care and Obstetrics, the other medical practice described within the Plea Agreement.

There is no indication, based upon a review of readily and publicly-available licensure information from the Idaho or Tennessee Boards of Medicine, that Dr. Laurence reported any information pertaining to his plea in Colorado. (Exhibit D, Tennessee Department of Health Practitioner Profile Data; State of Idaho Board of Medicine Public Record Information Detail; Utah Division of Occupational and Professional Licensing Information.)

b. Evidence of Dr. Laurence's Plea, the Criminal Conduct Serving as the Basis for That Plea, and the Consequences of that Plea, is Admissible Under Idaho Rules of Evidence 608 and 609.

By their previous motion in limine on this topic, Defendants sought to preclude evidence of the government's charges against Dr. Laurence, arguing that because "[n]o trial date, plea or conviction of any kind has been entered against Dr. Laurence . . . any reference to Dr. Laurence's indictment at the trial would be unfairly prejudicial, irrelevant and arguably raise an appeal issue." (Defs.'s Mem. in Support of Mots. in Limine 8, Oct. 21, 2013.) Defendants also argued that evidence of Dr. Laurence's indictment is inadmissible under IRE 609 as "Dr. Laurence's indictment . . . is not a conviction of any kind." (Id. at 8-9.) This Court ultimately agreed.

Circumstances today, however, are vastly different. When the United States District Court for the District of Colorado accepted Dr. Laurence's guilty plea on February 6, 2014, any potential prejudice previously existing evaporated, and evidence pertaining to the guilty plea became admissible. Idaho Rule of Evidence 609 provides as follows:

> For the purposes of attacking the credibility of a witness, evidence of the fact that the witness has been convicted of a felony and the nature of the felony shall be admitted if elicited from the witness or established by public record, but only if the court determines in a hearing outside the presence of the jury that the fact of the prior conviction or the nature of the prior conviction, or both, are relevant to the credibility of the witness and that the probative value of admitting this evidence outweighs its prejudicial effect to the party offering the witness. If the evidence of the fact of a prior felony conviction, but not the nature of the conviction, is admitted for the purpose of impeachment of a party to the action or proceeding, the party shall have the option to present evidence of the nature of the conviction, but evidence of the circumstances of the conviction shall not be admissible.

In this case, there is no question that Dr. Laurence pleaded guilty to a federal felony offense directly implicating his credibility. Dr. Laurence, by his own admission, knowingly participated in a sophisticated, corrupt, criminal scheme designed to mislead the Internal Revenue Service, and consequently, to avoid paying personal and corporate taxes owed. This conduct, which took place over the course of years, stems directly from the very same medical practices Dr. Laurence operated in gathering the experience Defendants tout in attempting to qualify Dr. Laurence as an expert in this case.

Moreover, there is no question that the probative value of this evidence greatly outweighs any prejudicial effect that might befall Defendants. As mentioned below, Dr. Laurence serves in this case as a repetitive standard of care expert. Defendants have the option of calling Dr. Laurence, or not calling Dr. Laurence. Because Defendants enjoy such a choice, cries of weighty prejudice should be disregarded. If Defendants choose to put Dr. Laurence on the stand, Defendants will have, by necessity, decided that any purported prejudice is outweighed by other factors. In that case, Defendants will have, in essence, performed the Rule 609 balancing test for the Court, and Plaintiff must be allowed to confront Dr. Laurence in accordance with Rule 609's full operation.

The Rules of Evidence also provide that "[s]pecific instances of the conduct of a witness, for the purpose of attacking or supporting the credibility, of the witness, other than conviction of crime as provided in Rule 609, may not be proved by extrinsic evidence." I.R.E. 608(b). "They may, however, in the discretion of the court, if probative of truthfulness or untruthfulness, be inquired into on cross-examination of the witness concerning . . . the character of the witness for truthfulness or untruthfulness . . . ." Id.

And "[a]lthough the Idaho Rules of Evidence do not specifically address impeachment of witnesses by evidence of bias, the right to do so is unquestionable." D. Craig Lewis, Idaho Trial Handbook 342 (2d ed. 2005). The reason for this is simple: "Proof of bias is almost always relevant because the jury, as finder of fact and weigher of credibility, has historically been entitled to assess all evidence which might bear on the accuracy and truth of a witness' testimony." State v. Thumm, 153 Idaho 533, 540, 285 P.3d 348, 355 (Ct. App. 2012) (quoting U.S. v. Abel, 469 U.S. 45, 52, 105 S.Ct. 465, 469 (1984)) (emphasis added). For this reason, because "[i]t would not be unusual for a medical expert to have a bias in favor of the party who is paying his expert witness fee . . . cross-examination as to who is paying for the expert is almost always allowed when the expert is testifying." Poss v. Meeker Mach. Shop, 109 Idaho 920, 925, 712 P.2d 621, 626 (1985).

Ultimately, the scope of cross-examination rests in the Court's discretion. Quick v. Crane, 111 Idaho 759, 727 P.2d 1187 (1986); State v. Wheeler, 109 Idaho 795, 711 P.2d 741 (Ct.App.1985). That being said, "[o]ur system of dispute resolution permits and encourages challenges to the credentials and opinions of an opponent's experts." Harmston v. Agro-W., Inc., 111 Idaho 814, 820, 727 P.2d 1242, 1248 (Ct. App. 1986) (citing State v. Cypher, 92 Idaho 159, 438 P.2d 904 (1968) and State v. Linebarger, 71 Idaho 255, 232 P.2d 669 (1951)).

A recent Idaho Court of Appeals opinion discusses the distinction between IRE 609 and 608(b) and the broad discretion of a trial judge to permit evidence of a witness's character for truthfulness under I.R.E. 608(b) -- which discretion should be exercised in this case to permit evidence of Dr. Laurence's untruthful character. In State v. Bergerud, the trial court precluded the defendant from impeaching a witness on cross-examination based upon that witness's conviction of a misdemeanor for lying to police. 155 Idaho 705, 316 P.3d 117 (Ct. App. 2013). The trial court held that such impeachment was not permissible under IRE 608 and 609, which the trial court held applies only to felonies. 155 Idaho at ---, 316 P.3d at 122. On appeal, the Idaho Court of Appeals held that the trial court erred in not separately considering the admissibility of such evidence under IRE 608(b) and acknowledged the discretion of a trial judge to permit such evidence. Id.

As noted by the Court in Bergerud, "although Rule 608(b) prohibits extrinsic evidence of a witness's past conduct to attack credibility, it expressly allows cross-examination of the witness concerning instances of the witness's conduct if it is probative of the witness's truthfulness." Id. (italics and footnote omitted) (citing State v. Araiza, 124 Idaho 82, 90, 856 P.2d 872, 880 (1993); State v. Guinn, 114 Idaho 30, 38, 752 P.2d 632, 640 (Ct.App.1988)). With respect to whether the misdemeanor conduct was relevant, the Court further held that "[m]aking a false statement to a law enforcement officer, like perjury, is an act that is intimately connected to credibility. In fact, it is itself a crime." 155 Idaho at ---, 316 P.3d at 124 (citing I.C. § 18–705). "It not only indicates a willingness to be dishonest when it serves one's own interest, but a willingness to defy authority and break the law when doing so." Id.

The conduct admitted by Dr. Laurence in the subject Plea Agreement is far more egregious than the conduct at issue in Bergerud. That conduct certainly reveals Dr. Laurence's willingness to be dishonest when it serves his interests, as it demonstrates Dr. Laurence's willingness to defy authority and break the law. After all, Dr. Laurence pleaded guilty to 1) acting with the purpose to obstruct or impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue Laws; 2) performing acts that had a reasonable tendency to obstruct or impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws; 3) doing so knowingly; and 4) acting corruptly, that is, with the purpose to obtain an unlawful benefit for himself or someone else. Of additional, and considerable, significance is the fact that Dr. Laurence's criminal conduct stems directly from the medical practices upon which he relies in providing qualified expert testimony in this case.

Furthermore, the conduct described in Dr. Laurence's Plea Agreement demonstrates his contempt and disdain for the legal process in refusing to comply with the District Court's order that he produce grand jury materials directed at his medical and cosmetic medicine practice. If Dr. Laurence refused to honor subpoenas and court orders specifically directed at him and his medical practices, how can it be assumed that he complied with the legal requirements associated with rendering testimony in this case, including the requirement that he adequately familiarize himself with the local standard of care? Again, Dr. Laurence's admitted conduct demonstrates a willingness to defy authority and break the law, particularly when it serves his own self-interest. Accordingly, Plaintiff should be permitted to inquire of Dr. Laurence regarding this contempt of the legal process, which is probative of his character for truthfulness under IRE 608(b).

Additionally, Dr. Laurence's character for untruthfulness exists through his medical licensure, including in Idaho, where he is now licensed. Dr. Laurence testified at his deposition that he had not informed any of the three states where he is licensed, including Idaho, of his pending felony charges. (Laurence Dep. 168:17 – 169:9, Oct. 2, 2013.) In Idaho, a physician is required to report not only a felony conviction but the "commission of any act constituting a felony." Idaho Code § 54-1814(1) (licensed physician required to report conviction of a felony); Idaho Code § 54-1814(21) (licensed physician required to report commission of an act constituting a felony or crime of moral turpitude). In addition, a physician in Idaho, upon renewal of his medical license, is required to report, among other matters, whether they have been "charged with or convicted of a felony...." (See Exhibit O to Aff. of Counsel in Support of Pl.'s Resp. to Defs.' Mots. in Limine, Oct. 29, 2013 (State of Idaho, Board of Medicine, Physician and Surgeon License Renewal Application Form).)

Notwithstanding the foregoing, it appears Dr. Laurence never reported his Indictment to the appropriate regulatory boards. It also appears that, to date, Dr. Laurence has likewise failed to advise these boards of his guilty plea. This information is probative of his character for truthfulness, and thus, it is admissible. Independent of this analysis, however, once Dr. Laurence entered his guilty plea, application of Rules 608 and 609 renders the subject evidence admissible in any event.

Dr. Laurence is a redundant defense expert on the issue of standard of care. Defendants have identified two other physicians they intend to call to address the standard of care, one from Idaho, and another from Spokane who also maintains a practice in Coeur d'Alene. The notion that Defendants will suffer prejudice by Plaintiff's cross-examination of Dr. Laurence is unavailing. It is Defendants who failed to adequately vet this expert, and who were surprised when they learned for the first time of Dr. Laurence's indictment at deposition. Plaintiff should neither be faulted, nor disadvantaged, simply because Defendants were unaware of Dr. Laurence's criminal issues, or because Dr. Laurence chose to conceal the subject information from defense counsel. In fact, it is Mr. Ballard who will be unfairly prejudiced unless he is allowed a full and fair opportunity to cross-examine this expert -- a process our system of justice both permits and encourages.

c. The Significant Consequences and Penalties Facing Dr. Laurence Are Admissible.

With his guilty plea, Dr. Laurence faces the very real potential of years of imprisonment, significant fines, and a weighty restitution obligation. Dr. Laurence also faces dramatic penalties with regard to his medical licensures in Tennessee, Idaho, and Utah. See Tennessee Code § 63-6-214(a)(10) (grounds for medical license revocation include conviction of a felony); Idaho Code § 54-1814(1) (same). Committing acts constituting a felony is likewise grounds for discipline and a physician is required to report such conduct. Idaho Code § 54-1814(21).

The foregoing, looming consequences and termination of his income stream provide Dr.

Laurence with a strong motive to work with Defendants and express a favorable opinion that will result in additional, lucrative expert witness work. As such, these charges and myriad of consequences are probative and admissible to show motive. IRE 404(b) (evidence of other crimes, wrongs or acts may be admissible to show motive). In addition, such evidence is admissible to show bias on the part of Dr. Laurence. State v. Araiza, 124 Idaho 82, 91, 856 P.2d 872, 881 (1993) ("[T]he bias, prejudice, or motive of a witness to lie concerning issues presented in a trial is always material and relevant to effective cross-examination."); see also Cosgrove By and Through Winfree v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 117 Idaho 470, 476-77, 788 P.2d 1293, 1299-1300 (1989) (discussing impeachment of expert by evidence of amount earned testifying in court).

d. Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, evidence of Dr. Laurence's federal felony guilty plea, the potential consequences of that plea, and the admitted facts underlying that plea, should be admitted.

XVII. DEFENDANTS SHOULD BE PRECLUDED FROM ELICITING RESPONSES FROM WITNESSES OR JURORS THAT VOUCH FOR THE CREDIBILITY OF ONE OF THEIR RETAINED EXPERTS.

During the first trial of this matter, Defendants' counsel inquired of a prospective juror and Plaintiff's expert, Dr. Sorenson, about Defendant's retained expert, Dr. Thomas Coffman.[1] Defendants asked questions of this juror and of Dr. Sorenson, with the intention of bolstering the credibility of Dr. Coffman. Such questioning, and such testimony, must be precluded moving forward, as any such testimony invades the province of the jury.

"[A]n expert witness may provide an opinion '[i]f scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge will assist the trier of fact to understand the evidence or to determine a fact in issue.'" Hansen v. Roberts, 154 Idaho 469, 299 P.3d 781, 786 (2013) (quoting Idaho R. Evid. 702). "Therefore, after the court qualifies a witness as an expert, it "must determine whether such expert opinion testimony will assist the trier of fact in understanding the evidence." Id. (citing State v. Pearce, 146 Idaho 241, 246, 192 P.3d 1065, 1070 (2008)). "Pursuant to I.R.E. 704, an expert's testimony is not inadmissible merely because it embraces an ultimate issue to be decided in the case; however, '[e]xpert testimony that concerns conclusions or opinions that the average juror is qualified to draw from the facts utilizing the juror's common sense and normal experience is inadmissible.'" Id. (quoting State v. Ellington, 151 Idaho 53, 66, 253 P.3d 727, 740 (2011)). "[E]vidence is generally inadmissible under I.R.E. 702 if it vouches for the credibility of another witness." Id. (citing State v. Perry, 139 Idaho 520, 525, 81 P.3d 1230, 1235 (2003)).

None of the jurors, lay witnesses, or experts in this case should be offering testimony designed to bolster an expert witness's credibility in the eyes of the jury. Members of the jury will be well-qualified, based upon common sense and normal experience, to make determinations of expert witness credibility. Accordingly, counsel should be precluded from eliciting, and experts should be precluded from offering, testimony that vouches for, or otherwise bolsters, the credibility of any other witness.

EXHIBIT A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO

Criminal Case No. 13-cr-00-193 JLK

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

1. EVA MELISSA SUGAR,
2. JERRY LYNN ROBERTS, and
3. GREGORY NATHAN LAURENCE

Defendants.

INDICTMENT
18 U.S.C. § 371
26 U.S.C. § 7212(a)
18 U.S.C. § 2
26 U.S.C. § 7203
18 U.S.C. § 1503

The Grand Jury charges:

COUNT 1
EVA MELISSSA SUGAR
(18 U.S.C. § 371 - Conspiracy to Defraud the United States)

THE CONSPIRACY

1. From on or about sometime in 1999, the exact date being unknown to the Grand Jury, and continuing through on or about April 2008, in the State and District of Colorado, defendant SUGAR did unlawfully, voluntarily, intentionally, and knowingly conspire, combine, confederate, and agree together and with J.L., M.D.B., J.D., and other individuals both known and unknown to the Grand Jury to defraud the United States for the purpose of impeding, impairing, obstructing, and defeating the lawful Government functions of the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") of the Treasury Department in the ascertainment, computation, assessment, and collection of the revenue, namely income, employment, and other federal taxes.

THE PERSONS

At various times relevant to this Indictment:

2. J.L. was a resident of Georgia who operated Financial Fortress Associates, or a variation of that name (hereinafter "FFA"), an organization that promoted and advised its clients on schemes to avoid the payment of income and other federal taxes.

3. Defendant EVA MELISSA SUGAR, also known as Melissa Sugar, was a resident of Aurora, Colorado, and was self-employed as an attorney specializing in tax and other legal matters in Denver, Colorado. SUGAR worked with FFA clients to execute the schemes FFA promoted.

4. M.D.B. was a resident of Florida and worked as a promoter for FFA.

5. J.D. was a resident of Georgia and worked with FFA to execute the FFA schemes.

MANNER AND MEANS OF THE CONSPIRACY

6. The conspiracy was carried out using the following manner and means, which created interdependency among the conspirators:

a. J.L. and M.D.B, with others, operated FFA. FFA promoted Pure Trust Organizations ("PTO") and "private banking" using so-called Banking Unincorporated Business Organizations ("BUBO") as vehicles to conceal business and personal income and asset ownership and, thereby, to avoid paying income, employment, and other federal taxes to the IRS. FFA held seminars and workshops around the country to promote its schemes, which individuals paid to attend. SUGAR occasionally attended and spoke at FFA seminars. At those seminars, FFA's promoters explained the schemes and provided referrals to their co-conspirators, including SUGAR, who charged fees to execute the schemes for FFA clients.

b. As part of the FFA schemes, SUGAR or others established one or more Unincorporated Business Organization(s) ("UBO") for each client and applied for an IRS-issued Employee Identification Number ("EIN") for those UBOs. Each UBO was named as a "management" company, i.e. "X Management." For each UBO, SUGAR opened a corresponding bank account for a "BUBO" with the same name as the UBO. The bank account for each BUBO was set up to accept deposits by at least one named fictitious entity, which the co-conspirators generally described as a "trust" or PTO. FFA conspirators, including J.D., set up these trusts for the FFA clients.

c. FFA clients used the fictitious trust entities as companies "doing business as" the management company for which the BUBO bank account was established. The entities, however, existed in name only. Generally, the FFA client either (1) caused receipts from a legitimate business to be paid to one of the fictitious entities, diverting the income to the BUBO bank account and thereby understating the business's gross receipts, or (2) made payments to one of the fictitious entities and deducted the payments as expenses for the FFA client's legitimate business, thereby decreasing the business's income.

d. SUGAR and the FFA client then caused funds from the BUBO account to be (1) paid directly back to the FFA client, (2) used to pay the FFA clients' personal expenses, (3) used for personal purchases, such as for cars or vacation homes, or (4) transferred offshore or to a warehouse bank set up to disguise the ownership and source of the funds.

e. Another variation of FFA's program involved placing assets into the names of the fictitious entities that used the bank account to conceal the proceeds of the sale of those assets. As noted, conspirators frequently established the entities as "trusts," with one of the promoters, such as J.L. or M.D.B., named as trustee. When the FFA client sold the assets, the buyer would issue a check to the trust, which then deposited the check into the BUBO bank account. The FFA client would then use the funds as discussed in subparagraph 6(d) above.

f. SUGAR provided various services to her clients, which as described, included establishing UBOs, applying for EINs for the UBOs, and opening associated BUBO bank accounts that her clients used to conceal assets and income and to avoid paying taxes to the IRS. SUGAR generally was the trustee for the UBOs and had signatory authority for the bank accounts. If her client also wanted signatory authority for the BUBO bank accounts, SUGAR would list the client as an "administrative assistant," "Managing Director," or some other officer or employee of the fictitious trust entity or UBO/BUBO.

g. Often, however, to prevent the client's name from association with the BUBO account, SUGAR and the client would identify a third party, such as a family member, as the administrative assistant or other position for the fictitious trust entity or UBO/BUBO. That person would be given signatory authority for the BUBO bank account. These individuals exercised no authority or control over the UBO/BUBO, the fictitious trust entity, or the assets thereof. So that they could use the BUBO bank account without involvement by the third party, SUGAR and her clients had signature stamps created for these individuals.

h. With the BUBO bank accounts established, SUGAR then conducted transactions for her clients using those accounts, including for example, signing blank checks or authorizing wire transactions for her clients' use as described in subparagraph 6(d), endorsing checks for deposit, and withdrawing cash.

i. SUGAR charged her clients fees for her services, including annual maintenance fees and fees on a per-service basis, such as for signing checks or authorizing a wire transfer.

j. The FFA client and owner of the UBO/BUBO would not file federal tax returns for the UBO/BUBO or the fictitious entities, despite legal filing requirements. Indeed, because the UBOs did not file federal income tax returns and all of the bank accounts established for the BUBOs were non-interest-bearing accounts; the IRS was unaware of the use and operation of the BUBO accounts and entities. Only the request and receipt of the EIN would indicate to the Government that the UBO/BUBO ever existed.

OVERT ACTS IN FURTHERANCE OF THE CONSPIRACY

7. In furtherance of the conspiracy and to effect the objects thereof, the following overt acts were committed in the District of Colorado and elsewhere:

a. On or about November 23, 1999, SUGAR applied to the IRS for EINs in the names of Streamside Management, Northside Management, Maple Leaf Management, Oxford Management, Cascade Management, Management Unlimited, Eastside Management, and Avon Management.

b. On or about on February 9, 2001, SUGAR opened a bank account at Compass Bank, formerly known as FirsTier Bank, in the name of Streamside Management, with SUGAR and ROBERTS'S then minor son as signatories.

c. On or about August 15, 2002, at the request of her client, L.S., SUGAR wrote out and signed a check from a Bank of Denver account for Garnet Management to Bexar Technologies in the amount of $21,000.

d. On or about September 23, 2002, SUGAR sent an e-mail to her client, Gregory Laurence, instructing him that SUGAR alone must sign all endorsements on checks deposited into and all checks written from Laurence's BUBO bank accounts, unless Laurence or his wife were willing to provide their identification and social security numbers to the bank.

e. On or about March 26, 2004, SUGAR transferred the bank account for Triumph Management from Liberty Savings Bank to Compass Bank.

f. On or about between June 16, 2006, and June 23, 2006, SUGAR signed 504 blank checks for Best for Hearing Limited Partnership, an UBO she established for client E.B.

g. On or about May 14, 2007, SUGAR authorized the wire transfer of $213,500 from the Compass Bank account for Aquarius Management for her client J.K.

h. On or about May 25, 2007, SUGAR caused $1,091,348.48 to be wired from Northside Management's Compass Bank account to Surety Title Agency for her client J.S.'s purchase of a vacation home.

i. On or about July 5, 2007, SUGAR transferred $200 from Best for Hearing Limited's Compass Bank account to her own bank account as payment for services rendered in relation to that entity for her client E.B.

j. On or about January 15, 2008, SUGAR deposited or caused to be deposited into her personal account a Postal Money Order for $457 from Reef Management.

k. On or about November 7, 2007, SUGAR wrote and cashed seven checks from the BUBO accounts at Compass Bank for her client Gregory Laurence.

l. On or about April 24, 2008, SUGAR cashed a negotiable instrument for $13,776 from the Compass Bank account for Palm Tree Management.

The foregoing was in violation of Title 18, United State Code, Section 371.

EVA MELISSA SUGAR AND JERRY ROBERTS
(26 U.S.C. § 7212(a) and 18 U.S.C. § 2 – Corrupt Endeavor to Obstruct or Impede Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws and Aiding and Abetting)

8. The Grand Jury realleges and incorporates paragraph three herein.

9. At all times relevant to the indictment, ROBERTS was a resident of Florida. ROBERTS worked for Roberts Enterprises, a family-owned fundraising business.

10. Beginning on or about November 23, 1999, and continuing through on or about April 2008, in the State and District of Colorado and elsewhere, the defendants SUGAR and ROBERTS, aiding and abetting each other, did corruptly endeavor to obstruct and impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws by the following means, among others:

a. ROBERTS paid SUGAR to set up UBOs, associated BUBO bank accounts, and nominee fictitious trust accounts as depositors for the bank accounts. Specifically, SUGAR established Streamside Management, Triumph Management, and Universal Management, each with an associated bank account and several associated fictitious trust entities.

b. SUGAR and ROBERTS identified other individuals, including ROBERTS'S family members, as "managers," "administrative assistants," or other positions for the various management companies and trust entities. These individuals exercised no control over the entities or the assets held in the associated bank accounts. For example, when SUGAR and ROBERTS first opened the BUBO bank accounts, ROBERTS caused his then minor son to be identified as the Administrative Assistant for the fictitious trust entities associated with each management company. ROBERTS'S son also had signatory authority at various times for each of the three management companies. ROBERTS used his son to cash checks drawn from the BUBO bank accounts.

c. SUGAR and ROBERTS caused signature stamps to be created for the third-party signatories on the BUBO bank accounts and authorized facsimile signatures for those individuals.

d. SUGAR also identified herself as the "Managing Director" for the fictitious trust entities with signatory authority for each of the BUBO bank accounts. SUGAR and the third parties were the only individuals with signatory authority for the bank accounts ROBERTS ultimately controlled.

e. ROBERTS used the fictitious trust entities and management companies, along with SUGAR's services, to disguise income paid to him by Roberts Enterprises.

f. ROBERTS used the funds in the BUBO bank accounts to pay for personal expenses, such as credit card payments, mortgage payments, utility and telephone bills, and for cash.

g. During the time period at issue, from November 1999 through April 2008: (i) ROBERTS did not file individual federal income tax returns for calendar years

2000 through 2007; (ii) neither ROBERTS nor SUGAR filed Forms 1065 for Streamside Management, Triumph Management, or Universal Management; and (iii) ROBERTS and SUGAR did not file federal tax returns for any of the fictitious entities.

The foregoing was in violation of Title 26, United State Code, Section 7212(a).

COUNT 3
EVA MELISSA SUGAR
(26 U.S.C. § 7203 – Failure to File Tax Return)

11. During the calendar year 2007, defendant SUGAR, who was a resident of Aurora, Colorado, was self-employed as an attorney in Denver, Colorado. During that year, SUGAR earned income in excess of $8,750, which income required that SUGAR file a federal income tax return on or before April 15, 2008, to any proper officer of the Internal Revenue Service. Defendant SUGAR, well knowing and believing all of the foregoing, knowingly failed to file any return on that income.

The foregoing was in violation of 26, United States Code, Section 7203.

JERRY ROBERTS
(18 U.S.C. § 1503 – Obstruction of Justice)

12. Beginning on or about May 2, 2008, and continuing thereafter up to and including on or about July 22, 2008, in the State and District of Colorado and elsewhere, ROBERTS corruptly endeavored to influence, obstruct, and impede the due administration of justice, in that, after contact by Internal Revenue Service criminal investigators and the service of Grand Jury subpoenas relating to Streamside Management, Triumph Management, Universal Management, and Roberts Enterprises,

ROBERTS committed the following acts:

a. ROBERTS signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more Special Agents of the IRS a letter that stated "COMPLIANCE HEREWITH IS MANDATORY." The letter enclosed a "Public Service Questionnaire," which demanded the Special Agent's personal information. The questionnaire stated that failure to advise ROBERTS before releasing information regarding him to any person may subject the Special Agents to civil or criminal action.

b. ROBERTS signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more IRS Special Agents a "Notice of Default" claiming the Special Agent had failed to complete the "Public Service Questionnaire" and asserting, among other things, that that failure to respond will result in the Special Agent's agreement to "Commercial Dishonor," that "a Default" be entered against the Special Agent, and to "being a participant in Fraud." The letter also asserted that failure of a foreign agent to mail a certified copy of a "Foreign Agents Registration Statement" with photo identification to ROBERTS "may result in a claim not to exceed One Million Dollars."

c. ROBERTS signed an "Affidavit of Public Notice" and recorded or caused to be recorded with the Polk County Clerk of the Court documents including (i) copies of the "Public Service Questionnaire" and "Notice of Default" mentioned in subparagraphs 12(a) and (b), and (ii) "Disclosure Statements" for IRS Special Agents stating that failure to complete a "Public Servant's Questionnaire" and provide "verified Proof of Claim" would be accepted as the Special Agents' "agreement that a Default be entered against you for Two Hundred Thousands [sic] Dollar and no cent[USD]."

d. ROBERTS mailed or caused to be mailed to one or more IRS Special Agents the recorded documents identified in subparagraph 12(c).

The foregoing was in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1503.

14. At all times relevant to the indictment, Gregory LAURENCE was a resident of Tennessee. LAURENCE was a doctor who operated two businesses, Germantown Aesthetics, LP ("GA") and Germantown Family Care & Obstetrics, LP ("GFCO").

15. Beginning on or about January 4, 2002, and continuing through on or about October 2008, in the State and District of Colorado and elsewhere, the defendants SUGAR and LAURENCE, aiding and abetting each other, did corruptly endeavor to obstruct and impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws by the following means, among others:

a. LAURENCE paid SUGAR to set up UBOs, associated BUBO bank accounts, and nominee fictitious trust accounts as depositors for the bank accounts. Specifically, SUGAR established Jasper Management, Amethyst Management, Capricorn Management, Diamond Management, Emerald Management, Moonstone Management, Pearl Management, Sagittarius Management, and Sapphire Management, each associated with its own fictitious trust entity.

b. LAURENCE caused his wife to be identified as "Assistant Administrator" with signatory authority for the Jasper Management, Emerald Management, Moonstone Management, and Pearl Management bank accounts with authority to use a facsimile signature. SUGAR identified herself as the "Managing Director" for the fictitious trust entities with signatory authority for each of the BUBO bank accounts.

c. SUGAR and LAURENCE'S wife were the only individuals with signatory authority for the bank accounts LAURENCE ultimately controlled. LAURENCE himself was not named in any position for the numerous entities SUGAR and LAURENCE established.

d. SUGAR and LAURENCE caused signature stamps to be created for LAURENCE'S wife and authorized facsimile signatures for the BUBO bank accounts for which she had signatory authority.

e. LAURENCE caused GFCO to issue checks payable to the fictitious trust entities associated with his BUBO bank accounts to make a portion of GFCO's business income appear as legitimate deductions and costs of goods sold, thereby reducing GFCO's taxable income. LAURENCE also caused the GFCO partnership federal income tax returns prepared for calendar years 2002 through 2007 to report those sums as deductions.

f. LAURENCE used the management companies, fictitious trust entities, and SUGAR's services to disguise the existence of GA. LAURENCE did not file federal income tax returns for GA for calendar years 2002 through 2007.

g. LAURENCE used fictitious trust entity Dynamic Health Care Staffing and Jasper Management, along with SUGAR's services, to pay himself and employees of GA and GFCO as "independent contractors" and to avoid paying federal employment taxes. LAURENCE did not issue those employees IRS Forms 1099.

h. Laurence used the funds in the BUBO bank accounts to pay for items including expenses associated with his businesses, school tuition for his children, cars, and credit card payments.

i. During the time period at issue, from January 2002 through April 2008, neither SUGAR nor LAURENCE filed Forms 1065 for the UBO management companies or federal tax returns for any of the fictitious entities.

The foregoing was in violation of Title 26, United State Code, Section 7212(a).

a. LAURENCE signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more

b. LAURENCE signed and sent or caused to be sent to one or more IRS Special Agents a "Notice of Default and Dishonor of a Lawful Public Servant Questionnaire."

c. LAURENCE failed to comply with Orders to Compel production of the subpoenaed records issued by the United States District Court for the District of Colorado on November 17 and December 8, 2008.

Attorneys for the United States

EXHIBIT B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLORADO

Criminal Case No. 13-cr-00193-JLK-03

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

v.

3. GREGORY NATHAN LAURENCE,

Defendant.

PLEA AGREEMENT

The United States of America, by and through Matthew T. Kirsch and Anna K. Edgar, Assistant United States Attorneys for the District of Colorado, and the Defendant, Gregory Nathan Laurence, personally and by counsel, W. Hickman Ewing, Jr., hereby submit the following Plea Agreement and Statement of Facts Relevant to Sentencing pursuant to D.C.COLO.LCrR 11.1.

I. PLEA AGREEMENT

The defendant agrees to plead guilty to the violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7212(a), Corruptly Endeavoring to Impede the Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws, charged in Count 5 of the Indictment.

The defendant agrees to pay restitution to the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") in the amount of all taxes, interest, and penalties due and owing since 2003, including all taxes, penalties, and interest on the tax due and owing in an amount to be determined by the Court at sentencing. The defendant agrees this restitution amount results from his conduct as described in Count 5, as well as any relevant conduct as determined by the Court at the time of sentencing. The defendant agrees that he will sign any IRS forms deemed necessary by the IRS to enable the IRS to make an immediate assessment of the tax and interest that he agrees to pay as restitution. The defendant agrees not to file any claim for refund of taxes or interest represented by any amount of restitution paid pursuant to this agreement.

COURT EXHIBIT

The government agrees that the defendant's restitution amount should be reduced by the amount of any payments already made by the defendant on his outstanding tax obligations from conduct relevant to this plea before the time of sentencing.

The defendant agrees that nothing in this agreement shall limit the IRS in its lawful examination, determination, assessment, or collection of any taxes, penalties or interest due from the defendant for the time period covered by this agreement or any other time period, and he agrees that this agreement, or any judgment, order, release, or satisfaction issued in connection with this agreement, will not satisfy, settle, or compromise the defendant's obligation to pay the balance of any remaining civil liabilities, including tax, additional tax, additions to tax, interest, and penalties, owed to the IRS for the time period covered by this agreement or any other time period. The defendant also agrees to file complete and accurate tax returns for any outstanding tax years.

Provided the defendant does nothing inconsistent with accepting responsibility between the date of his plea and the date of sentencing, the government will recommend that the defendant receive the maximum reduction for acceptance of responsibility.

The defendant agrees to cooperate fully, honestly, without reservation, and affirmatively with the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Colorado (the "government") and with any other federal, state, or local governmental department or agency designated by the Government ("designated agency") relating to any matter being investigated by the government or a designated agency about which the defendant may possess knowledge, information, or materials.

The defendant agrees that his continuing cooperation with the government described above includes, but is not limited to, the following:

a. Completely and truthfully disclosing all information and materials in his possession to the government that the government or its designated agency may request;

b. Affirmatively and immediately providing to the government any information and materials that comes to the defendant's attention that may be relevant to any governmental investigation;

c. Assembling, organizing, and providing, in a responsive and prompt fashion, all information and materials in his possession, custody, or control as may be requested by the government; and

d. Providing information and materials and testifying as requested by the government, including sworn testimony before a grand jury or in any judicial proceeding and interviews with the government and designated agencies.

The government agrees that any information and testimony given by the defendant pursuant to this agreement will not be used against him, either directly or indirectly, in any criminal case except for prosecutions for perjury, making a false statement, or obstruction of justice, or for impeachment. Information and testimony will not be used against the defendant pursuant to Section 1B1.8 of the Sentencing Guidelines. Any information and testimony relating to the defendant's involvement in crimes of violence, as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 16, is excluded from this agreement.

The defendant agrees that if the government can show that he lied or attempted to mislead the government or law enforcement authorities, or if he does not fulfill the terms of or does not complete his cooperation under this agreement, then any information or testimony which he has given in connection with this case can be used in any prosecution against him, notwithstanding the provisions above. If the government alleges such conduct, it will have the burden of establishing the alleged conduct at a separate hearing by a preponderance of the evidence.

Provided that the defendant continues to fully and truthfully cooperate with the government as described above, as determined in the government's sole discretion, the government agrees that it will consider filing, before or at the time of the defendant's sentencing, a motion for downward departure, pursuant to Section 5K1.1 of the Sentencing Guidelines and Title 18, United States Code, Section 3553(e). The parties agree and understand that the government is not yet in a position to determine whether such a motion would be appropriate. Regardless of whether the government files a Section 5K1.1 motion, it agrees to make known to the Court the nature and extent of the defendant's cooperation.

The government further agrees to consider whether a sentence below the statutory maximum would be reasonable under applicable law and whether to recommend such a sentence, including a variant sentence to account for the defendant's civil contempt penalties imposed during the investigation of this matter. The defendant is free to recommend to the sentencing court whatever he believes is the appropriate sentence.

Additionally, the government agrees to move to dismiss Count 6 of the Indictment at the time of sentencing.

This agreement is submitted to the Court for its consideration pursuant to Rule 11(c)(1)(A) and (B) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.

I. ELEMENTS OF THE OFFENSE(S)

In order to be convicted of a violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7212(a), the following elements would have to be proven by the government beyond a reasonable doubt:

First: the defendant acted with the purpose to obstruct or impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws, which includes the Internal Revenue Service's lawful functions to ascertain income, and to compute, assess, and collect income taxes;

Second: the defendant's acts had a reasonable tendency to obstruct or impede the due administration of the Internal Revenue laws;

Third: the defendant acted knowingly; and Fourth: the defendant acted corruptly, that is, with the purpose to obtain an unlawful benefit for himself or someone else.

Fed. Crim. Jury Instr. 7th Cir. 7212[1].

II. STATUTORY PENALTIES

The maximum statutory penalty for a violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7212(a) is as follows: not more than 36 months of imprisonment, a fine of not more than the greater of $250,000.00 or twice the gain or loss from the offense, or both; not more than 1 year of supervised release; a $100.00 special assessment fee; costs of prosecution; plus restitution as be determined by the Court. If probation or supervised release is imposed, a violation of any condition of probation or supervised release may result in a separate prison sentence and additional supervision.

III. COLLATERAL CONSEQUENCES

The conviction may further cause the loss of certain civil rights, including, but not limited to, the right to possess a firearm, vote, hold elected office, and sit on a jury.

IV. STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties agree that there is a factual basis for the guilty plea that the defendant will tender pursuant to this plea agreement. That basis is set forth below. Because the Court must, as part of its sentencing methodology, compute the advisory guideline range for the offense of conviction, consider relevant conduct, and consider the other factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553, additional facts may be included below which are pertinent to those considerations and computations. To the extent the parties disagree about the facts set forth below, the stipulation of facts identifies which facts are known to be in dispute at the time of the execution of the plea agreement.

This stipulation of facts does not preclude either party from hereafter presenting the Court with additional facts which do not contradict facts to which the parties have stipulated and which are relevant to the Court's guideline computations, to other 18 U.S.C. § 3553 factors, or to the Court's overall sentencing decision.

The parties agree that the date on which relevant conduct began was in June, 2002.

The parties agree that the government's evidence would be as follows:

At all relevant times, Defendant Gregory Nathan Laurence was a resident of Germantown, Tennessee. He practiced medicine through two entities in which he was the sole physician, Germantown Family Care and Obstetrics, LP and Germantown Aesthetics, LP. Beginning in approximately June, 2002, and continuing through at least the end of 2007, Dr. Laurence used the services of Melissa Sugar, an attorney in Denver, Colorado, as well as others associated with a group known as Financial Fortress Associates, among other things, to take steps to disguise his true income from the IRS and to support the false business and personal tax returns he filed during the relevant period.

Dr. Laurence paid Sugar for the use of various unincorporated business organizations ("UBOs"), including Jasper Management, Capricorn Management, Amethyst Management, Moonstone Management, Pearl Management, Diamond Management, Emerald Management, Sapphire Management, and Sagittarius Management. Sugar had previously created these UBOs and had applied to the IRS for Employee Identification Numbers ("EINs") for the UBOs. Dr. Laurence also paid Sugar to set up bank accounts for the UBOs at two different banks and to list sham trusts as depositors for the bank accounts. These trusts included Dynamic Health Care Staffing, Reliant Property Management Services, Professional Property Management Services, Superior Consulting Services, Physician Marketing Services, First Quality Medical Equipment and Supply, Midsouth Auto Leasing, Midsouth Home Solutions, and Asset Management Services. Dr. Laurence and Sugar opened the bank accounts for the UBOs using the UBO EINs in part so that Dr. Laurence's social security number would not be associated with the bank accounts.

Sugar had sole signatory authority over many of the UBO bank accounts established for Dr. Laurence. On other accounts, Dr. Laurence's wife was identified to the bank as an "Assistant Administrator" for the UBO and granted signatory authority, although she rarely if ever exercised that authority. Instead, Dr. Laurence paid Sugar to conduct bank transactions for the UBOs on his behalf.

Dr. Laurence took steps which purported to transfer ownership to the sham trusts of assets that he or his medical practices owned, such as his personal residence, his cars, the buildings where he conducted his practices, and the equipment used in those practices. He issued checks from his professional corporation to the fictitious trust entities for expenses such as rents and equipment leases. These checks were deposited into various UBO accounts. Dr. Laurence then treated these payments as legitimate deductions for business expenses to reduce the apparent profit generated by Germantown Family, thereby reducing its taxable income.

At FFA's suggestion, Dr. Laurence also avoided payroll taxes for Germantown Family and Germantown Aesthetics by stopping his previous practices of withholding and paying over payroll taxes and issuing his employees Forms W-2 each year. Instead, Dr. Laurence caused his employees to be paid their wages and other incentives, without any withholdings and as purported independent contractors, through Jasper Management. Between January 1, 2003, and April, 2007, Dr. Laurence deposited over $1.7 million into the Jasper account from his practices. He did not report the employees' receipt of those wages to the IRS in any form, but he did claim his payments as deductions for labor on Germantown Family's returns.

Dr. Laurence caused the preparation and filing of federal tax returns for Germantown Family for tax years 2002 through 2007, which reported these false deductions and substantially under-reported the total compensation he received. During the same period, Dr. Laurence did not file any returns or other documents which would have allowed the IRS to determine that Germantown Aesthetics even existed.

Dr. Laurence also caused the preparation and filing of false individual federal income tax returns for tax years 2002 through 2007, which tracked the corporate returns by substantially under-reporting the total compensation he received from his medical practices. Dr. Laurence used the funds in the UBO account to pay for personal expenses, such as vehicles, his home mortgage, and tuition for his children's schools.

During the time period at issue, from June, 2002, through April, 2008, neither Sugar nor Dr. Laurence filed Forms 1065 for the UBOs or federal tax returns for any of the fictitious entities. Dr. Laurence was aware that he had a duty to file tax returns which contained accurate information and that the IRS was relying on the information in his corporate and personal returns when computing taxes due and owing. The total tax loss from Dr. Laurence's conduct was between approximately $195,000 and approximately $300,000.

Dr. Laurence learned of the government's investigation of the activity described above in February, 2008, when IRS agents served him with grand jury subpoenas for records related to Germantown Family and Germantown Aesthetics. Dr. Laurence then took a number of steps to obstruct that investigation.

For example, on March 5, 2008, Dr. Laurence signed and sent a document to the Grand Jury enclosing "Public Servant Questionnaires," which demanded the personal information of IRS Special Agents. The questionnaire stated that failure to advise Dr. Laurence before releasing information regarding him to any person may subject the Special Agents to civil or criminal action. Dr. Laurence also enclosed "Disclosure Statements" directed to IRS Special Agents, which stated that the agents' failure to respond to the Public Servant Questionnaires would result in a $400,000 default judgment being entered against the agents.

Dr. Laurence was subsequently served with orders to compel the production of the material requested in the grand jury subpoenas. He responded to those orders by, among other things, sending correspondence to the U.S. Attorney's Office indicating that the Deputy United States Marshals who had served the orders were guilty of criminal trespass.

On January 23, 2009, this Court issued an order finding Dr. Laurence in contempt of its previous order to compel. On March 13, 2009, the Court found that Dr. Laurence had previously purged his contempt and imposed fines of $45,000 each on Germantown Family, Germantown Aesthetics, and Dr. Laurence, but suspended $40,000 of each of those fines.

V. SENTENCING COMPUTATION AND 3553 ADVISEMENT

The parties understand that the imposition of a sentence in this matter is governed by 18 U.S.C. § 3553. In determining the particular sentence to be imposed, the Court is required to consider seven factors. One of those factors is the sentencing range computed by the Court under advisory guidelines issued by the United States Sentencing Commission. In order to aid the Court in this regard, the parties set forth below their estimate of the advisory guideline range called for by the United States Sentencing Guidelines. To the extent that the parties disagree about the guideline computations, the recitation below identifies the matters which are in dispute.

A. The appropriate Guideline is §2T1.1. The base offense level is the level from §2T4.1 (Tax Table), either 16, corresponding to a tax loss of approximately $195,000, or 18, corresponding to a tax loss greater than $200,000. The defendant reserves the right to argue that the applicable guideline is §2T1.9, with a base offense level of either 16 or 18.

B. There is a 2-level increase because the offense involved sophisticated means. Id. §2T1.1(b)(2). The defendant reserves the right to challenge the applicability of this enhancement.

C. There are no victim-related or role-in-offense adjustments. There is a 2-level increase for obstruction of justice. Id. §3C1.1.

D. The adjusted offense level is between 18 and 22.

E. Pursuant to §3E1.1(a) and (b), the defendant should receive the full three-level reduction for acceptance of responsibility. The resulting offense level would be between 15 and 19.

F. The parties understand that the defendant's criminal history computation is tentative. The criminal history category is ultimately determined by the Court. The information known to the parties, however, shows that the defendant does not appear to have any prior criminal history. Accordingly, the defendant's criminal history category is estimated to be Category I.

G. Assuming the tentative criminal history facts above are accurate, the career offender/criminal livelihood/armed career criminal adjustments do not apply.

H. The guideline range resulting from the estimated offense levels above, and the tentative criminal history category above, is 18 to 24 months at a level 15 and 30-36 months at a level 19. However, in order to be as accurate as possible, with the criminal history category undetermined at this time, the estimated offense level could conceivably result in a range from 18 months (bottom of Category I, offense level 15) to 36 months (the statutory maximum). See id. §5G1.1(a).

I. Pursuant to guideline §5E1.2, assuming the estimated offense level above is accurate, the fine range for this offense would be between $4,000 to as much as approximately $400,000 at a level 15, or $6,000 to as much as approximately $600,000 at a level 19, plus applicable interest and penalties.

J. Pursuant to §5D1.2, if the Court imposes a term of supervised release, that term shall be 1 year.

K. Restitution will be determined by the Court at the time of sentencing.

The parties understand that although the Court will consider the parties' estimate, the Court must make its own determination of the guideline range. In doing so, the Court is not bound by the position of any party.

No estimate by the parties regarding the guideline range precludes either party from asking the Court, within the overall context of the guidelines, to depart from that range at sentencing if that party believes that a departure is specifically authorized by the guidelines or that there exists an aggravating or mitigating circumstance of a kind, or to a degree, not adequately taken into consideration by the United States Sentencing Commission in formulating the advisory guidelines. Similarly, no estimate by the parties regarding the guideline range precludes either party from asking the Court to vary entirely from the advisory guidelines and to impose a non-guideline sentence based on other 18 U.S.C. § 3553 factors.

VI. ENTIRE AGREEMENT

This document states the parties' entire agreement. There are no other promises, agreements (or "side agreements"), terms, conditions, understandings, or assurances, express or implied. In entering this agreement, neither the government nor the defendant has relied, or is relying, on any terms, promises, conditions, or assurances not expressly stated in this agreement.

LIABBILITY CLAIMS

Some studies have shown that there is no significant correlation between malpractice history and a doctor's competence. At the same time, the Legislature believes that consumers should have access to malpractice information. In these profiles, the Department has given you information about both the malpractice history of the physician's specialty and the physician's history of payments. The Legislature has placed payment amounts into three statistical categories: below average, average, and above average. To make the best health care decisions, you should view this information in perspective.You could miss an opportunity for high quality care by selecting a doctor based solely on malpractice history.

When considering malpractice data, please keep in mind:

- Malpractice histories tend to vary by specialty. Some specialties are more likely than others to be the subject of litigation. This report compares doctors only to the members of their specialty, not to all doctors, in order to make individual doctor's history more meaningful.
- The incident causing the malpractice claim may have happened years before a payment is finally made. Sometimes, it takes a long time for a malpractice lawsuit to move through the legal system.
- Some doctors work primarily with high risk patients. These doctors may have malpractice histories that are higher than average because they specialize in cases or patients who are at very high risk for problems.
- Settlement of a claim may occur for a variety of reasons which do not necessarily reflect negatively on the professional competence or conduct of the provider. A payment in settlement of a medical malpractice action or claim should not be construed as creating a presumption that medical malpractice has occurred.

You may wish to discuss information provided in this report, and malpractice generally, with your doctor. The Department can refer you to other articles on this subject.

The Health Department started getting reports for claims paid after May, 1998.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS' MOTIONS IN LIMINE

This is a medical malpractice case set for trial before this court on November 5, 2013. Pending before the court are the defense motions in limine. While most of the six defense motions in limine are self-explanatory, below is additional authority for consideration by the court in support of the defense motions.

1. Plaintiff Should Be Prohibited From Any Mention Of Liability Insurance.

Defendants move to prohibit Plaintiff Charles Ballard, his counsel, or any of his witnesses from in any way, directly or indirectly, mentioning to the jury, during either voir dire, Plaintiff's case in chief, cross-examination or rebuttal, or opening or closing statements, introducing evidence, submitting jury instructions, mentioning, or offering testimony or reports relating to the issue of Defendants' liability insurance.

Rule 402 of the Idaho Rules of Evidence (I.R.E.) prohibits a party from introducing any evidence that is not relevant. According to I.R.E. 401, relevant evidence "means evidence having any tendency to make the existence of any fact that is of consequence to the determination of the action more probably or less probable than it would be without the evidence." The disputed facts and issues in this matter relate to Plaintiff's allegations of medical malpractice. The Defendants' possession of liability insurance is not likely to make the existence of any fact needed for the determination of this claim more or less probable. Therefore, evidence of Defendants' insurance is not relevant to this case and Plaintiff should be barred from introducing it at trial.

In the alternative, if this Court finds that information regarding liability insurance is relevant, under I.R.E. 403, relevant evidence may be excluded if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice. In this case, any potential probative value of evidence regarding the Defendants' insurance coverage is substantially outweighed by the risk of unfair prejudice. Plaintiff can prove his claim for malpractice without a necessary reference to the Defendants' liability insurance. The prejudicial effect of an unnecessary reference to liability insurance, however, is substantial. Evidence of a party's insurance coverage is likely to be misused by the jury.

Under I.R.E. 411, "[e]vidence that a person was or was not insured against liability is not admissible upon the issue whether the person acted negligently or otherwise wrongfully." The Advisory Committee on the Federal Rules of Evidence explained that Rule 411 is based on "the feeling that knowledge of the presence or absence of liability insurance would induce juries to decide cases on improper grounds." Fed. R. Evid. 411 advisory committee's note (1972). Although evidence of liability insurance may be admissible for a limited purpose, none of the limited applications are appropriate for the case at bar. See I.R.E. 411. The mention of liability insurance will only put in the minds of the jury that Defendants are insured. See Lehmkuhl v. Bowland, 114 Idaho 503, 508; 757 P.2d 1222, 1227 (Ct. App. 1998) (review denied) (Idaho Rule of Evidence 411 may be utilized to assure that issues of liability based upon insurance are not introduced). Such an inference will unfairly and unnecessarily prejudice the jury to conclude that it will not be the Defendants' own personal money that would pay any potential verdict.

The decision whether to allow inquiries relating to insurance during voir dire is a matter within the trial court's discretion. See Harris v. Alessi, 141 Idaho 901, 907, 120 P.3d 289, 295 (Ct. App. 2005). However, "[t]he fact that this practice is not forbidden by Idaho law does not mean that a trial court must allow it. " Id. (citing Kozlowski v. Rush, 121 Idaho 825, 831, 828 P.2d 854, 860 (1992)). Here, there is no indication that allowing Plaintiff's counsel to make statements regarding liability insurance during voir dire will contribute to a purported aim of ferreting out juror bias. Any reference to liability insurance during voir dire will be highly prejudicial in that it will signal to the jury that the Defendants are insured.

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should enter an order prohibiting Plaintiff from discussing, in any way, the issue of Defendants' liability insurance.

2. Plaintiff Should Be Prohibited From Discussing The Issue Of Whether Any Defendant or Defense Expert Has Been Sued For Malpractice Or Has Any Prior Board Or Licensing Matters.

Defendants move to prohibit Plaintiff Charles Ballard, his counsel, or any of his witnesses from in any way, directly or indirectly, mentioning to the jury, during either voir dire, Plaintiff's case in chief, cross-examination or rebuttal, or opening or closing statements, introducing evidence, submitting jury instructions, mentioning, or offering testimony or reports relating to whether any Defendant or defense expert has been sued for malpractice or has been the subject of any prior administrative licensing matter. Information regarding any such issue is irrelevant and would be unfairly prejudicial to the Defendants.

Per I.R.E. 401, information regarding an expert's previous lawsuit history would be irrelevant and therefore under I.R.E. 402, inadmissible. The disputed facts and issues in this matter relate to Plaintiff's allegations of medical malpractice. Whether any of the defendants or defense experts have ever been sued for medical malpractice or have been involved in any board proceeding has no tendency to make the existence of facts related to Plaintiff's allegations of malpractice more or less probable. Therefore, information regarding previous lawsuits of any defense expert is irrelevant and is not admissible.

Even if this Court were to find information regarding any of the defense expert's medical malpractice lawsuits or prior board proceedings to somehow be relevant, its probative value is grossly outweighed by the risk of unfair prejudice to the Defendants and should be excluded under I.R.E 403. "It is well established that a trial court has considerable discretion to exclude evidence for reasons ... that the evidence is confusing, and could [be] interpreted in many different ways." Burgess v. Salmon River Canal Co., Ltd., 127 Idaho 565 574, 903 P.3d 730, 739 (1994). Any mention that a Defendant or defense expert has been sued or has been the subject of a prior board matter is unfairly prejudicial because such information could be interpreted by the jury in myriad ways which are not applicable to the case at bar. The raising of such a collateral issue by Plaintiffs' counsel will result in a protracted mini-trial on such issues which will only serve to confuse and distract the jury from the actual limited malpractice issues before them.

Attached to the affidavit of counsel in support of the Defendants' motions in Limine are the reported decisions from a number of other jurisdictions wherein the issue of using prior disciplinary matters and/or prior malpractice claims for impeachment purposes was held improper, see Noble v. Lansche, 735 S.W. 2d (Mo. Ct. App. 1987) (holding evidence that medical malpractice Plaintiff's expert witness physician had voluntarily surrendered his license to dispense narcotics was inadmissible impeachment); King v. Byrd, 716 So.2d 831, 835 (Fla. 4th DCA 1998) (error for trial court to allow defense counsel to cross examine plaintiff's expert witness with questions concerning past disciplinary proceedings since such questions are an improper attack on the witness' credibility); Heshelman v. Lombardi, 454 N.W. 2d 603 (Mich. Ct. App. 1990) (trial court abused discretion in allowing cross examination of medical expert regarding prior claims of malpractice as it is not probative of his truthfulness or competency and knowledge – such allegations of malpractice are analogous to unproven charges of criminal activity); Stickney v. Wesley Medical Center, 768 P.2d 253 (Kan. 1989) (affirming in part on grounds that plaintiff sought to improperly impeach defense medical expert with extrinsic evidence involving an unrelated lawsuit); Manhardt v. Tamton, 832 So.2d 129 (Fla. 2nd DCA 2002) (Plaintiff entitled to new trial, in part, after defense counsel improperly questioned plaintiff expert about prior lawsuits); Morrow v. Stivers, 836 S.W.2d 464 (Kent. Ct. App. (1992) (trial court properly precluded counsel from asking plaintiff medical expert on cross examination whether he had his license to practice medicine suspended for five years due to passing hepatitis to several patients, citing general rule that a witness cannot be cross examined on a collateral matter which is irrelevant to the issue at hand); Hathcock v. Wood, 815 So.2d 502 (Ala. 2001)(affirming district court's refusal to allow counsel from asking plaintiff medical expert on cross examination as to the probationary status of his professional license, citing that under Rule 608(b), the only kind of evidence that may be presented as to an expert's character for truthfulness is evidence regarding the expert's general reputation in the community for untruthfulness or opinion testimony from another competent witness).

Although no such reported decisions exist on this narrow topic in Idaho, the majority of these case authorities have adopted rules of evidence which are identical or nearly identical to those in Idaho. These decisions aptly demonstrate the improper nature of cross examination questions which seek to delve into an experts past lawsuits and board matters. Such allegations are analogous to unproven accusations which may not be used for impeachment purposes. The attempt at impeachment using such evidence does not address the expert's skill, knowledge, or qualifications as an expert medical witness; instead, its calculated effect is to simply cast a pall of disparagement over the doctor's testimony by reason of irrelevant misconduct. For these reasons, such evidence should be excluded at the trial.

In Idaho, medical malpractice actions are governed by Idaho Code § 6-1012. In this case, Plaintiff's claim against Dr. Kerr is judged relative to his compliance with the standard of health care practice applicable to a physician engaged in the medical specialty of cosmetic surgery in Boise, Idaho in 2010. Any discussions of any other suits involving any other case or expert, would involve injecting into the trial collateral issues, a different standard of health care practice and a different time for which no expert testimony has been disclosed. For the foregoing reasons, the Court should enter an order prohibiting Plaintiff from presenting evidence or testimony regarding any Defendant or defense expert's prior medical malpractice lawsuits, claims and/or licensing matters of any kind.

3. Plaintiff Should Be Prohibited From Presenting Evidence, Or Discussing In Any Way, Defense Expert Gregory Laurence, M.D.'S Yet To Be Resolved Indictment By A Federal Grand Jury.

Defendants move to prohibit Plaintiff Charles Ballard, his counsel, or any of his witnesses from in any way, directly or indirectly, mentioning to the jury, during either voir dire, Plaintiff's case in chief, cross-examination or rebuttal, or opening or closing statements, introducing evidence, submitting jury instructions, mentioning, or offering testimony or documents of any kind relating to the issue of Dr. Gregory Laurence's federal grand jury indictment.

Dr. Gregory Laurence is a defense standard of practice expert from Tennessee. At his October 2013 deposition, Dr. Laurence was questioned by Plaintiff's counsel regarding a federal grand jury indictment filed against him and others which was filed in Colorado for alleged violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7212(a) and 18 U.S.C. § 2 – Corrupt Endeavor to Obstruct or Impede Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws and Aiding and Abetting) and for alleged violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1503 – Obstruction of Justice). The indictment was handed down in May 2013 and this matter is still simply at the indictment phase. No trial date, plea or conviction of any kind has been entered against Dr. Laurence. The defense contends that to allow any reference to Dr. Laurence's indictment at the trial would be unfairly prejudicial, irrelevant and arguably raise an appeal issue.

Under I.R.E. 401, information regarding a defense expert's grand jury indictment is irrelevant and under I.R.E 402, is not admissible. The disputed facts and issues in this matter relate to Plaintiff's allegations of medical malpractice involving the death of Krystal Ballard. Whether Dr. Laurence, who is acting as a defense expert, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on an unrelated contested tax issue is an entirely collateral issue which has absolutely no tendency to make the existence of facts related to Plaintiff's allegations of medical malpractice more or less probable. Therefore, information regarding his indictment is irrelevant and not admissible.

Even if this Court were to conclude that information regarding Dr. Laurence's grand jury indictment to be somehow relevant, its probative value is grossly outweighed by the risk of unfair prejudice to the Defendants. As a result, it should be excluded under I.R.E 403. More to the point, I.R.E. 608(b) prohibits the admission of extrinsic evidence of a witness's prior misconduct to impeach a witness's credibility. While there is an exception under I.R.E. 609 for impeachment by evidence of conviction of a crime, that exception does not apply to Dr. Laurence's indictment which is not a conviction of any kind. Rule 609(a) states:

> For the purpose of attacking the credibility of a witness,, evidence of the fact that the witness has been convicted of a felony and the nature of the felony shall be admitted if elicited from the witness or established by public record, but only if the court determines in a hearing outside the presence of the jury that the fact of the prior conviction or the nature of the prior conviction, or both, are relevant to the credibility of the witness and that the probative value of admitting this evidence outweighs its prejudicial effect to the party offering the witness.

(Emphasis added). Furthermore, under Federal Rule of Evidence 609, which I.R.E. 609 was modeled after, "the following do not qualify as convictions, i.e., are inadmissible [under Rule 609]: an indictment, an arrest, acts that may be criminal but have not been prosecuted ...." Frazier v. IMED Corp., 2003 WL 1984366, *3 (Del. Super. Ct. April 25, 2003) (citing 4 Jack B. Weinstein & Margaret A. Berger, Weinstein's Federal Evidence § 609.03, at 609-13 to 609-14 (citations omitted) (Joseph M. McClaughlin ed., 2d ed. 2002) (internal quotations omitted). In the instant case, extrinsic evidence regarding Dr. Laurence's grand jury indictment is inadmissible because not been convicted of a felony.

If allowed into evidence, Dr. Laurence would be unfairly impeached by the jury without him ever being able to defend himself. It would open up an entirely irrelevant issue which would consume court time and force the defense to interrupt the trial in order to present a mini-trial on the collateral issue of why Dr. Laurence is not guilty of tax evasion. Finally, use of the indictment would not even be relevant for impeachment purposes because Dr. Laurence did not deny its existence, but rather he truthfully admitted in his deposition all about the indictment before opposing counsel elected to produce the indictment.

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should enter an order prohibiting Plaintiff from presenting any evidence or testimony regarding defense expert Dr. Laurence's grand jury indictment.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. 1

These instructions define your duties as members of the jury and the law that applies to this case. Your duties are to determine the facts, to apply the law set forth in these instructions to those facts, and in this way to decide the case. In so doing, you must follow these instructions. You must consider them as a whole, not picking out one or disregarding others. Neither sympathy nor prejudice should influence you in your deliberations. Faithful performance by you of these duties is vital to the administration of justice.

In determining the facts, you may consider only the evidence admitted in this trial. This evidence consists of the testimony of the witnesses, the exhibits offered and received, and any stipulated or admitted facts. The production of evidence in court is governed by rule of law. At times during the trial, I may sustain an objection to a question without permitting the witness to answer it or to an offered exhibit without receiving it into evidence. I will do this when the question called for testimony that was not admissible or when the exhibit itself was inadmissible. In reaching your decision, you may not consider such a question or exhibit or speculate as to what the answer or exhibit would have shown. In addition, where an answer is given or an exhibit received, I may instruct that it be stricken from the record, that you disregard it and that you dismiss it from your minds. I will do this when it becomes apparent that the evidence was inadmissible only after it had been presented to you. In reaching your decision, you may not consider this testimony or exhibit. Except as explained in this instruction, none of my rulings are intended by me to indicate any opinion concerning the evidence in this case.

The arguments and remarks of the attorneys involved in this case are intended to help you in understanding the evidence and applying the instructions, but they are not themselves evidence. If any argument or remark has no basis in the evidence, then you should disregard it. However, there are two exceptions to this rule: (1) An admission of fact by one attorney is binding on his party; and (2) stipulations of fact by all attorneys are binding on all parties.

The law does not require you to believe all of the evidence admitted in the course of the trial. As the sole judges of the facts, you must determine what evidence you believe and what weight you attach to it. In so doing, you bring with you to this courtroom all of the experience and background of your lives. In your everyday affairs, you determine for yourselves whom you believe, what you believe and how much weight you attach to what you are told. The same considerations that you use in your everyday dealings in making these decisions are the considerations which you should apply in your deliberations.

In evaluating the testimony, you should consider such items as: the interest, bias or prejudice of any witness in the outcome of this case; the age and appearance of the witness and the manner in which he gives his testimony; the opportunity that the witness had to observe the facts about which he testified; the contradiction, if any, of a witness's testimony by other evidence; any statements made by the witness at other times that are inconsistent with his present testimony; any evidence regarding a witness's general reputation for truth, honesty or integrity; and any felony conviction of a witness.

In evaluating the exhibits, you should consider such items as: the circumstances under which the exhibit was prepared; and the probability that the exhibit accurately reflects what it is intended to show in light of the other evidence of the case.

You are likewise not to discuss the case with anyone, or permit anyone to discuss the case with you, whether within or without the courthouse, during the course of the trial; and you are not yourself to contact anyone in an attempt to discuss or gain a greater understanding of the case. In the event that anyone attempts to discuss the case with you or to influence your decision, you will report it to me promptly. You are not even to discuss the case among yourselves until you retire to the jury room to deliberate at the close of the entire case, and you are not to form or express any opinion on the case until you have heard all of the testimony and have had the benefit of my instructions as to the law which applies to the case. I have outlined for you the rules of law applicable to this case and have told you of some of the matters which you may consider in weighing the evidence to determine the facts. In a few minutes counsel will present their closing remarks to you; and then you will retire to the jury room for deliberations.

The attitude and conduct of jurors at the beginning of their deliberations are important. It is rarely productive for a juror, at the outset, to make an emphatic expression of his opinion on the case or to state how he intends to vote. When one does that at the beginning, his sense of pride may be aroused; and he may hesitate to change his position, even if shown that it is wrong. Remember that you are not partisans or advocates, but are judges. For you, as for me, there can be no triumph except in the ascertainment and declaration of the truth.

Consult with one another. Consider each other's views and deliberate with the objective of reaching an agreement, if you can do so without disturbing your individual judgment. Each of you must decide this case for yourself; but you should do so only after a discussion and consideration of the case with your fellow jurors.

It is your duty, as jurors, to consult with one another and to deliberate with a view to reaching an agreement, if you can do so without violence to individual judgment. Each of you must decide the case for yourself, but do so only after an impartial consideration of the evidence with your fellow jurors. In the course of your deliberations, do not hesitate to reexamine your own views and change your opinion if convinced it is erroneous. But do not surrender your honest conviction as to the weight or effect of evidence solely because of the opinion of your fellow jurors, or for the mere purpose of returning a verdict.

INSTRUCTION NO. 29

Now that you have been chosen as jurors for this trial, you are required to decide this case based solely on the evidence and the exhibits that you see and hear in this courtroom. "The case" includes anything you see or hear in the courtroom, or on any case questionnaire you completed, anything said by the lawyers, the Judge, Court staff, and everyone else in the courtroom. At the end of the case, I will give you instructions about the law that you must apply, and you will be asked to use that law, together with the evidence you have heard, to reach a verdict. In order for your verdict to be fair, you must not be exposed to any other information about the case, the law, or any of the issues involved in this trial during the course of your jury duty. This is very important, and so I am taking the time to give you some very detailed explanations about what you should do and not do during your time as jurors.

First, you must not try to get information from any source other than what you see and hear in this courtroom. This means you may not speak to anyone, including your family or friends. You may not do any research about the case with any electronic device. You may not use any printed or electronic sources to get information about this case or the issues involved. This includes the internet, reference books or dictionaries, newspapers, magazines, television, radio, computers, Blackberries, iPhones, iPads, Smartphones, PDAs, or any other electronic device. You may not do any personal medical research or investigation, including visiting any of the places involved in this case, using Internet maps or Google, talking to any possible witnesses, or creating your own demonstrations or reenactments of the events which are the subject of this case.

Second, you must not communicate with anyone about this case or your jury service, and you must not allow anyone to communicate with you. In particular, you may not communicate about the case via emails, text messages, tweets, blogs, chat rooms, comments or other postings, Facebook, MySpace, LinkedIn, or any other websites. This applies to communicating with your fellow jurors until I give you the case for deliberation, and it applies to communicating with everyone else including your family members, your employer, and the people involved in the trial, although you may notify your family and your employer that you have been seated as a juror in the case. But, if you are asked or approached in any way about your jury service or anything about this case, you must respond that you have been ordered not to discuss the matter and to report the contact to the court.

The court recognizes that these rules and restrictions may affect activities that you would consider to be normal and harmless, and I assure you that I am very much aware that I am asking you to refrain from activities that may be very common and very important in your daily lives. However, the law requires these restrictions to ensure the parties have a fair trial based on the evidence that each party has had an opportunity to address. If one or more of you were to get additional information from an

GIVEN _____ REFUSED _____ MODIFIED _____ COVERED _____
OTHER _____

outside source, that information might be inaccurate or incomplete, or for some other reason not applicable to this case, and the parties would not have a chance to explain or contradict that information because they wouldn't know about it. That's why it is so important that you base your verdict only on information you receive in this courtroom.

Some of you may have heard about trials where the jurors are not permitted to go home at night, or were sequestered for the entire length of the trial. For a variety of reasons, this is something we rarely do. It is far more of an imposition on your lives than the court wishes to make. However, it was effective in keeping jurors away from information that might affect the fairness of the trial—that was the entire purpose.

You must not engage in any activity, or be exposed to any information, that might unfairly affect the outcome of this case. Any juror who violates these restrictions I have explained to you jeopardizes the fairness of these proceedings, and a mistrial could result that would require the entire trial process to start over. As you can imagine, a mistrial is a tremendous expense and inconvenience to the parties, the court and the taxpayers. If any juror is exposed to any outside information, or has any difficulty whatsoever in following these instructions, please notify the court immediately.

If any juror becomes aware that one of your fellow jurors has done something that violates these instructions, you are obligated to report that to the court as well. If anyone tries to contact you about the case, either directly or indirectly, or sends you any information about the case, please report this promptly as well. These restrictions must remain in effect throughout this trial. Once the trial is over, you may resume your normal activities. At that point, you will be free to read or research anything you wish. These instructions define your duties as members of the jury and the law that applies to this case. Your duties are to determine the facts, to apply the law set forth in these instructions to those facts, and in this way to decide the case. In so doing, you must follow these instructions. You must consider them as a whole, not picking out one or disregarding others. Neither sympathy nor prejudice should influence you in your deliberations. Faithful performance by you of these duties is vital to the administration of justice.

In determining the facts, you may consider only the evidence admitted in this trial. This evidence consists of the testimony of the witnesses, the exhibits offered and received, and any stipulated or admitted facts. The production of evidence in court is governed by rule of law. At times during the trial, I may sustain an objection to a question without permitting the witness to answer it or to an offered exhibit without receiving it into evidence. I will do this when the question called for testimony that was not admissible or when the exhibit itself was inadmissible. In reaching your decision, you may not consider such a question or exhibit or speculate as to what the answer or exhibit would have shown. In addition, where an answer is given or an exhibit received, I may instruct that it be stricken from the record, that you disregard it and that you dismiss it from your minds. I will do this when it becomes apparent that the evidence was inadmissible only after it had been presented to you. In reaching your decision, you may not consider this testimony or exhibit. Except as explained in this instruction, none of my rulings are intended by me to indicate any opinion concerning the evidence in this case.

The arguments and remarks of the attorneys involved in this case are intended to help you in understanding the evidence and applying the instructions, but they are not themselves evidence. If any argument or remark has no basis in the evidence, then you should disregard it. However, there are two exceptions to this rule: (1) An admission of fact by one attorney is binding on his party; and (2) stipulations of fact by all attorneys are binding on all parties.

The law does not require you to believe all of the evidence admitted in the course of the trial. As the sole judges of the facts, you must determine what evidence you believe and what weight you attach to it. In so doing, you bring with you to this courtroom all of the experience and background of your lives. In your everyday affairs, you determine for yourselves whom you believe, what you believe and how much weight you attach to what you are told. The same considerations that you use in your everyday dealings in making these decisions are the considerations which you should apply in your deliberations.

In evaluating the testimony, you should consider such items as: the interest, bias or prejudice of any witness in the outcome of this case; the age and appearance of the witness and the manner in which he gives his testimony; the opportunity that the witness had to observe the facts about which he testified; the contradiction, if any, of a witness's testimony by other evidence; any statements made by the witness at other times that are inconsistent with his present testimony; any evidence regarding a witness's general reputation for truth, honesty or integrity; and any felony conviction of a witness.

In evaluating the exhibits, you should consider such items as: the circumstances under which the exhibit was prepared; and the probability that the exhibit accurately reflects what it is intended to show in light of the other evidence of the case.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

As you can well surmise, this case is important to both sides, and each party to the suit is entitled to your full and fair consideration. You are not to associate in any way with the parties, their attorneys, agents or witnesses. You are likewise not to discuss the case with anyone, or permit anyone to discuss the case with you, whether within or without the courthouse, during the course of the trial; and you are not yourself to contact anyone in an attempt to discuss or gain a greater understanding of the case. In the event that anyone attempts to discuss the case with you or to influence your decision, you will report it to me promptly. You are not even to discuss the case among yourselves until you retire to the jury room to deliberate at the close of the entire case, and you are not to form or express any opinion on the case until you have heard all of the testimony and have had the benefit of my instructions as to the law which applies to the case. You should not go to the place where any alleged event occurred unless the Court orders a supervised jury visit to that place.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

The Defendants deny the claims of the Plaintiff.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

I remind you, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, that you are not to discuss this case among yourselves or with anyone else, nor to form any opinion as to the merits of the case until after I finally submit the case to you.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

When I say that a party has the burden of proof on any proposition, or use the expression "if you find," or "if you decide," I mean you must be persuaded, considering all the evidence in the case, that the proposition on which he has the burden of proof is more probably true than not true.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

Evidence may be either direct or circumstantial. Direct evidence is evidence that directly proves one of the facts on which a party has the burden of proof in the case, without resorting to inference. Circumstantial evidence is evidence that indirectly proves one of the facts on which a party has the burden of proof in the case, by means of proving one or more facts from which the fact at issue may be inferred.

The law makes no distinction between direct and circumstantial evidence as to the degree of proof required; each is accepted as a reasonable method of proof and each is respected for such convincing force as it may carry.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

A witness who has special knowledge in a particular matter may give his opinion on that matter. In determining the weight to be given such opinion, you should consider the qualifications and credibility of the witness and the reasons given for his opinion.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

A deposition is testimony taken under oath before the trial and preserved in writing or upon videotape. This evidence is entitled to neither more nor less consideration than you would give the same testimony had the witness testified here.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

Certain evidence is about to be presented to you by an interrogatory and an answer to the interrogatory. An interrogatory is a written question from one party and answered by another during the course of a case. This evidence is entitled to the same consideration you would give had the witness been asked the interrogatory and then answered it from the witness stand.

You will only have the interrogatory and the answer read to you in court. Although there is a record of the interrogatory and answer to the interrogatory, this record will not be available to you during your deliberations.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

Whenever evidence was admitted for a limited purpose, you must not consider it for any other purpose.

Your attention was called to these matters when the evidence was admitted.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

The Plaintiff has the burden of proving, by direct expert testimony and by a preponderance of all the competent evidence, that at the time and place of the incident in question Defendant Dr. Brian Kerr failed to meet the applicable standard of health care practice of the community in which such care was provided as such standard then existed with respect to the class of health care provider to which Defendant Dr. Brian Kerr belonged and in which he was functioning.

In addition, the Plaintiff has the burden of proving that the failure of Defendant Dr. Brian Kerr to meet the applicable standard of health care practice caused the injuries of the Plaintiff.

The Defendants have no burden of proof on any issue in the case.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

Individual providers of health care, such as Dr. Brian Kerr in this case, shall be judged in comparison with similarly trained and qualified providers of the same class in the same community, taking into account their training, experience, and fields of medical specialization.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

The standard of health care practice means the care typically provided under similar circumstances by the relevant type of health care provider in the community at the time and place of the events in question.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

You must determine the applicable standard of health care practice and professional learning, skill and care required of Dr. Brian Kerr only from the testimony of those persons, including Dr. Brian Kerr, who have testified as expert witnesses as to such standard in this case.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

The quality or appropriateness of the standard of health care practice is not for you to decide.

You must apply the standard of health care practice that you determine to be applicable and you must not consider or decide whether that standard of health care practice is appropriate, inappropriate or deficient.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

You are not permitted to assume or conclude that the standard of health care practice applicable to Dr. Brian Kerr is uniform throughout the State of Idaho.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

As used in these instructions, the term "community" refers to that geographical area ordinarily served by the licensed general hospital where the medical care complained of was provided.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

When I use the expression "proximate cause," I mean a cause which, in natural or probable sequence, produced the injury, loss or damage, and but for that cause the damage would not have occurred. It need not be the only cause. It is sufficient if it is a substantial factor in bringing about the injury, loss or damage. It is not a proximate cause if the injury, loss or damage likely would have occurred anyway.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

In instructing you on the subject of damages, I do not express any opinion as to whether Plaintiff is or is not entitled to damages.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

You are instructed, in considering the issue of damages, that a physician is not liable for any pre-existing injury, disease, condition or disability which is not the natural and proximate result of the actions of the physician. In other words, you cannot award damages to the Plaintiff if the damage resulted from the natural progress of any injury, disease, condition or disability which is attributable to causes other than the actions of the physician.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

You may not include as damages any amount that you might add for the purpose of punishing the Defendants or to make an example of them for the public good or to prevent other incidents. Such damages would be punitive and they are not authorized in this action.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

An award of damages is not subject to any income taxes, and you should not consider such taxes if you decide to make such an award.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

You must weigh and consider this case without regard to sympathy, prejudice or passion for or against any party to the action.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

The law forbids you to determine any issue in this case by chance. Thus, if you determine that the Plaintiff is entitled to recover, you must not arrive at the amount of damages to be awarded by agreeing in advance to take the independent estimate of each juror of the amount to be awarded and then to average such estimates to set the amount of your award.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

I have outlined for you the rules of law applicable to this case and have told you of some of the matters which you may consider in weighing the evidence to determine the facts. In a few minutes counsel will present their closing remarks to you; and then you will retire to the jury room for deliberations.

The attitude and conduct of jurors at the beginning of their deliberations are important. It is rarely productive for a juror, at the outset, to make an emphatic expression of his opinion on the case or to state how he intends to vote. When one does that at the beginning, his sense of pride may be aroused; and he may hesitate to change his position, even if shown that it is wrong. Remember that you are not partisans or advocates, but are judges. For you, as for me, there can be no triumph except in the ascertainment and declaration of the truth.

Consult with one another. Consider each other's views and deliberate with the objective of reaching an agreement, if you can do so without disturbing your individual judgment. Each of you must decide this case for yourself; but you should do so only after a discussion and consideration of the case with your fellow jurors.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

On retiring to the jury room, select one of your number as a Foreperson, who will preside over your deliberations.

Appropriate forms of verdict will be submitted to you with any instructions. Use only the one conforming to your conclusions and return the other unused.

A verdict may be reached by three-fourths of your number, or nine of you. As soon as nine or more of you shall have agreed upon a verdict, you should fill it out, if necessary, and have it signed. If your verdict is unanimous, your Foreperson alone will sign it; but if nine or more, but less than the entire jury, agree, then those so agreeing will sign the verdict.

As soon as you have completed and signed the verdict(s), you will notify the bailiff, who will then return you into open court.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

Members of the Jury: In order to return a verdict, it is necessary that at least three-fourths of the jury agree. Your verdict must represent the considered judgment of each juror agreeing to it.

It is your duty, as jurors, to consult with one another and to deliberate with a view to reaching an agreement, if you can do so without violence to individual judgment. Each of you must decide the case for yourself, but do so only after an impartial consideration of the evidence with your fellow jurors. In the course of your deliberations, do not hesitate to reexamine your own views and change your opinion if convinced it is erroneous. But do not surrender your honest conviction as to the weight or effect of evidence solely because of the opinion of your fellow jurors, or for the mere purpose of returning a verdict.

You are not partisans. You are judges -- judges of the facts. Your sole interest is to ascertain the truth from the evidence in the case.

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

In this case, you will be given a Special Verdict form to use in returning your verdict. I will read the Verdict Form to you now:

We, the Jury, answer the Special Verdict form as follows:

QUESTION NO. 1: Did Defendant Dr. Brian Kerr fail to meet the applicable standard of health care practice of the community in which such care was provided, as such standard existed at the time such care was provided, with respect to the class of health care provider to which Dr. Brian Kerr belonged and in which he was functioning, and did such failure proximately cause the death of Krystal Ballard?

ANSWER: YES_____ NO_____

If you answered the above question "No," then simply sign the verdict form and inform the bailiff that you are done. If you answered the above question "Yes," please answer Question No. 2.

QUESTION NO. 2: What is the total amount of damages sustained by the Plaintiff for Economic damages: $_____

Non-Economic damages: $_____

DEFENDANTS' REQUESTED

INSTRUCTION NO. _____

Now that you have been chosen as jurors for this trial, you are required to decide this case based solely on the evidence and the exhibits that you see and hear in this courtroom. "The case" includes anything you see or hear in the courtroom, or on any case questionnaire you completed, anything said by the lawyers, the Judge, Court staff, and everyone else in the courtroom. At the end of the case, I will give you instructions about the law that you must apply, and you will be asked to use that law, together with the evidence you have heard, to reach a verdict. In order for your verdict to be fair, you must not be exposed to any other information about the case, the law, or any of the issues involved in this trial during the course of your jury duty. This is very important, and so I am taking the time to give you some very detailed explanations about what you should do and not do during your time as jurors.

First, you must not try to get information from any source other than what you see and hear in this courtroom. This means you may not speak to anyone, including your family or friends. You may not do any research about the case with any electronic device. You may not use any printed or electronic sources to get information about this case or the issues involved. This includes the internet, reference books or dictionaries, newspapers, magazines, television, radio, computers, Blackberries, iPhones, iPads, Smartphones, PDAs, or any other electronic device. You may not do any personal medical research or investigation, including visiting any of the places involved in this case, using Internet maps or Google, talking to any possible witnesses, or creating your own demonstrations or reenactments of the events which are the subject of this case.

Second, you must not communicate with anyone about this case or your jury service, and you must not allow anyone to communicate with you. In particular, you may not communicate about the case via emails, text messages, tweets, blogs, chat rooms, comments or other postings, Facebook, MySpace, LinkedIn, or any other websites. This applies to communicating with your fellow jurors until I give you the case for deliberation, and it applies to communicating with everyone else including your family members, your employer, and the people involved in the trial, although you may notify your family and your employer that you have been seated as a juror in the case. But, if you are asked or approached in any way about your jury service or anything about this case, you must respond that you have been ordered not to discuss the matter and to report the contact to the court.

The court recognizes that these rules and restrictions may affect activities that you would consider to be normal and harmless, and I assure you that I am very much aware that I am asking you to refrain from activities that may be very common and very important in your daily lives. However, the law requires these restrictions to ensure the parties have a fair trial based on the evidence that each party has had an opportunity to address. If one or more of you were to get additional information from an outside source, that information might be inaccurate or incomplete, or for some other reason not applicable to this case, and the parties would not have a chance to explain or contradict that information because they wouldn't know about it. That's why it is so important that you base your verdict only on information you receive in this courtroom.

Some of you may have heard about trials where the jurors are not permitted to go home at night, or were sequestered for the entire length of the trial. For a variety of reasons, this is something we rarely do. It is far more of an imposition on your lives than the court wishes to make. However, it was effective in keeping jurors away from information that might affect the fairness of the trial—that was the entire purpose.

You must not engage in any activity, or be exposed to any information, that might unfairly affect the outcome of this case. Any juror who violates these restrictions I have explained to you jeopardizes the fairness of these proceedings, and a mistrial could result that would require the entire trial process to start over. As you can imagine, a mistrial is a tremendous expense and inconvenience to the parties, the court and the taxpayers. If any juror is exposed to any outside information, or has any difficulty whatsoever in following these instructions, please notify the court immediately.

If any juror becomes aware that one of your fellow jurors has done something that violates these instructions, you are obligated to report that to the court as well. If anyone tries to contact you about the case, either directly or indirectly, or sends you any information about the case, please report this promptly as well. These restrictions must remain in effect throughout this trial. Once the trial is over, you may resume your normal activities. At that point, you will be free to read or research anything you wish. After the trial, you will be able to speak—or choose not to speak—about the trial to anyone you wish. You may write, or post, or tweet about the case if you choose to do so. The only limitation is that you must wait until after the verdict, when you have been discharged from your jury service.

This includes sending or receiving phone calls, voice mails, text messages, tweets, or accessing the internet. When you arrive at the courthouse in the morning, you will be asked to give any electronic devices to the court officer. These devices will be returned to you at the end of the court day. PLAINTIFF'S RESPONSE TO DEFENDANTS' EMERGENCY MOTION TO VACATE TRIAL

ORIGINAL

COMES NOW the Plaintiff, Charles Ballard, by and through his attorneys, and hereby responds to Defendants' Emergency Motion to Vacate Trial.

The circumstances necessitating Defendants' Emergency Motion to Vacate Trial are certainly unfortunate. While a civil defendant enjoys no constitutional right to be present at trial, Plaintiff is willing to consider accommodating Defendants' request to continue the trial so long as any such continuance is not for an unreasonably long period of time.

Initially, it is hardly clear from the Affidavit of Britani Hill, M.D., filed in support of the emergency motion, that the Defendant Brian Kerr, MD is unable to participate as necessary in the upcoming trial. On the one hand, Dr. Hill opines that she "believe[s] he will have difficulty in attending and participating in the trial proceedings." (Paragraph 6) Dr. Hill concludes: "I consider Brian Kerr not to be medical stable [sic] and he is impaired so as to prevent him attend his trial. [sic]" (Paragraph 7). Difficulty in attending trial does not equate to inability to attend trial. Notwithstanding, Plaintiff is not unsympathetic to Dr. Kerr's injuries and medical condition. Nor does Plaintiff wish to be subjected to a claim by defendants at trial or on appeal that Dr. Kerr was in fact unable to attend trial, or should he attend that he was otherwise limited by his medical condition.

With these considerations in mind, Plaintiff is willing to discuss the options available, if any, for an alternative trial date, and Plaintiff will be prepared to advise the Court of his position when this topic is addressed at the hearing scheduled for April 2, 2014.

Dated this 1st day of April, 2014.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

PLAINTIFF'S PRETRIAL EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION CERTIFICATION

Plaintiff, Charles Ballard, through his attorneys, provides this certification concerning the parties' exchange of information conference as described in the Court's Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings of February 21, 2014.

On October 22, 2013, the parties conferred for the purpose of exchanging pretrial information in advance of the first trial in this matter. By letter dated March 20, 2014 and emailed to defense counsel on that same date, plaintiff's counsel informed defense counsel that their position regarding trial exhibits remained the same and that we assumed defendants' position was likewise the same, but if not or if defense counsel felt a second pretrial conference was necessary, plaintiff's counsel was prepared to hold another pretrial conference at a mutually convenient time. (See Exhibit A, Email from B. McAllister to J. Quane Attaching Letter from P. Gregory Haddad to J. Quane.) Through this same letter, plaintiff's counsel again inquired of defendants' interest in exploring settlement as dictated by I.R.C.P. 16. Defendants did not respond to the foregoing letter.

Accordingly, plaintiff submits the foregoing regarding the matters described in Rule 16:

a. Plaintiff's Exhibits to be Received Into Evidence Without Objection

During the aforementioned conference of October 22, 2013, the parties agreed that the following exhibits would be received in evidence without objection. PLAINTIFF'S OPPOSITION AND RESPONSE TO DEFENDANTS' MOTIONS IN LIMINE

ORIGINAL

COMES NOW the Plaintiff, Charles Ballard, by and through his attorneys, pursuant to Idaho Code § 9-102, Idaho Rule of Evidence 103(c), and the Court's Amended Notice of Trial Setting and Order Governing Further Proceedings of February 21, 2014, and hereby opposes and responds to Defendants' Motions in Limine. Plaintiff incorporates by reference his prior Responses to Defendants' Motions in Limine, filed October 29, 2013, as if that filing was fully set forth herein.

Plaintiff relies on his October 29, 2013, filing because Defendants' current Motions in Limine, including the legal reasoning presented by memorandum in support of those motions, are substantively identical to Defendants' previous filings, even insofar as Defendants include the same trial date of November 5, 2013. (Compare Mem. in Supp. Of Defs.' Mots. in Limine, Oct. 21, 2013, with Mem. in Supp. Of Defs.' Mots. in Limine, March 25, 2014.) Contrary to Defendants' recent filing, however, circumstances involving defense expert, Dr. Gregory Laurence, are quite different today than they were in October.

No longer does Dr. Laurence face mere allegations. On February 6, 2014, Dr. Laurence entered a guilty plea to the federal felony offense of Corruptly Endeavoring to Impede the Due Administration of the Internal Revenue Laws. (See Exhibit B to Aff. of [Pl.'s] Counsel, March 25, 2014 (Plea Agreement).) At that time, Dr. Laurence admitted to committing the criminal acts serving as the factual basis for that plea. (Id.)

By Plaintiff's response of October 29, 2013, Plaintiff presented the following arguments:

I. Defendants' First and Second Motions in Limine Should be Denied Because Plaintiff Should be Permitted to Put on Evidence of Dr. O'Neil's Competence to Serve as the Source of All Three Defense Standard of Care Experts' Knowledge of the Applicable Standard of Care;

II. Defendants' Third Motion in Limine [as to the Admissibility of Evidence Pertaining to the Criminal Proceedings Pending Against Dr. Laurence] Should be Denied;

III. Defendants' Fourth Motion in Limine Should be Denied to the Degree Dr. Kerr Opens the Door for Cross-Examination on the Issue of Liability Insurance;

IV. Defendants' Fifth Motion in Limine [to Preclude Evidence That Defendants or Defendants' Witnesses Have Been Previously Represented by Defense Counsel] Should be Denied to the Degree it Seeks to Preclude Proper Cross-Examination of Defendants' Expert Witnesses; and

V. Defendants' Sixth Motion in Limine Regarding Obamacare is Unopposed.

On account of Dr. Gregory Laurence's guilty plea, Plaintiff now responds to Defendants' Third Motion in Limine by reference to his sixteenth motion in limine, which Plaintiff incorporates as if it was fully set forth herein. By that motion in limine, Plaintiff argues that Dr. Gregory Laurence's recent guilty plea to a federal felony offense is admissible, as are the underlying facts contained within his plea agreement, which Dr. Laurence now admits are true. (See Pl.'s Not. of Reliance on Previously Filed Consolidated Mots. in Limine and Supp. Mots. in Limine 4-14, March 25, 2014.) For the reasons stated in Plaintiff's sixteenth motion in limine, Defendants' Third Motion in Limine should be denied.

Dated this 1st day of April, 2014.

Re: Ballard v. Kerr, et al.

Dear Mr. Quane:

Pursuant to the Amended Notice of Trial Setting filed on February 21, 2014, the parties are directed to hold a conference for exchange of information and discussion of matters specified by IRCP 16(a) and 16(b) not later than fourteen (14) days prior to trial. We previously conducted such a conference on October 22, 2013, at your office.

Our position regarding your trial exhibits remains the same, and we assume your position regarding our exhibits is likewise the same. Thus, unless you now have a different position, or unless you contemplate different trial exhibits, it does not appear that a second conference is necessary. If you feel that there is a need for such a conference, we can make ourselves available at a mutually convenient time next week to conduct the conference telephonically.

Rule 16 also requires us to discuss settlement. At your invitation, we previously provided you with a settlement demand by letter dated June 10, 2013. You did not respond to this demand. You now have the benefit of having observed the presentation of plaintiff's claims at trial. We believe the presentation of those claims would have resulted in a substantial jury verdict against your clients absent the mistrial. With that said, we also recognize that every case has risk, and we are willing to take that risk into consideration in the context of a settlement. If your clients are interested in exploring settlement of this case, I invite you to present a reasonable counter-offer, to which we will promptly respond after discussing with SSgt Ballard.

I look forward to hearing from you concerning the above matters.

Sincerely,

/s/ P. Gregory Haddad

Case No. CV OC 1204792 BRIEF ON USE OF DEPOSITIONS AT TRIAL

The Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure provide when a deposition may be used at trial. See I.R.C.P. 32(a). Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 32(a) provides when a deposition may be used at trial as follows:

At the trial or upon the hearing of a motion or an interlocutory proceeding, any part or all of a deposition, so far as admissible under the rules of evidence applied as though the witness were then present and testifying, may be used against any party who was present or represented at the taking of the deposition or who had reasonable notice thereof, in accordance with any of the following provisions:

(1) Any deposition may be used by any party for the purpose of contradicting or impeaching the testimony of deponent as a witness, or for any other purpose permitted by the Idaho Rules of Evidence.

(2) The deposition of a party or of anyone who at the time of taking the deposition was an officer, director, or managing agent, or a person designated under Rule 30(b)(6) or 31(a) to testify on behalf of a public or private corporation, partnership or association or governmental agency which is a party may be used by an adverse party for any purpose.

(3) The deposition of a witness, whether or not a party, may be used by any party for any purpose if the court finds: (A) that the witness is dead; or (B) that the witness is at a greater distance than 100 miles from the place of trial or hearing, or is out of the state of Idaho, unless it appears that the absence of the witness was procured by the party offering the deposition; or (C) that the witness is unable to attend or testify because of age, illness, infirmity, or imprisonment; or (D) that the party offering the deposition has been unable to procure the attendance of the witness by subpoena; or (E) upon application and notice, that such exceptional circumstances exist as to make it desirable, in the interest of justice and with due regard to the importance of presenting the testimony of witnesses orally in open court, to allow the deposition to be used.

(4) If only part of a deposition is offered in evidence by a party, an adverse party may require the party to introduce any other part which ought in fairness to be considered with the part introduced, and any party may introduce any other parts.

. . . .

I.R.C.P. 32(a).

In determining whether a deposition may be used at trial, the distinction between parties and non-parties is important. Only two sections of I.R.C.P. 32(a) apply to a non-party witness's deposition. See I.R.C.P. 32(a). I.R.C.P. 32(a)(1) allows any party to use any deposition at trial to impeach the testimony of a deponent as a witness. See I.R.C.P. 32(a)(1). I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3) permits the deposition of a party or a non-party witness for any purpose if and only if the court finds that the deponent is dead, that the deponent is greater than 100 miles away from the place of trial, that the deponent is unable to testify due to age, illness, infirmity, or imprisonment, or that "exceptional circumstances exist as to make it desirable, in the interest of justice and with due regard to the importance of presenting the testimony of witnesses orally in open court, to allow the deposition to be used." See I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3).

In the present case, since Dr. Coffman is not on the stand testifying, his deposition testimony cannot be read and used to impeach him. See I.R.C.P. 32(a)(1). Rule 32(a)(1) does not allow one witness to be impeached by the deposition testimony of another witness. Id. Dr. Coffman's deposition testimony cannot be used to impeach anyone but Dr. Coffman. Id. Therefore, I.R.C.P. 32(a)(1) does not apply and Dr. Coffman's deposition cannot be read for the purpose of impeachment during Dr. Kerr's testimony.

When a deposition is sought to be introduced during the testimony of someone other than the deponent himself, as is being done here, the deposition can be used for any purpose under the very limited circumstances enumerated in I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3). See I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3).

In the present case, Dr. Thomas Coffman is a non-party witness; therefore, I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3) applies and limits the use of his deposition at trial. See I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3). None of the limited circumstances enumerated in Rule 32(a)(3) are present however. Dr. Coffman is alive and well, and he is in Idaho. Moreover, he is within 100 miles from the Ada County Courthouse, as he is in Boise. Dr. Coffman is not in prison or of an age that affects his ability to testify. No exceptional circumstances exist in this case warranting the reading of Dr. Coffman's deposition during the Defendant Dr. Kerr's testimony.

The purpose of I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3) is to prevent the need for a continuance of the trial due to the witness's unavailability. See Alabama Power Co. v. Taylor, 293 Ala. 484, 488, 306 So. 2d 236, 239 (1975) ("As we perceive it, the very purpose of [Rule 32(a)(3)] is to prevent the need for a continuance."). In the present matter, Dr. Coffman is not unavailable due to any of the enumerated reasons in I.R.C.P. 32(a)(3). Not only are none of the enumerated reasons present here, there is also no need to prevent the continuance of the trial. There is no danger of the trial continuing if Dr. Coffman's deposition is not read during Dr. Kerr's testimony. If the deposition of Dr. Coffman is permitted to be used during the presentation of the testimony of Dr. Kerr by Plaintiff's counsel, it will be tantamount to the admission of testimony that is inadmissible and a complete departure from the limitations of Rule 32(a) that govern the use of depositions at trial.

The Defendant respectfully submits that I.R.C.P. 32(a) is mandatory in nature. This rule prohibits the reading of Dr. Coffman's deposition during Dr. Kerr's testimony because none of the very limited circumstances in Rule 32(a)(3) exists. Therefore, the Plaintiff should be prohibited from reading any portion of Dr. Coffman's deposition during Dr. Kerr's testimony.

PLAINTIFF'S BENCH BRIEF RE TAXES

1. Defendants should be forbidden from arguing about the tax consequences of the jury's award or suggesting to the jury that Mr. Ballard's lost financial support from Krystal Ballard be reduced to account for taxation.

Idaho Code § 5-311 defines the recoverable damages in an action for wrongful death. It provides that the heirs of the decedent may recover such damages "as under all the circumstances of the case may be just." Consistent with this, the applicable model jury instruction regarding wrongful death damages, IDJI 9.05, provides that "the jury must determine the amount of money that will reasonably and fairly compensate the plaintiff for any damages proved to be proximately caused by defendant's negligence." With respect to financial support, this instruction provides for recovery of this as follows:

> The plaintiff's loss of financial support from the decedent, and the present cash value of financial support the decedent would have provided to the plaintiff in the future, but for the decedent's death, taking into account the plaintiff's life expectancy, the decedent's age and normal life expectancy, the decedent's earning capacity, habits, disposition and any other circumstances shown by the evidence.

IDJI 9.05

Neither the instruction, nor the statute, makes any reference to taxes, and the "just" and "fair" language requires that no such reference be advanced. To allow otherwise impermissibly penalizes a plaintiff whether their award be non taxable or taxable. More specifically, in the event the IRS determined that the award should not be taxed, a defendant should not have the benefit of jury imposed reduction to account for its non taxability. On the other hand, if a component of the award is taxable, a defendant should likewise not be permitted to argue a jury should reduce the award to account for taxes as doing so would amount to a plaintiff being taxed twice – first by the jury in reducing the award and later by the IRS upon the assessment of an additional tax. Neither is just or fair and neither should be permitted.

The Idaho Supreme Court has recognized as much in finding the trial court properly barred cross examination of the plaintiff's economic expert concerning taxation and affirming the award of damages in a personal injury case:

> Defendants assert that the trial court should not have (1) allowed the economic expert to testify that any damage award was subject to income taxes, (2) denied defendants cross-examination of the economic expert, and (3) failed to cure the testimony of the economic expert by giving a proper instruction to the jury. We disagree.

We first note that we do not address defendants' challenge to the testimony of the economic expert concerning taxation of any damage awards. Defendants did not object at the time of the economic expert's testimony to the question posed about taxes or to his answer. Even in their briefs on appeal, they make no argument and cite no authority for their contention that it was improper for the trial court to allow the economic expert to testify regarding taxes. See State v. Zichko, 129 Idaho 259, 263, 923 P.2d 966, 970 (1996) (concluding that "[a] party waives an issue cited on appeal if either authority or argument is lacking").

We turn then to defendants' contention that the trial court should have allowed them to cross-examine the economic expert concerning taxation of any damage award. In State v. Marek, 112 Idaho 860, 736 P.2d 1314 (1987), the Court pointed out that "[t]he control of cross-examination of a witness is committed to the sound discretion of the trial judge, and absent a showing of prejudice, a limitation of cross-examination imposed by a trial judge will not be overturned on appeal." Id. at 867, 736 P.2d at 1321. Without reaching the question of any prejudice there may have been to defendants, we conclude that the instructions the trial court gave the jury concerning the taxability of a damage award cured any error there may have been. Barry v. Arrow Transp. Co., 83 Idaho 41, 47, 358 P.2d 1041, 1045 (1960). The trial court gave the jury three different instructions concerning taxation of damage awards, all of which instructed the jury to disregard tax consequences. We conclude that collectively these instructions cured any problem created by the economic expert's testimony concerning taxation.

Concerning the trial court's refusal to give defendants' requested IDJI 937 instruction, we exercise free review. Hook v. B.C. Inv., Inc., 125 Idaho 453, 455, 872 P.2d 716, 718 (1994). We review a trial court's decision refusing to give a proposed jury instruction "to determine whether the instructions, taken as a whole, fairly and accurately reflect the issues and the applicable law." Lankford v. Nicholson Mfg. Co., 126 Idaho 187, 189, 879 P.2d 1120, 1122 (1994). "If the Court finds that the instructions adequately present the issues and state the applicable law, the Court will not reverse the trial court." Id. "The giving of an erroneous jury instruction does not generally justify granting of a new trial unless the appellant can establish that he or she was prejudiced thereby, and that the error affected the jury's conclusion." Sherwood v. Carter, 119 Idaho 246, 260, 805 P.2d 452, 466 (1991).

In the present case, the trial court instructed the jury to disregard tax consequences in rendering any damage award. Even though the trial court's instruction did not take the extra step contained in [former] IDJI 937 of telling the jury that any personal injury award was not subject to income taxes, the effect of the instructions the trial court gave was to direct the jury not to consider the taxation of any damage award. We presume the jury followed this instruction.

Inama v. Brewer, 132 Idaho 377, 382, 973 P.2d 148, 153 (1999).

Accordingly, the defendants in the present case should be forbidden from arguing about the tax consequences of the jury's award or arguing or suggesting to the jury that Charles Ballard's lost financial support from Kyrstal Ballard be reduced to account for taxation.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

PLAINTIFF'S BENCH BRIEF RE ADMISSIBILITY OF MEDICAL BILLS

The evidence presented during plaintiff's case in chief establishes that on Wednesday, July 21, 2010, Defendant Dr. Brian Kerr performed a cosmetic surgical procedure on Krystal Ballard. Plaintiff has established through the testimony of medical experts called during plaintiff's case that Dr. Kerr failed to meet the applicable standard of health care practice concerning the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilizing of reusable medical equipment used on Mrs. Ballard during this surgical procedure and as a consequence, she was infected and died approximately 4 days after Dr. Kerr's surgical procedure.

Following Dr. Kerr's procedure and at approximately 2 am on the morning of Sunday, July 25, 2010, paramedics were summoned to Mrs. Ballard's home in Mountain Home. Mrs. Ballard was transported by paramedics to the Elmore County Medical Center where she was admitted. Later that morning, Life Flight was called by Elmore Medical Center medical staff and Mrs. Ballard was transported that morning by air ambulance to Saint Alphonsus Medical Center in Boise where she was admitted at 7:20 am. Mrs. Ballard died approximately 17 hours later with the time of her death pronounced at 12:38 am on July 26, 2010.

Mrs. Ballard survived for less than 24 hours after Elmore County paramedics were called to her home. The medical records describing the care and treatment of Mrs. Ballard during this period were admitted at trial by agreement of the parties. More specifically, the parties agreed to the admission of the following medical records which have been admitted: Elmore Ambulance (plaintiff's exhibit 6); Elmore Medical Center (plaintiff's exhibit 7) and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center (plaintiff's exhibit 8). The medical experts that have testified to date including Dean Sorensen, M.D., George Nichols, M.D. and Glen Groben, M.D., have addressed the medical treatment Mrs. Ballard received following her admission at Elmore Medical Center up to the time of her death at Saint Alphonsus.

During the trial, Mrs. Ballard's husband, Plaintiff Charles Ballard identified the medical bills he received in connection with the above described care and treatment of his wife. These medical bills are comprised of the bills for Elmore Medical Center (plaintiff's exhibit 26), Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center (plaintiff's exhibit 25) and Life Flight (plaintiff's exhibit 28). Defendants acknowledge that each of the foregoing medical bills are authentic – and indeed plaintiff produced certificates of authenticity for each medical record and bill from the custodian of records for each provider. Defendants further acknowledge that Krystal Ballard received medical care and treatment from each of these providers which are described in the corresponding medical records admitted by agreement of the parties. Nevertheless, defendants argue that the Court should not admit these three medical bills because plaintiff has not adequately established that the medical care established in each bill was reasonable and necessary. The Court admitted the foregoing three medical bills over the objection of defendants subject to a motion to strike these exhibits pending citation to relevant authority concerning the admissibility of the bills.

The Court properly admitted each of the three medical bill exhibits.

1. The Court Properly Admitted the Medical Bills Related to the Emergency Medical Treatment of Krystal Ballard

Each of the medical bills at issue were identified by Charles Ballard as relating to the care and treatment of his wife, Krystal. This care and treatment closely followed the surgical treatment performed by Dr. Kerr and the bills mirror the medical treatment described in the medical bills which defendants agreed should be admitted in evidence. The medical bills cover a period of less than 24 hours and reflect the futile efforts of the providers to save Mrs. Ballard's life. Defendants agree that each of these medical bills is authentic.

In Van Brunt v. Stoddard, 136 Idaho 681, 686, 39 P.3d 621, 626 (2001), the Idaho Supreme Court addressed the admission of summaries of medical bills and the attached records in a personal injury trial where the defendant objected to introduction of these summaries of medical bills and records offered by the plaintiff. The admission of the records in that case was based on the plaintiff's testimony relating to the medical expense summary that he had prepared and the defense argued that, since only the plaintiff had testified, the summaries were admitted without foundation showing the treatment was reasonably related to the accident and that the amounts of the bills were reasonable for the services provided. Id.

In rejecting the argument of the defense, the Supreme Court held "[o]rdinarily, testimony by the patient or by the physician or the health care provider on the amounts charged or paid for medical services is sufficient evidence of the reasonable value of the services in the absence of some showing to the contrary." Id. (emphasis added). The Court noted that where the record reveals direct testimony that the injuries and resulting medical expense incurred after the incident were proximately caused by the injuries received in the incident, there is no error in the admission of the medical bill and treatment summaries. Id.

Similarly, in In re Doe, 146 Idaho 277, 280, 192 P.3d 1101, 1104 (Ct. App. 2008), the Idaho Court of Appeals considered a challenge to the admission of medical bills at a restitution hearing offered by the victim of a battery committed by a juvenile. Counsel for the juvenile and his guardian objected to admission of the bill arguing there was insufficient foundation that the services rendered were reasonable, medically necessary, and "linked" to Doe's actions. Id. The magistrate refused admission of the bills which was affirmed by the district court.

On appeal, the Idaho Court of Appeals first noted the broad discretion of the trial court concerning the admission of evidence and that its judgment concerning this admission will be reversed only upon an abuse of discretion. Id. at 281, 192 P. 3d. at 1105, citing State v. Howard, 135 Idaho 727, 731–32, 24 P.3d 44, 48–49 (2001); State v. Zimmerman, 121 Idaho 971, 973–74, 829 P.2d 861, 863–64 (1992). Notwithstanding, the Court discussed the holding by the Supreme Court in Van Brunt and held the magistrate court erred in refusing admission of various medical bills testified to by C.L., the crime victim. These bills, which the Court ruled should have been admitted, included bills from Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center, Ada County Paramedics, Gem State Radiology, Southwest Idaho Ear, Nose and Throat and Idaho Emergency Physicians. By way of example, the Court provided the following explanation for the admission of two of these medical bills:

> Exhibit 2, the bill from St. Alphonsus Regional medical Center for $4,741.30, also should have been admitted as there was sufficient evidence presented tying it to the attack. Not only did C.L. testify that he had been taken to St. Alphonsus and was treated there after being battered, but the bill itself identifies C.L. as the patient and lists the date of the services provided as the same date the attack occurred. Importantly, the bill also provides a descriptive breakdown of services provided to C.L., allowing the inference that these are treatments that would logically be provided to a victim who had been struck in the face.
>
> The court also erred in excluding Exhibit 3, the bill from Ada County Paramedics for $766.44. That C.L. received these services as a result of the crime was supported by C.L.'s testimony that he was taken from the scene to St. Alphonsus in an ambulance. Additionally, the bill lists the date of the trip as the same date the attack occurred, indicates that C.L. was the person transported, and notes that he was taken from the scene of the crime (9140 Emerald St.) to St. Alphonsus (1055 N. Curtis). The bill also provides a descriptive breakdown of services provided and the amounts charged for each. This information in concert with C.L.'s testimony provided adequate foundation for its admission.

Id, 146 Idaho at 282, 192 P.3d at 1106.

In the present case, the medical bills all refer to Krystal Ballard and correlate to the medical services provided to Mrs. Ballard that are described in the corresponding admitted medical records. The dates of service reflected in these bills correlate to the treatment of Mrs. Ballard reflected in these medical records. These services occurred over a period of less than 24 hours and closely followed the surgical procedure performed by Dr. Kerr. Plaintiff has presented expert medical testimony which directly links the medical treatment reflected in these medical records (which in turn are reflected in the medical bills) to this surgical procedure and to the death of Mrs. Ballard. Further, this expert testimony describes how the treatment by the medical providers was rendered in an attempt to save Mrs. Ballard's life – which ultimately proved unsuccessful. Mr. Ballard identified each bill as relating to the treatment of his spouse following the call to the Elmore paramedics.

Defendants have made no "showing to the contrary" concerning the reasonableness of the services reflected in the medical bills. In fact, defendants acknowledge the authenticity of these medical bills and agreed to the admission of the medical records which correspond directly to the services described in the medical bills.

In sum, plaintiff provided an adequate foundation for the admission of each medical bill and the Court properly admitted each medical bill exhibit.

vs.

BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D., SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER AND LIPO OF BOISE,

Case No. CV OC 1204792

DEFENDANTS' BENCH MEMO RE: THE INTRODUCTION OF AIR FORCE MEDICAL RECORDS OF KRYSTAL BALLARD FOR IMPEACHMENT PURPOSES

Defendants seek to introduce a July 23, 2010 Air Force medical clinic record for Krystal Ballard to be used for the purpose of impeachment. Plaintiff contends that this record should not be used because it was not included as an exhibit in Defendants' Exhibit List at the last trial. This is not a valid objection, however, as the document is admissible for purposes of impeachment. Pursuant to Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure Rule 16(h), the defense is not required to disclose impeachment exhibits.

The Defendants intend to use this Air Force record to impeach Mrs. Ballard based on the inconsistency of her statements made in a number of hours to Air Force health care provider Kristina K. Swartz versus what she told Dr. Kerr on July 23, 2010 just hours later. The Air Force medical record dated July 23, 2010, a copy of which is attached hereto, reflects that Mrs. Ballard told Kristina K. Swartz that she was in pain in her back as a result of having slid down the stairs the previous night for which she took an old prescription of Norco. No mention is made of her having had the prior surgical procedure with Dr. Kerr which is something that would have been included in the record had it been disclosed by Mrs. Ballard. Hours later on the same date, however, Mrs. Ballard told a different story completely to Dr. Kerr, and she said that she was having pain in her buttocks with no mention of having fallen down any stairs.

In this wrongful death action, the inconsistent statements of Mrs. Ballard are proper to raise to the jury to consider.

A. The Defense is Entitled to Introduce Mrs. Ballard's Air Force Medical Record For Impeachment Purposes.

The Defense is entitled to introduce the Air Force medical record of Mrs. Ballard for impeachment purposes. The Plaintiff in this case, Charles Ballard, stands in the shoes of Krystal Ballard and may not recover in this case unless Krystal Ballard could have recovered had she sued the Defendants herself. The Plaintiff is subject to all of the defenses of the Defendants to claims and suits of Krystal Ballard as if she had sued the Defendants, and the Plaintiff is subject to the Rules of Evidence that would apply if Krystal Ballard had sued the Defendants. For this reason, the inconsistent statements of Krystal Ballard can be used for impeachment purposes when offered into evidence by the Defense, regardless that Krystal Ballard made those statements. The credibility of Mrs. Ballard should in all fairness be subject to impeachment since the Plaintiff stands in her shoes.

Defendants are entitled to impeach Krystal Ballard with her obviously inconsistent statements. The jury is entitled to know that Mrs. Ballard told the Air Force health care provider that she was in pain in her back not her buttocks and that it was because she slid down the stairs, not from the surgical procedure. The jury is entitled to know that within about two hours of her statement to the Air Force Medical Clinic, Mrs. Ballard told Dr. Kerr something completely different. The jury should be entitled to make its own observations and come to its own conclusions with respect to Mrs. Ballard's truthfulness and credibility. A jury could infer that since the two aforementioned statements are inconsistent, that Krystal Ballard's other statements to Dr. Kerr and others are untruthful.

B. The Inconsistent Statements of Mrs. Ballard are Imputed to Plaintiff Charles Ballard in this Wrongful Death Action.

The Defense submits that Idaho law supports that the inconsistent statements of Mrs. Ballard are imputed to Plaintiff Charles Ballard. A decedent's negligence in a wrongful death action is imputed to the plaintiff due to the derivative nature of a wrongful death action. See Woodburn v. Manco, 137 Idaho 502, 506, 50

P.3d 997, 1001 (2002) (stating that the negligence of a decedent is imputed to a plaintiff in a wrongful death action). By this same reasoning, a decedent's inconsistent statements would also be admissible to impeach the actions of the decedent in a wrongful death action.

C. I.R.E. 806 Also Supports that the Defense Should be Allowed to Introduce the Medical Record for Impeachment Purposes.

Idaho Rules of Evidence Rule 806 provides as follows:

> When a hearsay statement,[1] or a statement defined in Rule 801(d)(2), (C), (D), or (E), has been admitted in evidence, the credibility of the declarant may be attacked, and if attacked may be supported, by any evidence which would be admissible for those purposes if declarant had testified as a witness. Evidence of a statement or conduct by the declarant at any time, inconsistent with declarant's hearsay statement, is not subject to any requirement that declarant may have been afforded an opportunity to deny or explain. If the party against whom a hearsay statement has been admitted calls the declarant as a witness, the party is entitled to examine the declarant on the statement as if under cross-examination.

I.R.E. 806 (emphasis added).

It is apparent that I.R.E. 806 contemplates the use of impeachment evidence in order to call into question the hearsay statements of non-testifying declarants. See State v. Hernandez, 191 Ariz. 553, 557, 959 P.2d 810, 814 (Ct. App. 1998) (finding that Arizona Rule of Evidence 806, which is similar to I.R.E. 806, "clearly contemplates use of impeachment evidence to discredit hearsay statements by non-testifying declarants . . . ."). The language of I.R.E. 806 indicates that the credibility of an unavailable hearsay declarant can be attacked, and this is evident by the language in I.R.E. 806 which states that any evidence that would be admissible if declarant had testified as a witness is admissible to support the impeachment of that declarant.

---

1 This refers to all hearsay statements regardless whether those hearsay statements could be introduced at trial because they fall within one of the hearsay exceptions. A statement that falls within a hearsay exception is still considered hearsay, and the hearsay exceptions contained within the rules of evidence do not alter the fact that these statements are still hearsay statements.

In the present case, Mrs. Ballard's medical records, including statements she made to various health care providers, have been admitted into evidence because they fall within one or more hearsay exceptions. Particularly, Defendant Dr. Kerr's records pertaining to his care and treatment of Mrs. Ballard have been admitted. These records, which have been admitted by stipulation, also fall within several hearsay exceptions. For example, the hearsay exception contained within I.R.E. 803(4) allows statements made for purposes of medical treatment to be admitted. See I.R.E. 803(4). Further, the medical records also fall within the business records exception. See I.R.E. 803(6); United States v. Hall, 419 F.3d 980, 987 (9th Cir. 2005) (finding that medical records from a hospital visit fall within the business records exception, and statements made to a doctor fall within the statements made for purpose of medical diagnosis or treatment exception). These two exceptions apply to allow the introduction of Dr. Kerr's medical records containing statements of Mrs. Ballard.

Since the hearsay statements of Mrs. Ballard to Defendant Dr. Kerr have been admitted, impeachment evidence of Mrs. Ballard's statements to the Air Force health care provider should also be admitted, pursuant to I.R.E. 806. See I.R.E. 806. Defendants submit that they are entitled to impeach Mrs. Ballard's statements by any means that would have been permissible had Mrs. Ballard been present and testified. See I.R.E. 806; State v. Hernandez, 191 Ariz. 553, 557, 959 P.2d 810, 814 (Ct. App.

1998) (quoting State v. Valencia, 186 Ariz. 493, 501, 924 P.2d 497, 505 (App.1996) ("Rule 806 'specifically permits impeachment of a hearsay statement made by an absent declarant by any means which would have been permissible had the declarant been present and testified.'"). Since pursuant to I.R.E. 613(b) the Defense could have introduced the Air Force medical record had Mrs. Ballard testified at trial, it follows that the Defense should be able to introduce the record in Mrs. Ballard's absence pursuant to I.R.E. 806.

Further, there is no question that the statement contained within the Air Force medical record regarding the fall down the stairs is attributable to Mrs. Ballard. Although Kristina Swartz will not be testifying at trial, the Court can reasonably infer from the face of the Air Force record that Mrs. Ballard was the actual source of the statements at issue. It is clear from the record that Mrs. Ballard is the only source of the information, as there is no indication that anyone else attended the appointment with her. The record is clear, and there is no ambiguity presented in the record that would indicate that anyone other than Mrs. Ballard made the statement.

The Defense respectfully submits that it should be allowed to introduce the Air Force medical record to impeach Mrs. Ballard because I.R.E. 806 supports admitting the Air Force record regardless that Mrs. Ballard will not be testifying at trial. Had Mrs. Ballard testified at trial, I.R.E. 613(b) would have supported the introduction of the Air Force record, as I.R.E. 613(b) allows the admission of extrinsic evidence of a prior inconsistent statement when the witness is afforded an opportunity to explain or deny the inconsistent statement. See I.R.E. 613(b). Since I.R.E. 613(b) would have supported the admission of the record had Mrs. Ballard testified at trial, it follows that I.R.E. 806 supports the admission of the Air Force medical record.

D. Impeachment Exhibits Are Not Required to Be Disclosed.

Defendants submit that they are not required to disclose impeachment evidence under the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure. Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure Rule 16(h) provides as follows:

> In the event no final pre-trial conference is held, the court may enter an order directing the parties to file with the court and serve on all opposing counsel, or upon parties not represented by counsel, a list of all exhibits to be offered at trial and a list of the names and addresses of all witnesses which such party may call to testify at the trial, except for impeachment witnesses and exhibits. Any exhibits or witnesses discovered after such disclosure shall immediately be disclosed to the court and opposing counsel by filing and service stating the date upon which the same was discovered. Failure to comply with this rule may be grounds for excluding an exhibit from admission into evidence or for excluding a witness from testifying in the trial of the action. Provided the court, for good cause shown and in order to prevent injustice may permit additional exhibits to be used or additional witnesses to testify at the trial.

I.R.C.P. 16(h) (emphasis added).

Since impeachment evidence is not required to be disclosed, Defendants respectfully submit that they should be allowed to introduce Mrs. Ballard's July 23, 2010 Air Force medical record for impeachment purposes. Moreover, the Air Force medical records that Defendants seek to admit were produced by Plaintiff more than a year ago in discovery. Furthermore, these records were referred to by Dr. Stiller at the first trial last November. As a result, there is no unfair surprise, and Plaintiff is well aware of both the existence and the contents of the record.

Therefore, Defendants request that this Court allow the use of the July 23, 2010 Air Force medical record for impeachment purposes. The jury is entitled to know about Mrs. Ballard's inconsistent statements so it can make its own observations and conclusions regarding her veracity and because there is no unfair surprise to Plaintiff.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

PLAINTIFF'S REQUEST FOR CURATIVE JURY INSTRUCTION TO ADDRESS DEFENDANTS' VIOLATION OF PRETRIAL RULING

Prior to the trial in this matter, this Court instructed the parties that no mention of the previous trial in November 2013 should occur in front of the jury. The Court further ruled that to the extent it was necessary to refer to witness testimony from this prior trial, the parties could prefer to a "prior proceeding" or prior testimony without referring to a "trial." Notwithstanding the Court's ruling in this regard, defense witness Briana (Kerr) Dumas referred to this prior trial during her testimony before the jury on September 25, 2014. This testimony prejudices Mr. Ballard as the jury may now speculate about why there was a prior trial, why there is now a second trial and question the validity of his claims. The Court recognized as much in its very clear directive that no mention of this prior trial be made.

ORIGINAL

Accordingly, Plaintiff requests that the Court give the following curative jury instruction to address this violation of the Court's ruling:

> You have heard reference during this trial to a prior proceeding in November 2013. Yesterday, a witness for the defendants testified that this prior proceeding was a prior trial in this case. I had instructed the parties before the start of this trial that no mention of this prior trial should be made because I was afraid that a reference to a prior trial would influence your decision in this case. My instruction was not followed by this defense witness.
>
> I am now compelled to inform you that a trial in the case now before you began in November of 2013, but it was not completed or submitted to the prior jury. It was not completed because a defense witness in that trial failed to abide by a pretrial ruling from this court. This violation prejudiced Mr. Ballard to such a degree that I declared a mistrial and ordered a new trial.
>
> The fact that this earlier trial was not completed should not play a part in your deliberations or consideration of the evidence in this case.

DATED this 26th day of September, 2014.

Case No.: CV OC 2012-04792

REVISED ORDER RE: UNAUTHORIZED RECORDING/TRANSCRIBING AND USE OF UNOFFICIAL TRANSCRIPTS

The prior order is withdrawn

On September 26, 2014, late in the afternoon session in this trial, defendants' counsel, Terrence Jones, attempted to place before the jury in this case an unofficial transcript of the testimony of Dr. Groben, a witness who had testified in the first week of the trial for the plaintiff. Mr. Jones represented to the court and the jury that it was a transcript of Dr. Groben's trial testimony. Plaintiff's counsel made a timely objection which was sustained since it was not proper to show the purported transcript in any event. The court's official reporter almost immediately advised the court that she had not been asked to prepare Dr. Groben's full trial testimony and had not prepared any official transcript of Dr. Groben's trial testimony. She later advised the court that she had given a small portion of unedited, rough notes to counsel but cautioned counsel that it was not an official transcript and could not be used in that fashion.

It is a fundamental duty of every court to preserve the integrity of all trials and trial records. There are strict rules adopted by the Idaho Supreme Court which govern the qualifications and training of district court reporters. The Supreme Court's rules are designed to ensure the integrity of the record. Court reporters are sworn officers of the court who are bound by their oath to honestly and accurately prepare transcripts of court proceedings and make a verbatim record of all oral communications. A court reporter certified in accordance with ICAR 21 is required to report all civil trials. Standards of accuracy are required for official transcripts. ICAR 27 (e) provides:

> (e) Use of official transcripts of district court proceedings. In all cases where a party desires to place in evidence a transcript or partial transcript of a district court proceeding, or disclose the contents of a transcript during the examination of a witness, the transcript must be an official transcript as provided in subsection (d) of this rule.

In order to ensure that the record is accurate and meets the requirements of Idaho law:

1. No document purporting to be a trial transcript of this trial or the previous trial which ended in a mistrial as a result of the defense violation of an order in limine may be shown in any manner whatsoever in open court without first advising the court of the intention to do so and the legitimate legal basis for doing so outside the presence of the jury with sufficient time for the court to confirm that it is indeed an official transcript.

2. No counsel may engage in any recording of these proceedings by any device whatsoever for the recording or transmission of sounds or images from this trial. No electronic device capable of recording or transmitting sounds or images shall be activated while the electronic device is in the courtroom.

3. The bailiff will be directed to confiscate any devices used in violation of this Order and they will not be returned until the jury has rendered its verdict. The bailiff is authorized to inspect for recording devices being used in violation of this Order.

It is so ordered.

PLAINTIFF'S REQUEST FOR SUPPLEMENTAL JURY INSTRUCTIONS RE DEATH CERTIFICATE AND THE ELEMENT OF PROXIMATE CAUSE

Plaintiff, Charles Ballard, through his attorneys, requests that the Court use the appended instruction regarding a certificate of death and proximate cause in addition to the instructions previously submitted by Plaintiff. St. Luke's Regional Medical Center, et al.*, 135 Idaho 775, 25 P.3d 88 (2001) (proximate cause). Both instructions are accurate statements of the law and will assist the jury in deciding this case.

AFFIDAVIT OF COUNSEL IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANT'S OFFER OF PROOF RE: RECORDS OF DR. KERR'S EXPERIENCE PERFORMING LIPOSUCTION

STATE OF IDAHO)
: Ss.
County of Ada)

Jeremiah A. Quane, having been first duly sworn upon oath, deposes and says:

1). I am a member of the law firm of Quane Jones McColl, PLLC, attorneys of record for Defendants in the above-captioned action, and the following statements are made of my own personal knowledge and are true and correct.

2). The court has ruled that the defense may not utilize defense trial Exhibit AA, a copy of which is attached hereto and labeled as Exhibit AA. This document does not refer to infections or complications or lack thereof, but rather simply lists Defendant Dr. Kerr's other liposuction procedures up through 2010. Plaintiff's objected to the use of this exhibit or any reference being made to the absence of other patient infections on the ground that the medical records for all of these patients were not timely produced to Plaintiff's counsel. While the court has ruled on this issue, the defense was not allowed the opportunity to make a record in this trial opposing the Plaintiff's contentions. The following is offered for that purpose.

3). That attached hereto as Exhibit A is a true and correct copy of excerpts of Dr. Thomas Coffman's deposition which was taken by the Plaintiff on August 20, 2013. At his deposition on pages 40-41, Plaintiff's counsel, Mr. Haddad, refers to, having received the document which comprises exhibit AA, Dr. Kerr's patient list which contains the first names for patients undergoing 388 other liposuction procedures Dr. Kerr had performed including Krystal Ballard.

4). That on September 16, 2013, Dr. Kerr supplemented his discovery response to Plaintiff's Interrogatory No. 20 in which the patient list was again referred to and Susie Kerr is identified as the person who will testify about it. A true and correct copy of this discovery supplementation is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

5). That on September 26, 2013, counsel for Dr. Kerr wrote to Mr. Haddad stating that Plaintiff's counsel's Susie Kerr's request to conduct a second deposition of Susie Kerr was made less than 60 days prior to trial and outside the time frame provided for in the Court's scheduling order and that the Defense would not voluntarily agree to produce her for a second time on that basis. A true and correct copy of that letter is attached hereto as Exhibit C.

6). That on Friday, September 27, 2013, Plaintiff's counsel, Mr. Haddad, issued a notice of deposition duces tecum for Susie Kerr for her to sit for a second deposition on Tuesday, October 2, 2013 at noon. A true and correct copy of that document is attached hereto as Exhibit D.

7). That on Tuesday, October 1, 2013, counsel for Dr. Kerr sent an email to Plaintiff's counsel, Mr. Haddad, confirming that Susie Kerr will not be produced the following day because the notice of deposition was untimely and based on defense counsel's letter of September 26. Plaintiff was informed that if he still sought to further depose Susie Kerr that he would need to seek court involvement. A true and correct copy of that document is attached hereto as Exhibit E.

8). Nothing further was done to address this issue by Plaintiff's counsel who then waited until the trial in November 2013, to instead represent to the court that the Defense had been properly requested, but had failed to produce the materials related to other patient medical records. The defense disputes that the medical records of other patients were ever properly or timely requested in discovery by Plaintiff's counsel and that the attached documents establish this fact which the defense has now tried on multiple occasions to share with the court despite rulings that information regarding other patient infections will not be admitted at this trial.

FURTHER your Affiant saith not.

Jeremiah A. Quane

but do you know any of the solutions that were used by Dr. Kerr as part of his cleaning and disinfecting the materials?

A. No.

Q. You have listed private practice infectious disease. I take it the bulk of your practice is probably being called in on a consult in a hospital setting?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Your private practice, does that simply involve follow-up to patients that you might have consulted with in the hospital that need outpatient assessment and treatment?

A. Yeah. We do -- we see patients, you know, outpatient consults in the office, too, for different kinds of things, fevers or swollen glands, things like that. And we have a pretty big HIV practice that we take care of.

Q. Now, Doctor, among the materials that you brought with you, Mr. Quane kind of explained it to me off the record, but I want to explain it, make sure I have an understanding on the record. There appears to be as part of the packet of materials that you brought with you comprising your file is various sheets that contain the first name of patients, dates of treatment, and then the procedures performed at Silk Touch. Is that your understanding?

A. That is.

Q. Do you have an understanding as to how these sheets were created?

A. I believe that the people at Silk Touch pulled up the names of -- and procedures of people they worked on the last several years and compiled them.

Q. Is there anything else other than getting this list that had the patient name, the date of treatment, and procedure, is there anything else you were given or shown regarding patient outcomes in any of these patients?

A. No.

Q. There is -- Mr. Quane has it for you. He indicated that it might contain certain tabs to it, which is the defendants' answers to the third set of discovery requests. And you understand part of this incorporates anticipated opinions that you may hold in this case. Do you understand that?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Had you been sent by e-mail or

Re: Ballard v. Kerr
Our File No. 1107/25-938

Dear Mr. Haddad:

The records and data compiled by Susie Kerr regarding infections and patients which you erroneously claim was untimely supplemented in my Answer to your Interrogatory Number 20 was produced for you at your deposition of Dr. Coffman on August 20, 2013. You have had this data for one month before you ever brought up the subject of deposing Susie Kerr. If anything, you are the one who is untimely and you seem to always cast blame on me for your dilatory conduct. The records and data under discussion was prepared shortly before August 20, 2013 for the purpose of being a trial exhibit and it did not exist before and therefor it was not available for production or reference in supplementation to answers to written discovery. In fact, since it will be used only as a trial exhibit, the court Order governing further proceedings does not require its identification and disclosure until either 14 days or 7 days before trial. The Order also provides that the last day to take discovery depositions shall be no later than sixty (60) days prior to trial. Your request to depose Susie Kerr (September 20, 2013) was not made within the time frame of the Court Order.

I must have you provide me with legal authority and support for your claimed right to depose Susie Kerr. I did you a favor by producing the data at the deposition of Dr. Coffman on August 20, 2013.

You also contend that Dr. Garrison untimely disclosed his opinion on fat emboli at his deposition for the first time. I agree that his opinion was first disclosed at his deposition but I do not agree it was untimely. It was formed by Dr. Garrison a few days before his deposition and therefor it was not subject to disclosure in his two prior expert disclosures or at any time before it was formulated by him. He did not tell me about his opinion until the day before the deposition. I am always amazed when lawyers take depositions of opposing experts and ask about opinions of the expert not previously disclosed. It makes no sense or logic why lawyers want to know of opinions of experts that have not been previously disclosed when such undisclosed opinions are not admissible in evidence. Why ask? You are the one who caused the new opinion of Dr. Garrison on fat embolism to be brought out and as a result, you must now live with the opinion. But for you, it would not even exist. The deposition of an opposing expert taken after the expert has given a disclosure of opinions constitutes a valid disclosure of opinions elicited at the deposition, even if new. You did the same thing at the deposition of Dr. Coffman and I objected but you persisted and got an opinion of sorts on an issue not previously described in the disclosure of Dr. Coffman. You also went into details about fat embolism and the basis for the opinions of Dr. Garrison at the deposition. This included references to the chest x-ray at Elmore Medical Center and the report of Dr. Morgan, both of which made reference to fat embolism. You now claim that you could not adequately prepare for his deposition because you did not have notice of his opinion in advance. This is an absurd position because you would not be prepared when you brought up the matter of fat embolism which you should not have done, but you did. You must live with your contention that you were not prepared and I know of no legal authority that gives you the right to take another deposition of Dr. Garrison. You have put yourself in an awkward position and if you will provide me legal authority and support for taking another deposition of Dr. Garrison I will consider your request.

Very truly yours,

/s/

Greg:

I have been out of state on other matters. I see you sent out a notice of depo for Ms. Kerr for tomorrow. In addition to your notice being untimely, please be advised she will not be attending. Neither the witness nor Jerry are available in addition to which this witness has already been deposed and we object to producing her again. I am covering the depo of Dr. Laurence tomorrow while Jerry is out of state on other matters. You will need to take up the issue of obtaining a further depo of Ms. Kerr with the court consistent with Jerry's correspondence to you on this issue. I am working on getting the file for Dr. Laurence emailed to you later today so you will have it in advance of tomorrow. Please note that we also object to the breadth of your depo notice for Dr. Laurence and the limited time we have had to try and respond. We will do our best to have the requested information.

Terry.

AFFIDAVIT OF TERRENCE S. JONES IN RESPONSE TO THE COURT'S ORDER RE: UNAUTHORIZED RECORDING AND USE OF UNOFFICIAL TRANSCRIPTS

STATE OF IDAHO)
: Ss.
County of Ada)

Terrence S. Jones, having been first duly sworn upon oath, deposes and says:

1). I am a member of the law firm of Quane Jones McColl, PLLC, attorneys of record for Defendants in the above-captioned action, and the following statements are made of my own personal knowledge and are true and correct.

2). That on September 30, 2014 I came to court to commence the 9th day of trial in this matter and received from the court an order questioning whether I created a document and constructed it to look like a page from a trial transcript of Dr. Groben who testified earlier in this case. This order was withdrawn and a revised order was issued the afternoon of September 30, 2014, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A .

3). That during this trial the defense has requested from the court reporter, Susan Gambee, copies of transcripts for various witnesses. Following Dr. Groben's testimony last week I similarly requested a copy of the cross examination for Dr. Groben.

4). That attached hereto as Exhibit B is a true and correct copy of the email I received from the court reporter, Susan Gambee, along with the one page attachment reflecting the cross examination testimony of Dr. Groben. The document at issue came directly from the court reporter and was not generated in any way by defense counsel. It was not relayed to me that this one page cross examination testimony of Dr. Groben was "rough notes."

5). Had I known the authenticity of this document was ever in question, I would have gladly shared that I received it from the official court reporter for this trial who has been present each and every day of this trial and who emailed the document to me on September 19th.

FURTHER your Affiant saith not.

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D.; SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER, and LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.	Case No.: CV OC 2012-04792 REVISED ORDER RE: UNAUTHORIZED RECORDING/TRANSCRIBING AND USE OF UNOFFICIAL TRANSCRIPTS The prior order is withdrawn

On September 26, 2014, late in the afternoon session in this trial, defendants' counsel, Terrence Jones, attempted to place before the jury in this case an unofficial transcript of the testimony of Dr. Groben, a witness who had testified in the first week of the trial for the plaintiff. Mr. Jones represented to the court and the jury that it was a transcript of Dr. Groben's trial testimony. Plaintiff's counsel made a timely objection which was sustained since it was not proper to show the purported transcript in any event. The court's official reporter almost immediately advised the court that she had not been asked to prepare Dr. Groben's full trial testimony and had not prepared any official transcript of Dr. Groben's trial testimony. She later advised the court that she had given a small portion of unedited, rough notes to counsel but cautioned counsel that it was not an official transcript and could not be used in that fashion.

It is a fundamental duty of every court to preserve the integrity of all trials and trial records. There are strict rules adopted by the Idaho Supreme Court which govern the qualifications and training of district court reporters. The Supreme Court's rules are designed to ensure the integrity of the record. Court reporters are sworn officers of the court who are bound by their oath to honestly and accurately prepare transcripts of court proceedings and make a verbatim record of all oral communications. A court reporter certified in accordance with ICAR 21 is required to report all civil trials. Standards of accuracy are required for official transcripts. ICAR 27 (e) provides:

> (e) Use of official transcripts of district court proceedings. In all cases where a party desires to place in evidence a transcript or partial transcript of a district court proceeding, or disclose the contents of a transcript during the examination of a witness, the transcript must be an official transcript as provided in subsection (d) of this rule.

In order to ensure that the record is accurate and meets the requirements of Idaho law:

1. No document purporting to be a trial transcript of this trial or the previous trial which ended in a mistrial as a result of the defense violation of an order in limine may be shown in any manner whatsoever in open court without first advising the court of the intention to do so and the legitimate legal basis for doing so outside the presence of the jury with sufficient time for the court to confirm that it is indeed an official transcript.

2. No counsel may engage in any recording of these proceedings by any device whatsoever for the recording or transmission of sounds or images from this trial. No electronic device capable of recording or transmitting sounds or images shall be activated while the electronic device is in the courtroom.

3. The bailiff will be directed to confiscate any devices used in violation of this Order and they will not be returned until the jury has rendered its verdict. The bailiff is authorized to inspect for recording devices being used in violation of this Order.

It is so ordered.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. QUANE:

Q. I only have one or two questions, Dr. Groben.

A. That's good.

Q. Good? That make you happy?

A. Sure.

Q. Okay. You said just moments ago you had no idea how bugs got into the tissue in the right buttocks. Correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Okay. When you say that as the pathologist conducting the autopsy, are you saying that you cannot determine or conclude that the bugs got into the right buttocks from instruments used by Dr. Kerr?

A. That's right.

MR. QUANE: That's all I have, Judge.

THE COURT: Okay.

Attorneys for Defendants

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF
THE FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT
OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND
FOR THE COUNTY OF ADA

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D., SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER AND LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.	Case No. CV OC 1204792 TRIAL BRIEF

Defendants, by and through their counsel of record, Quane Jones McColl, PLLC, hereby submit the following Trial Brief:

I. The IDJI 2d Instructions Do Not Reflect The Law In Idaho And Should Not Be Used

It is well settled that the jury instructions as a whole must properly and adequately instruct the jury on the applicable law. State v. Row, 131 Idaho 303, 310, 955 P.2d 1082, 1089 (1998); State v. Rozajewski, 130 Idaho 644, 646, 945 P.2d 1390, 1392 (Ct. App.1997). Reversible error occurs where jury instructions mislead the jury or prejudice the complaining party. Row, 131 Idaho at 310, 955 P.2d at 1089. The Court is required to provide instructions on all matters of law necessary for the jury's information. State v. Patterson, 126 Idaho 227, 230, 880 P.2d 257, 260 (Ct. App.1994). The Court should not use a jury instruction which misleads the jury or misstates the law. See State v. Humphreys, 134 Idaho 657, 659, 8 P.3d 652, 654 (2000); State v. Merwin, 131 Idaho 642, 647, 962 P.2d 1026, 1031 (1998). The defense contends that IDJI 2.10.1 and 2.10.3 misstate Idaho law and should not be given.

Idaho Code §_6-1012 provides the exclusive vehicle for Plaintiffs to prove standard of health care practice violations of Dr. Kerr. Further, Idaho Code §_6-1013 sets forth the foundation requirements governing the admissibility of expert testimony on the standard of health care practice. The Idaho Supreme Court has held that the language of these statutes should be strictly followed in instructing juries. In addition, the Idaho Supreme Court has given strong guidance as to the foundational requirements for admission of expert opinion testimony under these statutes. Idaho Code § 6-1012 provides in pertinent part:

> 6-1012. Proof of community standard of health care practice in malpractice case. -- In any case, claim or action for damages due to injury to or death of any person, brought against any physician and surgeon or other provider of health care, including without limitation, . . . on account of the provision of or failure to provide health care or on account of any matter incidental or related thereto, such claimant or plaintiff must, as an essential part of his or her case in chief, affirmatively prove by direct expert testimony and by a preponderance of all the competent evidence, that such > defendant then and there negligently failed to meet the applicable standard of health care practice of the community in which such care allegedly was or should have been provided, as such standard existed at the time and place of the alleged negligence of such physician and surgeon, hospital or other such health care provider and as such standard then and there existed with respect to the class of health care provider that such defendant then and there belonged to and in which capacity he, she or it was functioning. Such individual providers of health care shall be judged in such cases in comparison with similarly trained and qualified providers of the same class in the same community, taking into account his or her training, experience, and fields of medical specialization, if any. If there be no other like provider in the community and the standard of practice is therefore indeterminable, evidence of such standard in similar Idaho communities at said time may be considered. As used in this act, the term "community" refers to that geographical area ordinarily served by the licensed general hospital at or nearest to which such care was or allegedly should have been provided. (Emphasis added.)

Idaho Code § 6-1012 thus provides the exclusive vehicle for recovery in a wrongful death case against a physician and the jury must be instructed based on the language used in the statute.

In addition, Idaho Code § 6-1013 requires:

> 6-1013. Testimony of expert witness on community standard. -- The applicable standard of practice and such a defendant's failure to meet said standard must be established in such cases by such a plaintiff by testimony of one (1) or more knowledgeable, competent expert witnesses, and such expert testimony may only be admitted in evidence if the foundation therefor is first laid, establishing (a) that such an opinion is actually held by the expert witness, (b) that the said opinion can be testified to with reasonable medical certainty, and (c) that such expert witness possesses professional knowledge and expertise coupled with actual knowledge of the applicable said community standard to which his or her expert opinion testimony is addressed; provided, this section shall not be construed to prohibit or otherwise preclude a competent expert witness who resides elsewhere from adequately familiarizing himself with the standards and prac> tices of (a particular) such area and thereafter giving opinion testimony in such a trial.

> (Emphasis added.)

The case of Morris v. Thomson, 130 Idaho 138, 937 P.2d 1212 (1997), reiterated the opinion of the Idaho Supreme Court that jury instructions in lawsuits for alleged medical malpractice should closely follow the language of Idaho Code §§_6-1012 and 6-1013. There, the plaintiffs in a medical malpractice suit appealed a jury verdict in favor of the defendant-physician. On appeal, the Idaho Supreme Court considered whether the district court had committed error in instructing the jury regarding the standard of health care practice. The district court gave the following instruction:

> The Idaho statute governing the proof of community standard of health care practice in a malpractice case provides, in relevant part, as follows: In any claim for damages against any physician such plaintiff must, as an essential part of his or her case in chief, affirmatively prove by direct expert testimony and by a preponderance of all the competent evidence, that such physician then and there negligently failed to meet the applicable standard of health care practice of the community in which such care allegedly was or should have been provided, as such standard existed at the time and place of the alleged negligence of such physician and as such standard then and there existed with respect to the class of physician that such physician then and there belonged to and in which capacity he or she was functioning.
>
> Such physician shall be judged in such cases in comparison with similarly trained and qualified physicians of the same class in the same community, taking into account his or her training, experience, and fields of medical specialization, if any. If there be no other like physician in the community and the standard of practice is therefore indeterminable, evidence of such standard in similar Idaho communities at said time may be considered. The term "community" refers to that geographical area ordinarily served by the licensed general hospital at or nearest to which such care was provided.

Id., 130 Idaho at 144-145, 937 P.2d at 1218-1219. The Idaho Supreme Court approvingly noted that this instruction mirrored the language of Idaho Code §_6-1012. The Court then stated "that it has consistently upheld instructions based upon §_6-1012" as they correctly explain the applicable standard of health care practice to the jury. Id., 130 Idaho at 145, 937 P.2d at 1219. See also Leazer v. Kiefer, 120 Idaho 902, 905, 821 P.2d 957, 960 (1991); Robertson v. Richards, 115 Idaho 628, 633, 769 P.2d 505, 510 (1987) (on rehearing, 1989). The Morris Court noted that the following instructions were given in Robertson:

>
> The plaintiffs in a medical malpractice case have the burden of proving, by direct expert testimony and by a preponderance of all competent evidence, that at the time and place of the alleged incident in question, the defendant negligently failed to meet the applicable standard of health care practiced in the community in which such care allegedly was or should have been provided as such standard then existed with respect to the class of health care provider to which the defendant belonged and in which he was functioning.
>
> * * *
>
>
> An individual provider of health care, such as the defendant in this case, shall be judged in comparison with similarly trained and qualified providers of the same class in the same community, taking into account his or her training, experience, and field of specialization.

Morris v. Thomson, supra, 130 Idaho at 148 n. 2, 937 P.2d at 1222 n. 2.

Following the Morris case, the Idaho Supreme Court more recently interpreted Idaho Code §6-1012 in the case of Shane v. Blair, 139 Idaho 126, 130, 75 P.3d 180 (2003), wherein the court noted that "the standard of care is simply the care typically provided under similar circumstances by the relevant type of health care provider in the community at the time and place of the alleged negligent act." See also McDaniel v. Inland Northwest Renal Care Group - Idaho, LLC, 159 P.3d 856 (2007). The Idaho Supreme Court also further confirmed Idaho Code § 6-1012's definition of the term "community" in Ramos v. Dixon, ____ Idaho ____, 156 P.3d 533 (2007) by affirming summary judgment for the defendant physician where plaintiff's expert failed to lay a proper foundation showing that he was familiar with the local Blackfoot community standard of health care practice. The Ramos court further stated that "Idaho Code §_6-1012 precludes assuming that the standard of care is uniform throughout Idaho." Id. at 539. Using the foregoing as the foundational background, the IDJI 2d medical malpractice instructions fail to comply with the statutory requirements of Idaho Code § 6-1012 and 6-1013 and should not be given. The two new pattern instructions to which the Defendants object provide as follows:

> IDJI 2.10.1 Standard of care: health care professionals as specialists
>
> INSTRUCTION NO. ___
>
> A health care provider undertaking the treatment or care of a patient has a duty to possess and exercise that degree of skill and learning ordinarily possessed and exercised by other health care providers of the same or similar speciality practicing in the community in which such care is provided. It is further the duty of health care providers to use reasonable care and diligence in the exercise of their skill and the application of their learning.
>
> The defendants Name and Name are health care providers within the meaning of this instruction.
>
> IDJI 2.10.3 Charging elements of medical negligence
>
> INSTRUCTION NO. ___
>
> On the claim of medical negligence against the defendant for failure to meet the standard of care, the plaintiff has the burden of proof on each of the following propositions:

1. That the defendant failed to meet the applicable standard of care as defined in these instructions;
2. That the plaintiff was injured;
3. That the acts of the defendant which failed to meet the applicable standard of care were a proximate cause of the injuries of the plaintiff; and
4. The elements of damage and the amount thereof.

Addressing IDJI 2.10.1 first, it not only fails to track the requirements of Idaho's malpractice statutes outlined above, but it goes even further by actually purporting to define a new standard of care applicable to the defendant. The pattern instruction states that it is the duty of "health care providers to use reasonable care and diligence in the exercise of their skill and application of their learning." This is not even a requirement specified by Idaho Code § 6-1012. Further, this jury instruction fails to specify that Defendant's conduct should be judged in comparison with similarly trained and qualified providers of the same class in the same community as the statute requires. The pattern instruction creates a legal standard which is totally repugnant to provisions of Idaho Code 6-1012.

Consistent with Idaho Code § 6-1012, the standard of health care practice is defined solely by the expert witnesses who testify at trial. IDJI 2.10.1 fails to state that plaintiff has the burden of proving, by direct expert testimony and by a preponderance of evidence that defendant failed to meet the applicable standard of health care practice as required by the statute. The expert witnesses define the standard applicable to the defendant and whether or not that standard was violated consistent with the foundational requirements of Idaho Code § 6-1013. This is why the Court should instruct the jury as outlined in the Defendants' proposed instructions which parrot Idaho Code.

Similarly, IDJI 2.10.3 improperly refers to the phrase "standard of care." This term has no application in Idaho and cannot be found in either Idaho Code §§ 6-1012 or 6-1013. The correct term as outlined in these statutes is "standard of health care practice" which is significantly different. The term standard of care will be confusing and misleading to the jury because by law the Defendants can only be found liable if the experts testify that Dr. Kerr's conduct fell below the standard of practice within the community applicable to him. This instruction fails to indicate that the plaintiffs must prove that a defendant failed to meet the community standard of health care practice in order to find the physician liable. The new IDJI 2d instructions fail to tract the requirements of Idaho's malpractice statutes and the case authority interpreting them and should not be employed by this Court.

Defendants, therefore, object to the use of any of the revised Idaho Jury Instructions (IDJI2d) and requests the Court to use those instructions proposed by the defense which have been tested and approved by the Idaho Supreme Court. Such a proposition is consistent with Idaho R. Civ. P. 51(a)(2) which states, that the Court should use the IDJI instructions "unless the judge finds that a different instruction would more adequately, accurately or clearly state the law." The defense contends that because the new pattern instructions do not adequately and accurately state the requirements of Idaho Code §§ 6-1012 and 6-1013 that they should not be used and the Defendants' instructions should be given instead.

II. Testimony Properly Admissible to a Party's Case-In-chief Cannot be Admitted in Rebuttal

The general rule is that testimony properly admissible in a party's case-in-chief cannot be admitted in rebuttal. Skogen v. Dow Chemical Co., 375 F.2d 692 (8th Cir. 1967); Page v. Barko Hydraulics, 673 F.2d 134 (5th Cir. 1982); United States v. McCollum, 732 F.2d 1419 (9th Cir. 1984); United States v. Clark, 617 F.2d 180 (9th Cir. 1980); LaRo Corp. v. Big D Oil Co., 824 F.2d 689 (8th Cir. 1987); and Gossett v. Weyerhauser Co., 856 F.2d 1154 (8th Cir. 1988). The fact that the proposed rebuttal testimony is important or necessary to remedy a perceived defect in plaintiffs' case-in-chief is no excuse. If the proffered testimony relates to plaintiffs' case-in-chief, it is subject to exclusion. Page, supra.

For instance, in 75 Am.Jur.2d Trials § 157, the author states:

> As a general rule, the party upon whom the affirmative of an issue devolves is bound to give all his evidence in support of the issue in the first instance, and will not be permitted to hold back part of his evidence confirmatory of his case and then offer it on rebuttal. Rebuttal testimony offered by the plaintiff should rebut the testimony brought out by the defendant and should consist of nothing which could have been offered in chief.

The trial court's right to exclude rebuttal testimony arises out of the Court's inherent power to control the mode and order or proof under Rule 611(a) of the Idaho Rules of Evidence. Smith v. Conley, 584 F.2d 844 (8th Cir. 1978). This Rule reads in pertinent part:

> Rule 611. Mode and Order of interrogation and presentation. - (a) Control by court. The court shall exercise reasonable control over the mode and order of interrogating witnesses and presenting evidence, so as to (1) make the interrogation and presentation effective for the ascertainment of the truth, (2) avoid needless consumption of time, and (3) protect witnesses from harassment or undue embarrassment.

The following discussion of analogous federal case authorities amply illustrates that a trial court has broad discretion to exclude rebuttal testimony which relates to the subject matter of the party's case-in-chief. For example, in Page v. Bark

Hydraulics, 673 F.2d 134 (5th Cir. 1982), the plaintiff sought recovery for the wrongful death of her son, who was killed in a fire allegedly caused by a limb lifter manufactured by the defendant. One of the allegations was that the defendant failed to warn of the danger of attempting to repair rather than replace a certain part of the lifter. The defendant offered evidence that the person who repaired the part in question on the day before the fire had not consulted defendant's repair manual and, therefore, any failure to warn was irrelevant. In rebuttal, the plaintiff sought to introduce testimony of the repairman's supervisor that the supervisor had read defendant's manual, which contained no such warning. The trial court excluded the supervisor's testimony, which was affirmed on appeal. The appellate court stated:

> The district judge acknowledged the relevance and importance of this testimony. However, he declined to permit plaintiff's lawyers to remedy what he perceived to be a defect in their case-in-chief through rebuttal testimony. The conduct of a fair trial is a matter within the trial judge's discretion. Excel Handbag Co. v. Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., 630 F.2d 379, 388 (5th Cir. 1980). The judge had forewarned all counsel that he intended to be strict in his rulings on rebuttal testimony. We find no abuse of discretion here.

673 F.2d at 140.

Moreover, in Skogen v. Dow Chemical Co., 375 F.2d 692 (8th Cir. 1967), the trial court's decision excluding rebuttal testimony was affirmed on appeal. One of the issues in Skogen was whether the use of an insecticide caused the severe and permanent injuries suffered by the plaintiffs. After the defendants submitted testimony regarding the lack of a causal connection, plaintiffs sought to call expert witness Dr. Quinby on rebuttal to establish that the symptoms of insecticide poisoning were similar to the injuries experienced by the plaintiffs. However, the trial court properly denied such testimony on the grounds that the evidence should have been offered by the plaintiffs during their case-in-chief.

After a defense verdict, the plaintiffs appealed, arguing that the rebuttal testimony should have been permitted. However, the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals reversed, stating that the case below was complicated and, therefore, the trial court had broad discretion to exclude rebuttal testimony in order to keep the issues clearly delineated. In support of this holding, the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals writes:

> Normally, parties are expected to present all of their evidence in their case-in-chief . . . At the time of the rebuttal request, we see that this was a complex case, covering many days of trial and many witnesses, producing volumes of complex scientific and medical exhibits, charts, and other data. In this situation, it is most difficult to keep the issues clearly delineated. An orderly presentation of evidence is essential.

Id., 375 F.2d at 705.

The Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals also pointed to plaintiff's lack of surprise as further support in affirming the lower Court:

> The issues were known to plaintiffs when they presented their case-in-chief. In fact, proof that the Skogen boys suffered from insect poisoning was a necessary element in their prima facie case. Likewise, the defense that the Skogen boys did not suffer from insect poisoning was certainly anticipated by plaintiffs. They did not demonstrate to the trial court's satisfaction, nor have they to ours, why Dr. Quinby was not called in plaintiffs' case-in-chief. It is altogether possible that plaintiffs kept Dr. Quinby in reserve, hoping to achieve some tactical advantage by a dramatic final statement on the issue. We think under all of the enumerated circumstances the trial court did not abuse its discretion in preventing plaintiffs from presenting rebuttal testimony.

Id., 375 F.2d at 706 (emphasis added).

The rationale behind the exclusion on rebuttal of expert testimony is based on policies of fairness and efficiency in the presentation of evidence. Rebuttal testimony is permissible to address an entirely new matter raised in the defense case-in-chief. The most obvious example of rebuttal is evidence produced to meet the burden of proof of an affirmative defense, on which the defendant has the burden. However, rebuttal is not designed to allow the plaintiff to withhold part of his case-in-chief and submit it in rebuttal. Parties are expected to present all of their evidence in their cases-in-chief rather than holding evidence back under the guise of rebuttal for the purpose of sand-bagging the opponent.

Even when the defense presents unanticipated evidence on completely new issues, the trial court nevertheless has the discretion to exclude rebuttal testimony on such matters in order to fairly and effectively control the mode and order of proof. For instance, rebuttal testimony is subject to exclusion if it is needlessly cumulative, of modest impeachment value, confusing, or would unduly delay an already lengthy trial consistent with I.R.E. 403. See also, Goldberg v. National Life Insurance Co. of Vermont, 774 F.2d 559 (2d Cir. 1985); VanDyke v. Coburn Enterprises, Inc., 873 F.2d 1094 (8th Cir. 1989); and Skogen, supra.

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D.; SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER AND LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.	Case No.: CV OC 2012-04792

JURY INSTRUCTIONS
THE HONORABLE. DEBORAH A. BAIL
DISTRICT JUDGE PRESIDING

INSTRUCTION NO. 1

These instructions define your duties as members of the jury and the law that applies to this case. Your duties are to determine the facts, to apply the law set forth in these instructions to those facts, and in this way to decide the case. In doing so, you must follow these instructions. You must consider them as a whole, not picking out one and disregarding others. You will have copies of these instructions in the jury room. If you do not understand an instruction, you may send a note to me through the bailiff and I will clarify the instruction or explain it more fully.

You are the judges of the facts. Your decision in this case should be based upon a rational and objective assessment of the evidence. Neither sympathy nor prejudice should influence you in your deliberations. Faithful performance by you of these duties is vital to the administration of justice.

In determining the facts, you may consider only the evidence admitted in this trial. This evidence consists of the testimony of the witnesses, the exhibits offered and received, and any stipulated or admitted facts. The production of evidence in court is governed by the rule of law. Except as explained in this instruction, none of my rulings were intended by me to indicate any opinion concerning the evidence in this case.

The arguments and remarks of the attorneys involved in this case are intended to help you in understanding the evidence and applying the instructions, but they are not themselves evidence. If any argument or remark has no basis in the evidence, then you should disregard it. However, there are two exceptions to this rule: (1) An admission of fact by one attorney is binding on his or her party; and (2) Stipulations of fact by all attorneys are binding on all parties.

The law does not require you to believe all of the evidence admitted in the course of the trial. As the sole judges of the facts, you must determine what evidence you believe and what weight you attach to it. In so doing, you bring with you to this courtroom all of the experience and background of you lives. In your everyday affairs, you determine for yourselves whom you believe, what you believe and how much weight you attach to what you are told. The same considerations that you use in your everyday dealings in making these decisions are the considerations which you should apply in your deliberations.

In evaluating the testimony, you should consider such things as: the interest, bias or prejudice of any witness in the outcome of this case; the age and appearance of the witness and the manner in which he or she gives his or her testimony; the opportunity that the witness had to observe the facts about which he or she testified; the contradiction, if any, of a witness's testimony by other evidence.

In evaluating the exhibits, you should consider such items as: the circumstances under which the exhibit was prepared; and the probability that the exhibit accurately reflects what it is intended to show in the light of the other evidence in the case.

INSTRUCTION NO. 2

The original instructions and the exhibits will be with you in the jury room. They are part of the official court record. For this reason, please do not alter them or mark on them in any way.

INSTRUCTION NO. 3

As members of the jury is your duty to decide what the facts are and apply those facts to the law that I have given you. You are to decide the facts from all the evidence presented in the case.

The evidence you are to consider consists of:

1. Sworn testimony of witnesses;

2. Exhibits which have been admitted into evidence; and Certain things you have heard or seen are not evidence, including:

1. Arguments and statements by lawyers. The lawyers are not witnesses. What they say in their opening statements, closing arguments and at other times is intended to help you interpret the evidence, but is not evidence. If the facts as you remember them differ from the way the lawyers have stated them, follow your memory;

2. Testimony that has been excluded or stricken, or which you have been instructed to disregard; and

3. Anything you may have seen or heard when the court was not in session.

INSTRUCTION NO. 4

The key part of your job as jurors is to decide how credible or believable each witness was. This is your job, not mine. It is up to you to decide if a witness's testimony was believable, and how much weight you think it deserves. You are free to believe everything that a witness said, or only part of it, or none of it at all. But you should act reasonably and carefully in making these decisions.

As you weigh the testimony, you can ask yourselves questions:

(A) Was the witness able to clearly see or hear the events? Sometimes even an honest witness may not have been able to see or hear what was happening, and may make a mistake.

(B) How good was the witness's memory?

(C) Was there anything else that may have interfered with the witness's ability to perceive or remember the events?

(D) How did the witness act while testifying? Did the witness appear honest or not?

(E) Did the witness have any relationship either party or anything to gain or lose from the case that might influence the witness's testimony? Did the witness have any bias or prejudice for or against either side?

(F) How believable was the witness's testimony ~~was~~ in light of all the other evidence? Was the witness's testimony supported or contradicted by other evidence that you found believable? If you believe that a witness's testimony was contradicted by other evidence, remember that people sometimes forget things, and that even two honest people who witness the same event may not describe it exactly the same way.

These are only some of the things that you may consider in deciding how believable each witness was. You may also consider other things that you think shed some light on the witness's believability.

Use your common sense and your everyday experience in dealing with other people. And then decide what testimony you believe, and how much weight you think it deserves.

INSTRUCTION NO. 5

Evidence may be either direct or circumstantial. Direct evidence is evidence that directly proves a fact. Circumstantial evidence is evidence that indirectly proves the fact, by proving one or more facts from which the fact at issue may be inferred. For example, if you see it snowing, you have direct evidence that it has snowed. If you don't see it snowing but wake up and find the ground is covered in snow, then you have circumstantial evidence that it snowed.

The law makes no distinction between direct and circumstantial evidence as to the degree of proof required; each is accepted as a reasonable method of proof and each is respected for such convincing force as it may carry

INSTRUCTION NO. 6

An "agent" is a person authorized by another, called the "principal," to act for or in the place of the principal. The principal is responsible for any act of the agent within the scope of the agent's scope of authority.

There is no dispute in this case that, at all relevant times, Dr. Brian Calder Kerr, Brianna Kerr Dumais and other staff were acting within the scope of their authority as agents of the principal, Silk Touch Laser, LLP, which was doing business as Silk Touch Med Spa, Silk Touch Med Spa and Laser Center, and Silk Touch Med Spa, Laser and Lipo of Boise. Therefore, Silk Touch Laser, LLP is responsible for their conduct at all relevant times.

INSTRUCTION NO. 7

When I say that a party has the burden of proof on a proposition, or use the expression "if you find" or "if you decide," I mean you must be persuaded that the proposition is more probably true than not true.

INSTRUCTION NO. 8

On his claim of medical negligence against Dr. Brian Calder Kerr for failure to meet the standard of care, the plaintiff has the burden of proof on each of the following propositions:

1. That Dr. Kerr failed to meet the applicable standard of care as defined in these instructions;

2. That the acts of Dr. Kerr, which failed to meet the applicable standard of care, were a proximate cause of the death of Krystal Ballard;

3. That the plaintiff was injured by the death of Krystal Ballard; and

4. The elements of damage and the amount thereof.

INSTRUCTION NO. 9

On his claim of medical negligence against Silk Touch Laser, LLP for failure to meet the standard of care, the plaintiff has the burden of proof on each of the following propositions:

1. That an agent of Silk Touch Laser, LLP, failed to meet the applicable standard of care as defined in these instructions;

2. That the acts of the agent, which failed to meet the applicable standard of care, were a proximate cause of the death of Krystal Ballard;

3. That the plaintiff was injured by the death of Krystal Ballard; and

4. The elements of damage and the amount thereof.

INSTRUCTION NO. 10

When I use the word "negligence" in these instructions, I mean the failure to use ordinary care in the management of one's property or person. The words "ordinary care" mean the care a reasonably careful person would use under circumstances similar to those shown by the evidence. Negligence may thus consist of the failure to do something which a reasonably careful person would do, or the doing of something a reasonably careful person would not do, under circumstances similar to those shown by the evidence.

INSTRUCTION NO. 11

A health care provider undertaking the treatment or care of a patient has a duty to possess and exercise that degree of skill and learning ordinarily possessed and exercised by other health care providers who are trained and qualified in the same or a similar field of care who practice in the same community. It is further the duty of health care providers to use reasonable care and diligence in the exercise of their skill and the application of their learning.

Dr. Brian Kerr and the defendants are health care providers within the meaning of this instruction.

INSTRUCTION NO. 12

When I use the expression "proximate cause," I mean a cause which, in natural or probable sequence, produced the injury, the loss, or the damage complained of. It is sufficient if it is a substantial factor in bringing about the injury, loss, or damage. It is not a proximate cause if the injury, loss, or damage likely would have occurred anyway.

There may be one or more proximate causes of an injury. When the negligent conduct of two or more persons or entities contributes concurrently as substantial factors in bringing about an injury, the conduct of each may be a proximate cause of the death regardless of the extent to which each contributes to the injury.

INSTRUCTION NO. 13

A witness who has special knowledge in a particular matter may give an opinion on that matter. In determining the weight to be given such opinion, you should consider the qualifications and credibility of the witness and the reasons given for his or her opinion. You are not bound by such opinion. Give it the weight, if any, to which you deem it entitled.

INSTRUCTION NO. 14

If the jury decides Charles Ballard is entitled to recover from the defendants, the jury must determine the amount of money that will reasonably and fairly compensate Mr. Ballard for any damages proved to be proximately caused by defendants' negligence.

The elements of damage the jury may consider are:

1. The reasonable cost of Krystal Ballard's funeral.

2. The reasonable value of necessary medical care and expenses incurred prior to Krystal Ballard's death.

3. The reasonable value to Charles Ballard of the loss of Krystal Ballard's services, training, comfort, conjugal relationship, and society and the present cash value of any such loss that is reasonably certain to occur in the future, taking into consideration the life expectancy of Mr. Ballard, Krystal Ballard's age and normal life expectancy, habits, disposition and any other circumstances shown by the evidence.

4. Charles Ballard's loss of financial support from Krystal Ballard, and the present cash value of financial support Krystal Ballard would have provided to Charles Ballard in the future, but for Krystal Ballard's death, taking into account Mr. Ballard's life expectancy, Krystal Ballard's age and normal life expectancy, Krystal Ballard's earning capacity, habits, disposition and any other circumstances shown by the evidence.

Death is inevitable. Although the law compensates for the untimeliness of a death caused by another, no damages are allowed for grief or sorrow.

INSTRUCTION NO. 15

When I use the phrase "present cash value" as to any damages that may accrue in the future, I mean that sum of money determined and paid now which, when invested at a reasonable rate of interest, would be sufficient to pay the future damages at the time and in the amount the future damages will be incurred.

INSTRUCTION NO. 16

Under a standard table of mortality, the life expectancy of a thirty-one year old man is 46.4 more years. This figure is not conclusive. It is an actuarial estimate of the average probable remaining length of life based upon statistical samples of death rates and ages at death in this country. This data may be considered in connection with all other evidence relating to the probable life expectancy of Charles Ballard, including his occupation, health, habits, and other activities.

Krystal Ballard was twenty-seven years old at the time of her death. Her life expectancy was 54.5 more years. This figure is not conclusive. It is an actuarial estimate of the average probable remaining length of life based upon statistical samples of death rates and ages at death in this country. This data may be considered in connection with all other evidence relating to the probable life expectancy of Krystal Ballard, including her occupation, health, habits, and other activities.

INSTRUCTION NO. 17

Whether a party has insurance is not relevant to any of the questions you are to decide. You must avoid any inference, speculation or discussion about insurance.

INSTRUCTION NO. 18

Willful or reckless misconduct, when used in these instructions and when applied to the allegations in this case, means more than ordinary negligence. Willful or reckless misconduct means intentional or reckless actions, taken under circumstances where the actor knew or should have known not only that his actions created an unreasonable risk of harm to another, but also that his actions involved a high degree of probability that such harm would actually result.

INSTRUCTION NO. 19

There was a reference to a prior proceeding or trial in November, 2013. This trial was not completed and was never presented to a jury for its determination.

INSTRUCTION NO. 20

In instructing you on the subject of damages, I do not express any opinion as to whether plaintiff is or is not entitled to damages.

INSTRUCTION NO. 21

The law forbids you to determine any issue in this case by chance. Thus, if you determine that a party is entitled to recover, you must not arrive at the amount of damages to be awarded by agreeing in advance to take the independent estimate of each juror of the amount to be awarded and then to average such estimates to set forth the amount of your award.

INSTRUCTION NO. 22

I have outlined for you the rules of law applicable to this case and have told you of some of the matters which you may consider in weighing the evidence to determine the facts. In a few minutes counsel will present their closing remarks to you; and then you will retire to the jury room for your deliberations. The attitude and conduct of jurors at the beginning of their deliberations are important. It is rarely productive for a juror, at the outset, to make and emphatic expression of opinion on the case or to state how he or she intends to vote. When one does that at the beginning, one's sense of pride may be aroused; there may be reluctance to change that position, even if shown that it is wrong. Remember that you are not partisans or advocates, but are judges. For you, as for me, there can be no triumph except in the ascertainment and declaration of the truth.

Consult with one another. Consider each other's views and deliberate with the objective of reaching an agreement, if you can do so without disturbing your individual judgment. Each of you must decide this case for yourself; but you should do so only after a discussion and consideration of the case with your fellow jurors.

INSTRUCTION NO. 23

If it becomes necessary during your deliberations to communicate with me, you may send a note signed by one or more of you to the bailiff. You should not try to communicate with me by any means other than such a note.

During your deliberations, you are never to reveal to anyone how the jury stands on any of the questions before you, numerically or otherwise, unless requested to do so by me.

INSTRUCTION NO. 24

Upon retiring to the jury room, you will select one of you as a presiding juror, who will preside over your deliberations. It is that person's duty to see that discussion is orderly; that the issues submitted for your decision are fully and fairly discussed; and that every juror has a chance to express himself or herself upon each question. Nothing is more important than jurors approaching deliberations in a careful, respectful way. Listen to each other. Share your views with each other. You and you alone are the judges of the facts.

An appropriate verdict form is submitted to you with these instructions. A verdict may be reached by three-fourths of your number, or nine of you. As soon as nine or more of you shall have agreed upon a verdict, you should fill out the verdict form, if necessary, and have it signed. If your verdict is unanimous, your foreperson alone will sign it; but if nine or more, but less that the entire jury agree, then those so agreeing will sign the verdict.

As soon as you have completed and signed the verdict, you will notify the bailiff, who will then return you into open court.

DATED This 3rd day of October, 2014.

NOTICE OF APPEAL

TO: THE ABOVE NAMED RESPONDENT, CHARLES BALLARD, AND THE PARTY'S ATTORNEYS, DAVID Z. NEVIN, SCOTT MCKAY, NEVIN, BENJAMIN, MCKAY & BARTLETT LLP, P.O. BOX 2772, BOISE, IDAHO 83701, P. GREGORY

a. Order of the District Court for a mistrial and the award of witness costs, expert witness fees, travel expenses and costs of the Plaintiff, travel expenses and attorney fees of Plaintiffs' attorney and jury fees of Ada County against Appellants as a result of the mistrial ordered by the District Court on November 14, 2013, entered in the above-entitled action on February 12, 2014, honorable Judge Deborah A. Bail presiding.

b. Order of the District Court for the award of expenses and costs against Appellants in the sum of $64,324.54 that must be paid by noon, March 21, 2014, Mountain Daylight Time as a result of the mistrial ordered by the District Court on November 14, 2013, entered in the above entitled action on March 12, 2014, Honorable Judge Deborah A. Bail presiding.

2. That the party has a right to appeal to the Idaho Supreme Court and the Judgment described in paragraph 1 above are appealable under and pursuant to Rule 11(1), I.A.R.

b. Whether the provisions of Rule 37(e), I.R.C.P., for the assessment of attorney fees, costs or expenses against a party or the party's attorney control, or apply to the violation of a Court Order on a Motion in Limine entered during trial.

c. Whether the provisions of Rule 47(u) for the payment of expenses and attorney fees is the controlling basis and authority for an Order of the District Court for payment of expenses and attorney fees.

d. Whether the District Court erred by failing to make a determination that an occurrence at trial prevented a fair trial for the Respondent in ordering a mistrial on November 14, 2013 that resulted in the Orders of the District Court of February 12, 2014 and March 12, 2014 for the award of costs, expenses and attorney fees against the Appellants.

e. Whether the District Court erred by failing to make a determination that the mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of the Appellants and their attorneys that resulted in the orders of the District Court of February 12, 2014 and March 12, 2014 for the award of costs, expenses and attorney fees against Appellants.

f. Case No. CV OC 1204792 PLAINTIFF'S VERIFIED MEMORANDUM OF COSTS AS A MATTER OF RIGHT, DISCRETIONARY COSTS AND ADJUSTED PREVIOUS AWARD OF SANCTIONS

COMES NOW, Plaintiff Charles Ballard, through his counsel of record, P. Gregory Haddad and the law firm of Bailey & Glasser LLP and Scott McKay of Nevin, Benjamin, McKay & Bartlett LLP, pursuant to Rule 54(d)(1) of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, following the entry of judgment in this matter on October 15, 2014, as well as the Court's previous award of sanctions related to the mistrial caused by the Defendants in November 2013.

ORIGINAL

STATEMENT OF ENTITLEMENT TO AWARD OF COSTS

Under the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, parties are entitled to recover costs if they are the "prevailing party." See I.R.C.P. 54(b)(1)(A). In this case, the Plaintiff was the prevailing party. The Defendants did not make an offer at any time. Ultimately, the Defendants were found negligent, reckless, and judgment was entered for $3,790,436.00. Plaintiff submits that there should not be any dispute that he was the prevailing party in this case. The Plaintiff also seeks adjustment of the sanction award ordered as a consequence of the mistrial occasioned by the Defendants to avoid duplication for application of costs as a matter of right covering the same monetary sanction.

DISCRETIONARY COSTS

Pursuant to Rule 54(d)(1)(D) of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, Plaintiff also requests an award of Discretionary Costs on the ground that the following lists of costs were necessary, reasonable and exceptional and incurred as a consequence of the retrial of this action and should in the interest of justice be assessed against the Defendants. As the Court is aware, this case was not defended as simple medical malpractice action. The Defendants identified three standard of care witnesses, all within the same specialty of cosmetic surgery, located both within and outside of the State of Idaho. Defendants did not call one of the experts, Dr. Gregory Laurence, yet a fee for deposition was incurred by Plaintiff for this cumulative expert. Further, despite an autopsy performed by an objective and non-retained pathologist, Dr. Glen Groben, Ada County Coroner, whose findings under Idaho law are deemed to be the prima facie cause of death, Defendants nonetheless identified a pathologist, Dr. Garrison, who ironically worked part-time at the Ada County Coroner's office, to rebut the cause of death identified in the autopsy report. The deposition of the pathologist occurred on two occasions after it was determined at his first deposition that he had additional opinions that had not been supplemented. Defendants did not call Dr. Garrison at trial. Further, because of the unique characteristics of the case, the Plaintiff was forced to present expert witnesses whose education, training and experience went far beyond that of a typical expert witness. Dr. Dean Sorensen had the unique experience of being an inspector of various cosmetic surgery facilities, which then brought to bear his experience of being able to identify the standard of care applicable to the entire Treasure Valley area and not simply testifying as to what his individual practice was. Dr. Nichols is a nationally-recognized expert who has authored a number of different articles, on issues directly relevant to the case. Also, this case is exceptional simply by virtue of the fact that the initial case ended in a mistrial occasioned by the Defendants' actions at a point in the original trial where Defendants had the benefit of hearing all of the Plaintiff's case; a second trial had to be continued due to injury to one of the Defendants, and ultimately a retrial which lasted three weeks, although a vast majority of trial time was consumed by defense counsel examining witnesses which further increased the costs of Plaintiff's experts, who were forced to undergo many, many hours of cross-examination. The Plaintiff's expert charges are in line on an hourly basis for what the Defendants' experts charged on an hourly basis, and therefore, were reasonable in cost. It is in the interest of justice that these discretionary costs should be awarded, especially in a situation where Defendants made no offer and forced Plaintiff to incur extraordinary costs in prosecuting the case, despite fairly clear and straightforward issues which should not have been in dispute. These costs are significant and justice requires the Plaintiff not be penalized by incurring such costs as the prevailing party.

The discretionary costs claimed in this matter are as follows:

A. Expert Witness Costs Above $2,000.00

George Nichols, M.D. – $10,000.00

AMFS (Dean Sorensen, M.D.) – $11,812.37

Cost for Previously-Awarded Sanctions

The Plaintiff hereby incorporates by reference Plaintiff's Memorandum of Attorney Fees and Costs previously submitted to the Court.

Because service of subpoenas is incorporated into the costs as a matter of right above, the costs incurred as a result of the mistrial occasioned by Defendants' conduct should be adjusted downward by $551.90, and, therefore, the Bailey & Glasser LLP incurred costs and expenses associated with the sanction previously imposed would change from $48,673.41 to $48,121.51. While the Court has not specifically ruled on the attorney's fees occasioned by the mistrial, Plaintiff's counsel would point out that a mistrial resulted in one month of lost work by the undersigned, P. Gregory Haddad, as well as Scott McKay and Farrah Caruthers, the undersigned's paralegal. A majority of the legal work of these attorneys and paralegal is hourly, not contingent, and therefore, a lost month because of the mistrial has actual and substantial impact on Plaintiff's counsel. Further, even if it is a contingency case, it would be unjust to cause counsel to lose one month of dedicated time that it could have devoted to either hourly work or contingency work occasioned solely and exclusively by the mistrial declared.

VERIFICATION

The undersigned, P. Gregory Haddad, hereby verifies and confirms, to the best of my personal knowledge and belief, that each of the above listed and described costs are correct, were actually incurred by our law firm on behalf of the Plaintiff in this litigation, and that all said costs are in compliance with Rule 54 of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure and its various subparts. As further verification and confirmation of these costs being correct and actually incurred, attached as Exhibit A hereto, a copy of a cost ledger generated by our firm in this litigation, listing all the costs actually incurred. This is a record of what is kept by our law firm in the regular course of business.

Dated this 28th day of October, 2014.

Rebekah, can you issue a check made payable to Tri-County Process Serving LLC in the amount of $363.00? This is for the Charles Ballard case. Also, once you do that, can you scan a copy and email it to me so I can send to them? They require pre-payment, but they said if I send them a copy of the check that is going to be mailed, they can go ahead and serve the Subpoenas.

Let me know if you need additional information to process this request. Thanks!

Hi Rebecca,

Thank you for speaking with me today. We have received your check number 42869 in the amount of $363.00 and 42947 in the amount of $286.00 and we will apply the funds as follows:

Check 42869
Invoice 130823 $125.00
Invoice 130824 $61.00
Invoice 130825 $61.00
Invoice 130826 $58.00
Invoice 130827 $58.00

Check 42947
Invoice 130993 $61.00
Invoice 130994 $58.00
Invoice 130995 $130.00
Invoice 130823 $37.00

Invoice 130823 and 130824 had incurred location fees of $45.00 each and the fee for invoice 130994 was less than anticipated. Once we apply the fees to the jobs, there will be $8.00 due on invoice 130823 and $45.00 on invoice 130824. I apologize for any confusion.

Thanks

Subject: check request

Importance: High

Rebekah,

I hate to do this to you because I know you a really busy, but is there any way I could get two checks today? This is for the upcoming Ballard trial in Idaho. These are checks to the Judge's court reporters to get the trial transcripts from the first trial so that our witnesses can review their testimony prior to the second trial. Our co-counsel asked for the checks to be sent via Fed Ex today to give to the court reporters.

1. Christie Valcich $442.00
   13333 N. 5th Avenue
   Boise, ID 83714
   SSN: [redacted]
2. Tiffany Fisher $90.00
   (getting her info)

If you will let me know when they are ready, I can come and get them.

Again, sorry for the rush request. Thanks!!

Farrah

Rebekah,

Our co-counsel paid an invoice for us and needs reimbursed. Can you mail a check made payable to Nevin Benjamin McKay & Bartlett, LLP in the amount of $166.00? This is for a copy of a trial transcript. I believe you have their Tax ID info, but let me know if you need anything else.

Thanks!

Greg, this is for the remainder of Sorensen's testimony. Debi should have it today or tomorrow and will forward when received.

Secure Flight and You

The Transportation Security Administration (TSA) requires you, when making a reservation, to provide your full name, date of birth and gender as it is shown on the identification document that you plan to present at airport security check-points. This information is not optional. The purpose of collecting this information is to allow TSA to perform terrorist watch list matching that is currently being done by each airline. Failure to provide the required elements in advance could: (1) inhibit your ability to get a boarding pass either at home or at the airport until the information has been provided; and, (2) require you to undergo additional airport security screening.

ALERT!

Checked Baggage policies vary by airline, destination, frequent flyer status, booking class, bag size and weight. Fees may apply if (1) you plan to check a bag or (2) you plan to carry sports equipment or an odd-shaped item or (3) your bag exceeds airline weight limits.
For more information please visit our website at WWW.NATIONALTRAVEL.COM

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR TRAVELERS WITH ELECTRONIC TICKETS-PLEASE READ!!

Airport Security procedure requires that all travelers obtain a boarding pass from the carrier to clear security checkpoints. Travelers should checkin with the carrier at their counter, kiosk, or website to obtain their boarding pass.

Carriage and other services provided by the carrier are subject to conditions of carriage, which are hereby incorporated by reference. These conditions may be obtained from the issuing carrier.

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D., SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER AND LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.	Case No. CV OC 1204792 DEFENDANTS MOTION TO DISALLOW PLAINTIFF'S MEMORANDUM OF COSTS

Defendants move the Court to disallow a portion of the Plaintiff's costs as a matter of right and the Plaintiff's discretionary costs.

Costs as a Matter of Right

Defendants object to item number 2 in Plaintiff's Memorandum of Costs as a Matter of Right entitled Service of Summons and Complaint and Subpoenas in the Amount of $2,453.90, except for the amount paid for service of the petitions of Plaintiff's two out-of-state attorneys for admission to practice and the Summons and Complaint in the sum of $94.00.

D

Rule 54(d)(1)(c)(2), I.R.C.P., provides "actual fees for service of any pleading or document in the action whether served by a public officer or other person." The Rule does not specify or refer to service of a subpoena, which it could have recited if service of subpoenas was intended as a recoverable cost. In the alternative, the sum of $2,453.90, less $94.00, is for service of subpoenas on witnesses for the trial in November of 2013, trial scheduled April 8, 2014 and the trial of September 2014. The costs of service of subpoenas for the trial of November 2013 were subsumed and included in the Plaintiff's Memorandum of Attorney Fees and Costs of February 18, 2014 and the verbal ruling of the Court at the hearing of March 12, 2014 for the award of $64,324.54 to the Plaintiff for costs associated with the mistrial.

Subpoenas were served on witnesses for the trial scheduled April 8, 2014, that was vacated on the emergency Motion of the Defendants. An award of costs for the postponement of a trial is governed by Rule 54(d)(3), I.R.C.P. It provides in pertinent part that the Court in its discretion may impose and tax costs and expenses occasioned thereby against the moving party as a condition to such postponement. The Defendant's Emergency Motion, Plaintiff's Response to the Motion and the certified original transcript of the court reporter, Susan Gambee for the court hearing on the Motion of April 2, 2014 do not specify or provide as a condition for granting the Motion the imposition of costs and expenses against the Defendants. Subpoenas were served by the Plaintiff for the trial of September 2014, on Dr. Campbell, Dr. Olson, Dr. Morgan, Dr. Schaff, Dr. Stemmler and

Dr. Groben. July Dr. Groben testified. The cost of service of these Subpoenas is $60.000 for all witnesses except the service on Dr. Olson of $133.00. Since only Dr. Groben testified the total for service of subpoenas for the trial of September 2014 is $60.00. In the alternative, the total cost of service of subpoenas for the September trial is $433.00, if the Court Rules that service of subpoenas is recoverable even though the witnesses served did not testify at trial.

Discretionary Costs

Defendants object to Plaintiff's Memorandum of Costs seeking an award for discretionary costs. There has been no showing by the Plaintiff that the requested costs were necessary and exception costs reasonably incurred and that the interest of justice demand that these costs should be assessed against the adverse party.

I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1)(D) sets out that discretionary costs "may be allowed upon a showing that said costs were necessary and exceptional costs reasonably incurred, and should in the interest of justice be assessed against the adverse party."

If costs claimed to be exceptional are of the type commonly incurred in a personal injury or wrongful death action, the Supreme Court has affirmed the rejection of those costs by the trial court. Fish v. Smith, 131 Idaho 492, 960 P.2d 175 (1998).

Plaintiff seeks discretionary costs for their experts, Drs. Nichols and Sorensen, stating, without empirical support, that Dr. Sorensen was unique and that "a vast majority of the trial was consumed" by the cross-examination of Plaintiff's experts.

The Court of appeals has held that claims for discretionary fees that are claimed as the "testimony of the witness was 'instrumental' and that the witness was examined 'at some length by both parties,'" is an insufficient basis for the award for costs which are exceptional and reasonably incurred. Evans v. State, 135 Idaho 422, 18 P.3d 227 (Ct. App. 2001).

Plaintiff seeks discretionary costs for the depositions of witnesses he elected to take, despite these witnesses having disclosures which Defendants consistently maintained were the sum total of their opinions. Plaintiff should not be awarded these rare and exceptional expenses, as the very nature of Drs. Laurence and Garrison's disclosures makes it clear that deposing them would not be necessary. The necessity of these at depositions is a requirement under Rule 54(d)(1)(D).

Plaintiff seeks discretionary costs for his lawyer and his lawyer's assistant's travel, room and board. It was Plaintiff who elected to retain out-of-state counsel. The interests of justice are not served by awarding discretionary costs to a party who selects counsel from another state. Mr. Haddad knew, when he took this case, that any trial would be in Boise and that the travel, room and board costs associated with that trial would be a cost of doing that business.

Plaintiff seeks discretionary costs for videoconferencing and video deposition charges, but makes no argument whatsoever that these expenses are necessary and exceptional. The Rule draftsman made clear in Rule 54(d)(1)(C)(9), that costs for reporting and transcribing could be recovered. There is no law or support for the exceptional charge of the video recording or video conferencing of these witnesses, which are charges over and above the costs for reporting and transcribing.

Plaintiff seeks discretionary costs for the exorbitant travel, lodging and meal expenses of his expert witness, Dr. Nichols. The rules set out the costs which are to be awarded for each expert. There is no exception carved out, nor would the interest of justice be served, to make extraordinary payments to a witness for traveling from out of town.

The Idaho Supreme Court has approved, as the correct interpretation of the term "exceptional," a district court's denial of expert witness fees, travel and lodging expenses for expert witnesses and attorneys, and administrative costs on the ground that the use of such experts and the other expenses were commonly incurred in serious personal injury actions. The Fish court made clear that medical experts routinely testify in serious personal injury actions which are litigated: "This is the very 'nature' of these sorts of cases. Similarly, travel and lodging expenses for expert witnesses and attorneys and photocopy expenses are not exceptional but, on the contrary, are common 'in a case of this nature." Fish, 131 Idaho at 493-94, 960 P.2d at 176-177.

The Plaintiff put into evidence Exhibits 7 and 8 that contained the reports of Drs. Morgan, Stemmler and Schaff. The report of Dr. Morgan stated in part "she now has what appears to be a probable fat emboli syndrome."

The radiology reports of Drs. Stemmler and Schaff for the chest x-rays of Krystal Ballard taken at Elmore Medical Center and Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center both provided that similar findings may be seen in setting of fat embolism and findings may represent fat embolism. It was the Plaintiff who limited the issue on fat embolism that would become part of the proof at trial. Plaintiff's expert Dr. Nichols had read these reports and records before he testified at the first trial in November of 2013 and he was fully aware of the proof that Krystal Ballard may have fat embolism. As justification for additional expert fees of Dr. Nichols (discretionary costs) and in the narrative for discretionary costs it states in part that Dr. Garrison, a defense pathologist was deposed two times after it was determined at his first deposition that he had additional opinions that had not been supplemented. Both depositions focused on opinions of Dr. Garrison that Krystal Ballard had fat embolism on the basis for the opinions. His opinions were in conformity with the reports of Drs. Morgan, Stemmler and Schaff that Dr. Nichols had evaluated before the trial in November of 2013. These factors and events demonstrate that the claim for additional expert fees of Dr. Nichols were not exceptional costs or necessary and reasonably incurred.

Item A for AMFS (Dean Sorensen, M.D.) of $11,812.37 for discretionary costs is absurd and was not necessary or an exceptional cost reasonably incurred.

Dr. Sorensen testified at the trial about AMFS which he said stood for American Medical Forensic Association. This testimony covered and included the following subjects:

1. AMF initially contacted him to review the case and he accepted.
2. AMF sent him a fee schedule.
3. AMF established the fees and not Mr. Haddad.
4. His fees were paid by AMF.
5. AMF takes a cut or percentage of the fees it is paid by Plaintiff's attorney.
6. AMF is the one that pays Dr. Sorensen.
7. AMF will pay for his trial testimony.

There was no proof that the fees charged by AMF and paid by Plaintiff's attorney were reasonable and in keeping with the fees ordinarily and customarily charged in Boise, Idaho. The engagement of a company by Plaintiff's attorney to locate and hire an expert witness is not a necessary or exceptional cost reasonably incurred that allows for an award of discretionary costs. The charges of AMF are not expert witness fees even though paid by Plaintiff's attorney.

The Court had already entered a verbal ruling at the hearing of March 12, 2014 for an award of costs and expenses of the Plaintiff as a result of the mistrial on November 14, 2013. The fact of a mistrial does not create or cause the trial in September of 2014 to qualify for discretionary costs. At the trial in November of 2013, the Plaintiff called the following witnesses:

1. Dr. Kerr;
2. Dr. Sorensen;
3. Dr. Nichols;
4. Plaintiff;
5. Cornelius Hofman; and
6. Video of Janelle Buchanan.

Before the trial of November 2013, the Plaintiff had deposed Dr. Kerr, Susie Kerr, Briana Dumas, all of the Defendants disclosed and retained expert witnesses and Dr. Nichols had reviewed and evaluated the report of the Ada County Coroner and the autopsy report of Dr. Groben, and Dr. Sorensen had reviewed all of the medical records of the case. At the trial of September 2014, the Plaintiff called the same witnesses that were called in the first trial and additional witnesses Dr. Groben, Susie Kerr and Vincent Brooks. At the trial in September of 2014, the same exhibits were used by the Plaintiff that were used at the first trial.

The testimony of the Plaintiff, Hofman, Dr. Nichols, Dr. Sorensen and Dr.

Kerr, at the September 2014 trial was a repeat of an basically the same as their testimony at the first trial. Since their testimony at both trials was basically the same, the mistrial did not add anything that would result in their testimony at the second trial to be exceptional or necessary. As for Dr. Groben, his testimony basically followed his autopsy report in all respects and was essentially a repeat of the autopsy report, that the Plaintiff's experts Dr. Nichols and Sorensen were familiar with before and during the first trial. The same is true as respects the trial testimony of Susie Kerr whose deposition the Plaintiff had taken before the first trial. Using witness Vincent Brooks on the issues of damages was not exceptional or necessary that gave rise to discretionary costs. Such witnesses are common in personal injury and death cases.

Allowing discretionary costs for the September 2014 trial would constitute a repeat of the verbal cost award of $64,324.54 ordered by the Court at the hearing of March 12, 2014, or a doubling up of costs against the Defendants.

As mentioned several times in this document, there are limitations on the right to recover discretionary costs, and the mere fact they were incurred does not qualify them as legitimate discretionary costs. In trial all of medical malpractice cases, experts are required by the Plaintiff to establish a prima facia case and it is common and ordinary for their experts to change professional fees well in excess of the amount allowed as costs as a matter of right. It is also a common and usual practice of attorneys in medical malpractice cases to take the depositions of an opponents disclosed experts that is authorized by Rule 26(b)(4)(A)(1)(iii), I.R.C.P. In these matters, Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(4)(c), provides for the payment of the experts fees for the time spent testifying at a deposition. These Rules cover and relate to standard and ordinary procedures and are not designed or meant to be exceptional. The combination of these Rules and the customary practices and procedures utilized in medical malpractice cases are applicable to paragraphs A and B of the Plaintiff's Memorandum of Costs for discretionary costs and should be denied by the Court.

Paragraph D of the Plaintiff's Memorandum of Discretionary costs, entitled videoconferencing/video deposition charges in the amount of $5,357.15. In many medical malpractice cases in Idaho, it is not uncommon for a party to take depositions by video means. Taking of depositions by video is frequently used and is not an exceptional cost or a necessary cost. When Plaintiff's attorney took the video depositions in this case, he was exercising an option authorized by the Rules of Civil Procedure, but taking the depositions by this means was not necessary or essential to the presentation of the Plaintiff's case.

The narrative of Plaintiff's attorney in support of the claim for these costs, item D, does not give a reason or justification for an award of these costs on a discretionary basis.

When Mr. Haddad initially took this case he knew he would have to travel to Boise, Idaho from West Virginia for trial and other pre-trial matters, and that travel costs, lodging and transportation would be incurred for himself and his paralegal Farrah Caruthers, if he elected to have her attend the trial as an option. The same is true as respects the travel expense of Plaintiff's expert Dr. Nichols, in addition to the travel expense covered by his travel expense allowed as a matter of right. Plaintiff's attorney knew that if Dr. Nichols was retained as an expert and used as a trial witness, the cost of his travel from Louisville, Kentucky to Boise would exceed the travel expense authorized as costs as a matter of right. It is obvious the Plaintiff approved these costs and accepted them regardless of the outcome of the trial. It was not necessary to have Farrah Caruthers attend the trial and in most medical malpractice trials in Idaho, paralegals do not attend trials. The defense did not have a paralegal at the trial. The use of a paralegal is an option and luxury selected by Mr. Haddad but not necessary or exceptional. The hiring of Dr. Nichols from Louisville, Kentucky was also an option and luxury that was not necessary or exceptional because there are numerous other pathologists who could have been hired that would not have travel expenses like Dr. Nichols. This point is demonstrated by the trial testimony of Dr. Groben that basically duplicated the trial testimony of Dr. Nichols. In the narrative of Mr. Haddad, he extolls the qualifications and status of Dr. Groben.

Paragraph F of the claim for discretionary costs is an option that Plaintiff's attorney saw fit to employ but it was not necessary or required. It does not equate to an exceptional cost.

The narrative of Mr. Haddad for discretionary costs does not explain, justify or support the costs advanced in paragraph F, nor does it support, justify and explain the basis for the costs designated in paragraph G.

The cost of transcripts is not necessary or an exceptional cost, but one that is available as an option. The Court has access to the testimony and dialogue contained in the transcripts that Plaintiff's attorney can refer to without having possession of the transcripts. The use of these transcripts is simply a convenience for Plaintiff's attorney and nothing more and their cost does not rise to the level of exceptional and necessary.

The narrative of Mr. Haddad for an award of discretionary costs is void of specific facts, proof, foundation and justification for discretionary costs, except for the following unsupported conclusory statements.

1. Costs were necessary, reasonable and exceptional and incurred as a consequence of the retrial.

2. The case was not defended as a simple medical malpractice action.

3. Because of the unique characteristics of the case, the Plaintiff was forced to present expert witnesses whose education, training and experience went far beyond that of a typical expert witness.

4. The case is exceptional simply by virtue of the fact that the initial case ended in a mistrial occasioned by the Defendants' actions at a point in the original trial where Defendants had the benefit of hearing all of the Plaintiff's case, a second trial had to be continued due to injury to one of the Defendants and ultimately a retrial which lasted three weeks, although a vast majority of trial time was consumed by Defense counsel examining witnesses which further increased the costs of Plaintiff's experts, who were forced to undergo many, many hours of cross-examination.

5. Discretionary costs should be awarded, especially in a situation where Defendants made no offer and forced Plaintiff to incur extraordinary costs in prosecuting the case, despite fairly clear and straightforward issues which should not have been in dispute.

None of these general and vague statements are supported by proof, evidence, events and explanations for awards of discretionary costs.

Specifically, the trial lasted 12 trial days that included jury selection, opening statements, recesses, jury instruction conference and closing arguments that was within the time scheduled by the Court. Taking these factors into account, a 12 day malpractice jury trial is not exceptionally long, especially when the Plaintiffs prove and want a jury damage award in the range of 3.7 million dollars. In the experience of undersigned counsel, medical malpractice trials frequently exceed 12 trial days.

This case was routine, ordinary and standard medical malpractice case and it was defended as a routine medical malpractice action in which undersigned has participated many times. The case did not have unique characteristics. It basically involved the following:

1. Whether Dr. Kerr and Silk Touch adequately cleaned, disinfected and sterilized the equipment used in the operation on Krystal Ballard.

2. Whether the gram negative rods found in the right buttock of Krystal Ballard were introduced during the operation of Dr. Kerr and if so, whether they resulted in the death of Krystal Ballard.

3. Standard and usual issues of the standard of health care practice for Dr. Kerr and Silk Touch and proximate cause.

The Plaintiff's experts gave testimony that was not unusual and did not go far beyond that of a typical expert, taking into account the basic issues of the case. The Defense did not put on proof by the testimony of experts that Krystal Ballard had fat embolism and the Plaintiff had to rebut the evidence of this because it was contained in the records that the Plaintiff put in evidence, in the first place.

The cross examination of Plaintiff's experts did not take many, many hours.

There is no proof or support that a lack of an offer by the Defendants would have avoided a trial.

The matters described in paragraph 4 above, constitute conjecture and speculation by Mr. Haddad. They lack proof, justification, and reasons why discretionary costs should be awarded.

In the narrative portion of Plaintiff's Memorandum for discretionary costs, it is asserted that Defendants made no offer and forced Plaintiff to incur extraordinary costs in prosecuting the case, despite fairly clear and straight forward issues which should not have been in dispute. This statement is totally irrelevant to the issue of discretionary costs and carries not probative worth for the Court's decision. Since the statement has been asserted by counsel for the Plaintiff, the Defendants would like the Court to know that the only actual offer of settlement of the Plaintiff was in an amount more than the combined jury award for damages, economic and non-economic.

Furthermore, the statement that Defendants made no offer does not establish or prove that an offer by the Defendants, even if made, would have resolved the case and not forced the Plaintiff to incur extraordinary costs in prosecuting the case. The issue of no offer by the Defendants should also be considered by the Court in light of the deposition and trial testimony of the Plaintiffs' only standard of health care practice expert Dr. Sorensen, and I quote:

> Q. I guess it's your opinion that gram negative rods were injected into the buttocks of Krystal Ballard during Dr. Kerr's procedure. Correct?
>
> A. Correct.
>
> Q. Isn't it true that's just an assumption on your part?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. Isn't it true that there's no proof by any means of the fact that at the time of surgery these gram negative bacteria went into her body. Isn't that true?

A. Yes.

There is also the trial testimony of Dr. Groben who performed the autopsy of Krystal Ballard, and I quote:

> Q. Okay. You said just moments ago you had no idea how bugs got into the tissue in the right buttocks. Correct?
>
> A. That's right.
>
> Q. Okay. When you say that as the pathologist conducting the autopsy, are you saying that you cannot determine or conclude that the bugs got into the right buttocks from instruments used by Dr. Kerr?
>
> A. That's right.

Dr. Sorensen testified at trial that the guidelines of the Federal CDC (Centers for Disease Control) and the State of Idaho Department of Health and Welfare are authoritative and should be followed as a basis for his opinion that Dr. Kerr violated the standard of practice that was the cause of death of Krystal Ballard. Counsel for the Plaintiff asked Dr. Sorensen questions on these subjects and Dr. Sorensen expressly answered the questions, even though Idaho Code 6-1014 prohibits these questions and answers and provides that they are not admissible in any proceeding or action concerning a determination of liability of a health care practitioner. Both Plaintiff's attorney and Dr. Sorensen violated Idaho Code 6-1014. These are examples and reasons why Dr. Kerr and Silk Touch believed it was appropriate to go to trial, in addition to the favorable opinions and trial testimony of their expert witnesses Drs. Stiller and Lundeby, witness Briana Dumas and Dr. Kerr himself.

All of these factors weigh heavily against an award of discretionary costs to the Plaintiff.

Rule 37(e), I.R.C.P., only applies to an Order of the Court made pursuant to these Rules. The mistrial was ordered on the basis that Dr. Stiller testified on the subject of pertinent or persistent infections in the office in violation of the Court Order granting Plaintiff's Motion in Limine that prohibited proof and testimony on infections, or lack of infections, in other patient's treated surgically by Dr. Kerr. There are no Rules of Civil Procedure that relate to, cover or embrace Motions in Limine and Orders of the Court on Motions in Limine. The term Motions in Limine are not found in the Rules of Civil Procedure. Rule 37(e) only applies to Orders made pursuant to the Rules of Civil Procedure and therefore the basis and reason for the mistrial was not predicated on a violation of any Rule of Civil Procedure. Rule 47(u) provides for a mistrial if the Court determines an occurrence at trial has prevented a fair trial. The Rule goes on to provide if the Court determines that a mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of a party or attorney, the Court may require the adverse party or the attorney or both, to pay the reasonable expenses including attorney fees incurred by the opposing party resulting from such misconduct. Rule 4(u) is the only Rule of Civil Procedure that pertains to a mistrial and the sanctions for causing a mistrial.

When the Court ordered the mistrial, no determination was made that the mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of Dr. Kerr, Silk Touch and their counsel and there was absolutely no evidence or proof that the mistrial was caused by any Defendant and their counsel as required by Rule 47(u).

At the Court hearing of February 2, 2014 on Plaintiff's Motion for Sanctions due to the mistrial ordered November 14, 2013, the Court entered a verbal order of sanctions for the jury fees to be paid to Ada County by the Defendants. It is the Defendants' position that this sanction is prohibited by the last sentence of Rule 48(a), I.R.C.P. that states "the cost of a jury shall not be taxed as costs to any party in any civil action."

Defendants respectfully request the Court to deny in full the Plaintiff's Memorandum for Discretionary Costs and the sum of $2,453.90, less the sum of $94.00, for costs as a matter of right.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT FOR THE FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF ADA

CHARLES BALLARD,

Plaintiff,

vs.

BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D.; SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, d/b/a SILK TOUCH MED SPA, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER, and LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

PLAINTIFF'S OPPOSITION TO DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISALLOW MEMORANDUM OF COSTS

Plaintiff Charles Ballard opposes Defendants' Motion to Disallow Costs. Under the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, the "prevailing party" is entitled to recover costs both as a matter of right and at the discretion of the Court. I. R. C. P. 54(d)(1)(C) and 54(d)(1)(D). In this case, Plaintiff was unquestionably the prevailing party as the Defendants were found negligent, reckless, and judgment was entered for $3,790,436.00 in Plaintiff's favor. Furthermore, the circumstances of the trial, including a mistrial caused by Defendants, led Plaintiff to reasonably incur necessary and exceptional costs that Defendants should pay in the interests of justice. On October 28, 2014, pursuant to Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure 54, Plaintiff filed a verified memorandum of costs as a matter of right, discretionary costs and adjusted previous award of sanctions in which he set forth all costs he seeks to recover. Through their motion, Defendants now oppose certain costs listed by Plaintiff. In opposition to Defendants' motion and in further support of their memorandum of costs, Plaintiff states the following:

I. Costs to Plaintiff as a Matter of Right

Pursuant to Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure 54, Plaintiff filed a verified memorandum of costs as a matter of right, discretionary costs and adjusted previous award of sanctions ("Memorandum of Costs"). See Pl.'s Mem. of Costs attached as Exhibit 1. In that memorandum, Plaintiff set forth the costs he seeks both as a matter of right and at the discretion of the Court for costs that were necessary, reasonable and exceptional.

Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure 54(d)(1) entitles Plaintiff to recover certain costs as a matter of right, including "[a]ctual fees for service of any pleading or document in the action whether served by a public officer or other person." I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1)(C)(2) (emphasis added). Defendants make the specious argument that Plaintiff cannot recover the costs for the service of subpoenas because subpoenas are not specifically listed as a "document" covered by the rule. Yet, the rule itself lists only "pleadings" and otherwise applies to the service of "any...document" without specifying further any other type of document that would be covered. Such broad language was clearly meant to encompass all documents that would require "service" in the course of litigation. Other than the summons or complaint, the most common documents requiring service in the course of litigation are subpoenas. To exclude them from the rule impermissibly renders the words "any document" practically meaningless. See State v. Yzaguirre, 144 Idaho 471, 478, 163 P.3d 1183, 1190 (2007) ("In interpreting statutory language, all the words of the statute must be given effect if possible, and the statute must be construed as a whole."). To give effect to the word "document" in the rule, subpoenas must be included and Plaintiff is entitled as a matter of right to $2,453.90 for the costs he incurred for the service of subpoenas in this case. Additionally, Plaintiff is entitled to all other costs listed in the Memorandum of Costs as a matter of right. See Exhibit 1 at pp. 2-4.

II. Discretionary Costs

Idaho Rule of Civil Procedure 54(d)(1)(D) provides that "[a]dditional items of cost not enumerated in, or in an amount in excess of that listed in subparagraph (C), may be allowed upon a showing that said costs were necessary and exceptional costs reasonably incurred, and should in the interest of justice be assessed against the adverse party." I.R.C.P. 54. The grant or denial of discretionary costs is "committed to the sound discretion of the district court." Zimmerman v. Volkswagen of America, Inc., 128 Idaho 851, 857, 920 P.2d 67, 73 (1996), cert. denied, 520 U.S. 1115, 117 S.Ct. 1245, 137 L.Ed.2d 327 (1997).

In his Memorandum of Costs, Plaintiff requested an award of discretionary costs on the ground that such costs were necessary, reasonable and exceptional and incurred as a consequence of the retrial of this action and should, in the interest of justice, be assessed against the Defendants. Included in Plaintiff's Memorandum of Costs were fees for additional expert witness fees and travel expenses, both of which may be awarded as discretionary costs:

> Discretionary costs under Rule 54(d)(1)(D) can include travel expenses along with other expenses such as photocopying, faxes, postage and long distance > telephone calls. Automobile Club Ins. Co. v. Jackson, 124 Idaho 874, 880, 865 P.2d 965, 971 (1993). This Court ... has found that a trial court may assess additional expert witness fees under I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1)(D). Turner v. Willis, 116 Idaho 682, 686, 778 P.2d 804, 808 (1989).

Richard J. & Esther E. Wooley Trust v. DeBest Plumbing, Inc., 133 Idaho 180, 187, 983 P.2d 834, 841 (1999). Defendants cite Fish v. Smith for the proposition that such costs are not exceptional in a personal injury case for the purposes of Rule 54(d)(1)(D). Fish v. Smith, 131 Idaho 492, 960 P.2d 175 (1998). Yet, it is clear that the Court in that case simply applied its discretion to the facts in that case and the appeals court upheld the lower court's decision, as is required by the Rule. Richard J. & Esther E. Wooley Trust, 133 Idaho at 187 ("[Plaintiff] reads Fish as a determination that expert fees and travel costs are not exceptional. This is incorrect. Fish merely applied the abuse of discretion standard and concluded that the district court did not abuse its discretion."). Applying its discretion to the facts in this case, this Court should uphold Plaintiff's request for discretionary costs.

As stated in the Memorandum of Costs, this case was not defended as a simple medical malpractice action. The Defendants identified three standard-of-care witnesses, as well as Dr. Kerr himself. All four of these physicians are within the same specialty of cosmetic surgery, and are located both within and outside of the State of Idaho. Defendants did not call one of the experts, Dr. Gregory Laurence, yet a fee for Dr. Laurence's deposition was incurred by Plaintiff for this cumulative expert.

Further, despite an autopsy performed by an objective and non-retained pathologist, Dr. Glen Groben, Ada County Coroner, whose findings under Idaho law may be deemed to be the prima facie cause of death, Defendants nonetheless identified a pathologist, Dr. Garrison to rebut the cause of death identified in the autopsy report. The deposition of the pathologist occurred on two occasions after it was determined at his first deposition that he had additional opinions that had not been disclosed. Defendants did not call Dr. Garrison at trial.

Because of the unique characteristics of the case, the Plaintiff was forced to present expert witnesses whose education, training and experience went beyond that of a typical expert witness. Dr. Dean Sorensen had the unique experience of being an inspector of various cosmetic surgery facilities, which brought to bear his experience of being able to identify the standard of care applicable to the entire Treasure Valley area. Similarly, Dr. Nichols is a nationally-recognized expert who has authored a number of different articles, on issues directly relevant to the case.

In addition, the actions of one of the parties can make a case exceptional for the purposes of awarding discretionary costs by making the case unnecessarily long or complicated. Puckett v. Verska, 144 Idaho 161, 169, 158 P.3d 937, 945 (2007). In Puckett, a medical malpractice case, the Court upheld the lower court's award of discretionary costs to the Plaintiff, including expert fees and travel costs. The award came after two trials, the first having ended in a mistrial. Id. The Court found that the costs requested by Plaintiff were exceptional given the "long course of litigation and complexity of this case" and that the lower court was not required to evaluate the costs requested, item by item, but instead "the district court's findings as to the general character of the travel expenses, expert witness fees and other litigation costs were sufficient." Id.

Accordingly, this case is exceptional simply by virtue of the fact that the initial case ended in a mistrial occasioned by the Defendants' actions at a point in the original trial where Defendants had the benefit of hearing all of the Plaintiff's case; a second trial had to be continued due to injury to one of the Defendants, and ultimately a retrial that lasted three weeks, although a vast majority of trial time was consumed by defense counsel examining witnesses, thereby further increasing the costs of Plaintiff's experts. The Plaintiff's expert charges are in line on an hourly basis for what the Defendants' experts charged on an hourly basis, and therefore, were reasonable in cost. It is in the interest of justice that these discretionary costs should be awarded, especially in a situation where Defendants made no offer and forced Plaintiff to incur extraordinary costs in prosecuting the case, despite fairly clear and straightforward issues which should not have been in dispute. Likewise, costs for travel by the attorneys and the cost for video depositions are properly included in the overall exceptional litigation costs.

Finally, Defendants argue without meaningful elaboration that Dr. Sorensen's testimony at trial, related to the standard of practice, somehow violated Idaho Code § 6-1014. How this is pertinent to the determination of discretionary costs available to the Plaintiff is not clear. What is clear is that Idaho Code § 6-1014 is not in any way applicable to Dr. Sorensen's testimony and therefore his testimony and the evidence presented at trial did not violate the statute.

As stated in his Memorandum of Costs, Plaintiff is entitled to $19,018.91 in costs as a matter of right. In addition, Plaintiff requests $47,028.07 in discretionary costs on the ground that the costs were necessary, reasonable and exceptional and incurred as a consequence of the retrial of this action and should in the interest of justice be assessed against the Defendants as stated above. Therefore, Plaintiff respectfully requests that the Court deny Defendants' Motion to Disallow Costs and enter an Order granting the costs requested by Plaintiff in his verified memorandum of costs as a matter of right, discretionary costs and adjusted previous award of sanctions filed with this court on October 28, 2014.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE FOURTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF THE STATE OF IDAHO, IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF ADA

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D.; SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER, and LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants.	Case No.: CV OC 2012-04792 ORDER RE: COSTS AND FEES

Krystal Ballard was a previously healthy young Staff Sergeant in the United States Air Force who died as a result of contaminated instruments used by Dr. Brian Kerr during a liposuction/fat transfer performed at his office at Silk Touch Laser, LLP. The jury concluded that Dr. Kerr and Silk Touch were negligent and reckless in the cleaning, disinfecting and sterilization of the reusable equipment used in the procedure and awarded damages of $3,790,431.00. One of the most critical pieces of evidence was a slide made by the pathologist who performed Krystal's autopsy which showed the deadly infection inside a fat transfer injection site, with no tracing of bacteria from the surface of the skin to the infection point. If the infection had come from the surface, there would have been signs from the surface of infection. There was none. Krystal had nothing else medically wrong with her except the deadly bacteria injected during the procedure. The instrument became infected during the procedure. The angle of infection matched the angle at which Dr. Kerr injected fat and occurred in an injection site, below the skin. The plaintiff prevailed and is entitled to all costs of right and to discretionary costs as will be addressed hereafter.

The defense triggered a mistrial the first time this case went to trial on the first day of the defense case, after eight days of testimony, when their witness blatantly disregarded the Court's in limine order barring purported evidence of a lack of prior infections. The "evidence" of a lack of prior infections came from a review performed by Dr. Kerr's wife, who had no medical training or background, of undisclosed records of Silk Touch. The records were never disclosed by the defense to the plaintiff in spite of express requests and represented an inadmissible "summary" which did not meet any of the requirements of IRE 1006. Considerable time had been consumed the first morning of the first trial discussing the problems presented by the purported "summary": the lack of disclosure of any of the underlying data allegedly summarized, its preparation by an untrained person, lack of clarity about whether the procedures allegedly summarized were, in fact, similar, and the lack of any proper foundation for the purported evidence of lack of prior infections. While the defense had violated another order in limine barring reference to insurance when Mr. Quane engaged in extensive questioning of life insurance deductions on Krystal's paycheck, apparently insinuating that, since S.Sgt. Charles Ballard had received life insurance proceeds as a result of his wife's death, he was somehow not entitled to seek redress from a jury, that violation did not present the serious concerns caused by the grave misconduct of the defense witness, Dr. Gregory Stiller. Dr. Stiller, in direct violation of the Court's in limine order testified in response to a defense question asking why he held the opinion that contaminated instruments were not the cause of S.Sgt. Krystal Ballard's death:

"...Let alone the fact of that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office. There is no history of the fact that...." His answer ended only with the interjection by plaintiff's counsel of an objection. Dr. Stiller based his opinion on the excluded "summary" which was excluded because it did not meet even the most minimal standards for admissible evidence. While the defense, Mr. Quane, engaged in questionable conduct during the trial in violating a different in limine order, this violation was such grave misconduct that the Court granted a mistrial and indicated that sanctions would be awarded to, as much as possible, alleviate the harm caused by the misconduct. There is no credible evidence that there was a prior lack of infection because no medically trained person ever reviewed the purported records. The underlying data was never disclosed. It is not clear which results from which procedures were reviewed. It was prejudicial to imply that there was any legitimate, credible evidence of a lack of prior infections for the same procedure. The plaintiff was seriously prejudiced. The defense had a complete preview of the entire plaintiff's case. The defense can bill hourly and can recover its expenses regardless of outcome—not so the plaintiff. Krystal's husband, SSgt. Charles Ballard, had to come to Boise, obtain leave and stay here for two separate trials—a situation which should never have occurred. He was, and is, an active duty member of the United States Air Force.

Mr. Quane is an extremely experienced counsel. He was well aware of the length of time spent addressing the motion in limine, its critical importance and the reasons for the court's ruling. He has handled expert witnesses for decades. He should have been well aware of the risk presented when an expert who has not testified in any previous trial has based previous opinions on evidence that has been declared inadmissible and that was fundamentally flawed. The triggering of the mistrial was grave misconduct which gave the defense a significant and unfair advantage. It is the kind of misconduct which discredits the entire system of justice. The foundational rule of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure is that the purpose of all of the rules is "to secure the just, speedy and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding." I.R.C.P. 1(a). The defense misconduct violated every aspect of the Rule. At the time the mistrial was declared, the Court indicated its intention to try to mitigate the unfairness caused by the defense deliberate misconduct. The Court ordered that the defense reimburse the plaintiff for the expenses which were incurred for the first trial and for attorney fees pursuant to I.R.C.P. 47(u) but a written Order was not entered for three reasons: first, to give the Court the chance to review the matter more fully when the record was more complete and to assess, in colder light, what sanctions, beyond costs incurred, should be reasonably assessed; two, how they might be crafted to avoid unfairness to either side, and finally, to preclude further delay in the retrial by defense interlocutory motions. The second trial had already been continued once because of the defendant's bicycle accident. Further delay would have occasioned further unwarranted harm to the plaintiff. The kind of conduct engaged in by the defense in this case was so outrageous that this Court has simply not seen such a pattern of conduct in over three decades of trying complex cases and it seemed like a colder, more measured analysis would be prudent. In the cold light of further review, sanctions remain warranted.

A. Costs of Right.

The plaintiff prevailed and is entitled to all costs of right. Under I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1), costs of right are awarded as follows:

1. Court filing fees. Filing fees are awarded of $88.00.

2. Actual fees for service of any pleading or document in the action whether served by a public officer or other person. Service fees are awarded of $2,453.90 in accordance with the rules. The Rule mandates costs for the service of "any pleading or document." The defense cites no legal support for its argument rejecting the portion attributable to service of subpoenas. Subpoenas are a document for which service is required and is a permissible cost of right.

3. Travel expenses of witnesses. Travel fees for witnesses computed at the rate provided by I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1)(C)(4) are awarded in the amount of $567.00.

4. Costs for Preparation of Trial Exhibits. Costs for preparation of trial exhibits are awarded to the plaintiff in the amount of $500.00.

5. Reasonable expert witness fees for an expert who testifies at a deposition or at a trial of an action. Reasonable expert witness fees, capped at $2,000 per witness, are authorized under I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1)(C)(8) and are awarded in the amount of $5,96.00.

6. Charges for reporting and transcribing of a deposition taken in preparation for trial of an action, whether or not read into evidence in the trial of an action. The plaintiff is awarded costs of right for depositions of $9,450.01.

Total Costs of Right Awarded: $19,018.91.

B. Discretionary Costs. Under I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1)(D),additional costs may be awarded by the Court, in its sound discretion, "upon a showing that said costs were necessary and exceptional costs reasonably incurred" which "should in the interest of justice be assessed against the adverse party." In this case, the Court will award all costs associated with the expert testimony offered in the first trial because the trial was rendered a nullity as a result of deliberate misconduct by the defense and because the interests of justice require that the defense not profit by this misconduct any more than can be avoided. Nothing erases the fact that the plaintiff was placed in a position of providing a preview of its entire case but the plaintiff's recovery should not be further reduced by charges occasioned by the misconduct of the defense which required him to duplicate his proof.

On the first morning of trial, the Court granted the not uncommon motion in limine precluding references to insurance. On his examination purportedly to question the amount of damages, Mr. Quane deliberately questioned a witness on Krystal's pay stub which showed deductions for life insurance. To preclude a reoccurrence, the Court ordered that those references be redacted in the second trial. Although it was a violation of the in limine order, it was one which could have been addressed with a cautionary instruction to the jury.

Trial costs and expert fees for the first trial, less costs of right awarded above, are awarded in the amount of $48,121.51. SSgt. Ballard's travel fees and costs from his duty station in Florida to attend the first trial, including lodging and meals, are awarded in the amount of $4,324. 54 as a discretionary cost since they are reasonable, necessary and exceptional and, in the interests of justice, should be awarded to him as a result of the defense misconduct in this case. It is prudent and necessary for counsel to obtain transcripts of the prior trial, they are also awarded in the amount of $1,664.75 since they are exceptional costs which should, in the interests of justice, be awarded to the plaintiff.

As to the costs incurred with respect to expert witness fees in the second trial, those are not awarded as discretionary costs. The type of discovery counsel had to engage in is typical for a medical malpractice case. It is not uncommon to incur deposition costs and expenses in connection with a witness who does not testify. The Court has already awarded the maximum amount for each expert witness fee as provided for by I.R.C.P. 54(d)(1)(C)(8) as costs of right. The additional costs sought do not meet the requirement that they be "exceptional" costs. Travel costs connected with the second trial, additional witness fees are customary costs which do not fit the requirements for an award of discretionary costs since they will, presumably, be covered by the damage award fixed by the jury.

This Court has made every effort to allow the costs connected to the first trial to be covered as discretionary costs because they were reasonable, necessary and "exceptional" since the first trial was rendered worse than a nullity by the defense misconduct. No court could fully address the prejudice which may have resulted to the plaintiff by being placed in a position where they provided a full preview of their case to the defense. As much as possible however, the Court has endeavored to place plaintiff in the position that the plaintiff would have been had he been afforded one fair trial. These costs are also properly awarded on the equal ground provided by I.R.C.P. 47(u). On both grounds, costs are awarded as provided herein.

C. Attorney fees.

The mistrial in this case was triggered as a result of deliberate misconduct which came out of the direct violation of an in limine order. Dr. Stiller testified at his deposition about conclusions made from the spurious "study." When asked his opinion by the defense, he went straight into the area that the Court had barred in limine, after extensive discussion and argument. He had been repeatedly warned to stay away from the area. He gave his opinion that there was no negligence in the defendants' cleaning, sterilizing and disinfecting of reusable equipment used in the fat transfer by referring to the inadmissible "summary": "let alone the fact of that no pertinent or persistent infections in the office. There is no history of the fact that—". His answer was stopped by the plaintiff's objection. The information he based his opinion on was gathered in an unknown fashion by Dr. Kerr's wife who had no medical training--it is not clear if the information did relate to the same procedure--the underlying "data" supporting the "summary" was never produced for inspection even though requested by the plaintiff. The absence of similar accidents always requires a showing of relevance and a significant foundation establishing true similarity which was never made in this case. There are important, serious, evidentiary requirements which must be established to permit this type of evidence—none of which were shown in this case. The requirements for admission of a summary under IRE 1006 were never met. The unsupported implication that there had never been prior infections in Dr. Kerr's office warranted the mistrial which was granted.

Under I.R.C.P. 47(u):

Rule 47(u). Declaration of mistrial Sanctions.

> After trial is commenced, at any time prior to the rendering of a verdict, the court on its own motion or upon motion of any party may declare a mistrial if it determines an occurrence at trial has prevented a fair trial. If the court determines that a mistrial was caused by the deliberate misconduct of a party or attorney, the court may require the adverse party or the attorney, or both, to pay the reasonable expenses including attorney fees incurred by the opposing party or parties resulting from such misconduct.

The Court ordered the mistrial and sanctions. Upon further reflection, the Court withdraws the order assessing jury fees and costs.

This was an extremely unusual situation. The defense had engaged in a prior violation of an in limine order which the Court intended to address by way of a cautionary instruction but to imply, without any solid basis, that there was absence of prior infections was a level of deliberate misconduct which necessitated a mistrial. As a result of the mistrial, the defense had a full preview of the plaintiff's case. The plaintiff incurred expenses related to a trial which ended midway. Plaintiff's counsel expended time for which they would not be fully recompensed even if the second trial was fair and did result in a verdict for the plaintiff. It is not uncommon for cases to be defended in a way that drives up costs unnecessarily but the deliberate misconduct which caused a mistrial in this case was beyond the pale. Having reviewed the plaintiff's application for attorney fees, attorney fees are awarded in connection with the first trial in the amount of $70, 566.50.

Counsel is directed to submit an Amended Judgment reflecting the Court's ruling on costs and fees. Counsel's attention is drawn to I.R.C.P. Rule 54(a):

> Rule 54(a). Judgments Definition Form.
>
> Judgment as used in these rules means a separate document entitled Judgment or Decree. A judgment shall state the relief to which a party is entitled on one or more claims for relief in the action. Such relief can include dismissal with or without prejudice. A judgment shall not contain a recital of pleadings, the report of a master, the record of prior proceedings, the court's legal reasoning, findings of fact, or conclusions of law. ... A judgment shall begin with the words JUDGMENT IS ENTERED AS FOLLOWS: , and it shall not contain any other wording between those words and the caption. A judgment can include any findings of fact or conclusions of law expressly required by statute, rule, or regulation.

(emphasis added).

It is so ordered.

Case No. CV OC 1204792

AFFIDAVIT OF JEREMIAH A. QUANE IN SUPPORT OF OBJECTION AND/OR MOTION TO AUGMENT THE RECORD ON APPEAL

STATE OF IDAHO)
: Ss.
County of Ada)

Jeremiah A. Quane, having been first duly sworn upon oath, deposes and says:

1). I am a member of the law firm of Quane Jones McColl, PLLC, attorneys of record for Defendants in the above-captioned action, and the following statements are made of my own personal knowledge and are true and correct.

2). I was one of the attorneys of record in the trial conducted by Judge Bail.

3). During the trial the jury was allowed to submit written questions to the Judge. The jury also submitted at least one written question to the Judge during deliberations which is not identified or referred to in the official court transcript.

4). During multiple side bar conferences with Judge Bail, she stated to me that the juror questions, which were read, rejected or modified and read by the Judge, would be part of the record in this case. Upon receipt of the Clerk's record, however, the juror questions are not included and therefore the Clerk's record must be supplemented.

5). As the juror questions relate to several of the issues on appeal, the Clerk's record should be supplemented to include them.

6). Appellant therefore requests the Clerk's record on appeal be augmented pursuant to Idaho Appellate Rule 30 to include all written questions submitted by the jurors in this case. This request is intended to include those questions submitted by the jury during the trial as well as those questions that were submitted during jury deliberations.

7). In addition, the Judge refused to admit Defense Exhibits H, AA, II and KK all of which were included in the Defense list of exhibits and within the exhibits submitted prior to trial to the Judge and the Judge's clerk. As these exhibits relate directly to several of our assignments of err by the District Court as set forth in our Notice of Appeal, Appellant therefore requests the Clerk's record on appeal be augmented pursuant to Idaho Appellate Rule 30 to include complete copies of Defense Exhibits H, AA, II and KK.

FURTHER your Affiant sayeth naught.

1). I am a member of the law firm of Quane Jones McColl, PLLC, attorneys of record for Defendants in the above-captioned action, and the following

2). On March 10, 2015, I spoke on the telephone with Kelle Wegener, the Ada County Deputy Clerk who handles appeals.

3). I asked Ms. Wegener why the written questions the jury submitted to the Judge were not included in the recently produced Clerk's record for appeal. Ms. Wegener acknowledged that Mr. Quane asked for everything in the record to be included on the appeal.

4). I asked Ms. Wegener to determine whether the written questions submitted to the judge by the jury were included in the Clerk's file for this case. Ms. Wegener informed me that she located the juror's written questions inside an envelope within the Court's file.

5). Ms. Wegener instructed that I submit a request for the Clerk's record on appeal to also include the written questions the jury submitted to the Judge so that they may become part of the Clerk's record on appeal. This affidavit is submitted in support of the Defendants' accompanying Objection and/or Motion to Augment the Record on Appeal for that purpose.

CHARLES BALLARD, Plaintiff-Respondent, vs. BRIAN CALDER KERR, M.D., SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership; and SILK TOUCH LASER, LLP, an Idaho limited liability partnership, dba SILK TOUCH MED SPA, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA AND LASER CENTER, and/or SILK TOUCH MED SPA, LASER AND LIPO OF BOISE, Defendants-Appellants.	CASE NO. CVOC12-04792 RESPONSE TO DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO AUGMENT RECORD ON APPEAL

The Plaintiff-Respondent, Ssgt. Charles Ballard, through counsel, offers the following response to the Defendant-Appellants' Objection and/or Motion to Augment the Record on Appeal filed on March 11, 2015. Specifically, Defendant-Appellants ask the Court to augment the record with documents related to written questions from jurors listed in paragraphs 1 and 2 and certain documents described as defense exhibits listed in paragraphs 3 to 6. SSgt. Ballard agrees that the records related to juror questions in paragraphs 1 and 2 are properly included in the appellate record and has no objection to the Defendant-Appellants' motion with respect to those documents. However, as described below, the Defendant-Appellants have not established that the other documents can be properly included in the record on appeal and ask that the motion as it pertains to paragraphs 3 to 6 be denied on that basis.

"Any party may request any written document filed or lodged with the district court . . . to be included in the clerk's . . . record." IAR 28(c). The Defense Exhibits listed in paragraphs 3 to 6 do not appear on the list of all exhibits identified during trial, whether admitted or not, and the Defendant-Appellants' motion does not attach file-stamped copies of the "exhibits" at issue or explain when they were filed or lodged with the Court. Accordingly, Defendant-Appellants have not established that the documents described in paragraphs 3 to 6 of the motion are properly included in the appellate record and the request should be denied on that basis.
